Faculty feel threatened by budget shortfall

BY KEVIN TURNER

SJSU faculty may have to prepare for the worst, as the CSU's $1,788-per-year fee proposal creates differing problems including missed pay raises, lay offs and the decline in quality of education.

In the past few weeks, state budget hearings with the Senate Budget and Fiscal Review Subcommittee were held; results of the hearings were presented as documents called "California Facul-Association (CFA) Government Relations Weekly Updates?

According to the "CFA Update," CSU Chancellor Barry Munitz agreed with the LAO that there are 6,500 less class sections and 2,500 fewer faculty this year, and this was the third consecutive year without a faculty pay raise, even with the rising cost of living.

The committee was also informed Evidence from the Legislative Ana- that faculty compensation and work-

The California State University (CSU) and the California Faculty Association (CFA) have agreed to extend the CFA's contract one year, to June 30, 1994.

The CFA is the union for university faculty in California.

The new contract, called the Collective Bargaining Agreement, was approved by the board of trustees March 17. CSU Chancellor Barry Munitz and the board both recommend the CFA accept this agree-

"Now the ball is in our court," said Manuel Fimbres, president of the SJSU chapter of CFA. "Next week, a vote is going to go to the membership for ratification. By the end of next week, we will know whether we approve it or not." Fimbres said he sees no reason for the CFA members to reject the con-

The vote will take place next week. Members of CFA at each of the 20 CSU campuses will vote yea or nay, Fimbres said, on the new contract.

CFA members will vote at each of their prospective campuses. Then each chapter office will tally the votes and report the results to CFA headquarters in Los Angeles. The outcome of the vote will be made known on April 1 or 2.

Al Swanson, professor of social works at SJSU and member of the CFA grievance committee, said SJSU will have to vote in a slightly different manner. "Normally we would hold elections on campus," Swanson said. "But we'll be on break." SJSU is the only CSU campus not in session next week.

However, the CFA have arranged for SJSU faculty to vote by mail. "The recommendation that the (CFA) leadership is giving to its members is that (the contract) be ratified," Fimbres said.

One issue the CFA is still worried about is the merit salary adjustment (MSA), or step increase. This is a pay upgrade corresponding to the number of years a professor teaches at SJSU. Each year is equal to a "step" on the ladder toward tenure. The amounts of the MSAs are detailed in the CFA contract.

MSAs should not be confused with cost of living raises. MSAs are specific salaries connected to rank advancement, whereas cost of living raises are tied to state inflation.

Fimbres said the budget that went from the legislature to the governor had included MSAs. What the governor did was strike out the language specifically allocating funds for MSAs and just include the money

SJSU pays $20,000 a month extra while awaiting new well

BY TRUONG PHUOC KHÁNH

Because only one campus water well is in working order, SJSU is currently buying from the city to meet its water needs, and this is costing the university approximately $20,000 more per month, according to Ken Yang, director of operations design and construction.

It is, therefore, to the university's advantage to either modify the main well, which was contaminated earlier this semester, or constuct a new one.

'It's still in the design stage," Yang said, referring to plans to build a new well on campus. "But the technical design is done."

Facilities Development and Operations (FDO) is working in a joint effort with the Environmental Health and Occupational Safety (EHS) to drill the well in

Yang estimated the new well will cost between $200,000 and $300,000. The chancellor's office has approved the expenditure.

The current non-operating main campus well, which is next to Seventh Street Parking Garage, is nearly 30 years old.

"That's basically how long a well is good for," Yang said. There's a casing for a metal tube inserted into wells so that the ground doesn't move, and the casing is showing its age.

"It's not in good condition," Yang said. "It can collapse any used, there needs to be modifications, as specified by the state Department of Health Services (DHS).

Sharon Wong from DHS Office of Drinking Water, said there are three requirements SJSU must meet. First, it needs to upgrade the chlorination facility to ensure the system is reliable and flow proportional. "Flow proportional" means the amount of chlorine added is always in proportion to the amount of

Good students may get Latin titles

BY NASER IDEIS

After 29 years, SJSU will likely re-establish a long-standing SJSU tradition abandoned in 1964. It is a return proposed by a group of students who thought it would make a big difference to students graduating with honors.

