Department accused of harassment

'I heard Larry James mockingly characterize a sexual harassment problem to the staff . . .'

—Martha O'Connell, gay rights activist

By Scott G. Hamilton
Daily staff writer

An SJSU facilities staff member said she will file formal charges accusing a superior of sexual harassment if the dispute cannot be resolved at an informal meeting next week.

Martha O'Connell, a clerical assistant in Facilities Development and Operations, claims her manager ridiculed her in public following repeated incidents of discrimination against her efforts to promote an event sponsored by her gay rights group.

O'Connell is scheduled to meet Monday with Facilities Director Mo Qayoumi and Facilities Personnel Director John Mog. Administrative Service Manager Larry James, the superior accused of harassment, who denied the claim, is not expected to attend the meeting.

If O'Connell is not satisfied with the outcome of the meeting, the next step would be a formal complaint with the university's Employee Relations Designee, Mog said.

O'Connell, co-coordinator of the Staff for Individual Rights, said posters publicizing the group's Gay and Lesbian Awareness Week last month were removed as part of an ongoing harassment problem within the department.

After an Oct. 24 incident, which she called "blatant harassment participated in and sanctioned by management," O'Connell said she can no longer ignore the problem.

Members of facilities management named by O'Connell deny that harassment occurred on their part.

O'Connell said she has repeatedly asked management for assistance since a flier publicizing the week was removed Oct. 8, minutes after it was posted in her work area. When it was replaced, the new copy was covered, she said.

Since then, posters and smaller fliers have been continuously removed from two different locations, she said.

Mog said that on Oct. 23 he hung a poster on the main office bulletin board and demanded it be left undisturbed. The poster disappeared later that afternoon, he said.

The next day when O'Connell found it missing, Mog placed a smaller flier on the board in response to her complaints and insisted that it be left alone.

O'Connell and Kevin Johnson, university employee and SIR co-coordinator, replaced the flier with one of the larger posters later that morning. Johnson announced that he would file

A.S. votes to pay former member $1,000 for work

By Andy Bird
Daily staff writer

The Associated Students will pay a former A.S. member $500 a week — about $10 per hour — for his services as a consultant to a student task force working on the San Carlos Street closure.

The board of directors voted unanimously Wednesday to pay Paul Sonneman, a 1985-86 A.S. executive assistant, $1,000 to "coordinate with" the A.S. task force.

Sonneman, formerly an SJSU business administration major, said he left the university this semester to work on a real estate license.

A.S. President Tom Boothe, who recommended Sonneman to the board, said he wanted to dispel any notion of conflict of interest.

"One of the things I'd like to be very candid about is Paul (Sonneman) and I have become friends over the years," Boothe said. "But the bottom line is that he is one of the best campaigners that I know."

The $1,000 consultant fee is part of a $2,200 overall street closure package approved by the board. The additional $1,200 will be spent on advertising and other campaign functions, according to a statement prepared by Sonneman.

The objective of the task force, which consists of five A.S. board members, is to create a blitz of support when the San Jose City Council votes on the issue, Boothe said.

The City Council is scheduled to vote on

Paul Sonneman
to be A.S. consultant

downgrading San Carlos Street Nov. 20, and Sonneman will spearhead the effort in the next two weeks, Boothe said.

Downgrading the street is the first step toward its eventual closure.

Sonneman said he wouldn't work as a volunteer because he expects to put in 40 to 50 hours per week on the project, and has already spent a great deal of time on the issue.

KSJS travel reimbursement denied

By Amy L. Pabalan
Daily staff writer

The Associated Students board of directors Wednesday unanimously denied a travel reimbursement of $956 for two KSJS students who attended a college radio convention in New York City last weekend.

Last week David Yohn, KSJS general manager, asked the board to waive a stipulation to allow KSJS to use funds from the station's travel expense budget of $1,700 to repay the students.

Yohn was not present at this week's meeting. "That's nice of them," Yohn said when told of the board's decision. "We can't use the money that they've already given us. I think it's really distressful that the A.S. allots money that we can't use."

The station's request for traveling expenses was submitted too late to the A.S. Business Office for board approval, and the station needed the board's permission to reimburse the two students, Yohn said.

Promotion director Pol Van Rhee and music director Gary More paid for their trip to New York themselves, he said.

By denying KSJS' request, the A.S. is "not supporting a campus organization the way it should," Yohn said.

The problem stems from the fact that the A.S. doesn't realize how important KSJS is for public re-

'I think it's really distressful that the A.S. allots money that we can't use.'

—David Yohn,
KSJS general manager

lations at the university and how important the trip was to the station to operate in that capacity, Yohn said.

Prior to the vote, Bob Gunter, A.S. director of California State Student Affairs, said the matter should not be compared to an earlier decision that allowed six members of the A.S. Program Board to attend a convention in San Jose because the program board followed appropriate procedures.

The A.S. board approved an expenditure of $906 for the program board convention two weeks ago.

KSJS was "negligent coming before the board a day before the trip asking to be reimbursed," Gunter said after the meeting. "It could have been better handled on (KSJS)' part."

"The significant factor is that when the request was made, it was after the fact," A.S. President

Tom Boothe said. "I think it's a question of procedure more than anything else."

The board would have approved the request if the correct steps were made since it was not additional money being sought but funds that had already been allocated, Boothe said.

The A.S. stipulations require board approval for out-of-state travel. The station's request was submitted before the trip, but couldn't receive board approval on time.

Such requests have to be on the agenda a week before the board can take action, A.S. Business Administrator Jean Lenart said last week.

A.S. Controller Gabriel Miramontes said KSJS has alternatives to reimbursing the students. "They have a trust fund account and an Instructionally Related Activities account they could tap into for funds," Miramontes said.

"We'll find the funding somewhere to reimburse them," Yohn said. "But that means that something else in KSJS will have to suffer from it."

The three-day national conference attended by Van Rhee and More was sponsored by College Media Journal, a weekly trade magazine for college radio stations.

The information that the two students learned at the conference will benefit the station, Yohn said.

"It will help our ability to serve the campus," Yohn said. "That's the only reason why we wanted A.S. to support us. It was not a fun and games trip."

Campus to play host to college union forum

By Scott G. Hamilton
Daily staff writer

Plans are set for SJSU to play Student Union show-and-tell this weekend by hosting its first on-campus regional conference of the Association of College Unions-International.

Roughly 200 delegates representing the unions of at least 24 different colleges and universities were expected to begin arriving at the Hyatt San Jose last night for three days of union note-comparing, according to Adrienne Robison, Union scheduling manager.

Confirmed participants for the event include delegates from California State University campuses, University of California schools, the University of Hawaii, the University of Nevada-Las Vegas and De Anza College in Cupertino, she said, although there may be late additions.

"The only thing we have in common is our unions," Robison said.

"That's our common bond."

The ACU-I, a professional association of more than 1,000 college unions, has member schools throughout the United States and in Australia, Japan, Canada and Great Britain. Beside a national conference in Boston each spring, regions within the association hold their own meetings.

This weekend's conference is one of the semiannual meetings for ACU-I Region 15, which includes SJSU and other schools from California, Nevada and Hawaii. Generally, the region holds its spring meetings in Southern California and its fall meetings in the North, Robison said.

