'Magic' turns $300 into thousands for SJSU

Chris Panopulos SJSU philanthropist

By Frank Michael Russell Daily staff write

Talk to Chris Panopulos long enough and it's not too hard to believe that $300 can turn into $100 million. It all happens through the magic of com-pound interest, said Panopulos, a 1949 SJSU graduate. And it's all in a trust fund for the university

But it may take as long as 100 years to happen

Panopulos celebrated what he termed a milestone in the trust fund —reaching the $50,-000 point — by throwing a party for about 60 of his closest friends at the International Center, 360 S. 11th St., on Thursday

At the luncheon were SJSU President Gail Fullerton, San Jose City Councilman Jim Beall, San Jose Mercury News columnists Leigh Weimers and Pat Dillon, university facand administrators, Alumni Association

The fund was established in 1968. At the rate the trust is growing now, it will reach $250,000 by the year 2000 and $1 mil-lion between 2012 and 2014, Panopulos said.

Panopulos said his main goal is to act as a catalyst for attracting attention and donations to the university

"Too may people think of San Jose State as second-rate. I don't believe that," he said.

Panopulos said the purpose of the lun-cheon was to highlight some of the university's programs, including its football and basketball teams, the School of Engineering and the Panopulos gave what he called small checks to Connie Sauer, associate executive vice president for business affairs, and Janet Redding, executive director of the Alumni Association, at the luncheon. He said he preferred to keep the amount unknown.

Additional money will be distributed in 1991, 2011 and 2031, he said, to be used at the president's discretion. Panopulos has also established a similar

State and local politicians have been invited to visit the campus Wednesday for the Rec Center groundbreaking ceremony on the ROTC field at noon

The sounds of the SJSU modern jazz ensemble will fill the air, Krazy George will be up to his usual antics and heads everywhere will be adorned with blue-and-gold Jim McMahonstyle sweatbands.

Judy Hermann, Student Union director of public relations, said if every-thing goes as planned, she hopes everyone in the campus community will know that the $20 million Student Union Recreation and Events Center is finally on its way

In this case, Hermann said, "evervone' includes students and nonstudents

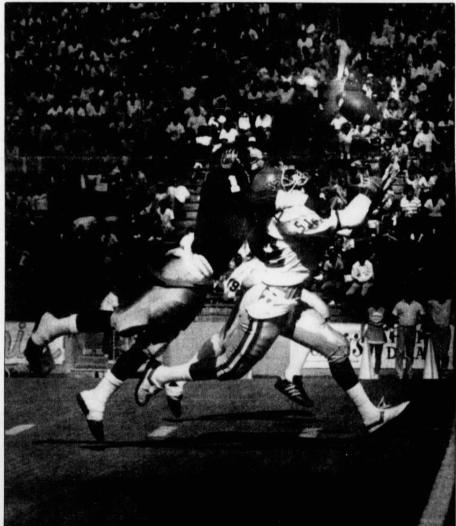

Hermann said that when the public finds out about the center, it will realize that dynamic things are happening at SJSU

'The community needs to know that San Jose State is an exciting place," she said.

But Hermann said she also is concerned that students see that the plans for the Rec Center are moving along

"Students, too, need to know what's on their horizons," Hermann said. "We want to raise their awareness, so that when they see a hole in the ground and dust in the air, they'll know what's happening.

CSU not likely to do drug tests

Duke's order singles out 'sensitive' jobs

By Paula Ray Christiansen

Daily staff write Gov. George Deukmejian's order for drug testing some of California's 230,000 state employees is not likely to affect CSU employees, said Jeff Stetson, the system's officer. Under the order, the Department of Personnel Administration and the State Personnel Board will develop a plan to provide for a "drug-free state workplace," while protecting the pri-vacy of those affected.

Drug testing will be required for any state employee earmarked as hold-ing a "sensitive position" where drug use would jeopardize public safety.

"The board of trustees does not necessarily fall into the specified category, although there have been ex-ceptions in the past," Stetson said.

He said California State University officials are interpreting the governor's use of the word "sensitive" to mean public-safety positions according to the State Department of Personnel.

This would mean it applies to state fire officials, highway patrol and similar positions, he said.

