Whitaker sidelined with neck injury

Senior tailback Deonce Whitaker, the ng rusher for the San Jose State Unity football team, will miss the next two games of the season because of a neck injury suffered in last Saturday's 34-24 loss to the University of Southern California in Los Angeles.

The 5-foot-6-inch Rancho Cucamonga native first showed signs of the injury dur-lowing the tests, he saw spinal expert Dr. Robert Watkins at the USC Medical Center for further examination. Watkins, who operated on Whitaker in March to release pressure from his herniat-ed disc, said that he had no damage to the post-surgical areas. "His conclusion was that the symptoms were a result of a contusion to the cervical nerve root in a different area," said SJSU head athletics trainer Charlie Miller. "Dr. Watkins recommended rest to allow the swelling in the area to subside. Dr. Watkins felt he should be able to return to full participation with the San Jose State football team

The injury will prevent Whitaker from playing his first full season for the Spartans without being sidelined.

Last season. Whitaker suffered an ankle injury against Tulsa University that forced him to miss one game. Despite returning to the team after the win against Stanford, Whitaker saw his performance dwindle. His per game rushing average dropped from 157 yards in the first four games to 32 after returning to action for the final five games. Whitaker is currently ranked No. 6 in the country in rushing with a total of 597 yards and has five touchdowns this season "After seeing Dr. Watkins, I felt kind of

Banned books let loose at SJSU

Merriam-Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, "Heather Has Two Mommies" and the Harry Potter series are all books that have at one point in history been banned, challenged or made inaccessible to readers

Spartan Bookstore is featuring a display of these and other books as part of National Banned Books Week.

According to the American Library Association's Web site, a challenge is defined as "an attempt to remove or restrict materials based upon the objec-tions of a person or group. A banning is the removal of those materials

Deborah Sack, Spartan Book store's buyer of books and media, said books are challenged for many reasons, not just for offen-sive language.

"There's nonfiction that's chal-lenged all the time," Sack said. For example, one of the books on display at the Spartan Book-store is Iris Chang's "The Rape of Nanking." The book describes the World War II-era Japanese killing of the citizens of Nanking, China. It includes graphic pictures of Wahlquist Fence Mural back to the Campus Planning Board.

Four different university agen-cies and a professor have felt the potato's heat since last spring. None have seemed anxious to keep the potato for themselves. In a follow-up motion, the senate also agreed to leave it up to the board on how to best exercise that authority.

"I thought the planning board was perfectly capable of handling the mural issue and that a new committee (in the senate) wasn't necessary," said Jonathon Roth, a member of the senate as well as an assistant professor in the history department.

The initial resolution, A.S. 1124, offered in a revised form Monday, had proposed that a mural committee be established by the senate to oversee its maintenance

The large white wall surround-ing the construction site of the Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. Joint Library had loomed large in the minds of campus officials.

"It's such an attractive space," said Robert Milnes, director of the school of art and design. Last spring, after the fence's construction, San Jose State University's Facilities, Development and Operations, which is responsible for maintaining the campus buildings and grounds, had become con-cerned that the fence would become a magnet for graffiti. At that time, Facilities, Development and Operations asked the Campus Planning Board to devise a policy for the wall. Agreeing with facilities that a pro-active approach might be the most effective, the board considered offering students and faculty the opportunity to paint murals on the fence

"It's political pride," Wong said. "This book shows pictures. There's one of a girl getting raped.'

Another nonfiction book that was challenged is the Merriam-Webster Dictionary.

According to placards in the display, it was removed from class-rooms in Carlsbad, N.M. in 1982 because it defined "obscene because it defined words.'

"He's hard working, but not hard to work with," Cruz said. "He's toned down a lot since he first started working here. In this day and age, there are too many babies that can't take a little heat.

The 22-year-old Martinez said he first heard the call of the radio in eighth grade, when he was cast in the school play, "Grease" as Vinnie Fontaine, the disc jockey.

Martinez decided to attend SJSU after he graduated from Morean Catholic High School.

"I remember when SJSU's basketball team went to the NCAA," Martinez said. "They were the underdogs and, I was pretty impressed. I decided to look at the campus and wanted to go here. I think San Jose is the best city in the Bay Area. San Francisco is just too dirty.

During his first year at SJSU, a high school friend suggested MarJennings worked at KSJS from 1994 until 1999.

"I doubted I could fill her shoes," Martinez said. "At that time, there were protests about equal air time, and she worked it all out."

