Protesters rally against Cisco campus

By Beau Dowling

Protesters showed up at San Jose City Hall holding signs and heads of lettuce Thursday night.

y were protesting Cisco Systems' proposal to build a $1.3 billion 20,000-worker campus in North Coyote Valley by Highway At midnight, the planning commission voted 6-1 to certify the environmental impact report for San Jose's most significant development issue, despite critics' threat to sue.

The proposal will go before the city council for consideration on Oct. 24.

John Beall, a produce worker in South San Francisco, brought about 20 heads of lettuce in protest.

"Competition for housing will drive local farm workers out of their homes and into conversion homes," Beall said. "Also, the endangered Bay Chucker Spot Butterfly lives in that area.

The Christian Homeless Alliance Min-istry, also known as CHAM, made an appearance and spoke to the city council about the impact Cisco will have on hous-

Rob Molinar, a graduate student in sociology and member of CHAM, said he hoped the planning commission considered the public's comments and opinions.

"I hope they seriously consider what we have to say," Molinar said. "Although I think they already made up their minds. CHAM will continue to fight, even if standing in front of a bulldozer is an option.

Jennifer Campos, a homeless alliance member and senior majoring in child development, said San Jose can't absorb the impact of 20,000 new workers.

The gap between the have and the havenots is widening," Campos said. "We are los-ing the middle class. This is just contributing to urban sprawl."

Symphony orchestra opens concert season

By Kate Kositch

While the San Jose State Symphony Orchestra performs common-ly played classical music, those who play in the symphony may not be as commonplace on campus.

The symphony orchestra, which had its first concert Friday night in the Music building Concert Hall, is not only made up of music students but faculty members, guest artists, high school students and students of other majors as well.

SAN JOSE STATE UNIVERSITY

Editorial —

Attempting to keep readers 'in the know'

e know our stories about Associated Stu-dents are less than exciting. We dare say

We doubt that many students make it the whole way through our articles about the student govern-ment. They tend to be quite long and detailed.

However, we continue to report on the Associated Students as best we can, partly because we think they pull some crooked stuff, and we want everyone who reads the Daily to know about it. Today, if you're willing to read along, we'd like to tell you about their latest stunt.

Recently, we ran an article about how A.S. is trying to take over the Student Union Board.

The student body president, Leo Davila, has managed to appoint four A.S. members and a friend of his to the board, which ideally would be made up of students from all segments of students.

Davila argued that the four A.S. members he's gotten appointed were elected by their peers in last April's Associated Students elections, thus the process remains democratic.

Well, it would be democratic if even half of the students on campus were aware that there are such things as student elections, or Associated Students for that matter.

A little more than 2,000 people voted in the A.S. elections, which resulted in Davila's re-election.

We suspect that he got 800 of his closest frater-nity friends to vote, but that's another topic entire-

And it would be democratic if anyone on this campus cared even remotely about how their student fees were being used and whether Davila is the best person to handle them.

But, we digress. There is still one more student space open on the Student Union board, and we're wondering if Davila will manage to appoint another A.S. member.

The board has 11 members. Six of them are students.

That means the students would have the majority of votes, should they, by coincidence of course, all decide to vote the same way.

We think Davila wants to merge the Student Union and Associated Students.

He said he would not benefit from any such merger, but we wouldn't put it past him to run for another term in order to reap the benefits.

We're not even really sure why he wants to take over the Student Union, aside from the fact that it would give him more power. We think he really

If Davila gets his way, we think people could lose their jobs.

He doesn't particularly like Cathy Busalacchi, the executive director of the Student Union, probably because she doesn't appreciate him trying to take over her job.

Busalacchi's contract is up in June. We think she's afraid it's not going to be

She shouldn't have to fear for her job just

And for the rest of the A.S. students who are on the Student Union Board — you're not off the hook.

You can say you think that hogging the seats on the board is fair, but you know it's not. Start thinking for yourselves instead of letting Davila bully you into doing what he wants.

And for those students who made it to this sentence, congratulations. You are now informed

Watching our school get sold down the river isgusted by the racism and intolerance in America, the land he represented as a boxer in the Olympics, Cassius Clay, later known as Muhammad Ali, threw his gold medal in a river.