When asked whether university health administrators and other school riod for volunteers officials with personal student interaction might be affected by the order. Stetson said he did not know, but to the CSU, we would have to go through the collective-bargaining pro-

ess to determine who would be affected and how "It could not go into effect imme-ly ... it would take a while," he diately . said.

"It is doubtful that (this order) would affect us ... but stranger things have happened," Stetson said.

Deukmejian said Wednesday that the use of illegal drugs by state em-ployees, on duty and off, "is inconsiswith the special trust placed tent in such employees as servants of the public." He said it is the state's responsibility to perform state functions efficiently and without risk to the people of the state.

The governor's mandate comes two weeks after President Reagan's order that could affect as many as 1.1 million civilian workers. Under the federal order, state agencies will determine who will undergo testing after a 60-day grace pe-

Speaker tells how firm fights contamination

By E.C. Walters Daily staff writer

The Hewlett-Packard Co. plant on Trimble Road will spend more than $1 million this year to keep its industrial chemicals out of San Jose's air and water

For its efforts, the California Water Pollution Control Association for Northern California has honored it with the 1986 "Industry of the Year Award" in the Large Industry Category. Gail Brownell, H-P's environmental engineer for the site, spoke on "How Hewlett-Packard Pre-vents Groundwater Contamination" at the first meeting of the SJSU geology department's Society to Adapt Building to the Environment Reasonably on Thursday. SABER is a campus organization of students, professionals and laymen which supports environmental protection.

Brownell's job includes air-emission control, waste-water treatment, hazardous-materials storage, hazardous-waste disposal, and ground-water protection

The Trimble Road site manufactures semiconductors, fiber optics, light-emitting lamps, bar-code scanners, detectors, emitters, diodes and transisters. Using a slide demonstration, Brownell described some of the environmental-safety procedures used at the plant.

• The areas where chemicals are stored have backup concrete sumps, or collecting pits, to contain possible leaks

• In all employee work areas, fumes are pulled out through hoods, which measure the chemicals flowing through them.

The fumes are drawn to tubes with scrubbers in them on the roof. After the chemicals have been removed, the air is released. The cleaning water goes to another cleaning system.Each type of chemical, such as solvents, strippers, slurry and acid waste water, is transported through separate pipes, which are clearly labeled. Pipes that go through open areas inside the building have troughs beneath them to catch leaks.

Fourteen different products were featured at the showcase, which was sponsored by Spin magazine and Pontiac.

Roy Lotz, promotion director of Metacorp, said that the showcase will go to 25 campuses on the West Coast, and SJSU was its first stop. Metacorp is the organization hand ling Spin magazine and Pontiac's New Music College Tour. "We are demonstrating the latest in products as they relate to the college student. This is basically a consumer show," he said, describing various items such as personal computers, compact discs, and audio-visual equipment on display

Spin magazine and Pontiac also co-sponsored the concert on Saturday night with the Associated Students Program Board.

Products featured at the show case included Akai, Crystal Light, Denon, Cannon, Zenith, Baby Ruth, Butterfinger, Rubik's Magic Puzzle, Pierre Cardin, Lifesavers, Sony Compact Discs and Honda Motors.

Students also were able to test their skills by entering the Rubik's Magic Cube Contest. Participants were given two minutes to try to solve the puzzle. Those smart lucky enough to solve the puzzle received one for free. SJSU student Duc Vu was a winner at the Rubik booth.

"I just got lucky. It's easy. You just flip it around," he said.

Members of the Tau Kappa Epsilon were hired for the day to run the booths, along with their little sisters and members of the A.S. Program Board.

Leader elected on wave of emotions, not tide of facts long, long time ago, there was a man who said a lot but did little.

This man, through perseverance and a gift for speaking in pub-lic, worked his way to the top. In fact, he became the nation's leader

The man was the embodiment of strength and virtue. He was swept into office on a wave of public emotion The people wanted firmness, and the newly chosen leader promised it. The people wanted their country to be the supreme power in the world, and the newly chosen leader said he would re-establish it.

⁴ In short, the people wanted se-curity, and they looked to one man to bring back the good old days. So, the man went about the business of setting things right in the nation. He worked especially hard at building up the country' defensive systems to protect it from enemy attacks.