After Jennings decided to leave KSJS, she began training Martinez as an intern. "I had to apply to Human Learning art like an Egyptian

By Kate Kositch

DAILY STAFF WRITER

Art professor Pamela Sharp El Shayeb finally got to make her nine-year-old dream of bringing Egyptian art education to San Jose State University a reality.

Representatives from Helwan University in Cairo, Egypt came to the art department Tuesday with a day-long series of lectures and workshops as part of a faculty exchange program with SJSU.

Mostafa El Razzaz, Saria Sidky, Mahmoud Mabruk and Ibrahim El Shayeb were the first to come from Cairo as part of the exchange pro-gram that is supported by the Fulbright Binational Commission in Egypt. The series ran from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m. and included a lecture from El Razzaz, who translated as Mabruk described the slides of the extensive work he had done since 1990 on the restoration of the Sphinx, one of the oldest statues of ancient Egypt.

"It is as big as a building, but it is a statue," said El Razzaz of the massive dimensions of the Sphinx, which has a human head and a lion's body. Mabruk is a sculptor and researcher in pharonic art and earned a doctorate in art education at the Faculty of Art Education, Helwan University. He recently won the Presidential Medal of Honor for his 10 years of effort to restore the Sphinx.

In order to authentically preserve the piece, he used hand methods that were available to the original artists.

A lecture later in the day focused on the major works of modern art. including some of El Razzaz's own works that were too large to bring to the exhibit.

El Razzaz's art was exhibited in an informal setting in the Art building where students and faculty members could observe his work, ask him questions and enjoy refreshments.

Much of his mixed media canvases, inspired by Egyptian mythology, combine a woman, a bird, a horse and a plant, demonstrating the ability a creature has to move from one form to another, El Razzaz said.

Presidential hopefuls need to seek college student votes

Election Day approaches, it has become painfully clear that the primary presidential candidates don't care if students cast a ballot on Nov. 7

Bush and Gore know that a majority of students don't vote and instead of tailoring their campaigns to encourage participation from colleges in the Bay Area, they ignore us altogether.

Ralph Nader, the Green party candidate, has been the only presidential candidate to visit San Jose State University this semester. We are not endorsing Ralph Nader but are applauding his efforts to seize the support of college students.

Gore and Bush, on the other hand, have each briefly blessed the Bay Area with their presences but both failed to court the SJSU community. In their infinite wisdom, they have overlooked the value of persuading college students to vote.

If college students made it to the polls, they could conceivably sway the outcome.

Instead of capitalizing on this, last week, Gore arrived two hours late to a park in the middle of Sunnyvale to discuss how the cost of prescription medication affects the elderly.

America's legal drug industry is worth debate, but this is the Silicon Valley. Housing and technology are our hot issues.

As part of his West Coast swing, Bush made a stop at Sequoia High School in Redwood City on Tuesday. It was his second visit to the Silicon Valley since the Republican Convention.

Bush reportedly spoke about the importance of education in an attempt to swoon California females

Nice effort, G-Dub, but those high school students won't be able to vote until the next presidential election. And if you want to make an impact on Silicon Valley, try SJSU. The campus population is made up of students from every town in the Valley. Seekers of the Oval Office, get a clue. Instead of trying to change the minds of voters who made their presidential candidate decisions long ago, do some real campaigning and convince young America of the virtues of casting a ballot

Birth control pills are not cure-alls

C tephanie Entwistle complains that the Spar-S tan Daily "left out some very important facts about birth control pills" and then goes on to present one of the most distorted pro-pill diatribes I have ever read while totally ignoring all of the dan-groups truths about the pill.

nave ever read while totally ignoring all of the dan-gerous truths about the pill. The birth control pill is one possible treatment for certain women with genuinely pathological con-ditions, such as serious hemorrhaging. But to sug-gest that a treatment that is good in a few particu-lar cases should therefore be used in all cases is about absurd.

After all, electric shock therapy has been proven to be an effective treatment in certain very serious cases of depression, but I doubt any one of us would wish to be hooked up with electrodes just because we felt a little down. The far greater problem with Ms. Entwistle's letter is that the birth control pill has been shown to have many damaging physical side effects, such as circulatory troubles, greater risk for ectopic pregnancies and a higher presence of malignancies of the genital tract, which result in cancer. Further, in many cases, birth control pills do not prevent conception but rather prevent implantation and thus actually cause early term abortion, which not only kills the child, but also opens up the moth er to further harmful physical and psychological side effects.