The SISU Academic Senate approved the recommendation to the return of the Latin designations cum laude, magna cum laude and summa cum laude for graduation honors.

A lot of people don't understand what the English designations stand for, Academic Senator John Latimer said.

Businesses and employers have greater appreciation for the Latin designations than the English designations of 'distinction' and 'great distinction,' which are currently used by the university," he said.

Latimer, who serves on the Instruction and Student Affairs Committee, said Latin designations are better known to employers. He said by using them, "we comform with other campuses in the nation."

Cum laude (pronounce come laudee) means with praise or the first grade of honor. Summa cum laude refers to the highest praise or distinction. Magna cum laude, which refers to a great praise, designates students work higher than cum laude but lower than summa

Commentator speaks on socialism, post-Soviet style

BY LEAH LA GALANTE

Bill Mandel, radio commentator, author and scholar of the former Soviet Union, will speak at the First Christian Church, located at 80 S. Fifth St., Thursday at 7:30 p.m. on "What Did Happen in the Soviet Union," the first in a series of lectures, discussions and symposia on "Socialist Thought in the Post-Soviet Era."

Mandel, former member of the Communist Party and now independent leftist, will focus on the past five to six years of social activity in the Soviet Union, said Bob Lindsay, a member of the Committees of Correspondence.

The Committees of Correspondence make up a left-wing organization born out of the Communist Party and founded on the principles of democracy, Lindsay said.

Mandel is considered an expert in the study of the former Soviet Union and can be described as a Mandel said, "I attended Moscow University and got to know the people of the Brezhnev administration.'

Mandel is the author of five books about the Soviet Union, two of which resulted in the questioning of Mandel in 1953 by Senator Joseph McCarthy during the McCarthy hearings, Mandel said.

The lecture is sponsored by the San Jose chapter of the Committees of Correspondence.

Consolidating programs best way to preserve courses

Letters to the editor

A modest abortion proposal

The Spartan Daily supports the recommendation that would create an ethnic and comparative studies department at SJSU.

The department, to be formed by joining the Afro-American and Mexican-American studies programs with each other, would combine the programs' resources.

The recommendation makes sense in light of budget constraints being imposed on the university. This university is full of sacred cows that provide little milk to students - it is time they are put out to pasture.

According to SJSU Institutional
Research, only two students are declared as Afro-American studies majors in the Spring 1992 semester. This lack of student interest is jeopardizing the program.

The new recommendation will preserve the integrity of the program for those who are interested.

While opponents of the recommendation search for ways to stop the

The course content and the number of class offerings from each pro-gram will remain unchanged. The department will promote multi-cultural understanding. At the same time students will still be able to concentrate in different studies offered by the department.

The loss facing these current programs can be said in two words: administrative autonomy. This loss has little or nothing to do with students or their education.

Affirmative action: Will they ever understand?

Not long ago, while driving in my parents' van, a struggling freshman such as myself can't afford his own wheels, I happened to be zooming through the radio's AM frequency when something caught my attention.

This something was a discussion on the state of the American education system.

Anyway, the talk-show itself did not beckon for my attention, but rather a comment made by one of the listeners. The listener, a guy named Dave, was a white, male college student. Dave called the studio to express his feelings on Affirmative Action in education.

Dave's comment was, "I think that Affirmative Action programs show bias towards white students, and perpetuates favoritism.

First of all, in light of the years of misrepresentation, bigotry, socioeconomic and educational obsolescence that America's minorities, who actually constitute the majority, have faced, Dave's ideology seriously disappoints me.

But, as Dr. Martin Luther King, jr. once said, "There can be no deep disappointment where there is not deep love."

Secondly Dave, since I myself am a member of the so called minority, I feel Affirmative Action programs in education are vitally important.