The people had great fear of the enemy. Each side could destroy the other many times over, and there didn't seem to be much any one could do.

But the great leader knew better

The man devised an ingenious Plan to keep the nation invulnera-ble. He called upon the gods for inspiration, and the spirits re-sponded with brilliance. "Put a shield in the skies to ward off the assaults from our ene-mins." they into a will mies," they intoned. "You will never have to fear for your nation's safety again." When he announced his plan, there were many respected people who felt that it was unworkable They pointed out that such a shield was expensive and perhaps impos-sible. The critics also argued that it was a poor — and potentially dan-gerous — substitute for serious arms negotiations.

But most of the nation was intrigued with the prospect of invincibility. And the leader branded those who doubted his plans as pessimists His ideas had enormous appeal, especially at election time. He was, of course, re-elected by an overwhelming margin "My main goal for my second term is a reduction" yea, even the elimination - of deadly arms from the face of the earth." he said.

But he had a strange method of reducing the arms supply. He built more. He tested more. He spent more

Once his plans were set into motion, and the defense budget grew and grew, and defense con tractors got rich beyond their wildest hopes — then, and only then, would the leader even think about arms negotiations Prospects for serious arms negotiations are good, the leader said. We can bargain from a position of strength now, the leader said. And he built more weapons

And he tested more. And he spent more

A summit meeting between the two leaders would be a good idea, he said. We really want to achieve an accord by which we can reduce the threat of catastrophe. And he built more weapons

And he tested more. And he spent more. He kept on talking about arms reduction. He kept on insisting it was his main priority. But his actions belied his words, and he shot down existing arms treaties like a gunfighter in a B-movie.

Unfortunately, this was the only "take." If he screwed up this scene, there would be no second chance

The people trusted this man with their very lives. They had to. The leader had set them on a course which was becoming harder and harder to deviate from

What happened to this nation? It's hard to say. The records are lost, and few people can remember much about the country.

The only thing they can re-member is that the people wanted peace, and all they got were words of false hope.

Reader relates to editorial cartoon

Editor I am writing in response to Joe Williams' letter on Thursday. I enjoyed Angelo Lopez's cartoon contrasting the current treatment of AIDS victims with that of "lepers." I too am a Christian and Mr. Williams' statements concern me because they reflect a short-sighted view of the teach-ings of Jesus. He emphasized that it is not man's place to judge others but to offer compassion and healing to all. Hundreds of years of misunderstanding and misguided fear have added emotional suffering to the physical suffering of those with Hansen's disease, more commonly known as leprosy. Hansen's disease is, in actuality, not very conta- far less than influenza, for example. Nevertheless. sufferers in many parts of the world are still unjustly sepa rated from their families and the rest of society. I would hate tolsee history repeated in the case of AIDS patients.

Jesus tells us in Matthew 10:8, "Heal the sick, raise the dead, cleanse the lepers, cast out demons; freely you re-ceived, freely give." There are no conditions! Our giving as Christians is not to be limited to heterosexuals or any other select group of our own choosing, but is to be offered to all people. I hope Mr. Williams, and others like him, continue to seek clearer insight for a truly Christ-like response in love Loren Mahon

As women continue to prove they are capable in the business world and are perfectly happy to go through life without depending on others to qualify their position, more people are finding themselves uncomfortable with the new status quo. These books may have a purpose, but one has to wonder what that purpose is. Why are women defining themselves in terms of men?

And, above that, why all the emphasis on women's deendence in relationships? It could be because we've already proven our ability to compete in most realms of so-

Wildlife foundation tries to dispel rumors and breed respect for birds of prey

MOUNT JULIET, Tenn. (AP) -Fact or fiction: Bald eagles are blood thirsty killers that eat chickens and are capable of clutching human babies in their talons and carrying them to mountaintop nests.

"You'd be surprised how many people believe things like that," said Kevin Schutt, standing beside a row of wooden chambers where he heals, feeds, exercises and breeds birds that are injured or have become too tame to survive in the wild.