Although this will be the fourth time SJSU has hosted the conference, it will be the first actually held at the university, Union Director Ron Barrett said.

In past years, SJSU has hosted conferences at Asilomar, Pajaro Dunes and Fallen Leaf Lake, Barrett said.

SJSU to close park-ride lot, non-use cited

By Oscar Guerra
Daily staff writer

Effective Monday, the Park-and-Ride lot at Seventh and Humboldt streets will close for the remainder of the semester because it is not being used enough, said university police Chief Lew Schatz.

Also, the Park-and-Ride lot at 12th and Keyes will close on Fridays because of low use, Schatz said.

Henry Orbach, Traffic and Parking Operations manager, said ridership on Friday is only about a quarter of what it is the rest of the week.

"I doubt whether we have had more than 200 riders at the beginning of the semester on any Friday, but now it is down to no more than 80," Orbach said. "Other days of the week, at the start of the semester, we started with about 320 to 340 average per day, and now it is down to about 200 to 210," he said.

"At peak hours in the morning and afternoon, it's difficult for the buses to cross Keyes," said Orbach about the closure of the lot.

Schatz said other changes in bus service include:

- No shuttle service on Fridays except the South Campus bus, which runs hourly.

• All South Campus stops will be at the field house on 10th and Humboldt streets instead of at 11th and Humboldt.

• All Monday through Thursday bus runs will be on 20-minute schedules. (In the past, service did not strictly follow the schedules.)

The new route will be from Sweeney Hall, traveling south on 10th Street to Humboldt; pickup will be at the field house, returning via 11th Street to Sweeney Hall, Schatz said.

At the beginning of the spring semester, both lots will be utilized, Schatz said.

"We decided in the end we could make it much easier to use 10th and 11th streets and speed things up," Orbach said.

Orbach said the decision to close the 12th and Keyes lot on Fridays will be economical.

"There is always room in the garages on Fridays," Orbach said. "There is no use in operating when no one is using the lot."

He added the lot closure would eliminate some costs in hiring staff for security, paying drivers and operating the buses.

Smear campaign turning off voters

Off-year elections traditionally attract fewer voters to the polls than presidential elections, but Tuesday's meager turnout indicates disgust with campaign smear tactics has become a significant disincentive to vote.

The sickly 58-percent turnout in California broke a 44-year-old state record for voter apathy in a gubernatorial election year. Only 59.26 percent of the voters went to the polls in November 1942.

Analysis of voter apathy usually points to non-salient issues, a perception by many people that their vote won't make any difference and opinion polls that pick winners in advance. But pollsters also determined that people grew progressively more weary of mutual character assassination on the part of supposedly respectable candidates.

This has been a banner year for sleaze in the California political arena. The tone was set early by Gov. George Deukmejian and challenger Tom Bradley, who snarled at each other about their respective (and not very respectable) records on toxic-waste cleanup. In the battle for Alan Cranston's U.S. Senate seat, he and challenger Ed Zschau shoveled hundreds of thousands of dollars into advertising agencies to pump out sewage about the other man's record.

But for the most part, the side that was less effective in sliming the opponent generally won. There's a lesson there to be learned for future elections, but it probably won't be.

Let's get moving on rush violations

The Inter-Fraternity Council waited too long to put together a judicial committee to look into the alleged rush violations by Alpha Tau Omega. The original allegations by Sigma Chi charging Alpha Tau Omega with breaking the dry rush guidelines were submitted on Sept. 8. Now, nearly two months later, the charges are finally going to be investigated.

The problem seemed to be getting a committee formed to act as judges in the hearing, now set for Nov. 10. After all the waiting, the committee is going to be made up of the four IFC officers, and three members of the Greek system. Seven in all, plus four or five alternates. Why did it take so long to gather these people?

There is a feeling that the IFC had just brushed the incident under the rug and forgotten about the whole ordeal. Rush continued and pledges were pinned a long time ago. A judicial committee should have been made up before rush started. That way, if any violations were reported, they could have been acted on immediately. The IFC should have used some foresight when the dry rush rules were laid out.

At any rate, at least the hearing is finally upon us. The IFC should make sure they do not back down on the rules it set up before rush started this fall. If a fraternity is found guilty, the fines must be levied and enforced. If the IFC is lax in enforcing its rules, next year everyone will break the rules because they know the IFC won't do anything about it.

If a fraternity is found guilty and they refuse to pay the fines, actions must be taken. Surely the fraternity will not enjoy being banned from IFC activities.

College education has become a lifetime pursuit

The times they are a-changin'. Fast. The good old days used to be grandpa's and grandma's era. Now they are the 1960s.

Twenty years ago, attending college was something that one did between ages 18 and 22, if one attended at all. Today men and women of all ages are returning to college in rapidly increasing numbers. In the future, individual, financial and emotional security may depend upon lifetime pursuit of education.

Whether we like it or not, we are living in a world where the total amount of knowledge doubles every few years, where jobs and life styles are created and then become obsolete within a decade. The U.S. economy, even its existence, is dependent upon increasing research and development.

The frontrunners in the race back to school appear, at least on the surface, to be women in their 30s. SJSU, for example, has a Women's Studies program, a Women's Center and special counseling for women re-entering the academic world. However, university statistics indicate a far different situation.

In this university and others throughout the country, the average age of all students has increased to about 28, according to surveys. Both men and women enroll in about equal numbers and remain in school for the same amount of time. Studies indicate that re-entry students of both sexes enroll in the arts and the sciences in about equal numbers.

Opinion

Marj Martin

Particularly here in Silicon Valley, both men and women need to "go with the flow." No job or lifestyle, not mother and housewife, not engineer or politician, is guaranteed in today's market.

It is not just housewives who find themselves out of jobs and lacking skills, it is farmers, engineers and auto workers. The future of these people rests with their ability to re-educate themselves and return to the work force in the shortest possible time.

Whether they are re-entry or continuing students, both men and women have special needs that must be met by contemporary universities. More brush-up and self-evaluation courses should be offered and more short certificate programs such as the paralegal program.

Years in a particular job should count for something when credits are awarded. Men and women who have been productive in either paid or unpaid jobs should not have to

No brains: no headaches

Look no further than our own Associated Students for the biggest boondoggle of the week.

The A.S. hired a consultant in a bid to close East San Carlos Street and appropriated $1,000 for his service. It is both wise and responsible for the A.S. to sponsor a two-week campaign blitz to downgrade the street's designation (the first step to closure) before the San Jose City Council's Nov. 20 vote on the matter, paying a former A.S. assistant $1,000 for two weeks' work is ridiculous.

Paul Sonneman, the consultant in question, left the A.S. and the university in the spring to pursue his real estate license, but seems to have been wooed back to a career of student service by a trail of dollars, our dollars.

Sonneman was the man responsible for the most recent A.S. fee increase — a measure he and the A.S. board claimed was needed to continue providing services to students. His campaign then was called Spartan Excellence, but there is nothing excellent nor Spartan now about this blunder by the A.S. wage and it makes student government look like the career of choice.

If he works 40 hours a week on the project for two weeks, he will be making $12.50 an hour. Paul Sonneman will be making $71 a day, or $2.97 per hour, asleep or awake.

