A.S. Board delays action on asbestos

By Mariann Hansen Daily staff write

The Associated Students Board of Directors decided not to take action on a resolution for cleaning up asbestos on campus until it gathers more information.

During the board meeting Wednesday, concerned individuals distributed flyers which stated "Campus Alert — Asbestos Exposure," and outlined information about asbestos in 24 buildings on quested that the board members support them in asking the administra-tion to post warning signs where there is asbestos on campus.

Henry Orbach, associate exec-utive vice president of facilities development and operations, explained the "administration's side" of the asbestos issue to the board. He said that his office did a study last year which confirmed there were no dangerous levels of asbestos on campus.

Fullerton signs '85-86 A.S. budget

By Mariann Hansen

Daily staff write Associated Students President Michael Schneider announced Wednesday that SJSU President Gail Michael Fullerton signed the A.S. budget for the 1985-86 year.

Events will be key to REC success

By Aaron Crowe

Daily staff writer Like all major projects, inevi table problems are anticipated and solutions must be sought. Ground breaking for the Recreation and Events Center is scheduled to begin in March 1986, and some problems are already arising.

Some of the possible headaches in store for the Rec Center are basket- Part three of ball attendance. a three-part events, parking Spartan Daily and who will use Series the facility.

Seating for basketball will be 4,-650, according to a report by Laven-thol and Horwath, Public Accountants. Thirteen men's basketball events with attendance of 4,500 are planned for the Rec Center. The Spartans averaged 1,530 attendence this season.

Student Union Director Ron Barrett said he thinks basketball game attendance will eventually increase because of the Rec Center.

"My guess would be that with a new facility, will come much greater interest in the team," Barrett said. greater interest generally With comes better players and bigger audiences. I would think it's entirely reasonable that the basketball team would before too long, after this Rec Center gets opened, be having sellouts. I don't think it's unreasonable Men's basketball coach Bill

Berry agreed, saying the larger arena would attract larger basketball schools, such as California State University at Fresno and the University of Nevada-Las Vegas.

"If we had a big arena, it would allow bigger name schools to come in, from a scheduling standpoint," Berry said. "We've got to come out of the dark ages.

The Spartans now play off campus at the San Jose Civic Center. Berry said that with an arena on campus, more students would go to the games and more dorm students would attend. He also said the new will help the team attract center more and better basketball players.

While university uses, such as basketball games, are third in priority, major student sponsored events, such as concerts, are expected to make a profit for the Rec Center. These events will be second on the priority use list for the center, behind student recreational use

There will be 5,500 seats for concerts and Rec Center officials are estimating eight to 11 concerts per year. They estimate attendance at 5,-000 per event. Earlier proposals for the center planned for 7,500 seats.

Four to five large concerts and six to eight small concerts were estimated during each year.

'When we reduced the size of the arena," Barrett said, "we had to eliminate the large concerts. That would either add to the number of medium-sized concerts or reduce the total number somehow. We just took the large concerts and put them all in to the medium-sized categories so you'd be looking at this being combined now into let's say 12 concerts in the first year and then building up to 16 by the third or fourth year.

Most of these concerts will take place on the weekends, when co-rec reation and intramurals for students do not have priority over them, Bar rett said. The new parking garage on Fourth Street should be able to handle the extra cars on the weekends when school is not in session, he said.

"All of our speculation and calculation suggests there will be plenty of parking as long as we stay away from nighttime classes," Barrett said. There will be four parking lots

The Student Union Board of Directors voted Tuesday to delay the proposed modifications to the S.U Games Area until more thorough research is completed.

SUBOD was to vote on a total cost estimate of $108,226 to expand the games area, which is in the lower level of the S.U., but not enough information was available for the board to make a decision.

"I don't know what I'm voting on," said J. Handel Evans, SJSU executive vice president.

In a preliminary study by architects Sugimura and Associates, a total of $104,726 was needed for the construction. But Terry Gregory, recreation director, told the SU. that $3,500 more would be board needed for additional items.

These additional items include furnishings for a table tennis room, a new Spartan Bookstore door, a new public address system for the rooms, and architect fees for the design phase

S.U. Director Ron Barrett said that if the board approved the plan. an additional $11,000 would be needed for the arhitect's design phase

Evans said he objected to these last-minute additions to the plan and wanted the proper costs to be presented at the next SUBOD meeting.