MTV can make this white boy hip-hop, too

DEAR MTV,

hope you can help me, I want to be down. I want to be cool. I want

L be down. I want to be cool. I want to be hip-hop. My name is Mike, and during the past two years at the Spartan Daily, I've tried three times to delve into the world of hip-hop. First, I figured I could use my race and follow the Eminem trend. Nope. Next, I appealed to "The Source," you know that hip-hop magazine to you know, that hip-hop magazine, to take me under its wing and propel me to stardom. Still nothing. Finally, I figured I could follow in the footsteps of the Ruff Ryders and the Cash Money Millionaires and incite riots and random violence.

Well, I'm still on the second page of the Daily every Thursday, right? So that shows none of my plans worked. And sure, I know I've had some good times. I stand on my soapbox week after week and make wisecracks about our Associated Students president or DMX or some random idiot, but I want more.

I know Leo Davila probably cuts out every article I write that ridicules his very existence — by the way, those excretion facilities are looking good - but I want more.

I want to be hip-hop. That's why I'm writing you, MTV. You have the power. You truly do.

You changed my world. I was watching your Video Music Awards a few weeks ago, and it changed my entire perspective on this whole rapper/hip-hop/music thing. It breathed new life into my dreams. After watching that, I knew I could do it. It's a bit much you might say, but when you guys gave Sisqo the award for best hip-hop video, I cried.

They were tears of joy. You took a platinum-haired, sissyboy (and it really says "sissy" when you spell check Sisqo), R & B singer who doesn't incorporate any of the four elements of hip-hop in his music and declared him "hip-hop." Here I am, nothing more than a college student with a radio show and a weekly spot in the campus paper paper.

I'm not a rapper. I'm not a disk jockey. I'm not a graffiti artist. I'm

But I figured because you guys broke the classic definition of hip-hop to include Sisqo, you could do the same for me.

I'll do whatever it takes. MTV, I am your whore. I'm a white guy from the 'burbs and I mumble sometimes when I speak, but can I be hip-hop, please? I can learn to bark like a dog or mispronounce my own name like Memphis Bleek, so can I be hip-hop, please I'll bleach my hair blond like Eminem or even spray paint it like Sisqo, so can I be hip-hop, please?

I know Fremont is not a place to represent but I'll pretend to be from San Francisco, so can I be hip-hop,

I can deny those losers Jay-Z, Puffy and Biggie and call myself New York's king, so can I be hip-hop, please?

I can rent cars for my videos and wear shiny jewelry, yelling "Bling! Bling!" so can I be hip-hop, please?

I can waste my money on plat-inum teeth and big gold chains that say "Oz," so can I be hip-hop, please? I can make no sense with my words like DMX or even sell out like Nas, so can I be hip-hop, please? I'm not really violent, but I could make a song about killing our A.S. president, so can I be hip-hop, please? I'm not a thug or a hoodlum, but I'll run around everywhere yelling, "Represent," so can I be hip-hop, please?

I can make up a bunch of l about killing people and all other stuff that's futile, so can hip-hop, please?

I can even end all of my lines with the same words like those great MCs Black Rob and Juvenile, so can I be hip-hop, please?

Associated Students is not a corporation, get involved

s a former Associated Stu-A dents president and alumna of San Jose State University, I like to read the online version of Daily in order to keep the Spartan Daily in order to keep up on what is happening at my alma mater. However, I have noticed a disturbing trend in some of the editorials the consistent jokes that "Asso-ciated Students isn't a student government, but a corporation. The tone of these remarks makes the assumption that A.S. is not representing the students. I would like to defend Associated for the computer center) under their non-profit status.

In summary, this non-profit sta-tus allows A.S. to provide more services to the students than it would without that status.

Furthermore, unlike other cam-puses, SJSU's Associated Students continues to refer to itself as "A.S." rather than "A.S.I" (as in "Associat-ed Students, Inc.) because it places more importance on its status as a student government, than as a corporation.

Similarly, when I was Associated Students president, I purposely referred to myself as the Associated Students president, not president and CEO, in order to emphasize that I was a representative of the students first and the CEO of a corporation second.

'Baby bill' should not replace accountability know a woman who wanted children so badly that she went through 10 pregnancies. Of those 10, only five of the children were born. Of those five, only three survived.

Of the three, one was born pre-mature and had health problems for most of her childhood.