This $1,000 debacle comes on the heels of a recent pay increase for the A.S. Program Board, which continues to lose SJSU student money on programs for high schoolers, never appearing to give much thought to what SJSU students want. Their pay raises are in effect a reward for their faulty policies; what is the A.S. rewarding Sonneman for?

There is no doubt that the A.S. thinks it is looking out for the students with this move, but lining a political crony's pocket with student money is not the way to gain support from the student body.

If the A.S. feels it prudent to hire $1,000 worth of consulting, it should look to the Political Science Department or for a public relations major and hire students to do the work, not former students.

Sonneman's experience lies in various student government campaigns and some congressional campaigns, but never as a paid consultant on a matter of city government.

Should he learn his skills at SJSU students' expense? Was there not another consultant capable of handling the job for less?

Sonneman said, "I doubt anyone else was considered for this."

This A.S. board was elected by students who thought it would best represent them, and the $8 fee increase was approved by the same students who saw it as a way to improve student services.

The A.S. has betrayed the student body. The use of this money and the actions of the A.S. are nothing short of asinine. Those with the purse strings must realize they answer to the student body, not their political allies.

Sonneman truly believes an intensive campaign to rally support for the closure of East San Carlos Street will work, despite what past City Council votes have indicated, city planning officials have said and nearby residents and merchants have lobbied for. The city and the community are stacked against the university and there is little a lobbyist or a public relations campaign will do to solve that at the present time.

Those who want the street kept open must live with any decision and elect City Council members while most involved with SJSU do not.

One could almost support Sonneman and his efforts — if it were not for his salary.

Every day the A.S. proves to us it resembles a South American dictatorship or Marcos's Philippines, and not a student government in America.

Give homosexuals right to choose

Editor,
Here's a hypothetical situation for the homophobic Stew Hintzes of the world:

There's a boy named Johnny who is told that vanilla ice cream is the only ice cream he can like. There is another flavor called chocolate, but only perverts eat it. Worse yet, the Bible says you will go to hell for eating chocolate.

While growing up, Johnny discovers that he neither likes vanilla nor is he attracted to it. By accident one day, Johnny discovers he can get chocolate ice cream at a hidden parlor downtown. He finds that not only does he love the flavor of chocolate ice cream, but that the other people eating chocolate ice cream in this parlor look as normal as he does.

Now, Johnny faces the problem of people finding out about his ice cream habit. He has to worry about people finding out and the consequences of being ostracized, disowned and fired.

The questions I present are: 1. Is Johnny wrong in eating chocolate? and 2. Is it right for people to persecute and discriminate against him because the Bible says it's wrong?

I ask that you remember that Johnny didn't choose to like chocolate ice cream. (Why would he with all the hassles involved?)

All I ask of you homophobics is to let me eat my chocolate ice cream in peace, because my goal is not to switch you over from vanilla but only for you to understand that I too am a worthwhile person. Up to my death, I will demand the right to eat chocolate ice cream and to be treated equally by vanilla ice cream lovers.

Reagan signs immigration reform; millions of aliens receive amnesty

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, signing into law the most sweeping immigration reform in more than 30 years, expressed hope yesterday that the measure will preserve "one of the most sacred possessions of our people — American citizenship."

Millions of illegal aliens may become eligible to remain in the United States legally under the act, approved in the waning days of the 99th Congress after years of political wrangling.

But sponsors of the measure have expressed fears the complex law may trigger an administrative nightmare.

Reagan, before signing the measure, noted that illegal immigration "should not . . . be seen as a problem between the United States and its neighbors."

"Our objective is only to establish a reasonable, fair and orderly and secure system of immigration into this country and not to discriminate in any way against particular nations or people," Reagan added.

Some opponents of the measure had argued the bill would prompt widespread discrimination against such groups as Hispanics.

With nearly two dozen lawmakers and administration officials standing behind him, Reagan used four pens to sign the 2-inch thick bill during a brief ceremony in the Roosevelt Room.

"Future generations of Americans will be thankful for our efforts to humanely regain control of our borders and thereby preserve the value of one of the most sacred possessions of our people — American citizenship," Reagan said.

After signing the measure, Reagan rose from his chair and quipped, "I got my names in the right order there," a reference to when he signed his last name first to tax overhaul legislation last month.

President Ronald Reagan signs immigration reform

For aliens who have been living in the United States illegally since before 1982, the bill contains an amnesty provision that will enable them to obtain temporary legal residency. That can be converted to permanent residency status after 18 months for those who can demonstrate a minimal understanding of English and some knowledge of U.S. history and government.

Officials do not know how many people will fit in that category but expect several million applications.

Under the measure, the government changes hiring practices across the country by requiring all employers to verify that newly-hired employees are legal U.S. residents.

And those caught hiring illegal aliens will be subject to tough new penalties — a system of civil fines and criminal prosecutions that could result in prison terms for habitual offenders.

Officials also must administer a new program for thousands of migrant foreign workers who enter the country to harvest perishable fruits and vegetables.

Rep. Peter Rodino, D-N.J., chairman of the House Judiciary Committee and longtime proponent of immigration reform, said the law means employers "know there is a penalty for hiring illegal aliens."

Asked after the ceremony whether he believed government enforcers will carry out the bill's provisions, Rodino said he believes the administration has "a serious interest" to abide by the legislation.

"They want to provide the opportunity for people who have been living in this shadow society to come forward, live as decent human beings and be given an opportunity to join the mainstream," Rodino said, adding that the bill had "strong provisions" regarding discrimination.

Rep. Charles Schumer, D-N.Y., another supporter of the legislation, acknowledged that the complex legislation "is a gamble . . . nobody's certain it's going to work."

"But everyone was certain the present situation is just terrible, so if it doesn't work we'll have to go back to the drawing board," Schumer told reporters.

The employer sanctions would be phased in after a six-month education period. The following year, first offenders can be issued warning citations, and repeat offenders would become subject to $3,000 to $10,000 fines for each illegal alien they hire.

Those who make it a "pattern or practice" to hire undocumented workers could face up to six months in prison.

Foreigners who worked in the fields for at least 90 days between May 1, 1985, and May 1, 1986, will be eligible for temporary resident status immediately and for permanent residency after two years. Those who have worked 90 days a year for three years could be granted permanent resident status after one more year.

Black Panther faces arrest on gun charge

OAKLAND (AP) — Police have issued a warrant for the arrest of Black Panther Party co-founder Huey Newton on a charge of being an ex-felon in possession of a gun, Oakland police reported.

Police got the warrant Wednesday after they alleged to Municipal Court Judge Roderick Duncan that they found a .22-caliber handgun in a car Newton had apparently been driving a day earlier near the scene of a burglary investigation.

The police report said an officer investigating a complaint of a burglary Tuesday arrived at the scene and chased a man who got away. The report said while combing the area, a pile of merchandise, including radios, cameras and cartons of cigarettes, was found sitting on a sidewalk.

About 10 minutes later, the report said, Newton was spotted walking a block away and "heavily perspiring." He was stopped, searched, and a set of keys were found that fit the ignition of a nearby car, officers said.

The officers said the car belonged to Newton's brother, Melvin. They said a loaded gun "was in plain view" on the car floor. Newton was released after questioning, they said.