These programs are the fruits of a harvest we have tenaciously worked to gather. Furthermore, through the struggles, bloodshed, and death we have endured, and from the cheap if not forced labor which has built this great nation, and brought our ancestors little, if any, economic returns, America's minorities have payed for these pro-

And, most importantly, the few programs minorities have obtained were paid for with an unexchangeable currency, the human life, and are nothing more than a miniscule pebble fallen from the mountainside of retribution.

Wherever you are Dave, I hope this explanatory essay sets you on the path that winds from ignorance to understanding. And, hopefully, once you understand the historical origins and implications of Affirmative Action programs you will help to make history, rather than repeat the mistakes of the past.

The proposed change originated with concern of students who are graduating with honors and students with high GPAs, said Stephen Goodman, a student senator on the Academic Senate.

The committee, which Goodman is a member of, reviewed the recommendation presented by the students "and decided to approved for many reasons," Goodman said.

'The Latin designations are the uniform way to honor a student with high GPA," he said. "It helps these student when they transfer to graduate studies and when they look for jobs."

The Academic Senate, at the meeting on March 8, also approved the GPA requirements for graduation honors at

The two-parts system costs $60,000, while the three-parts system costs $100,000.

"That's a difference of $40,000 between the two, which is a lot," Bersuch said. "We're asking (DHS) to pick one."

However, Wong said DHS does not set a minimum or maximum standard for chlorine residual levels in underground water supplies.

"Our standard only applies to treated surface water," Wong said. To meet DHS qualifications, SJSU will need to buy additional equipment for a slightly different injection system, Bersuch said. "We're not losing the current equipment," Bersuch said. "We'll just be adding more to an exist-(SJWC) charges the same rate for a singlehouse residence or a commercial business, which is $1.309 per CCF, according to Melania, an employee at SJWC, whose company policy only allows her to identify herself by her first name.

Over the years, SJSU has conserved enough water in its water bank so there is no danger of exceeding its allocations and paying a higher rate, according to Betty Luna of the facilities department.

'We're making every effort to move back to our campus wells," Yang said. "Maybe in a month or two, we'll be back."

Once the new well is constructed, the current main well will serve as back-up, Yang said.

Spartans drop wet doubleheader

BY TORREY WEBB

It was raining, the field was wet, and Debbie Nelson, SJSU Softball Coach was ejected from both games in a doubleheader as her team went on to get swept by the University of Hawaii 5-0, 6-2.

"This the first time I've been thrown out in seven years and today I got the double whammy. It was frustrating, we couldn't get any calls."

The Spartans (13-10, 3-3) faced a mediocre Hawaii team (15-18, 2-8) that was looking for its first win in the Big West Con-

The Rainbow Wahine struck first in the top of the first inning of the second game when Stephanie Keeler drove in a run on an infield hit. The next batter, Julie Luft, drove in another run from the game. with a sacrifice fly.

However, the Spartans were quick to respond in the following inning with their next at-bat. Jackie Tawney, who went 2-for-3 hit a double and went to third base on a passed ball. Then Noleana Woodard, collected an RBI as she singled, dri-ving Tawney home. The first inning ended with the score of 2-

The rest of the game was owned by the University of Hawaii. In the top of the third, they extended their lead when Anne Williams and Keeler each drove in a run.

In the fifth, the Wahine scored two more runs, one a close call at home plate which Nelson protested and was promptly ejected

SJSU wasn't able to manufacture any scoring until the seventh inning on an RBI single by Jenny

The first game was scoreless until the fourth inning. Deirdre Wisneski of Hawaii drove in a run with a line shot that just fell fair inside the first baseline. Kelley Hupp next hit a double to left field to score the next run..

With bases loaded, University of Hawaii scored on a passed ball by the pitcher Lisa Wehren. When asked if the bad whether had an effect on her team's performance, Nelson was skeptical.

"I don't think so. Hawaii was hitting the ball well. They weren't making the same mistakes we were," Nelson.

SJSU Track Club holds fourth annual Spartan Gold Rush Run

The fourth annual Spartan Gold Rush Run is only less than two weeks away on April 4 at 9

The Run, which is always on the first day of daylight-savings time, will be held at Hellyer Park in South San Jose and is the Spartan Cross-Country and Track Club premier fund raising event.