Alan Day, Associated Students Program Board director, said it is not fair for the board to look at the study for 15 minutes and then vote on it. Day made a motion to table the de-cision until the next board meeting.

Since Tuesday's meeting was the last one of the semester. Chairman Jeff Coughlan said he would have to schedule another meeting. He said it would be tentatively scheduled for May 14 at 3:30 p.m. in the S.U. Guadalupe Room.

Barrett said he was "apologetic" if the board thought these were last-minute decisions. Barrett said the architects met late Monday night and continued on page 4

Tower List misleads students

The Tower List, a publication listing students'evalua-tions of teachers, serves a negative affect in the field of education

The Tower List is meant to help students choose what teachers to take. Supposedly, students feel that they can advise others on what teacher to take

Unfortunately, the Tower List does not serve this purpose. What it does do is set unfair judgments on teachers, and plant preconceived ideas in students' minds. This can directly affect student-teacher interaction, and therefore, teacher performance. It also serves as a "shopping guide" for those students who wish to take the easy way out

A student telling another his or her opinion of a teacher is clear as just that - opinion. It is easy, in this case, to realize that the teacher evaluation is completely based on that individual's reaction to the teacher. A published listing of many students' opinions is sometimes inter-preted as more than simply opinions. The Tower List holds the power of the written word, which is often be lieved to be the truth. Because it is in print, and because it is the sum of many opinions, students may interpret the Tower List as carrying more weight than it actually does

"Student response affects teacher behavior," accord-ing to psychologists John Conger and Anne Petersen in their book, "Adolescence and Youth." The following study has tested this.

One speaker gave a lecture to two separate classes The first two classes were each given a personality profile of the speaker before they met him. The first class was told that the lecturer was a cold, withdrawn person who did not get involved with the class The other class was given an opposite description — that of a kind, caring, warm lecturer. The third class then observed and rated the responses of the classes and the lecturer. "It was found that student expectations did indeed affect teacher behavior," the study showed. "Students who expected a cold teacher produced one; furthermore, the same speaker giving the same talk was judged as warmer, more relaxed and more competent.

This study, the psychologists stated, makes you wonder about the "potential effects of the faculty rating guides" used on many campuses.

Imagine students who have read in the faculty guide that a professor is uninspiring. As a result, the students do not get involved in the class.

'The professor, responding to this behavior, may in turn become less enthusiastic, and each side will continue reinforcing the other's negative behavior with predic-tably regrettable results," Conger and Petersen state.

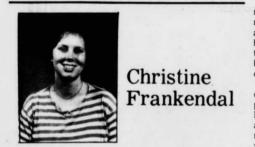

Finally, the Tower List acts as a shopping guide for students. I know many students who have gone through college taking the easiest courses and teachers possible. Considering that it is an honors society which puts out the Tower List, I am sure it is not the purpose of the publication to encourage this. However, the Tower List does this it therefore looks as if the honor society supports this nonacademic approach to learning

Vet's memorial dream fulfilled

When Congressman Ed Zschau addressed the president's and dean's scholars two weeks ago in the Morris Dailey Auditorium, he told them : "Contribute to society and you'll have the satisfaction of seeing something good in this world that wasn't there before, and know it's there because of you.

Zschau did probably not have the Vietnam veterans in mind when he gave his speech at SJSU. Yet, the vets do fit his words. They did sponsor something that holds a very special meaning to all Americans the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C. During my year as a high school exchange student in the nation's capital, I tried to visit all the sights and get to know the city inside and out. Sure, I got the chance to see the Lincoln Memorial, Washington Monument and walk along the Mall, but there was one thing I regret I missed; the black granite veteran's memorial. It was dedicated on November 13, 1982, after I had already left. On that day, thousands of Vietnam vets were drawn to Washington D.C. for one of the largest processions the capital had seen since John F. Kennedy's funeral. They came to pay to each other the tributes denied to them elsewhere A National Sponsoring Committee had raised tributions from the American people added up to $144.50. But when two other Vietnam vets, both attorneys in Washington, D.C., joined Scruggs's one-man crusade, things started to happen. A non-profit Vietnam Veterans Memorial Fund (VVMF) was organized to obtain land for the memorial, select a design, finish fund-raising, complete the construction and conduct dedication ceremonies Veteran's Day in 1982.