On Monday, the 9th U.S. Court of Appeals rejected Newton's request to overturn a 1974 Alameda County conviction of being a felon in possession of a gun, allegedly used in the pistol-whipping of Newton's tailor, Preston Callins.

Unless Newton takes a successful appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court, he could draw a two-year prison sentence.

President quiet about freeing of Iran hostages

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan yesterday tried to quell reports that his administration helped win release of three hostages held in Lebanon by aiding the transfer of defense supplies by Israel to Iran.

Israel, with the blessing of the White House, shipped Iran spare parts and missiles for U.S.-made F-4 jet fighters as well as parts for American-made C-130 planes, radars and other war supplies, according to the Los Angeles Times.

Reagan, asked whether he had a deal with Iran, said:

"No comment, but could I suggest an appeal to all of you with regard to this, that the speculation, the commenting and all on a story that came out of the Middle East . . . one that to us has no foundation, that all of that is making it more difficult for us in our effort to get the other hostages free."

Later, White House spokesman Albert Brashear refused to specify which story Reagan meant when he said it had "no foundation."

"I'm just not going to comment on what he was referring to, which stories might be factual and which are not. I just can't do that right now because it would be dangerous for me to do so," Brashear said.

Reports of the deal began appearing after the speaker of the Iranian parliament, Hashemi Rafsanjani, said in a speech Tuesday that former White House national security adviser Robert McFarlane had visited Tehran, had been confined to his hotel room and then expelled.

The White House has declined to comment on Rafsanjani's remarks, and McFarlane said he could not offer any specifics.

According to reports published yesterday in the Los Angeles Times and the Washington Post, administration officials began working with Israeli authorities 18 months ago to arrange top-secret deliveries to Tehran of U.S. arms desperately needed by Iran in its seaway war with Iraq.

The shipments, made with the personal approval of Reagan, began last year and led to the release of three American hostages, most recently David Jacobsen, who was freed last Sunday by Lebanese Shiite Muslim extremists with ties to Iran, according to the reports.

Earlier shipments led to the release of two other American hostages, the Rev. Benjamin Weir in September 1985 and the Rev. Lawrence Jenco in July, the reports said.

Spy gets life; judge urges no parole

BALTIMORE (AP) — Former Navy radioman John A. Walker Jr., admitted head of a family spy ring, was sentenced to life imprisonment yesterday, and his son Michael was given a 25-year term by a judge who urged they be denied parole.

"Your task was to defend your country; you chose to betray it," U.S. District Judge Alexander Harvey II told the elder Walker, 49, who received nearly $1 million from the Soviet Union for his spying.

"Your motive was pure greed, and you were paid handsomely for your traitorous acts," Harvey said.

The judge, a World War II veteran, expressed personal revulsion that two enlisted servicemen could turn against their country, and added, "In my opinion, your espionage activities have caused tremendous harm to the national security of this country."

Evidence showed Walker used his high-level Navy security clearance to obtain classified information about Navy communications, ship locations and routes, weapons and sensor data and Navy tactics, and delivered it to the Soviets, pulling family members into the arrangement. His brother Arthur, 52, is serving a life term for espionage.

In the pre-sentence report, prosecutors wrote that "if it were possible to rate the harm to the nation caused by particular acts of espionage, then the injury caused by the Walker espionage ring must be of the first rank."

The judge adhered to the pre-sentencing recommendations of U.S. Attorney Breckinridge L. Wilcox, as well as the plea bargain agreement reached with the Walkers in October 1985, in which the elder Walker agreed to testify against former Navy radioman Jerry Whitworth and reveal details of his spy activities.

However, he recommended that no parole be granted to either man.

"You do not seem to appreciate the enormity of these crimes. In my opinion you have shown . . . no remorse. I should do everything in my power to see (parole) does not occur," he told John Walker.

Walker's attorney Fred Warren

Bennett immediately objected to the judge's parole recommendation, calling it "inconsistent with the spirit, intent and substance of the plea agreement."

Harvey shot back, "You can think what you want, Mr. Bennett. That is what I will do." The recommendation is non-binding on a parole board.

"There is at least something that can be said on your behalf," he told Michael Walker, 24, who blinked frequently and stood with hands folded as the sentence was pronounced. "As an immature 21-year-old, you were easily led. It was your father who profited from using you as he did . . . and you received little."

John Walker's ex-wife Barbara, who turned her husband in to the FBI, cried as the sentences were read. Their daughter Laura said she believed the judge was too harsh in recommending her brother get no parole, but, "for my father, maybe he deserves it," she added.

Campus Crimes

A Texas Instruments terminal, keyboard and printer worth $2,000 were taken in a burglary of the Spartan Foundation at 110 N. First St. between 6:10 p.m. Monday and 7:40 a.m. Tuesday.

A man who violated a restraining order was arrested by university police. Johnny Murphy, 28, was arrested and taken to Santa Clara County Jail after he showed up at a woman's apartment in Spartan City about 2 a.m. Tuesday.

A backpack and contents worth $236 were stolen from a motorcycle on San Carlos Street between 4:30 and 6:30 p.m. Monday.

A hubcap estimated at $100 by the owner was stolen from a car in a lot on Ninth and San Antonio streets between 4 a.m. and 12:30 p.m. Monday.

An American flag and a California state flag were stolen and two flagpoles were damaged in Spartan Complex, Room 6, between Oct. 15 and 27. Loss was estimated at $110.

Someone cut brake lines, flattened a tire and put deep scratch marks on a student's car in the 10th Street Garage between 7:45 a.m. and 3 p.m. on Oct. 28. Damage was estimated at $500.

A "Night of the Iguana" banner belonging to the Theatre Arts Department was stolen from the palm trees on Seventh Street in front of the University Room between Oct. 25 and 27. The value of the banner is $300.

SJSU heads to Santa Ana for clash with Titans

Locy faces first test as starting quarterback

By Greg Stryker
Daily staff writer

Tony Locy will get his first real test as quarterback of the Spartans as the SJSU football team (7-2 overall, 5-0 in the PCAA) looks for its seventh straight victory against Fullerton State at 1 p.m. tomorrow in Santa Ana.

Locy's fill-in performance in the fourth quarter of last week's New Mexico State game was just a pop quiz. This will be the junior quarterback's first full game at the major college level.

"It will be a true test for Tony to replace Mike Perez against a tough opponent like Fullerton State," Spartan head coach Claude Gilbert said, "but Tony has the confidence to do the job, so we hope that he will do an outstanding job of replacing Mike."

'I think the running game will have a lot to do with winning this week.'

— Kenny Jackson, SJSU tailback

Locy said he may start the game with the short pass routes to get his feet wet.

"I think we'll go with the shallow routes to begin with, just to build a little of my confidence up and because of the coverages they run," Locy said. "They really cushion their corners a lot. They're worried about the deep threat."

"We've even put in a couple of new plays to work on the underneath patterns. They have some good DB's (defensive backs), but they have a couple of young ones, a freshman free safety (Mike Schaffel) and a sophomore corner (James Howard). The sophomore is probably the best. He's a real good athlete, but they're a little bit young."

Fullerton State (2-8, 1-4) has fallen on hard times this season.