The race welcomes SJSU students, faculty, staff and the San Jose community at large to join this five-mile run or two-mile

The fee to register is $8 for SJSU students, $12 for advance registration (before March 26) and $15 race-day registration for Proceeds benefit the Spartan Cross-Country and Track Club, which was formed after the demise of the SJSU track team in 1988. The fund raiser will help the club offset expenses like track and field entry fees, travel costs and scholarships awarded to outstanding club members.

For the first time, a silent auction for sports memorabilia items will be held at the race site as an additional fund-raiser. Kent Herkenrath, the captain of SJSU's track team in 1959, donated several items including a complete Olympic pin set valued at $200 and several autographed San Francisco 49ers posters. Herkenrath owns the Fan apparel store in San Jose.

Herkenrath said he felt terrible at the loss of the track team in 1988 and wanted to do something special for the track club.

This year's run is being dedicated in the memory of long-time supporter and charter member Zeppi Long, who died last November from a heart ailment.

Andrea Byers, two-time club president, said "Zeppi loved this club and put in more time and energy than anyone else to make this race a success."

Alcohol may have contributed to Cleveland Indian players' deaths

WINTER HAVEN, Fla. (AP) - Beer and vodka were found Tuesday aboard the power boat that rammed a dock on a darkened lake, killing two Cleveland Indian pitchers, injuring another and devastating the club two weeks before the start of the sea-

Investigators said it would be several days before toxicology studies determined if Steve Olin, Tim Crews and Bob Ojeda had been drinking.

However, several Florida television stations reported Tuesday night that one player had a bloodalcohol level of .17, above the .10 considered legally drunk in Florida for motorists and boaters.

The player was not identified, and The Associated Press could not independently confirm the

'We haven't released any of that information at this time," Cheryl Strouse, duty officer for the Florida Game and Fresh Water Fish Commission, said Tuesday night. "If it did get out, it was premature."

Strouse said an autopsy had been done Tuesday on Olin, and one would be performed Wednesday on Crews. She did not know when blood-alcohol levels for both players or Ojeda, the surivor, would be released.

Lt. Bruce Cooper of the commission said investigators "found full beer cans in an ice chest and a liter of vodka almost full." One empty beer can was also found on the boat.

Olin, 27, the Indians' top reliever, was killed instantly. He was struck in the chest when the boat, near full throttle, raced under the dock before hitting a Crews, 31, who officials said was driving the boat, was also struck in the chest. He died a few hours later after being hospitalized with head and lung injuries.

Ojeda, 35, suffered cuts on his head and was in serious condition after surgery. He is expected to make a full recovery.

It was the first time two major league baseball players were killed in the same accident.

General manager John Hart said he had "absolutely no idea" whether the players were drunk. But he said he was assured by Indians strength and conditioning coach Fernando Montes they weren't. Montes was at a picnic with the players and their families before the boat ride.

"Life is a series of risks," Hart said. "I think all of us have put ourselves in jeopardy at one time or another. I spoke with Tim's father. He said Tim had very strict rules about his boat. He was very familiar with the lake."

The 18-foot fiberglass Skeeter bass boat had a 150-horsepower motor and a top speed of 60 mph.

Viewed by an AP reporter at the Lake County Sheriff's garage in Eustis, Fla., the gray and silver boat appeared to have sustained little damage, just some scrapes and scratches.

There was, however, a significant amount of blood on the carpeting and seats, especially on the passenger side. Blood was also splattered over the left side of the boat, covering part of the gas cap.

Gymnastics team scores 265.25 for season best

BY ELAINE MEITZLER

Stanford University team beat the SJSU Men's Gymnastics team with an overall score of 282.45 at the final meet of the season Saturday at the Spartan

The Spartans' score was a season best 265.25 and U. C. Berkeley scored 229.6.

Jair Lynch of the Cardinals was surprised at the team's victory, considering that the Cardinals had finals the week before.

Lynch said he had difficulty in the rings and parallel bars. "But that will come in time. This is my twelfth year in gymnas-

The Spartans' Kwame Torres, who scored a 9.5 in the rings, felt that the team scored well overall.