The Vietnam Veterans Memorial was to help bind the nation's wounds. What better place than the Lincoln Me-morial could there be? A unity between the nation's past and present. But the only way to get the land near Abraham Lincoln was to get Congress to give it directly to them. On July 1, 1980, President Jimmy Carter signed a bill into law, giving the vets two acres at the foot of Lincoln

A design competition was called. Any U.S. citizen 18 or older could submit entries. The VVMF received 1,421 proposed memorials in all shapes, including hovering he licopters, miniature Lincoln Memorials, peace signs and army helmets. The commission voted unanimously on number 1,026. Maya Lin, a Yale senior, a woman too young to have experienced the war, had designed the powerful yet simple war memorial for a seminar on funerary architecture

"A confused age needs a simple solution," the com mission commented.

Lin felt the memorial should be for the people who gave their lives and carry the names of the 58,022 men and women who died or remain missing from a war that still haunts us. They are listed in the order of the day they died to read like an epic Greek poem. Locating specific names with the aid of a directory, would be like finding bodies on a battlefield, she said.

People read the names as words, stand quietly, let the feelings flow. They leave feeling different than when they arrived. The power of a familiar name turns the memorial into a place to mourn. The loved ones left behind, cling to the one thing "they" could never take away from those who never came home. Something that had been with each special human being since the joy of birth: a name

Letter to the Editor

American profits over people Editor

Normally, I would have dissmissed such a letter as Prof. Wettergreen's (May 1) as a typical conservative response to threatened stockholder investments, but the fallacies within the letter were too much to pass on

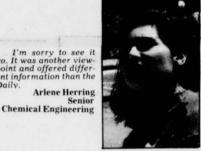

In the first place, Prof. Wettergreen seems so af-fected by his fear of non-conservatives, his rationality has been disturbed. It is ludicrous to accuse "leftists" of not favoring racial equality or purposely attacking companies who do. These leftists are comprised, in part, of mi norities who work with the rest to consistently advance everyone to positions of true equality. Reverse discrimination is not a factor here, for many whites would then be working against themselves. I hardly see a fostering of "genuine racial equality" in South Africa when a company such as Hewlett-Packard employs approximately 10 percent non-whites in a nation where they make up 95 percent of the population.

Secondly, Prof. Wettergreen asserts that divestment would bring instability to South Africa, in turn aiding the Soviet Union, I assert that America's foreign policy of aiding brutal, totalitarian regimes leads to that instability. A clear majority in any nation will not be brutalized forever, and will seek help where they can find it. If we would try to help the most people, rather than just the richest or those willing to continue oppressing their populations in the name of American profits, we would not have to fear the Soviet Union.

Finally, the professor's attacks on affirmative action are particularly offensive. I agree with his statement that America's proudest moments have come when we have tried to live up to our devotion to the sacred principle that 'All men are created equal'" but, sadly, those moments have been far too few. Our nation has a history of consis-tent racial discrimination, at which we have only begun to chip away. "Drastic" short-term measures such as affirmative action and civil rights legislation are attempts to make up for long-term problems. Only when the prinof Independe the Declaratio are act

No, it's the Vietnam vets' opportunity to finally express the grief and gratitude that was buried deeper and deeper as the war came old news to other Americans, and to relieve some of the guilt of survival. It's the recognition of sacrifices and contributions made by men and women who were told by the country they loved that it was right. Divestment, like affirmative action, is a short-term response. It is a response to South Africa's abhorrent and tragic institutionalized discrimination. It may economically affect some blacks and whites immediately, but if it helps lead to the abolition of apartheid, it is a small price to pay.

Speaking along the same lines as the other panelists, Hayden emphasized the over-reliance of the Democratic Party on past ideals and platforms

There has been an economic and demographic shift, he said, and the Democratic Party needs to adapt to these changes.

'A lot of people are looking at the November defeat in a very general way," Hayden said. "Now is the time to make changes and adaptions."

Engineering School receives $500 donation

By Christine Frankendal

Daily staff writer The largest sum of money conributed by a student organization to the School of Engineering's "Project 88" was presented to Dean Jay Pinson yesterday

The Chinese Engineering Students Association decided to donate $1,000 from its fund-raising activities to show its concern about the welfare and academic environment of the Engineering School, said James Liu, CESA presidential adviser.

A check for $500 was presented by CESA President Jing Jang to Pin-son during the organizations last general meeting of the semester. Another $500 will be raised and presented next semester. The funds come from the profit of CESA's social dances. The organization sponsors a dance each semester in the Student Union Ballroom, Liu said

Associate deans, department chairmen, professors and engi-neering students attended the ceremony. Pinson said in his "Project 88" speech that he appreciated the students' effort. He said the check was the largest donation made by a student organization to the project.