The Titans are in seventh place in the PCAA this season, after going 12-0 and earning a UPI ranking (20th) in 1984 and finishing second in the conference last season.

Fullerton State is scoring just 17.9 points a game, while allowing 26.9.

Of its two victories this season, the most impressive was a 33-0 shellacking of Utah State.

Titan head coach Gene Murphy said the team's main

Alan Dep — Daily staff photographer

Lloyd Forrest, shown here rushing Bulldog QB Kevin Sweeney, will try to help SJSU stop Fullerton State problems have been a lack of big plays and inconsistency.

"Our football team this year has not made the big plays, but we've given them up," Murphy said. "We've been getting into scoring opportunities and not being able to score."

"Our main problem has been a lack of consistency for a full game. I'd say in five or six of our losses we won one half of the game, but you can't win football games doing that."

One thing the Titans do have is an explosive running back. Tailback Rick Calhoun leads the PCAA in rushing with 1,151 yards.

The senior back is averaging 115.1 yards a game and 5 yards a carry.

He's also scored nine touchdowns.

"He (Calhoun) is their biggest weapon," Gilbert said. "He's a tremendous running back. The thing that really impresses me about him is his durability. He breaks tackles, and if you let up on him, he can break it all the way. He's a guy we have to stop."

The game features a matchup of the top two running backs in the conference.

Stanford band suspended for unusual conduct

PALO ALTO (AP) — The Stanford University marching band, once unofficially credited with helping the University of California score a winning touchdown, has been suspended over shows that included some members dropping their pants.

In an unprecedented action Wednesday, school officials banned the 95 musicians from taking the field in two games, Saturday's contest at UCLA and the Big Game against Cal at Berkeley on Nov. 22.

"Repeated warnings don't do any good," said Stanford athletic director Andy Geiger.

He said several band members dropped their pants and six others urinated on the playing field at the end of one game earlier this month. The following week, the band gave a "lewd" performance that included the formation of symbolic male genitalia while the student narrator shouted "Balls!"

(Stanford Athletic Director Andy Geiger) said several band members dropped their pants and six others urinated on the playing field.

Band members will be allowed to sit in the grandstand and play at the two games at their own expense, but will not be allowed on the field, Geiger said.

"If they want to buy their own tickets, sit in the stands and play, that's fine," he said.

Some of the offending routines were not "sanctioned band action" but "independent gestures of a couple of individuals," said band director Arthur Barnes, a music professor.

The band has long had a reputation of wacky and risqué halftime shows, but its biggest headlines came toward the end of a game.

The band marched onto the field during the Big Game against Cal on Nov. 20, 1982 with only four seconds left and Stanford ahead.

Berkeley fans were already leaving and Stanford partisans were shaking their big No. 1 finger.

Cal's Kevin Moen caught the kickoff, lateraled it to Richard Rodgers who tossed the ball to Dwight Garner, who passed it off to Mariet Ford, who then lateraled it to Moen who went on to score the touchdown that won the game 25-20.

The Cal players moved through the band members who were, in effect, blockers and one trombone player was knocked down at the goal line.

A T-shirt was later marketed that showed a diagram of the play, with the band members as Os and Cal team as Xs.

Bumming Cal next stumbling block for ASU

ASSOCIATED PRESS — The Arizona State Sun Devils, with a Rose Bowl berth only two hurdles away, must get past the California Golden Bears this weekend to maintain control of the Pacific-10 Conference football race.

If the Sun Devils get past Cal, they will have only to beat their rival University of Arizona to represent the Pac-10 in the Rose Bowl on New Year's Day for the first time since joining the conference in 1978.

There are three other Pac-10 games scheduled Saturday — Stanford is at UCLA; Washington is at Oregon State, and Arizona is at Washington State.

Oregon and Southern Cal each have the week off.

There are two Pacific Coast Athletic Association games Saturday — San Jose State is at Fullerton State and Utah State is at Pacific.

Long Beach State of the PCAA plays host to Eastern Washington in a non-conference matchup.

Arizona State comes off a 34-21 victory over Washington that lifted its record to 4-0-1 in conference play and 7-0-1 overall. The fifth-ranked Sun Devils have a half-game lead over 12th-ranked UCLA, which stands 4-1 in Pac-10 play.

ASU boasts, among others, victories over UCLA, Southern Cal and Washington, making it the first team to turn the trick since Stanford downed all three in 1971.

Last week in their 34-21 victory over Washington, the Sun Devils rolled up 273 yards rushing against a defense that had yielded an average of 61.6 yards rushing to opponents going into the game.

Spartans on the Air

KSJS (90.7 FM) — Air Time: 12:45 p.m. Game Time: 1 p.m. Saturday.
KCBS (740 AM) — Tape Delay: 5:10 p.m. Saturday.
KNTV (Ch. 11) — San Jose State Highlights: 4:30 p.m. Sunday.

Spartan tailback Kenny Jackson is second with 891 yards, and he has scored 10 touchdowns.

Jackson has been on a tear in recent weeks. He's gone over the 100-yard mark five of the last six games, including a 136-yard game last week against the Aggies.

Jackson said he can out-rush Calhoun, and that some of his recent success is due to better downfield blocking.

"I'd like to out-rush him. I think it can be done," said Jackson. "I think the running game will have a lot to do with winning this week."

"The offensive line has improved as the year's gone by. They're making downfield blocks, and the receivers have improved in their blocks. Before, I wasn't getting the downfield blocks."

The Titans have started three quarterbacks this season. Junior Ronnie Barber will start. He has thrown for 1,180 yards and nine touchdowns but has been picked off 13 times.

Barber's favorite targets are wide receivers Todd White and John Gibbs. White's 30 receptions lead the team. Gibbs leads the receivers with a 21.5 average gain per catch.

Spartan slot receiver Guy Liggins has twice as many receptions as Barber, and SJSU wide receiver Lafo Malaulu has 50.

The Spartans cannot clinch a California Bowl berth with a win, because Long Beach State is playing a non-conference game against Eastern Washington this week. SJSU has a 1½-game lead over the 49ers, who still have three games left.

Next Saturday's Spartan-49er match should determine the bowl berth. Fresno State needs the Spartans to lose their last two games to have a shot at PCAA title.

Murphy said his Titans will be up for the game.

"From an emotional standpoint they'll be up, not just because it's the conference leader, but this is the last game at home for 12 seniors," he said.

Locy said he is ready for the game.

"This is the biggest game of my career," he said.

"There's no doubt the Long Beach game will be more important, and the Cal Bowl if we get there. But right now this is the biggest."

SJSU's Chris Gray advances the ball, as teammate Mace Savelkoul (17) watches, in the Spartans' loss to Cal

SJSU closes out season with shutout loss to Cal

By Greg Stryker
Daily staff writer

The SJSU field hockey team finished the season with a heartbreaking 1-0 loss to Cal on Wednesday afternoon at South Campus.

The Spartans (3-10-1 overall, 2-6 in the PCAA) suffered their second shutout loss of the season to the Bears, as Cal's Gretchen Scheel blasted in the winning goal off the pads of SJSU goalkeeper Jill Jacobson at the 21:04 mark of the second half.

SJSU once again applied plenty of pressure with its 4-2 offense (four forwards and two midfielders) but couldn't find the open net. In the first half, the Spartans had three good scoring opportunities.