This woman was not on drugs and did not smoke or drink. She was simply a woman who had such a love for children that she would suffer through the heartache of multiple miscarriages and the death of two of her babies.

People like her realize that children are a miracle to be treasured. However, Sen. James L. Brulte (R-Rancho Cucamonga) doesn't seem to agree. His "Save a baby" bill treats children as though they were animals. Senate Bill 1368 allows the mother of an unwanted newborn to legally abandon it at a hospital if that baby is less than 72 hours old.

Further, the bill allows for a two week "cooling off period" in which the child would not formally enter the welfare system so the mother can retrieve her baby, if she so choos

Brulte said this bill allows mothers to abandon their babies without the fear of being prosecuted. If mothers abandon their babies they should be prosecuted. If a mother can be prosecuted for endangering her child's life or for not providing sanitary living condi-tions, mothers should also be prosecuted for abandoning their newborn.

Having a baby is not like finding a puppy on the side of the road. You can't pick it up, decide you don't want it and take it to an animal shelter only to go back a week later and adopt it again.

not become pregnant. In the event that she does, she has nine months in which to decide what she should do.

In a perfect world, the mother would decide to keep her baby and do her best to raise that child. But we all know that this world is nowhere near perfect.

There's always the open adoption method. Through adoption, the mother can pick who the parents of her child will be and ensure that the child is not rattling around the bot-tom of the child welfare system pot in 13 years.

If the pregnant mother is still a teen-ager, and she is worried about telling her parents, hotlines are available to help.

Even so, it's time for that teen to be an adult and come clean to her parents. Sometimes parents can be more understanding than a teenager may think.

Brulte's bill will only encourage teens to be more haphazard in regard to having sex. If they get pregnant, they'll know that the can just leave a baby at a hospit, and not worry about it anymore. Senate Bill 1368 has advanced to

Students with an explanation of why it is a non-profit corporation and how this status allows A.S. to better represent the students of SJSU.

Many students do not know that SJSU's A.S., like all of the other A.S. organizations in the CSU system, has a 501c(3) status, which makes it a non-profit corporation.

This non-profit status has allowed SJSU's A.S. to obtain grants for various programs (such as the Child Development Center), qualify for non-profit tax-exemption (which allows A.S. to stretch your student fees to their fullest possible extent, instead of charging you more money in order to in-fill for taxes) and to qualify for other pro-grams (such as obtaining donations

I hope that my successors continue to do the same.

Associated Students is a unique kind of "corporation" of which all SJSU's students are shareholders. Support your investment by getting involved on committees and by lobbying your student government to provide the services that you want.

The mother should have made her decision long before the baby was born.

Brulte said this bill "gives expec tant mothers options that are legal and saves lives.

Well, other options are just as legal.

Brulte also said, "We need to create greater awareness of options other than child abandonment.

When did birth control, abstinence and open adoption become such unknown methods?

It's logical to say that if a woman (or man) is not ready to become a parent, then they should not be having sex. However, that's not always how things work out.

Preventative measures are available to assure that a woman does Governor Davis' desk for signing. I can only hope he sees, as even Brulte admitted, how rare child abandonment cases are and that those who abandon their baby deserve to be prosecuted for their actions.

By the way, the woman who suf-fered just to have three children is my mother.

She was a young mother but that never stopped her from taking responsibility of her actions.

I can't imagine how different my life would have been if she had decided to abandon me instead of feeling as she did, that children are precious miracles for assistance, recognizing his expertise with regard to art. Milnes said the idea behind the use of murals was that any pre-approved art would be far more attractive than anything that went up during the night.

The board decided during the summer that the responsibility was best handled by another university agency and went to university President Robert Caret in hopes that he would establish an independent agency to takeover the project. Caret suggested the board pass 1999, as well as chairman for the committee for one of those years, countered the altered resolution with an alternative version that would return the responsibility back to the board.

The source of concern for Roth and others were three clauses instructing the establishment of a subcommittee by the board as well as dictating to the board what the subcommittee's membership should be.

The resolution was changed further when Tim Hegstrom, a professor in communication studies, suggested the senate look at each of the clauses separately.

Hegstrom wanted to remove parts of the clauses that dictated establishment of a subcommittee, although he agreed one should be established.

They've (the board) have got bigger things to decide about," Hegstrom said, who served on the board for four years in the early 1990s.

Whether the planning board established another committee, he said he thought it should be left up to the board.

Yet he wasn't so sure the senate shouldn't spell out a criteria for membership of such a committee if one were created.