"As a team we were 265.25. Personally I did good all around and I came back from an Brian Matchett, who wore a knee brace throughout the tournament, received a 9.1 on the high bars.

Mike Young was elated about his performance in the meet.

"Definitely it was one of my better meets. The high bar was hard. I kind of sprained my Spartans Coach Ted Edwards felt many of his team's members excelled at the meet. "We did very, very well. This is our highest team score to date. We had eight or ten personal records."

Brian Matchett had three personal bests. Khomi had the highest ring totals.

Chris Swircek had personal bests on rings, high bar, and all around. It was a night of personal bests."

Kwame Torres performs his final high parallel bars routine Saturday night.

Restrictions on gay soldiers may be OK

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Clinton said Tuesday at his first formal news conference that it is probably constitutional to restrict the duty assignment of homosexuals in the military.

His 40-minute session with reporters in the White House East Room began with a flurry of questions on Boris Yeltsin and the Russian political crisis. But before long the emphasis turned to other matters, ranging from qualifications for his Supreme Court nominee to his plans for allowing openly gay people in the military. Brought back to the gays-military topic that threw him off stride in the first weeks of his administration, Clinton said he would not rule out limiting homosexuals' military assignments "depending on what the grounds and arguments were.

Clinton has taken the first steps toward allowing openly gay people in the military.

However, confronted by widespread opposition from military leaders, the president delayed his policy for six months.

• Government forces capture city near Angolan capitol

LUANDA, Angola (AP) - The government said Tuesday that its forces have captured Caxito, the closest rebel-held city to the capital and the second in two weeks ceded by the insurgents.

It was not clear, however, whether the rebels actually were defeated or were simply returning to the guerrilla tactic of controlling roads and rural areas while harassing government-held cities. The official Jornal de Angola newspa-per reported Caxito's fall. About 33,000 Caxito residents had fled to a refugee camp in Luanda in November. Some now have begun walking 38 miles home.

A government military officer in Luanda, speaking on condition of anonymity, said UNITA destroyed much of Caxito's infrastructure before with-

Belgian prime minister resigns over budget cuts

BRUSSELS, Belgium (AP) — Prime Minister Jean-Luc Dehaene submitted the resignation of his government Tuesday after failing to settle a dispute over budget cuts.

But Dehaene said that he still hoped the four coalition parties of the government could find a way out of the crisis and agree on the needed $3.2 billion in budget cuts.

It was unclear how long King Bau-douin would take before deciding whether to accept the resignation. Dehaene tendered his resignation after French-speaking Socialists in the centerleft coalition rejected his last-ditch budget compromise, officials said.

"Such measures are necessary. They will not be popular but we must reach an agreement," Dehaene told reporters.

If the king accepts the prime minister's resignation, the king would need to appoint a mediator to set up a new coalition, possible without Dehaene.

The crisis also cast doubt whether the government's far-reaching plans to turn Belgium into a federal state from its current unitary structure could be approved by parliament next month.

3-year-old IRA victim provokes British outrage

WARRINGTON, England (AP) - The father of a 3-year-old boy killed by an IRA bomb said Tuesday he hoped his only child's death could be the last from Northern Ireland's troubles.

I am wishing to God that this little child will be the start of this — will start something to stop it," said 58-year-old Wilfred Ball, whose son Johnathan was killed by one of two bombs detonated in Warrington's shopping district on Saturday. Fifty-six people were injured.

Although the Irish Republican Army has been setting off bombs in England for 20 years in its campaign to end British rule of Northern Ireland, Johnathan's death provoked an unusual amount of outrage.

It is perhaps the biggest embarrassment to the IRA since it killed 11 civilians at a World War I memorial.

Suspects in Bombay bombing flee to Pakistan

NEW DELHI, India (AP) - Six members of a Muslim family sought in connection with the terrorist bombs that devastated Bombay have fled to Pakistan, newspapers said today.

Pakistan, which has been accused of aiding anti-Indian terrorists, said it would cooperate in the hunt for the suspects and would deny them refuge.