Forward Gina Donofrio used her quickness to penetrate the Cal defense constantly in the first half. Early in the game she sped up the right side and fired inside the circle, but her shot was stopped by Cal goalkeeper Ciara Cox.

Minutes later, junior forward Kit Molloy was one-on-one on the left side but was stopped by Cox, who was tough at the net all day.

Late in the half, Donofrio, a freshman, charged up the middle of the field with a Bear defender right behind. Cox came out to challenge her, so she flipped the ball over the goalkeeper. Unfortunately for Donofrio and her teammates, the shot cleared the top of the net by inches.

"I had one girl breathing down my neck, and I was going to go around the goalie, but that girl was right with me," Donofrio said. "If I tried to pull over, I probably wouldn't have got a shot, so I tried to shoot over her, and it went too high."

"We hustled a lot and dominated the first half, but we couldn't get it in the net. We came close. We put a lot of pressure on the goalie and made her work."

Cal (6-4-3, 2-2-3) dominated the second half as much as the Spartans dominated the first. The Bears outshot SJSU 10-5 and had numerous scoring chances. Cal's Kiki Brown and Gretchen Scheel were constantly threatening.

Junior midfielder Mace Savelkoul said the defense played well except for the one goal.

"We marked well," Savelkoul said. "We played good defense. They scored the goal because the sweep came through and nobody picked her up."

Scheel scored off a penalty corner situation, and the Spartans were held in check by the tight marking of the Bear defensive backs the rest of the way.

"Basically we couldn't buy a goal," Spartan head

"We hustled a lot and dominated the first half, but we couldn't get it in the net."

— Gina Donofrio, SJSU forward

coach Carolyn Lewis said. "We talked about putting the ball downfield, aiming for the corners and not trying to work it out, because Berkeley does have very fine stick work. We were very successful in the first half, but in the second half we stopped doing that."

Jacobson played her final game for the Spartans and had nine saves. The senior said the team's scoring problems this season were due to a lack of second effort.

"They need more intensity," Jacobson said. "They want it, but they're not as intense as they could be. They need to be at the right place at the right time. We get the shots off, but we don't get the second ones."

Lewis said the scoring problems were due to lack of the mental toughness that comes from experience.

"I don't think it's conditioning," Lewis said. "I look almost tells me they can play harder."

"That's part of experience. That's learning. They need to learn that they can work harder. The older players know how to pace themselves. The younger players don't realize that they can dig down deep and pull out some more."

"When you look at Mace at the end of the game, you can tell she's put her all into it."

The young Spartan team is tied for last place with Chico State. But then, SJSU wasn't expected to challenge this season. Next season, the team will have everyone returning except Jacobson.

SJSU challenged in the first half of the season with a 2-2 record but lost all four second-half conference games.

Freshman forward Sheryl Sorg was a pleasant surprise, leading the league with six conference goals. Lewis said she didn't play her as much down the stretch because Sorg is still in need of better stick work skills.

Sophomore forward Tina Parrott scored one conference goal this season, as did freshman Tina Royce. Sharon Cafini and Mace Savelkoul were the team's assist leaders.

Spartan soccer team edges Sacramento State

By Len Gutman
Daily staff writer

The Spartan soccer team beat Sacramento State, 3-2, Wednesday night in Sacramento.

SJSU (7-9-3) got a first-half goal from Pat Rashe, and added second-half goals by Greg Bertuccio and Steve Caldwell, to give the Spartans the win over the Hornets (3-15-3).

SJSU coach Julie Menendez said he was pleased with the way the Spartans played.

"We had more chances to score than any game we played this season," Menendez said. "We had the ball in their end of the field 90 percent of the game."

The Spartan defense pressed up into the Hornet end, and Menendez said that's when Sacramento State scored.

"Their goals came off counterattacks when our defense pushed up too much," he said.

With the Spartans pressing the whole way, SJSU was able to get off 14 shots on goal.

After the Hornets went up 1-0, Spartan midfielder Rashe got his first goal of the season, with an assist from Scott Chase.

In the second half, the Spartans scored a pair of goals to take a 3-1 lead.

The first goal was scored unassisted by midfielder Bertuccio, on a high drive into the corner of the Hornet net.

"Bertuccio crossed a ball from the right side that went over the goalkeeper's head and into the corner of the net," Menendez said. "You don't see too many goals like that."

Caldwell then scored a goal after he took a crossing shot from the right side of the net.

The Hornets added a late goal, but SJSU hung on for the win. Junior goalkeeper Jerry Nelson played the entire game for the Spartans. It was the first action he has seen this season, and he had four saves.

"He was a little nervous at first, but he gradually settled down and played very well," Menendez said.

The Spartans' regular goalkeeper, Joe Gangale, got a much needed rest Wednesday.

"Joe's ribs were sore. I wanted to save him for the game against Brown University," Menendez said.

SJSU hosts Brown on Sunday, in the Spartans' final game this season.

Brown, an Ivy League team from Providence, R.I., is 6-6 overall, 1-5 in the Ivy League.

This will be the Bruins' first trip to California, and the first time any Brown team has played against SJSU.

Last year Stanford traveled to Providence for a game with Brown which ended in a scoreless tie, and this year the team decided to head west to play in Palo Alto.

The Bruins play Stanford today, and they decided to set up a game with SJSU while they were in the area.

Menendez said SJSU is looking forward to testing themselves against an Ivy League team.

"I think the morale of our team is very good right now, and the players are looking forward to the game," Menendez said.

Freshman forward Todd Helman leads Brown in scoring with three goals and three assists.

Bruin goalkeeper Terry Stanoch has played all but 24 minutes at the net for the team this season, and he has a 1.45 goals-against average and three shutouts.

Brown is coached by Cliff Stevenson, in his 27th season as the Bruin coach.

Astros' Lanier named NL's top manager

HOUSTON (AP) — When Hal Lanier became the manager of the Houston Astros, he knew some people expected the team "to lose 100 games" this season.

Instead, the Astros won nearly 100 and became the National League West champions. And Wednesday, Lanier became the first rookie to be named the NL Manager of the Year.

"It was a great year for the team, and a great year for me," he said.

Lanier received the award one day before he was to start a belated honeymoon to Fiji. He and his wife, Mary, were married in the spring.

Lanier received 19 of a possible 24 first-place votes in balloting by the Baseball Writers Association of America. Davey Johnson, who managed the World Series champion New York Mets to a victory over the Astros in the NL playoffs, was second with three first-place votes. Roger Craig of the San Francisco Giants got the two other first-place votes and finished third.

The voting by two writers in each league city was done before the playoffs. Five points were awarded for a first-place vote, three points for second and one point for third.

Lanier finished with 108 points to 62 for Johnson, 42 for Craig, three for John Felske of the Philadelphia Phillies and one for Jim Leyland of the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Lanier had been a coach for St. Louis for five years before Houston hired him after the 1985 season, one in which the Cardinals used pitching and an aggressive style to win the NL pennant. Lanier took over a Houston team that in 1985 finished tied for third in the division with an 83-79 record. 12 games behind the champion Los Angeles Dodgers.

"No one picked us to do well. People were saying we would finish in fifth place and lose 100 games," Lanier said.