Like other members, he wanted to ensure that any committee making decisions regarding the murals would have campus-wide representation as well as contain any needed expertise.

Current membership on the planning board includes representatives from facilities, the administration, as well as several faculty members.

"I wanted to consider that (issue) separately," Hegstrom said.

However, in the end, Hegstrom and the senate decided to neither dictate a criteria for committee membership nor that such a committee be created.

Hegstrom still wasn't satisfied. He said he nevertheless wanted to urge the Campus Planning Board to create a board along the lines of the original proposal.

Finally, the senate's chair, Mary Jo Gorney-Moreno, agreed to forward his request to convey the spirit and the intent of the original resolution to the board's chairwoman personally.

Hegstrom said what upset him most about the senate and its action was the attitude.

"(It was) here, you deal with it," he said, characterizing the vote

While in other culture's mythology this change in form is considered curse, in Egyptian myths being chosen to undertake the intensive training of another world is considered a blessing in which the being is enriched with the qualities of all the creatures, he said. El Razzaz said he uses mankind, animal, bird and plant elements in his artwork to represent the entire universe. With a doctorate in art education from the State University of New York in Buffalo, El Razzaz is an artist and critic, as well as a pro-fessor of art at the Faculty of Art Education at Helwan University.

In addition to working in paint-ing, printmaking, sculpture and eramics, he has several large public arts in Cairo and Giza.

His wife Saria Sidki also had her work displayed at the exhibit.

Her graphic prints were largely of women drawn with fine black lines and delicate detail.

Sidki also holds a doctorate in art education and is a professor at the Faculty of Art Education, Helwan University. She is a sculptor, a printmaker, and a theorist in the realm of curriculum planning for art education and has been the director of The National Center of Child Culture. Another guest from the East, Ibrahim El Shayeb, was an invaluable resource for the SJSU profes sors while in Cairo, Granner said.

Sharp El Shayeb said the idea to start a faculty exchange began to take shape after she worked with a committee for the Ministry of Education in the area of children's art in Egypt nine years ago.

After being in Egypt for two years as a Fulbright senior scholar and working at the college where El Razzaz was the dean, Sharp El Shayeb coordinated her plan. The exchange is scheduled to span over a two year period, during which seven more Egyptian profes-sors are expected to come to SJSU, Sharp El Shayeb said.

The program began in January when SJSU art professors Alice Carter, Courtney Granner, Robin Lasser and Donna Thompson went to Cairo to work with Helwan Uni-versity students in art and to tour

While in Egypt, the SJSU profes-sors worked with students from the Cairo university on designing their Web site and teaching them about the history of images in the United States, Granner said.

The professors also discovered Islamic art and architecture during their three week stay, he said.

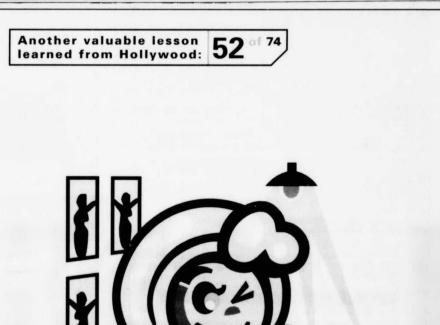

There was a high degree of craftsmanship in the tombs, Carter said. "We had the time of our lives.

Every artist should go to Egypt. Sharp El Shayeb said the Egyptian representatives are taking advan-tage of being in the Unites States and are going to speak at museums and to their educators in Los Angeles, New York and Washington D.C.

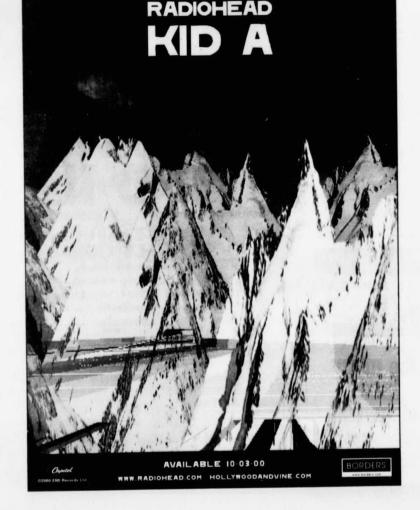

"It is a big honor for this kind of Fulbright Education," she said of the opportunity presented with this exchange.