That old legend came into my head when I spoke with an alumnus of San Jose State University this week. The guy was rambling about how conditions at the university sickened him.

He said stuff at the university was so rotten, he could see throwing his diploma into a wastebasket.

That's something that's been on

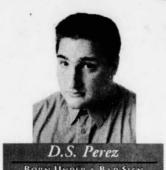

For as long as I've been on the Daily, I've read, heard and reported on what stinks around here I'm starting to get sick of it. Just how bad this university has gotten was loud and clear in the Thursday edition of the Daily. You can still look at the issue if you check out our Web site or the still-waitingto-be-cleaned bathrooms. We had two articles on our student government that allegedly represents us. Then there was a letter from a student who did a better job ranting about the campus than even I could.

The two articles concerned Associated Students' president Leo Davila's latest debacle, an alleged attempt in making a run for more power by selecting almost everybody he want-ed to the Student Union Board, a separate entity that may be merged with A.S. one day.

My colleague, Mike "Oz-mosis" Osegueda arrived at the board meeting before I did. He gave me the lowdown when I arrived. I checked on his information while I was there. Then I got to see Leo in action. Never had seen the guy in person. It didn't take me long to get nauseated, watching Davila practice crony-ism and say the democratic process is something "shown when the students voted for me."

I guess that in Davila's world, democracy doesn't belong in the meeting room when choosing new board members

It wasn't all that bad. I laughed when his A.S. partner in crime, Akbar Shetty, wasn't selected to be on the Student Union Board.

I laughed because Leo was visibly agitated "Majority rules," said the woman next to him. "Oh, yeah" Leo said with a wave of his hand, after trying to say there was a 4-4 tie with nine voters in Classic moment. Still. I'm horri-Classic moment. Still, I'm horrified that the Spartan Daily endorsed this guy for his first term. We advised the couple hundred students who voted for A.S. president to select the current General Secretary of the Spartan Communist Party over the Who's Who A.S. President, Heather Cook, pearly two years ago Cook, nearly two years ago.

And then I was told, by someone on the board, the lone empty seat that Akbar didn't get will likely go to 'whomever Leo selects.'

Then we had the mother of all letters, an atomic meltdown by a stu-dent who had a bone to pick about almost every aspect of SJSU, saying anybody has a right to say this university stinks.

I know, Spartan Daily policy is not to comment about letters we get, but I enjoy the fact that someone has their eyes open on campus

Students and faculty have a lot to complain about. And sorry, no matter how much paint, ferns and Feng Shui this university practices, the stupidi-ty, corruption and bad service at ty, corruption and bad service at SJSU will always tarnish this place to the color of the Scheller House. No amount of money or plants will fix our image or the Scheller pad,

Speaking of money, I talked with SJSU president Robert Caret a few weeks back. Chemist Bob — he's got a doctorate in organic chemistry — said one of his plans was to make space available in new buildings so the university could rent it out and make a few extra bucks.

Great, we can sell this university, physically and literally.

I mean, I really want to attend the Associated Press Journalism building, across from Random House's Humanities department and due south of the Intel Engineering building (Intel inside! Da-da-da-dum!) and the SJSU Hilton/Sony Performing Arts Center and west of the Jamba Juice/Cesar E. Chavez Student

And while you're shopping on campus, visit the new Kinko's in the rental space above the new, over-budget police department office.

I could go on, mentioning such as club presidents who allegedly ezzle money from the coffers they which over and a business building that went far over its budget, but I've only got so much space to work with and a couple other things to do.

So with all this crap going on, how can I be proud to be a Spartan?
Wake up, SJSU. I really don't want to throw my diploma in the river.
Come to think of it, it'll just float by the university that was sold down the river as well.

Distance tests friendship; true friend is there in troubled time he used to cheat off me in the fourth grade. I could never quite figure out how she did it, being that she sat in front of me, but to this day she assures me that she did — at least she doesn't deny it That's my best friend, Nadia.

Oddly enough, we didn't become friends until our junior year in high school.

For some reason, our person-alities clicked, and I had myself a new best friend.

The first test of true friend-ship came just after the school

Her family was moving an hour away, an obscenely long distance at that time, and I would be left without my best friend for my senior year. So we coped as most girls would, we racked up long distance phone bills.