But the Astros, with a style similar to what Lanier had seen in St. Louis, went on to a 96-66 record, the second-highest victory total in the major leagues. Houston finished 10 games ahead of runner-up Cincinnati.

Lanier earlier was named Associated Press Manager of the Year in nationwide balloting by sports writers and broadcasters.

"No one picked us to do well. People were saying we would finish in fifth place and lose 100 games."

— Hal Lanier, Houston manager

Holmes retires after 14 years

PHILLIPSBURG, N.J. (AP) — Larry Holmes, the former heavyweight champion, announced his retirement yesterday.

Holmes said at a news conference he decided about six weeks ago to end his professional career, which ran for 14 years and 50 fights.

He won the first 48 matches, then lost the International Boxing Federation title to Michael Spinks in a bid to equal the 49-0 record of Rocky Marciano — the only heavyweight champion to retire unbeaten.

In a rematch with Spinks last April 19, Holmes lost a controversial 15-round split decision.

"I'm tired of people using me," said Holmes, who turned 37 on Monday. "I'm tired of fighting, tired of traveling and I'm tired of not getting the decision."

Holmes said he didn't regret not sticking by a decision to retire with his record at 47-0 following a win over David Bey.

Opryland is looking for the best young musical talent in the country; and to find it we're holding auditions in some 26 cities, coast to coast. For our 1987 season we'll produce a dozen different live musical shows, highlighting America's favorite music. We'll be casting over 400 positions, so if you've got the talent, we have a place for you at Opryland!

Here's what we need:

Singers: Prepare three selections and bring sheet music in the proper key.

Dancers: Prepare a routine of approximately one minute.

Instrumentalists: We need piano/conductors, rhythm section, brass, woodwind, and string players. Most will be asked to sight-read first.

Facilities department accused of harassment

charges against the department if the poster was removed, he said.

During a meeting between Mog and O'Connell, both said they heard a disturbance through the office door.

Stepping outside, O'Connell said she encountered Administrative Service Manager Larry James apparently ridiculing her and Mog about the alleged harassment.

"I heard Larry James mockingly characterize a sexual harassment problem to the staff as 'personnel officer to the rescue, employees up against the wall, now you'll all be charged with sexual harassment,'" she said.

"Given the timing of the incident with the poster . . . I have good reason to believe that this was what he was referring to," she added.

However, James flatly denied the claim. He said O'Connell apparently misinterpreted what was taking place.

James said he did say something similar to what O'Connell attributed to him but was actually joking about an incident involving Design and Construction Manager Barbara Pluta.

"It was one of those Friday morning-type humorous incidents that goes on in every workplace that there is in the world," James said.

Pluta confirmed James' account. Pluta said that during the meeting between O'Connell and Mog, she was in the hall where she teased student assistant Dave Howe, who complained about noise from the Rec Center construction.

Before O'Connell stepped from the office, Howe told Pluta she should come to his dorm room early the next morning to experience the noise for herself, Pluta said.

At that point, Pluta said she jokingly shouted "Sexual harassment."

'It was one of those Friday morning-type humorous incidents that goes on in every workplace that there is in the world.'

— Larry James, Administrative Service Manager

just as James emerged from his office and made the statement.

Several of the employees in the office began laughing and were still doing so when O'Connell and Mog stepped out of Mog's office, James said.

Pluta said she was shocked that O'Connell assumed the comments were directed toward her. They were meant in fun and had nothing to do with gays, she said.

"I thought for sure she would come and talk to me about it if she had any concerns," James said. "She didn't, so there's nothing I can do at this point."

"I've worked with Martha . . . and I know the sensitivities of the issues that she's involved with and would never do anything to slight that."

Still, O'Connell said the incident is part of a continuing problem within the department.

In a letter dated Nov. 1 to then-interim Plant Operations Director John Montgomery, O'Connell cited incidents she felt justified holding a harassment workshop for the department.

After a proposed workshop was overruled last November by facilities management, O'Connell and Johnson formed SIR. The organization was formed to oversee the rights of homosexual staff members on campus, O'Connell said.

Further appeals for a workshop went unanswered, she said. When the fliers began disappearing in September, O'Connell said she renewed her efforts to bring attention to harassment.

In a letter to personnel director Mog dated Sept. 8, O'Connell called the removal and covering of her notices "harassment and bigotry" and asked for action to protect her from further attacks.

O'Connell also cited California State University Executive Order 340, which is intended to keep the work environment free of harassment and intimidation. Protected classes include gay men and lesbians, she said.

Qayoumi, who came to the department in July, said he forwarded the letter to the Affirmative Action Office. Qayoumi said he told O'Connell he was attempting to arrange a workshop, to arrange a workshop.

Qayoumi said two sexual harassment workshops are scheduled for Jan. 15 and 16—some 14 months after O'Connell's initial complaint. Part of the delay was the fact that facilities, with 244 workers, is the largest department on campus, he said. The workshops are part of a campuswide program.

Because of the seeming inability to accomplish anything within the department, O'Connell said she filed a formal complaint against her supervisor, Fran Lehto, with the university

Inis Fong — Daily staff photographer

Martha O'Connell, SJSU Staff for Individual Rights coordinator, says she has been discriminated against employee relations designee. The case is still being heard, she said.

O'Connell said the reason for filing another formal complaint against a facilities manager is that her attempts within the department have been unproductive and directed toward people she now sees as part of the problem.

"I am appalled that apparently the homophobia in (the department) starts at the top," she said. "It now becomes obvious to me that internal remedies are useless."

O'Connell said she was further incensed when she was refused release time for her involvement in Gay and Lesbian Awareness Week two weeks ago. As event coordinators, O'Connell and Johnson used vacation time for the weeklong events.

O'Connell also blames President Gail Fullerton for causing problems for herself and Johnson. O'Connell said she wrote Fullerton in May requesting a letter to campus departments qualifying the week for employee release time.

O'Connell said the president refused, declining to meet with O'Connell and Johnson to discuss the matter. O'Connell said this showed preferential treatment because Fullerton wrote a letter for Womyn's Week in March.

"We have gotten zero support from President Fullerton," O'Connell said. "What I would ask (her) is what the difference is between Womyn's Week and Gay and Lesbian Awareness Womyn's Week was a one-time event, not annual as O'Connell believed, he said.

Buerger said the release was a mistake that occurred because "somebody thought it would be a nice thing to do." He said employees are now expected to make up time with lunch, vacation or after-hours work.

Still, O'Connell said she is not

Week, except for the fact that one is socially acceptable and one is not."

Dan Buerger, executive assistant to the president, said the university is not allowed to use state resources, in the form of personnel time, for events not work-related.

Exceptions can be made, but generally are not, he said. The release for satisfied, because release time has been granted for birthdays and other events.

"They are setting themselves up to make value judgments on what activities they consider to be proper and worth state employees being excused from their work stations," she said.

Ex-student to work as A.S. consultant

"I have donated a great portion of my time for this effort in the past," Sonneman said. "In the past four to six weeks I have devoted an additional 40 hours in deciding whether I wanted to participate in this."

Sonneman told the board that although he's never worked as a professional consultant, his work with three A.S. and several political campaigns was ample experience.