"Project 88" is an expansion and renovation of the School of Engineering facilities, Pinson said. The name refers to the time when the school is scheduled to move into a new building, replacing the 1952 facility comprising the south and east sides of today's complex. The build ing will cost $40 million. SJSU must raise 30 percent of the cost of the building

April 1 to raise $10 million from the industrial corporations in the area, such as IBM and Hewlett-Packard. One million dollars is expected to be raised from alumni and faculty, and another $1 million is expected to be raised for scholarships in corporate donations, Pinson said.

"The expansion of the engineering facility will provide the opportunity to take us through the 90s," Pinson said. He added that student enrollment is expected to increase 40 to 50 percent because of the expan-

During the summer concerts can be held any day of the week, Barrett said, and the indoor facility should draw a larger crowd all year round

Barrett said he expects the Rec Center will draw large crowds for concerts and he hopes to have Bay Area concert promoter Bill Graham bring events to the center

The' Associated Students Program Board will support concerts in the center, but its $78,500 annual budget is not enough to afford many large concerts, said Alan Day, A.S. program board director. Barrett said most of the concerts would be done through the Rec Center staff and not the A.S. Program Board.

Talks have taken place with Graham about using the Rec Center, Barrett said, and nothing is definite

"Graham has said 'Yes, we'd love to see a nice facility in the South Bay," Barrett said.

Students who voted for the pro-ject three years ago but who will have graduated by the time it is built will still be able to use it. Barrett said that students who paid for the facility will be able to use it for the time that they have paid into it.

For example, if a student entered SJSU in Fall 1982 and was paying the Rec Center fee, and graduated in 1986, he or she would be able to use the center when it opened in 1988. Former students would only be able to use the center for the first four years of operation, or as long as they paid for it as a student. After their time was up, they would be charged the same amount for a privilege card as faculty, staff and alumni.

Friday, May 10, 1985/Spartan Daily

The fee for faculty and staff would probably be $38, what it will be next semester for students. The alumni fee will probably be higher than that, Barrett said, but the final decision for the privilege cards will rest with the S.U. Board of Directors.

According to the preliminary study, the east entrance at the lower level would be the main entrance to the games area. There would be eight to 10 vending machines along each side wall

The video arcade would be moved to the front where the pool tables are now, by the entrance. The current arcade area would be converted into a dining area. Partitions would be put up around the video area and would create a closed area. This would cause a noise reduction from the arcade area, Gregory said.

CSU is allocating $1 million for the containment of asbestos on the 19 campuses in the system, Orbach said. The money will become available July 1, and Baker Consultants is in the process of surveying all CSU campuses. SJSU is the twelfth campus to be surveyed.

'We requested money from the CSU," Orbach said. "It's a state-wide problem. The first area of concern is the K through 12 schools."

Pat Lamborn, director of the Santa Clara Center for Occupational Safety and Health, also spoke to the board concerning the safety standards for asbestos set by the California Occupational Safety and Health Association. Cal/OSHA has set the safety level at two fibers of asbestos per cubic centimeter of air, Lamborn said, but she added that Cal/OSHA has tried to get a stricter ruling and reduce it to .2 fibers per cubic centimeter of air.

"Of course you know what the safest exposure would be," Lamborn said. "None. Zero asbestos is the desired exposure." John Stipicevich, director of Non-Traditional Minority Affairs, going to introduce a resolution to help monitor the asbestos problem, but requested that the board look into both sides of the issue before voting on it The resolution was tabled until next week

Fullerton also addressed financing the Spartan Stadium expansion which she said has almost been secured.

On the anti-apartheid protests, Fullerton said it is too early to determine what they may have accomplished.

"I think they've certainly drawn attention to their concerns," she said. The four protesters who staged a sit-in in her office made it "really im-chose not to leave, so they had to be arrested.