Each month there was an argument at my house about the phone bill. My father finally gave in to the fact that I wasn't going to cut down my daily two hour phone calls to Antioch and switched phone plans so the 925 area code was considered local.

In addition to the phone calls, e had a notebook that we would mail back and forth, vying to out-write each other. I usually won.

When she had problems adjusting at school, I assured would get wrote her cheesy cards in the notebook. When she had problems with Each story was always followed by a responding one, with worse situations and characters than the previous one. We went to each other's graduation, even though I still maintain that my sitting on the hard metal bleachers through four-hour ceremony should count as double.

But between the time we started college and now, something happened.

I knew she would find new friends, and I was glad that she was finally finding people she liked hanging out with.

When she took a job with Wells Fargo, her life changed. Finally finding something she loved to do, she delved into it. At the same time, she met a new friend. They are insepara-Needless to say, I was jealous when they first started hanging out. But after we met, I knew why Nadia was always with Chris — the girl cracks me up, and I consider her a friend.

And I found my boyfriend, who although I love him to death, our relationship complicated things a bit. I would call her, and she would either be out with Chris or at work. She would call me, and I was either at the Daily or out with

I can't remember when we stopped calling. Somewhere along the way, we had grown apart.

Nevertheless, it was Nadia who planned my surprise 20th birthday party with my mother. And I made the trek down to Tumble-town for hers.

I had it all planned out. We'd spend all day together, and it would be just like old

Either I didn't remember the "old times" well or it didn't happen that way.

We had lunch with the people from her work, which made me feel completely out of place especially because nobody talked to Chris, my boyfriend or myself the whole time.

But it was her birthday. We went shopping later and things seemed to go back to nor-mal, the way I had wanted it to

Then we went out to dinner, where everyone was going to surprise her by showing up.

She was surprised, and it made me happy to see the smile on her face every time someone new walked through the door. I tried not to think about the fact that I was being forgotten. It was her birthday, and these were her friends now But it made me think

She saw these people every day, or close to it. I saw her maybe once every three months if I was lucky.

And I knew she didn't consider me her best friend anymore Chris had taken that position long ago.
So I found it extremely ironic that all but five of these "friends" left after Nadia got drunk. Even more ironic was the fact that when everything was said and done, it was me who pulled the hair away from her face when she was praying to the garden gods outside the r And it was me who fed her home to her mother without having to carry her into the And it was me she leaned plain bread so I could bring her against and talked to when she wasn't "praying."

I know she doesn't remember a thing, but oddly enough, it was those last few hours of the night that I took home with me as the most important.

Because even though I wasn't around all the time, I was there when she needed me, and for the first time all night, I felt like I was still her friend.

Election could bring end to U.S. boom ith the elections coming up next month, the fact that the new president appoint three or four new Supreme Court justices weighs heavily on the vote.

In "Amerika Way," David Brandt Berg (1973) said, "The only way that the president can get a dictatorial control on the country is to get control of the Supreme Court. You see, it's supposed to be balanced government: legislative branch, the judicial branch and the executive branch. If any two of those can get together, they can control the

But if he can get control of five men or women the majority of the Supreme Court — he can, in effect, become a dictator in the United States.

With abortion rights, environment concerns, women's rights and gay rights, this election can be the turning point in American history.

America today is so like Israel was in the day before her fall in 606 B.C.

In their last days, the Jews were starving, and they were selling themselves for bread. How like America. She's going to have to sell her soul to Africans and Asians for oil.

When the Americans have to cut down on their two-car driving and extravagant use of jets and pools, they might have to stop, look and listen to what the poor of the world are saying. You cannot continue to live extravagantly, wastefully, and even waste your neighbors' things like in Kosovo and the Gulf War. God wouldn't let it go forever. The American people have been making money on the back of the Spartans break road-game curse

DAILY STAFF REPORT

The Spartan football team won its first game on the road in two years Saturday, defeating South-ern Methodist University 35-10 in Dallas, Texas.

The Spartans last road win came on Nov. 7, 1998 against the University of Hawai'i.

Saturday's Score

6 p.m. Saturday - SJSU vs. UTEP

San Jose State University's defense once again dictated the tempo of the game, scoring touchdowns on two interception returns

In the last three games, the Spartan defense has had a total of 14 sacks, including three sacks for a loss of 23 yards Saturday. "Our defense played hard and we continue to improve," Spartan head coach Dave Baldwin. "The defensive scores were obviously big."