Noon concert series makes comeback on SJSU campus

By Beau Dowling DAILY STAFF WRITER

After a three-year disappear-

San Jose State University recently hired producer and director of the Metro Foundation Blues Festival, Ted Gehrke, to resurrect the concerts

"Three years ago, the Nooners Concert Series disbanded with the A.S. Program Board," Gehrke said. "I want to bring back music acts to the amphitheater on Thursdays." The Nooners Concert Series is

The Imperial Crowns from Los Angeles played a free live show at the Student Union Amphitheater from noon to 1 p.m. last Thursday.

Art and graphic design major Stuart Mahony, a junior, said he thoroughly enjoyed the concert. "It was really energetic," Mahony said. "The Nooners will

Deftones ROCK THE HOUSE

By Kellie Chittenden

DAILY STAFF WRITER

At about 4 p.m. Wednesday afternoon, six complete strangers were lined up to use Marie Sanchez's bathroom.

They were just six of the more than 200 people who gathered in her backyard in suburban Willow Glen for more than three hours. Surveying the crowd, Marie Sanchez, 35, said, "I don't know any of these people." Her husband, Jeff Sanchez, did. He invited them. After all, it was his party.

And when the rock group, the Deftones, is headlining in your backyard, people will come.

Jeff Sanchez, 33, was the win-ner of the Band in Your Backyard contest sponsored by the Bay Area radio station Live 105.

"One night it was late, and I led, and I won tickets to (the effones concert at) San Jose State at the Event Center," Jeff Sanchez said.

Jeff explained that all the callers who won tickets to the show were automatically entered into a grand prize drawing to win a backyard concert by the Deftones

"On Friday, they called and said I won the drawing."

A huge yellow Ryder rental truck, two black Live 105 trucks and the cars that concert-goers drove clogged the normally quiet cul-de-sac

The Deftones arrived two-anda-half hours late due to a plane delay, officials from Live 105 said. The band flew in to San Jose from Los Angeles, where they played a concert at the Roxy Theater on Tuesday night.

None of the fans were disapointed, however, when the band, led by lead singer Chino Moreno took the stage — specially built in Sanchez's modest backyard earlier that morning. For a powerful 40 minutes, the group rocked the neighborhood with crowd-energizing hits off their newest release, White Pony, which was No. 84 on the Billboard 200 list as of Sept. 30.

About 10 minutes into the show, Moreno climbed up one of the speakers and onto Sanchez's roof where he toked a joint before throwing it into the crowd below.

A boy, who couldn't have been older than 18 picked it up and took a drag before passing it along. "Our production manager, he was standing on the side of the stage," Moreno said after the show. "I looked at him, and then I saw him look up at the roof, and I pretty much figured that that was an invitation." Sharon Codde, a freshman majoring in nursing and Sanchez's cousin, attended the concert.

During the set, she called her sister Michelle who was in class at SJSU and held the phone out the window for her to hear.

Before performing the band's current single "Change (In the House of Flies)," which is No. 5 this week on the Billboard Top 20 Modern Rock Tracks list, Moreno spotted a man chugging a 40-ounce beer in the middle of the oreno led the crowd in chanting the lyrics from "I watched you change/Into a Fly/I looked away" to, "I watched you chug/A whole 40 ounce/Your such a neat guy.

It was these types of unplanned nuances that made the Deftones unbelievably accessible to the crowd.

Moreno said the band did not arrive with a planned list of songs to play. Before every song he asked the crowd what they wanted to hear

The crowd jumped and beat their heads with fists raised to the hard-edged rock songs.

Two security guards patrolled the event, and the San Jose Police Department was aware of the concert

Some of the attendees and surrounding neighbors took to the fences for a better view.

Several times during the set, the anger conveyed in Moreno's lyrics inspired mosh pits among groups of the fans.

A group of eighth grade boys from Herman Middle School, including Sanchez's 13-year-old son, Michael, started their own mosh pit separate from the adults.

Michael sat in his room playing the computer game Diablo II while the crowd gathered outside. He said he had called in sick to his school.

Sanchez's 11 year-old daughter. Christine and youngest daughter also attended the concert.

The Deftones made an impromptu tribute to classic rock legend Steve Miller with short renditions of "Swingtown" and "Space Cowboy."

"That was fun. That's all that was," Moreno said after the concert.

Moreno said he doesn't consider the Steve Miller Band a direct inspiration for his music

"I think music, in general, was my inspiration," he said.

Moreno stuck around for over a half an hour after the show, humbly talking to the fans and patiently signing autographs and taking pictures.