Sonneman said his work this year on Dan McCorquodale's state Senate campaign and Tom Bradley's gubernatorial race gave him expertise.

He also said he managed the 1986 Responsible Alliance A.S. campaign which swept Boothe and 13 other board members into office.

"With the previous campaigns that I've been involved with I have the desire and the necessary skills to apply to this," said Sonneman.

He also told the board he was responsible for coordinating last semester's campaign which raised the A.S. fee from $10 to $18, per student, per semester.

Because the elections are over, Sonneman said he'll have the time to work on the project.

"It's necessary for someone who has sufficient time to go into the community to find support among residents, business people and also on campus among students," he said.

All A.S. fiscal actions of more than $1,000 must be approved by the university president. But Boothe expressed confidence he'll get President Gail Fullerton's signature.

"I assure we have the president's blessing in this activity," he said.

Dan Buerger, Fullerton's executive assistant, said yesterday, "We haven't seen the material yet, this is the first I've heard of it, so there's no way I can predict" whether the president will approve the expenditure.

Boothe defended spending student money on the project, claiming the community surrounding SJSU supports the issue.

"Members in the business community and residents east and south of (campus) are willing to agree that San Carlos Street should be eventually closed."

"We need six votes, so the entire focus is very concentrated on the next two weeks to find as many people as possible, from as many disparate parts of the community, to convince the city of San Jose that this is a good idea," Boothe said. "This is the most crucial time."

Vice Mayor and City Councilwoman Susan Hammer is the primary target of the campaign, Sonneman said, as SJSU is in her district.

"Susan Hammer is extremely influential on the City Council," Sonneman said.

The task force will try to bring as many people as possible to the meeting, Boothe said.

"We are asking the administration to use buses to transport students to the meeting," he said.

For the next two weeks the A.S. is going to devote most of its energy to this project, said Bob Gunter, director of California State Student Affairs and member of the task force.

"We're going to die and our grade point averages are going to go to hell," he said.

Abraham Haile — Daily staff photographer

Comedy takes to the stage

By Sue Kiyabu
Daily staff writer

A lone piano could barely be heard with all the shuffling backstage.

Occasional notes rang through the vocal chords, the people rushing around dressing rooms looking at hems and the last-minute rehearsal of lines.

The pianist was not that successful in trying to create foot-stomping rhythms through the noise.

All this preparation Wednesday was for tonight's opening of the SJSU drama department's production of "The Robber Bridegroom."

Tonight, however, the pianist will have an orchestra to help her with the music and won't have to compete with last-minute details.

In addition, she is the musical director and has been practicing with the orchestra for weeks.

"The Robber Bridegroom" is the drama department's grandest production this semester, said theater arts Prof. Bob Jenkins, director of theater for the SJSU drama department.

"It's by far the most expensive, most elaborate production of the season," Jenkins said.

The production poses no more problems or surprises than any other production, Jenkins

"The details have, for the most part, been taken care of, now it's just getting the cast to relax . . ."

— Theresa Larkin,
"Robber Bridegroom" director said, although he added the musical is very multifaceted and elaborate.

"In some places it's white-hot," Jenkins said. "In others it's panic city."

For it being the largest production of the season, its director, Theresa Larkin appeared very calm.

"You should have seen me a week and a half ago," said Larkin, SJSU graduate student in theater arts.

"I was not this calm. But now, it's time to let it go."

Larkin said she has directed about 20 other plays and productions in addition to "Robber Bridegroom."

And there are differences in directing a musical that are unlike any other element of theater.

"With a musical, you are organizing every element — dance, music and voice — a thousand different elements," Larkin said.

She said the most difficult part of her job was to take all these details and put unity into the piece.

"The cast is just great," Larkin said. "The details have, for the most part, been taken care of, now it's just getting the cast to relax and have a good time with their roles."

"The Robber Bridegroom" is a musical comedy which includes characters with names such as Clement Musgrove, Salome, Goat and a clan called the Harp Gang.

"The Robber Bridegroom" will run for three consecutive weekends beginning tonight at 8.

All shows will be in the University Theatre, Fifth and San Fernando streets.

The dates for the following shows are tomorrow, next Thursday, Friday and Saturday and Nov. 20, 21 and 22.

Tickets can be purchased at the University Theatre Box Office. General admission is $6, $5 for students and seniors.

Birth begets car crash

EAST LOS ANGELES (AP)

— A baby girl survived a car crash yesterday that followed a front-seat birth with her umbilical cord wrapped around her neck, officials said.

The unnamed baby was in guarded condition in the Los Angeles County-USC Medical Center's intensive care unit, said hospital spokeswoman Adelaida De La Cerda. The 7½-pound infant was taken to the hospital in a sheriff's squad car following the accident.

The mother, Margarita Diaz, was in fair condition at the same hospital, De La Cerda said.

Enrique Echabarría and wife Diaz were en route to the hospital shortly before 3 a.m., with Diaz in labor, when she gave birth to the boy on the front seat of the car.

She exclaimed that the umbilical cord was wrapped around the baby's neck, and that Echabarría, still driving, reached with one hand to unwrap the cord, taking his eyes off the road.

The car, going northbound on Eastern Avenue, jumped a curb and struck a light pole, said East Los Angeles Sheriff's Sgt. Bill Conley.

College union leaders to meet

Barrett, who served as ACU-I national president in 1973-74, said the role the association serves for unions is not unlike that which professional organizations do for English professors, housing officials and business people.

By grouping together with those involved in the same field, union representatives have an opportunity to ask, "How can we do things better and differently?" he said.

In anticipation of the large number of visitors, the union has "really been spit-polishing" its own facility, including having extra crews working nights, Robison said.

"The place is really going to look nice," she said.

After participants are bused from the Hyatt to SJSU this morning, events will commence with keynote speaker Charles Burdick, dean of the School of Social Sciences.

Burdick, a long-time SJSU professor, is slated to speak about campus life before and after the Union opened here in 1969.

Following Burdick's speech, delegates will participate in a series of workshops dealing with everything from student volunteer programs to maintenance, and from marketing to legal issues, Robison said.

Saturday's events are scheduled at the Hyatt.

Such sharing of experiences and ideas allows delegates to learn what's happening in other unions, Robison

"If they can find a volunteer school, it makes them very happy."

— Adrienne Robison,
Union scheduling manager said. This gives them an opportunity to check new trends and learn about new things they might want to try in their unions, she added.

Robison said the conference came to SJSU because while ACU-I organizers were examining site possibilities within the Bay Area, they heard there was interest here, Robison said.

The SJSU Union had been wanting to hold a conference for some time but was not really considering it until 1988, she said. However, when the ACU-I learned SJSU was interested, it jumped at the opportunity.

"If they can find a volunteer school, it makes them very happy," Robison said.

By hosting the conference, SJSU stands to gain a great deal of recognition, Barrett said.

Even better, that recognition comes at essentially no cost to the school, Robison said, because there are no direct costs for the host. Charges for meals and the like are returned to the association.

She said the only costs to SJSU, then, are indirect in the form of staff, time and equipment needed for the event.

Beyond that, the $98 per delegate cost each school pays is figured into participating SJSU departmental budgets, she said. SJSU plans to send 10 delegates, representing the Union director's office, the scheduling office, the games area, the Union program board and the information area.