Some top Indian government officials have accused Pakistan of being involved in the March 12 attacks, when 13 bombs killed more than 300 people and damaged office buildings, the stock market and apartments.

Police in the city of Bombay have arrested 11 Muslims in connection with the bombings.

Police have been seeking the Memon family since the attacks.

6 Jewish settler kills Arab who stabbed another settler

JERUSALEM (AP) - A Jewish settler killed a Palestinian on Tuesday who was bound hand and foot after stabbing another settler. Radio reports said the Arab was shot eight or nine times in the back at close range.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin urged Israelis on Tuesday to defend themselves instead of complaining about Arab attacks. But he said that did not mean they should be shooting Arabs.

Israel radio said the settler who opened fire believed the Palestinian had a grenade. But another settler said the grenade was taken away before the 21year-old Arab was killed.

Arab-Israeli violence has increased, prompting renewed, angry debate over Palestinian attacks and what Israelis can do to defend themselves.

not been funded in recent years. In a sense, the lack of sabbaticals hurts the students. 'The cutbacks in staff hurt the students and the faculty the cuts have an impact on everybody. Evans said as the faculty workloads increase, and as their salary decreases, other universities are poaching luring - the faculty to other universities. And that means the quality of education at SJSU is beginning to worsen. Our job as faculty is very much hurt." Daniel Goldston, professor of mathematics and computer science, disagreed with the importance of the sabbaticals.

'I don't think it's an issue at the moment. It's been a couple of years since we had them. But I think the question of lay offs are more important," Goldston said.

Goldston added the parttime teachers are more affected by the budget than tenured or tenured-track professors.

"The part-time professors are hired on a per-semester basis," Goldston said. "In the math department, some professors received lay offs last spring, but a large number of them were re-hired.

"There are also what CSU calls 'six year people' in that these professors have first crack at teaching before the parttimers. I just heard on Monday that the union and the CSU administration are ready to roll over the contract for one more

Goldston added that the pay raise that is affected by the cost of living - which is different from the MSAs — has not been implemented in the past two

"Actually the past pay raise of 3.9 percent was implemented in January of 1991, whereas the administrators had an 8- to 10percent salary increase in August of 1990-91.

Goldston said the MSAs are based on step salary increases and the professor status; assistant professor, associate profesor full-time professor. Goldston said once a professor is involved in the steps, the pay raise will be automatic the budget cuts have delayed the MSAs.

Carlotta Campbell, communication specialist for the CFA in Long Beach, said there was a projected reduction of faculty at several campuses including Northridge, San Louis Obispo and possibly San Berdadino. Blair Whitney, Associated Students president-elect, said there were many choices ahead.

"The concern is this: are we going to draw the line, and make CSU a diploma mill or preserve the quality of education?" Whitney asked "The situation now is changing, where only the elite and those who can afford to go to college will pros-

In the short term, the fee increases will be good for the faculty, but in the long term, we're turning the CSU system for a public institution to a private one."

Pat Nickelson, president of CFA in Long Beach, also had dire predictions.

The governor's current budget is widely regarded as an over-optimistic budget," Nickelson said. "There is a good chance the governor's proposal in January actually hit the highwater mark; we may see cuts dealt to all of the state agencies. We're fairly confident that things will get worse, not bet-

Nickelson went on to say the CFA is gravely concerned about potential lay offs, and that every time an instructor is turned away, 150 students will be affected.

Also, he said the remaining professors will have a workload increase, especially without salary increases in over two

"Both the legislature and the CSU have turned away the obligation to pay for the steps

— it's a real disaster for morale," Nickelson said. "In many cases, we are losing junior faculty. These faculty were promised to be paid accordingly (for their work), and they're finding out the opposite."

Nickelson also referred to San Jose and how the city has taken the brunt of some of the worst economic troubles.

"In San Jose, for instance, housing costs are so high that faculty can't even find a decent apartment," he said. "There is a terrible housing crunch. The union is carrying a grievance in lack of MSAs this year, but we're hoping to see some breakthroughs.