Fullerton also said she thought the group's request for an office elsewhere and a telephone, before they ould leave was "inappropriate

In response to the Mandela Coali-tion's demands two weeks ago for a written condemnation of U.S. banks corporations' investments in and South Africa, Fullerton said, "Apparently they do not like my response. but I have repsonded to them. courts ultimately decide the issue. "I don't know whether they're going to sue or not," she said. "That's a particular arena in which perhaps it might be most appropriate to make such decisions. It is really a matter of the military's requirements for commission

Fullerton also said the A.S. budget for 1985-86, which she signed yes-terday, meets the Title 5 and A.S. Constitution's requirements

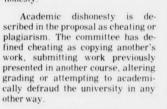

Because it met those criteria, she igned the budget, despite criticisms by members of next year's board.

Hundreds of them, wearing their school colors, were there on this Sunday morning with the reason for their presence stenciled on the chests of their designer Tshirts

"Concrete Canoe Race '85 ' From different regions of the state and from as far away as Reno, Nev., engineering students came to participate in this race sponsored by the American Society Civil Engineers and hosted by SJSU

There would be races for male and female students along with races for faculty and alumni. The different schools would each have to get past some qualifying heats to qualify for the finals.

Concrete canoes of different colors and designs were carried to the lake and situated regally among the picnic tables and barbeque pits.

Joggers and other passers-by did double takes as their usual Sunday strolls were interrupted by the conglomeration of canoe racers.

A light fog and a cold morning breeze made it all surrealistic in a funny sort of way.

One man, sporting a beer at 10 a.m. asked one of the participants what was going on. When he got his answer he straightened up and said, "Are you kidding?

They weren't kidding. The race was for a purpose. For the students it was an opportunity to test their designs, have fun and represent their schools all in one day

For the faculty and alumni it was a chance to renew old acquaintances as well as rekindle some old rivalries.

"It gets pretty wild with the faculty," said SJSU oarsman Steve Pagan. "They like to ram the canoes together. There are a lot of good-natured rivalries and they like to get back at each other.'

From the outset it became evident that the faculty members were not the only ones learned in the art of ramming.

In the first race, the University of the Pacific in their sleek, black and orange canoe slammmed into the entry from University of California at Davis -causing it to sink.

Laughter and shouts of "aban don ship" could be heard from the gallery of canoe race fans

The four from UC Davis jumped out of their waterlogged vessel and towed it to shore, where fellow students and faculty began a furious process of trying to repair the damaged canoe before their next race.

"It was our fault, we didn't know where we were going," said UC Davis student Tim Osterkamp.

After working feverishly, the Even fellow Santa Clara students couldn't help but laugh at the They like to ram the sight of their canoe slowly, inevitably nose diving.

'We realized we were going to go under from the beginning," said red-faced Santa Clara student red-faced Santa Clara Chris French, "If we had it to do over again we would probably make the canoe with a flatter bottom so it wouldn't have sunk so easily

SJSU's canoe weighed 300 pounds and like all the canoes it had foam flotation devices at the front and rear to keep it afloat.

Pagan said the canoes are spe cifically designed to make them more efficient in the water, but he also said the race would be won by the best rowers.

The best rowers in all the divisions were from California State University at Chico.

"I guess there is nothing to do Chico but practice canoe racing," Pagan said.

SJSU did manage a third place for construction and design of their canoe, but it didn't seem to matter who won because this day had everything.

There was school rivalry as the entries from UC Berkeley and Stanford only seemed interested in beating each other

There was college spirit as the University of Reno towed their canoe the length of the course after it had been split in half in a wreck with another school.

In the end "Concrete Canoe '85" was exactly what it was supposed to be.

"This was a hell of a lot of fun." said SJSU Associate Dean of Engineering Donald Myronuk

The National Broadcasting Co NBC, filmed the final judging and will air the results in a three-and-ahalf minute short during this eve ning's national news show, said Scott "Grand Panjandrum" Rice. originator of the contest and SJSU English professor

"Nine or 10,000 entries for the contest were received," Rice said.

All entries for this year's contest were received by April 15. Rice said that bad writing entries were re-ceived from 15 countries around the world, including France, West Ger-many and India. The entries were read as they came in and a panel of "undistinguished judges," made up primarily of English faculty members, decided on the worst entries

Winners will be named in the cat egories of romance, mystery and spy writing. One overall adult winner and one overall juvenile winner will re-ceive complete Morrow word processor package

Skid Row lot to stay open

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The owner of a Skid Row lot agreed Wednesday to help shut down a card-board shantytown on his property, but some of the 60 squatters vowed to remain in the temporary town they call Justiceville

"They're going to have to take us out of here," said Ted Hayes, a former auto detailer who said he left his family in Riverside to become "homeless by choice" and who orga-nized the settlement. "We are not going to succumb to their injustice.