Schutt, president of the Cumber-land Wildlife Foundation, said bald eagles are "very sociable" birds that eat mostly fish and sometimes scavenge off dead meat. They will protect their nest, but there is no documented case of a bald eagle says 90 percent of the injured birds brought there were hurt through some encounter with man

A lot of them have been shot or caught in steel traps, while others have flown into telephone wires or other objects. And then there are the unusual cases, such as that of an American kestrel that flew into an air vent in a printing company and landed in a glue pot. "I must have worked about six hours cleaning him off. He looked like one big glob of glue," Schutt said.

The world will never be able to enjoy hundreds of species that have al-ready become extinct, Sheppard said, noting that a single male dusky seaside sparrow in captivity at Disney World is all that is left as far as we know For all practical purposes, that sparrow is biologically extinct.

Perhaps the most startling extinc-tion of all, Sheppard said, is the pass-ing of the passenger pigeon, which at one point darkened the skies of the Midwest and may have numbered 50 percent of all the birds in North America in the 1700s. The last one died on Sept. 13, 1913, at the Cincinnati zoo. People just hunted them. They shipped trainloads to the market for 2 cents a pair during the Civil War days. And now they're gone," he said.

Homecoming memories 50-year overview

stirs sentiments

Homecoming. Mere mention of the word conjures up visions of bonfires, kings and queens and alumni returning to the scene of their educational crimes.

But homecoming has had many different meanings San Jose State over the years. Consider the memories of homecoming over the past 50 years: Nov. 7, 1936: Humboldt State —Although home coming did not become a formal campus event until 1948, one football game was given special attention each year

The 1936 game was not held here, but 338 miles away at Humboldt. A committee headed by student Ernie Nelson attempted to arrange a carpool caravan for interested students. Organizers on the other end of the "Eu reka Classic" promised those who made the journey "something doing every minute."

At the beginning of the week, "See You at Hum-t" stickers began appearing everywhere on campus, boldt' and Nelson said he expected 100 travelers. The total cost of transportation, accommodations and food for the weekend was $7.50 per person. Students were even assured dates would be secured for them at a student body dance held at Humboldt in their honor

By Thursday, Nelson's prediction was down to a

By Inursday, Netson's prediction was down to a "small caravan" of 20 die-hard supporters. The 28-man Spartan team, led by "hard-fighting fullback" Bill Lewis and "pugnacious tackle" Bob Drexel, hoped to extend a winning streak with a win over Humboldt

Much to Nelson's chagrin, a lonely 10 supporters traveled by a combination of car and train to see Humboldt shut out the Spartans, 20-0. October 25, 1946: Brigham Young -

As the Spartan Memorial Chapel was being planned and Bill "Bojang-les" Robinson was playing at the San Jose Auditorium, four "handsome, husky, dashing" Spartans served as pallbearers for a slaughter of BYU's cougar mascot at an on-campus rally

Coach Bill Hubbard said he was confident that his

"Flying Spartans" were up for a victory. All 5.972 SJSU students were told that unless they wore gold and white rooter caps, the only game seats

"Rugged line play" by the likes of end George Terry and tackle Marshall DeBisshop held BYU to 17 yards rushing and bought the Spartans a 14-0 victory.

Nov. 3, 1956: Denver University — Homecoming was finally established as an official celebration at San Jose State in 1948 to combat student apathy toward the football team.

With an honest-to-goodness homecoming queen named Anna Beal and the second-best passer in the na-tion, Bob Reinhardt for a quarterback, the week of festivities before the Pioneers' game was called "the biggest and the best.

Spartan spirit soared in '56. A bonfire was held in the Spartan Stadium parking lot. An 18-float parade wound its way through downtown. And a post-game dance featuring the Billy White Combo drew 500 alumni to the Santa Clara County fairgrounds. San Jose State Coach Bob Bronzan brought his team, then known also as the "Golden Raiders," to the field minus fullback Claude Gilbert, who suffered a broken leg weeks before the game

The Spartans staged a second-half rally before 14, 000 spectators, scoring two touchdowns in the last 2:11, in an effort that Bronzan termed "too little too late.