Injured tailback Deonce Whitaker did not make the trip to Deonce Texas because he needed to take care of some family business.

But, backup Jarmar Julien made it clear for the second consecutive game that SJSU still has a ground presence even without the nation's sixth leading rusher.

Improving on his 95-yard per-formance against Rice University last weekend, Julien rushed for a career-high 153 yards on 26 carries Saturday.

"My teammates and my coaches knew what I could do. I am just glad I got an opportunity and was able to help out the team," Julien, a junior, said. "The offensive line did a great job tonight."

The Spartans improved their season record to 4-2 overall, 2-0 in the Western Athletic SJSU struck gold early in the first quarter on a 24-yard touchdown pass from quarterback Marcus Arroyo to wide receiver Edell Shepherd, who finished with four catches for 105 yards.

Arroyo, a sophomore, completpasses of 33 yards and 19 yards to Shepherd and tight end

Sean Brewer during the drive. On the Mustangs' second pos session of the first quarter, quarterback Josh McCown threw the first of his four interceptions of the game into the hands of Spartan linebacker Josh Parry.

The Mustangs regained possession after the Spartan offense was forced to punt. On the ensuing drive, SMU had its punt blocked by outside linebacker Heath Farwell. SJSU capitalized on the turnover with a 25-yard touch-down pass from Arroyo to junior Rashied Davis.

After three quarters of play, the score was 21-3.

Both teams failed to put a sin-gle point on the board in the third quarter. Even though he fumbled midway through the period, Julien's ability to run the ball allowed the Spartans to keep the defense off the field.

The final Spartan offensive attack of the game came on the first drive of the fourth quarter.

Following a 43-yard long bomb from Arroyo to Shepherd, SJSU senior Darian Morton found the end zone from eight yards out.

SMU quickly answered, capping a seven-play, 72-yard drive with a touchdown pass from McCown to make the score 28-10.

The Mustangs got the ball back with three minutes remaining in the game, but McCown's attempt to lead a comeback was impeded when SJSU's Patrick Battle intercepted a pass and returned it for a touchdown.

Those two interceptions they returned for touchdowns, I never saw either of them," said McCown, who threw for 324 yards and four interceptions. "I don't want to take anything away from San Jose, but I played horri-

Baldwin seemed rather enamored after the victory Saturday, acknowledging his team's performance across the board.

Brown leads Raiders to overtime victory

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) -Tim Brown let his catches speak for themselves.

Without any of the grand-standing expected in the Battle of the Bay, Brown caught two touchdown passes, including a 31-yarder in overtime, as Oakland beat San Francisco 34-28 on Sunday.

"It was a beautiful throw," Brown said. "Just perfect."
The game could have been called the Blunder of the Bay, marked by turnovers, miscues and missed opportunities.

"It was a crazy game, but it was a victory," Raiders receiver Andre Rison said. "That's what counts the most." The Raiders (4-1) won soon after Anthony Dorsett blocked Wade Richey's 29-yard field-goal attempt. Sebastian Janikowski, Oakland's top draft pick, missed two field goals, including one in overtime, that could have given the AFC West-leading Raiders the winning edge a lot earlier. Tyrone Wheatley scored on a 1-yard run, Rich Gannon had a 13-yard keeper, and Janikowski did hit from 23 and 35 yards.

Janikowski missed a 41-yarder with less than five minutes to go that would have broken the tie. Then he missed 35yarder in overtime, a question-able attempt that came on secThe kick went wide right.

For San Francisco (2-4), Terrell Owens scored on 31- and 4-yard passes from Jeff Garcia, and finished with 176 yards on 12 receptions.

OAKLAND (AP) — The New York Yankees, tired of being eulogized as fallen champions, broke out of their offensive malaise for a half-inning and then barely held on for a series clinching win over the sleepy Oakland Athletics.

Chuck Knoblauch's return to the lineup sparked a six-run first inning, leading the Yan-kees to a 7-5 win Sunday night in the decisive Game 5 that completed a Big Apple playoff sweep of the Bay Area.

The Yankees, trying to become the first team in a rter-century to win three ght World Series titles, rapped up the division series less than five hours after the New York Mets completed their ouster of the San Francisco Giants.