Officials say Justiceville violates health, building, fire and safety codes, and the city attorney's office had threatened to file criminal charges against the owner, Orient Investment Co.

No trespassing signs were to be posted on the property Thursday and fences were to go up Friday, said Samuel Anker, an attorney for Orient Investment

The General Services Administration says it plans to electronically block about 26,000 more federal phones in the Washington area later this year, the Post said.

The government last year was billed $34 million for calls made within government agencies in the area and $6 million more for outside including about $250,000 for weather and time checks and $40,000 for calls to prerecorded messages, according to the GSA, the newspaper reported.

The current record is held by Greg Robles, who hit 15 dingers while playing for the Spartans in 1979 and 1981. Conway's toughest hurdle to set ting the record isn't opposing pitchthough. It's teammate Steve ers. Ochoa, who currently leads SJSU with eight home runs and plans on returning next season

While the first baseman's power not a complete surprise — he hit five homers last year for Consumnes River College in Sacramento- it is more than he expected.

"I never thought I'd hit this many home runs," he said.

And the home runs have been towering shots. Conway connected for two round trippers against nationally-ranked Stanford on February 23. and one of them cleared not only the right field fence but also the retaining wall behind it. On March 12 against Santa Clara, Conway cracked a homer that Coach Gene Menges said was one of the longest he had ever seen at San Jose Municipal Stadium.

Perhaps the most memorable home run of the season, though, was Conway's game-winner against Nevada-Las Vegas on March 23. In the 12th inning of a 10-10 ballgame against the Hustlin' Rebels, the lefthander rocketed a 420-foot shot to cap off a nine-run comeback by the Spartans. "It's hard to describe that feeling," Conway said about the UNLV game.

Still, it has been a season of ups and downs. The shoulder separation was Conway's seventh, and he has played the season under the watchful eye of his father, who has cancer.

"Everyone makes jokes about it because I play a lot better with my dad here," he said.

Conway said he came to SJSU because he was offered a scholarship, and it was close enough to Sacra mento for his father to seem him play

He is a physical education major and said that if professional baseball is not in his future, he wants to use his degree here to coach others.

"I'll probably still be here after next year (getting my degree), he said. "What I really want to do is stay on in coaching. I want to get my de gree and go to a high school.

SJSU (22-33, 14-13 in PCAA) is one game behind second-place UC-Santa Bar bara, and the Gauchos must defeat the tough Bulldogs this weekend to hold on to their spot. "We have a good chance of eing second," SJSU coach Gene Menges said. Pitching was the key the first time the teams met in March. The Spartans took two of three games from the Tigers behind outstanding performances by pitchers Terry Adams and Anthony Telford.

Adams won the first game of the series 4-3 with a six-hit, sixstrikeout performance, and Telford tossed a three-hit shut out in the third game to give the Spartans the series victory

In the Tigers' win, Darrell Van Roy allowed only three earned runs to hang on to a 9-4 victory SJSU is coming off a 7-6 loss to non-league foe San Francisco State on Tuesday, but the Spartans are still high from Telford's no-hitter on May 4 against Fresno State,

Telford (7-4, 3.17), Adams (5-5, 3.64) and Steve Olson (5-9, 4.14) are scheduled to get starting assignments against Pacific and will probably face the Tiger trio of Mike Pitz, Darrell Van Roy and Chuck Baumann

Left fielder Steve Ochoa and center fielder Earl Boles continue to top the team in most hitting categories. Ochoa (.376, 8 HR, 35 RBI) is second in the PCAA with a .438 average, and Boles (.354, 4 HR, 24 RBI) is sixth in the PCAA at a .390 clip WASN'T MEAN TO BE COOKED.

Back in the days of ragtime music, there was no such thing as bottled beer or beer in cans.

Those were the great days of draft beer, fresh from the keg. Like the draft brewed at Frederic Miller's old Plank Road Brewery. It had a taste as smooth and fresh as the new jazz music itself. A taste that's hard to find in today's bottles and cans. Because most beers, in bottles and cans, are pasteurized. Cooked to 140 degrees to preserve their shelf life. So they lose that fresh draft taste. But now there's a bottled beer that's not cooked.

It's specially cold-filtered instead. To keep the true taste of fresh draft. Introducing Plank Road Original Draught. It tastes as fresh from the bottle as it does from the keg.