Denver emerged victorious from the chilly affair, 35-26

Nov. 5, 1966: University of Idaho - Queen Suzi Seydel reigned while students donned flapper skirts, raccoon coats and straw hats, displaying the "Roarin' Twenties homecoming theme

News of the day distracted students' attention from the week's events, though, as Republican hopeful Ronald Reagan campaigned in San Jose against incumbent Gov Edmund G. "Pat" Brown.

Closer to home, a fracas broke out when male dormitory students celebrated Halloween by throwing clumps of grass at cars, attacking the Sigma Phi Epsilon house and slathering coeds with eggs and mud. Nonetheless, KNTV broacast the homecoming parade live and the Coachmen, a local rock 'n' roll band, played at a bonfire dance at the fairgrounds.

The Spartans managed to shine against the Idaho Vandals, soundly defeating them 21-7. A potent offense was sparked by quarterback Danny Holman, who went 18 for 25 with 287 yards passing, and end Steve Cox, who had eight receptions for 147 yards. October 30, 1976: University of Santa Clara Homecoming sunk nearly to the point of oblivion during the '70s, largely due to the Vietnam War. Festivities were not held on campus for much of the decade, and 1976 was no exception.

On-campus crimes did much to divert student's attention from homecoming activities. The University Police Department identified eight trouble spots where theft, drunken driving, armed robbery, burglary, maliscious mischief and rape were occuring. Even then, the possible loss of Even then, the possible loss of 5,000 campus parking spaces was a concern. Consequently, the homecoming game was doomed to the sports page, in spite of a strong Spartan team that went on to clinch the Pacific Coast Athletic Association title two weeks later.

Twenty-two senior players were honored by being mounced first at the game. They and the rest of the team then gained 543 total offensive yards while clobbering the Broncos 50-15

'86 activities bring together old and new

By Edward Bellerive Daily staff writer

Homecoming '86 combines old traditions and new spirit as SJSU prepares for Saturday's football game against Fresno State University, said Tim Orozco, homecoming committee chairman.

Plans for this week include live bands, a street fair, a rally, and a bonfire among other things. Events were selected so the entire student population can be involved, he said

Homecoming banners were scheduled to be displayed this morning in the Student Union Amphitheatre and outside dorms and houses near campus. This year's theme is "Feel the Roar.

Live entertainment is planned for today. The new wave-pop group, Heroic Airmen is scheduled to play be-tween 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. in the amphitheater. Today through Thursday, the homecoming committee is sponsoring an SJSU trivia contest called "Scavenger Hunt." Unlike a true scavenger hunt where one has to search around the campus for items, trivia questions will be search around the campus for items, trivia questions will be published in the Spartan Daily, said Rebecca Purdin, homecoming committee vice chairwoman. She said trivia questions are based on events and people in SJSU history that were gathered from material in the archives of Wahlquist Library.

Purdin said this is designed to give commuting students a chance to participate in homecoming activities. Three questions of increasing difficulty will appear in the paper each day. Each correct answer turned into the Associated Students office in the Student Union by 5 p.m. is eligible for the drawing. Answers will appear in the following day's issue

A pair of homecoming football tickets and a homecoming T-shirt will be the prizes for each level of difficulty prizes will be awarded Thursday night. The winners will be notified by phone, Purdin said.

Tomorrow is Alcohol Awarenesss Day, a new addition to homecoming activities. It is labeled as a community service project, Purdin said.

Representatives from the California Highway Patrol, Mothers Against Drunk Driving and O'Connor Hospital will each speak for 20 minutes in the amphitheater between 11 a.m. and noon.

Street Faire '86, set for Ninth Street near the Student Union, will take place Wednesday and Thursday. The fair will feature 30 booths and as many as 20 tables including games, food and informational exhibits between 10:30 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. both days, Orozco said. Campus unity and positive community relations is the goal of the fair, he said.

Live band entertainment will resume Wednesday when the Soul Senders' bring their version of rockabilly to the amphitheater between 11:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m.

Thursday wraps-up the week's day-time events with the conclusion of the scavenger hunt and Street Faire '86. The Kingpins, with their modern rendition of '50s sounds, play from 11 a.m. to noon.