No one was denied a chance to meet the rock star.

Perhaps the biggest star of the concert, Sanchez wafted through the crowd giving high fives and receiving thumbs-up gestures and pats on the back wherever he went went. The cost of the event including a $160-per-day motor home parked in Sanchez's driveway and stocked with the band's specially events of Chienti Sanpore requested Chianti, Sapporo Japanese beer and Bud Light was more than $10,000, according to 105 promotion assistant Live David Mello

Live 105's DJ with No Name, donning a Whinnie the Pooh cos-tume, broadcasted live from Sanchez's backyard and inter-viewed Sanchez's neighbor, Jean Southerland.

No Name asked Southerland, 65, to give a neighbor's perspective on a Deftones home invasion. "Well, I'm a little overwhelmed just the equipment," Souther land said on the air. "I wanted to tell Jeff not to play it very loud.

Live 105 provided free earplugs to all attendees and Sanchez said warned his neighbors. Katy Caselli's home is behind the Sanchez's.

A sign on her front door read "Please don't ring doorbell. Tod-dler may be sleeping. Mommy needs well rested toddler."

Caselli said Sanchez informed her of the concert in advance, so she put her 2-year-old down for a nap early. "I think it's fine," Caselli said "It doesn't bother me at all. They were very considerate to come tell us, actually. It's kind of fun having excitement in the neighborhood." During the final song, Moreno invited Sanchez and a number of fans on stage where they jumped and dance alongside Moreno, guitarist Stephen Carpenter, bass player Chi Chang and drummer Abe Cunningham.

The ambiance was that of a neighborhood garage band put-ting on show for the local high school

"It's basically everything stripped down," Moreno said. "So it really shows the raw kind of side of what we do. It's kind of good. It kind of wakes you up a little bit. I enjoyed it, disfinitely

The Deftones have gained pop-ularity with the highly coveted youth market with numerous appearances on MTV's highest rated show, Total Request Live.

of intimacy, Moreno said, adding that he enjoys doing impromptu shows such as this one. "It's hard, you know, once you get bigger because you have to play bigger places," Moreno said. What we're trying to do right now is, well, the places where we can sell out we're playing, like, places that are half the size. So opposed to playing like a 6,000-seater, we're trying to play two nights at a 3,000-seater so we can keep it kind of smaller."

SJSU ties Stanford

By Ben Aguirre Jr. DAILY STAFF WRITER

A battle of two nationally ranked and undefeated soccer teams ended in a 1-1 draw Tuesday night at Spartan Stadium when No. 9 San Jose State University hosted No. 13 Stanford University. The stage was set for either team to suffer its first defeat, but it didn't happen.

SJSU head coach Gary St. Clair had mixed feelings on the match. "To play a team of the caliber of Stanford and to get the result we did is rather bittersweet," St. Clair said

The Spartans took an early lead, scoring the first goal of the contest in the 12th minute. Spartan senior midfielder Lars

Lyssand connected with a pass from teammate Jorge Martinez that entered the goal box after Lyssand kicked it past diving Cardinal goalkeeper Adam Zapala. The goal was Lyssand's first of the season. He is usually the man setting up the goals.

"It was a great goal," Lyssand said. "Jorge made a nice little cross, and I just put it in."

The Spartans held the lead for 23 minutes until Stanford managed to put the ball past Spartan goalkeeper Chris Humphreys in the 34th minute of the game. On a throw-in from the right corner, Cardinal senior midfielder Scott Leber headed the pass toward the goal that managed to Scott find the back of the net. Although the game would remain tied until the end, both teams had many scoring opportuni-ties for the remainder of the game. Stanford had three shots on goal in the closing minutes of the first period with shots sailing wide on both sides of the net and one going over the goal.

The second period provided no scoring, but the crowd of nearly 650 people saw many squandered chances

In the 46th minute, Stanford's junior forward Mike Murphy had a wide open shot but managed to botch the play by kicking the ball off the post from three yards

The final offensive barrage of regulation came from the Spartans, who first had a shot deflected by the Cardinal goalkeeper, then got the rebound and fired it over the net.

The two teams took the battle into two sudden-death overtime periods only to settle for a draw.

Both overtime periods saw des-perate attempts at the net, but nothing was produced.

The Spartans will have four days to rest before their next game, which will be a Mountain Pacific Sports Federation mountain divi-sion match at 12 p.m. Sunday at Spartan Stadium against the United States Air Force Academy.