"In a very tough fiscal environment, most people have expected a turn for the worst. We're lobbying in Sacramento right now so we can get our payments back."

in the budget as unallocated

"(The governor) gave the lump sum of money, without any strings attached, to Munitz," Fimbres said.

The CFA's position is that "there is evidence to show that MSAs should be there - and (the governor) decided to take the language out -we're fighting that," Fimbres said.

A date for arbitration of the grievance has yet to be decided.

The CFA originally requested a two-year contract. "That was shot down," Fimbres said. "It's going to be only a one-year contract.

Munitz told the CFA bargaining team if things run smoothly under this agreement, it should be renewed for another year.

Except for a few changes, the new contract is virtually identical to the old.

The changes are outlined in the preliminary memorandum of understanding (MOU), a list of amendments made to the con-

One item refers to the portion of provision 20.2b of the contract, which calls for a reduction of the faculty workload.

Fimbres said this means, over a period of time, faculty would teach three courses instead of four, and so on. The provision, originally to be implemented during the 1992-1993 academic year, was deferred to this year. But the new language states that the provision "shall not take effect during the 1993-1994 academic year."

"We wanted to put a date of implementation of July 1, 1994," Fimbres said.

This would clarify the date of implementation; the existing language is ambiguous.

Fimbres said MSAs are being addressed in a site letter of agree-

CFA President Pat Nickelson and labor consultant Ed Purcell will attend a meeting today at noon in Engineering 285. They will be discussing the issues of MSAs, layoffs and promotion as well as an update on the contract situation.

Gay rights gaining ground at school

ITHACA, N.Y. (AP) - Student Carla Roland was walking along a stone path on the Cornell University campus one day last fall when she saw a message scrawled in colored chalk. It said "1-800-DIE-HOMO."

"My life changed," said the 21year-old senior, who is gay. "It's so vivid in my mind. It was a huge turning point for me.'

Roland and several other students soon asked for a separate living area for homosexual stu-

The Ivy League campus is split over the idea, with debate focused on whether segregation is the best way to foster tolerance.

Cornell's Student Assembly passed a proposal this month calling for a wing of a campus dormitory to be reserved for about 60 students, homosexual or heterosexual, interested in promoting "gay, lesbian and bisexual

Other colleges have established gay-oriented housing units in recent years with little controver-

"Ideally, it'd be good for everybody to be able to live together, but there is a large amount of hostility toward gays and lesbians because of who they are," said Thom Turner, co-chairman of the National Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Student Caucus.

"People can't get any learning done if there's this overall threat of violence to them.'

Opponents said the proposed dorm at Cornell would be segregationist and would worsen relations between gays and heterosexuals.

Supporters said it would give gay students a place where they could feel comfortable on a predominantly heterosexual and often hostile campus.

"The creation of this unit will send a very strong signal that invisibility and harassment no longer will be tolerated," said Joseph L. Barrios, who represents ays, lesbians and bisexuals on the student assembly.

"It would mean coming home and not having to be afraid?

President Frank Cornell Rhodes, who declined to be interviewed, said in a letter to assembly president Pankaj Talwar: "I fully share the assembly's support for diversity in the university community.'

But Rhodes said he was "distressed" by the student assembly's assertion that gay students feel unempowered and unprotected on campus and said he didn't know whether the gay living unit would dissolve barriers or create them.

Rhodes has 30 days to decide on the proposal.

Cornell already has specialinterest dormitories, called theme houses, for students interested in music, languages, ecology and other issues.

Junior Jonathan Bloedow said he condemns harassment of homosexuals but doesn't think a gay dorm is the solution.

"I draw a distinction between acceptance of individuals and acceptance of individuals' ideology," he said.

Since fall, about 20 students at the University of Massachusetts at Amherst have lived in a gay-les-bian-bisexual "corridor." The University of California has about 40 students living in two gay "theme" dormitories, and Rutgers University started a gay studies living unit for about 10 students this year in its "special interests" dormitory.

Officials at the three schools say the special areas were set up with little fuss.

"They did it and it's done and that's it," said Rutgers housing manager Robert Spear.