The Homecoming king and queen finalists will follow, modeling SJSU sportswear from the Spartan Bookstore at 12:30 p.m. in the amphitheater. A rally and bonfire are scheduled for Friday night beginning at 8 p.m. in the ROTC field on the corner of Sev-enth and San Carlos streets, said Randy Faiai, SJSU cheerleader.

SJSU cheerleaders plan to lead participants in a rally to show school spirit, Faiai said. Local high school eheerleading squads have been invited to attend to foster community relations

A wood bonfire, sanctioned by the San Jose Fire Department, plans to feature Fresno State's mascot, the bulldog, to be burned in effigy, he said. Campus groups are en-couraged to participate in the "yellfest" at the rally.

Homecoming King and Queen of 1985-86 say farewell

By Paula Ray Christiansen Daily staff writer

The goal of Jeff Kaneko and Mary Jo Dufault as last year's home-coming king and queen was to set a precedent for homecoming week in years to come.

'We wanted to create a tradition again and get something going for the future," said Kaneko, who came on campus Wednesday and Thursday to romote this year's homecoming ac tivities

Finalists announced

The Homecoming committee announced Friday night the six finalists for this year's king and queen.

"My experience in all of these things paid off while I was king be-cause you have to be involved," he said

Kaneko and Dufault put a lot of effort into defining the roles for this year's homecoming king and queen. Kaneko said his role was not well established when he began and the representation and need for such

"I knew I was graduating and I saw this as sort of a last shot to really something for the university really felt it was important," he said.

Dufault said she tried to represent the school in the way she would want another student to represent it, helping others and promoting goodwill in the community in the name of the school," Default said.

Kaneko is from the Bay Area and Dufault is from San Carlos. Dufault is a member of Delta Gamma sorority and lives on campus.

They both admitted that their goal was to make a major change in the school's image and make students proud to say they attend this university

"The king and queen are public relations people for the campus," Ka-neko said, "they have to be able to meet people and get involved (in school activities)." school activities)."

Kaneko was thinking about SJSU's future when he was chosen to run for the king's position by Delta Upsilon, the fraternity organization he founded.

Both Dufault and Kaneko commented on the changing atmosphere among SJSU students. "People are getting involved, they're friendly and they're active," Kaneko said.

see students more involved, but I hope they get even more active," Kaneko said. "There's still a lot of changes that can be made. SJSU can be like any other school where students go away from home.

The finalists for queen are: Victoria Eakes, a 23-year-old senior and advertising major, sponsored by Alpha Phi Omega; Karen McGlaughlin, 21-year-old senior and liberal studies major, sponsored by Kappa Delta and Regina Murphy, a 21-year-old senior and advertising major, sponsored by Alpha Phi Kaneko's hope for SJSU is that it will merge more with the surrounding community and some day be more of a traditional college town, instead of a commuter school as it is now.

Kaneko graduated last year with a business-management degree and a minor in cybernetic systems. He is representative for Kosakura marketing Tours and Travel in San Francisco.

"Being homecoming king and going through the interviews helped me prepare for formal job inter-views," he said. "In my job I have to meet a lot of people and I have to be on the ball.

While at SJSU, Kaneko was public-relations chairman for the campus Inter-Fraternity Council and also vice president in the Cupertino Junior Chamber of Commerce.

"I did a lot of work compiling information and guidelines for next year's king and queen," he said. "The homecoming king before me didn't leave me any references and I feel it's an important part of organizing the po-

Kaneko said it is hard to be effective as a role model if you don't know what that role is.

The real emphasis is on the people who are representing the school as king and queen. There is a real need for both royalty members to have a"dynamic personality," he said. It has to be someone who can take the initiative and get involved on and off campus

Sponsored by Moulder Hall, her residence at the time, Dufault said she was nervous about representing the university.

"They needed someone to go for it, and I thought it would be fun didn't really think that I would be picked," she said.

Coming from an Italian family, who doesn't hesitate to voice its opinions, didn't make it any easier, Du-fault said. "Everyone supported me, but I felt a lot of pressure because I was so afraid of letting someone down in the dorms or at home," she said. Being responsible for how people view the university is an honor and also a burden, she added.

Dufault said one of her favorite activities was when she and Kaneko worked with the Special Olympics in Los Angeles

Dufault said she felt the interviewing process before the homecoming committee was good experience.