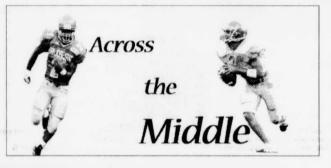

Senior midfielder Jorge Martinez beat a Cardinal opponent to the ball during Tuesday night's game at Spartan Stadium. The match ended in a 1-1 tie after two 15minute overtime periods, bringing the Spartans' p 7recor 0-1.

Whitaker-less Spartans square off against Owls

By Marcus R. Fuller DAILY SPORTS EDITOR

The San Jose State University football team was caught in the middle of an ol' Western shootout against Rice University last season.

While the Owls fired away at the Spartans, scoring 49 points, SJSU managed to draw its weapon only once, scoring a single touchdown. SJSU has reloaded with plenty of frepower this year, but Saturday's game against Rice most likely won't be a showdown of the fastest guns in the Western Athletic Conference, known as the WAC.

However, the game, which begins at 12:30 p.m. at Spartan Stadium, will be the Spartans' first conference game of the season.

The Spartans are the No. 2 scoring team in the WAC, but their potential to light up the scoreboard may plummet with the loss of their 5-foot-6-inch er to defeat Rice at home. In 1998, SJSU beat the Owls 20-17 at Spartan Stadium Whitaker was injured before a It was announced Wednesday that Whitaker would miss two games because of neck injury.

The Owls have also been hit with injury to one of their key offensive weapons this season- freshman quarterback Jeremy Hurd. Hurd, the

Despite three straight losses junior Corey Evans and senior Ben senior Ben

"We're throwing the ball a lot more," said Owls head coach Ken Hatfield.

The option offense is not new to the Spartans, who faired well against one of the nation's premier rushing quarterbacks in Southern Utah University's Matt Cannon.

Hatfield believes playing against SUU may give the Spartans a slight edge. "Most teams don't get to play any option teams," Hatfield said. "SJSU will have more advantage than other "I clear this season." teams we'll play this season."

It's no surprise to see Deonce Whitaker's name among the Nation-al Collegiate Athletic Association leaders, but Whitaker isn't the only SJSU name on the leader board. Rashied Davis, a junior wide receiver, ranks eighth nationally in age of 102.2 per game Davis' average also puts him on top of the WAC. Similarly, sophomore quarterback Marcus Arroyo is near the conference leaders in pass efficiency, com-pleting 51.9 percent of his passes for 727 yards.

Back to Whitaker, after being held to less than 100 yards for the first time this season, the junior tailback slipped to sixth in national rushing with 149.2 per game. In the WAC, he's still second behind Texas Christian's LaDainian Tomlinson.

Defensively, the Spartans are among the nation's best, ranking third in turnovers gained with 13 and fourth in fumble recoveries with eight.

mar Julien, who saw a considerable amount of action in the second half of last Saturday's game against the Trojans

In 1999, Julien played free safety for the Spartans. This season he was moved from defense to offense in order to provide depth at the run-ning back position. The 5-foot-11 athlete from Oak Grove High School in San Jose said the team remains confident with him and senior Darian Morton carrying the ball. "The team knows that it still has two credible backs," Julien said. "I feel like if I go down, Darian can come in and do just as good. If there is a play that he could run better, I'll have no problem stepping aside and letting him fill-in." Julien said he is looking forward to the opportunity to fill-in for Whitaker until he's healthy. "Deonce told me for the two weeks he's out to have faith in myself, and that it's my time to shine," Julien said. "I don't like the fact that he got hurt and I hope he can make it back this season. He has sacrificed his body to put us in a winning situation.

According to the American Library Association's 2000 Resource Book, "Always Running" was challenged but retained by the San Jose Unified School District and was placed on an optional reading list despite complaints that the book is "pornographic and offensive in its stereotyping of Latinos Sack said nobody has ever complained about a specific book for sale at the Spartan Bookstore.

"We have had complaining about some of the more adult magazines," Sack said. because I found what I like doing," Martinez said. "What you put in to KSJS is what you get out of it."

As a general manager, Martinez said he sees himself as straightforward and up front.

"If there's a problem, I will be very honest with the person," Mar-tinez said. "I understand students - I was one of them. Some people say I'm either a hard-ass, a prick or too honest. However, other peo-ple will say those are my best qualities. I'm not going to hold back my opinion." Nick Guilford, a sophomore majoring in social science, met Mar-tinez while becoming a DJ.