Can you say blowout? The Spartan football team sure can after storming into Memorial Sta-dium in Berkeley Saturday afternoon and giving the Bears a 35-14 beating. The SJSU offense was awesome amassing 565 total yards — 210 on the ground and 355 through the air. The Spartan defense was equal to the task, holding Cal to just 56 yards rushing and 280 yards passing.

"I am extremely happy, pleased and delighted," SJSU coach Claude Gilbert said. "Our theme this week was to play a complete game.

Quarterback Mike Perez, (28 of 45 for 348 yards) had a field day against a Bear defense that just couldn't manage to pressure him consistantly the entire game, sacking him only once

"I could tell by their defense that we'd be able to move the ball consis-tently on 'em,'' Perez said. "We knew that if we could keep the (Cal) defense on the field we could tire them down."

The Spartan receiving core was led by wide receiver Guy Liggins, who caught 6 passes for 114 yards, and had a 35-yard touchdown run on an enda 55-yard touchdown run on an end-around in the second quarter to put SJSU up for good at 14-7. "Tim Stejskal (Spartan center) had a nice block and Kenny Roberts

got his ground game going, rushing for 116 yards on 24 carries for a 4.8 yard average. "I felt that I was more consistant today and didn't have a lot of mis-takes, "Jackson said. "I'm getting my confidence up a little bit so I can perform well again.

Offense shines in second win

SJSU running back Randy Walker had a good day both running and receiving

He ran for 81 vards on 17 carries and one touchdown, and caught 4 passes for 40 yards. "The offensive line did a great job today," Walker said. "We came in pretty confident, I think they (Cal) might have come in overconfident, and by the time they gathered themselves it was too late, we established our game

Spartan offensive tackle John Ai-monetti said that he felt the SJSU offensive line was beating the Bear defense physically

"We weren't much bigger than they were, but we were a lot stronger and a lot quicker, and we were getting in their faces and moving them around," Aimonetti said."

The Spartan defense held Cal quarterback Brian Bedford to 226 yards passing and -1 yards rushing. Bedford was tenth in the Pac-10 in mechine with a 414 for the Pac-10 in rushing with a 44.5 yard average coming into the game.

Bear running back Marc Hicks, an All-America candidate, was held to a mere 38 yards on the ground on 14 carries, but he caught 6 passes for 107 vards and two touchdowns

SJSU linebacker Sam Kennedy said he was pleased with the way the Spartan defense played.

'There's no secrets. We're just playing better than the other team," Kennedy said. "I think we can hold all opponents to a minimum of points

The game got off to a good start with SJSU holding Cal on its first drive to just three plays and a punt. The Spartans took over at their

Vision of hope A.S. director Tijani has dream of uniting different cultures

By Gene Johnson Jr.

Martin Luther King, Jr., had a dream. Jammaal Tijani, Associated Student director of intercultural affairs, has a vision with many similarities.

He said he envisions all races living together without friction. He feels that by total commitment his vision can be seen by the whole world.

Tijani's vision first calls for the unification of all foreign students, he said. Tijani, who is from Nigeria, said the for-

Tijani, who is from Nigeria, said the foreign students find it difficult to understand and trust each other because of differences in ideas, clothing styles and tastes in food, citing language as the biggest barrier.

guage as the biggest barrier. "When everybody sees everybody all they say is 'hi'. 'Hi' cannot bring togetherness amongst students."

Tijani said methods to increase student unification include having food bazaars, recognition of different countries' independence days and learning about other countries' histories and customs. Tijani defines culture as the way you show people what you are and what you stand for.

By exposing all these different factors as a vehicle for communication, Tijani said he figures that foreign students can unite for a better understanding. "We can all have the trust and believe that we are all one," Tijani said. "The only thing that could make us look different is because of our color. Besides color I believe we are all one."

Black people also play an important part in Tijani's vision. He wants black people "as a whole to realize their roots and to be more understanding of their African heritage and culture."

Tijani calls for all blacks to meet and be friends with Africans on campus so that one day blacks can understand the African culture and come closer to their own ancestral roots. "Africa is for Africans," Tijani said.

"Africa is for Africans," Tijani said. "You can be born in America, you can be born from England, you can be born from Russia. So long as you are a black man you are still an African."

"My vision is to see my people (blacks) unite," he said.

Tijani also said the blacks on campus heavily criticize the whites on campus because of the heavily populated white student government at SJSU.

Tijani pointed out that blacks are at fault in this matter and quickly stated that if blacks would become more active in the electoral process on campus the criticizing would stop. "I took the chance running when I knew the majority of students on campus are white," Tijani said. "If you try and fail you can be proud of yourself that you are a part of the electoral process on campus."

"If you don't have a voice in government, you don't have hope," Tijani said. "If you want hope you must be a part of the solution. Everybody wants to go to heaven but no one wants to die for a cause.

"Philosophically I'm a sound liberal; I may look to be a liberal ideologically. But I can bet you I'm a conservative on discipline and principle."

When asked how old he was Tijani, who appears to be in his late 20s, said, "My age can be told in the way I think. What is important is how I perceive myself."

Tijani said his first goal as director of intercultural affairs is to donate his first month's salary of $75 to the Disabled Students Services Program, the Child Development Laboratory and the Greek African Letter Council. Tijani came to the United

He said the lifestyle in Nigeria is the same as in America in the sense of food and clothing, but Americans aren't as culturally conscious as Nigerians.

He said he feels Americans do not respect the elderly when they place them in retirement homes, shutting them off from the rest of the world.

Tijani also said Americans don't value their lives and pointed out that Americans who use drugs do not value their bodies, let alone life itself.

Tijani said there are not enough Nigerians in either department. He said there should be more Nigerians representing their own various governmental functions.

Tijani said he plans to take the experience he learned from being intercultural director to his home country to be an adviser in either foreign affairs or domestic issues.

Tijani said he will offer his ideas to a leader who will work for the elderly and poor, someone who has a strong belief in technological advancement.

Can dreams come true? Is Jammaal Tijani's vision but a distant reality?

Jammaal Tijani says he left Nigeria to study engineering so he can eventually advise his country's air force and department of transportation.

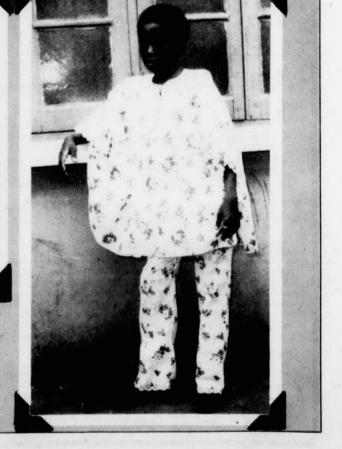

Jammaal Tijani, A.S. director of intercultural affairs, talks about his plans for the future in the A.S. council chambers

California is becoming a majority-minority state and ignoring the special needs of minority students would be "cutting our own throats," said SJSU Associate Dean of Education Consuelo Rodriguez.

A recent mandate handed down by the California State University Chancellor's Office shifts the responsibility of recruiting and educating minority students from individuals to universities.

Supervisors may also attend, she said. The 15-piece jazz ensemble will provide musical entertainment for the event. Under the direction of musical instructor Daniel Sabanovich, the ensemble specializes in the big-band sound, Hermann said.

Isabelle Fine, a local mime, has been hired to offer something different to the presentation, Hermann said. Fine will serve as "silent MC" for the ceremony, portraying different events and activities that students will someday engage in at the center, she said

Krazy George, best known for his wild manner of rousing audiences at sporting events, also has been scheduled to appear.

Hermann said she was initially unsure about having Krazy George and a mime at the same time, but after she considered the contrast between the

Styled similarly to the printed headbands worn by Chicago Bears quarterback Jim McMahon, the royal blue bands are emblazened with gold lettering which reads "SJSU SUREC

SJSU President Gail Fullerton was originally scheduled to turn the traditional first shovelful of soil. Hermann said Fullerton changed her mind last week because she preferred another idea: having students participate instead. Associated Student body presi dents and Student Union Board of Directors chairmen from the past five years will now turn the soil. Fullerton wanted to honor these individuals and their work in planning the center, Hermann said.