The San Jose State University soccer team suffered its first loss in Western Athletic Conference play Sunday when the University of Tulsa defeated the Spartans 1-0 at Spartan Stadium.

The Spartans fell to 2-1-1 in the Western Athletic Conference and 6-8-1 overall. "We played hard," said freshman forward Ebony Stone. "Things just didn't go our way in the second half." The only goal scored in the game came early in the first period by Tulsa junior forward Melissa McCormick. Tulsa midfielder Beth Taruscio passed the ball to forward Kelly Noonan, who then dropped a pass behind to a sprinting McCormick for the score.

"We're lucky we scored early," said Tulsa head coach Damon Gore. "They came at us at the end, and we were able to hold them off."

The Spartans had their share of opportunities as they outshot the Golden Hurricane 15-7, including six shots on SJSU appeared to dominate the sec-ond half as they took 11 shots, five being on goal.

Leading the Spartan attack was senior forward Jolene Keel and senior forward Karli Silveira. The combination of Keel and Silveira had 10 total shots, four on goal, including two plays that got the crowd into the game.

The Spartans best opportunity came in the 48th minute when Keel positioned herself behind the Tulsa goalkeeper, who was on the ground attempting to make

Jones seals Mets series win against the Giants

NEW YORK (AP) - Bobby J. Jones made a name for himself and carved out a place in postseason lore.

Known as much for being one of two Bobby Joneses on the Mets as for his own pitching, Jones threw the sixth complete game one-hitter in postseason history as the Mets eliminated the Giants with a 4-0 win in Game 4 of their NL division series Sunday.

Left off last year's playoff roster and sent to the minors in June, Jones pitched the first one-hit shutout in the postseason since Boston's Jim Lonborg in the 1967

World Series against St. Louis.
"At that time I was not helping the ballclub," Jones said of his two-week trip to Triple-A Norfolk. "After experiencing the playoffs last year and not being a part of it, I wanted to come back in the best shape and have a great year. The way I pitched was obviously not the way I was capable of throw-

Jones limited the Giants to a clean, fifth-inning double by Jeff Kent as the wild card Mets won the final three games of the series to avoid a cross-country trip and a decisive Game 5 in San Francisco.

New York earned themselves two days off before opening the NLCS in St. Louis on Wednesday. The Mets were 6-3 against the Cardinals this season.

"It's not going to be easy," Jones said. "They're a great team and play great baseball. We just have

The Giants (97-65), who finished with the best record in the majors, had their magical season end with a whimper, in part because Barry Bonds was a postseason bust again and Bonds dropped to 0-5 in playoff series — three with Pittsburgh, two with the Giants — with a .196 batting average overall. Fittingly, the three-time MVP made the final out of the series, hitting a fly ball to center field that left him 3for-17 against the Mets.

Fireworks shot out from behind the center-field fence and the Mets shot out of their dugout to mob Jones on the infield. The Baha Men's "Who Let The Dogs Out" — the song that blared throughout Pacific Bell Park when San Francisco clinched the NL West — played as the Bonds and the Giants glumly walked to the

"I'll keep trying," Bonds said. After a few minutes, a leaping Lenny Harris led the Mets to a celebration in the clubhouse Jones' teammates chanted his name as they doused each other with champagne.

"I'm so happy for Bobby Jones," Al Leiter said. "I'm so proud of him. To go out and pitch the best game of his life and dismiss all the critics who thought this was a bad decision ... He went out and nailed Shea Stadium was still filled with electricity from Saturday night's 3-2 Mets win in 13 innings. Fans chanted Benny Agbayani's name as he stretched before the game, about 18 hours after his homer had brought the Mets one win away from the NLCS.

That was New York's fifth straight postseason win in the last at-bat, including a 5-4, 10-inning victory in Game 2 at San Francis-

Mets fans didn't need to wait nearly as long this game. Jones struck out Bonds on a high fast-ball to end the first, drawing an ovation from a crowd ready for another celebration.

Robin Ventura gave them much more to cheer about in the bottom half. After Mark Gardner walked Mike Piazza with two outs, Ventura turned on a first-pitch fastball and hit it off the scoreboard in right field for just his second hit in the series.

"He's an aggressive pitcher and tries to jump ahead," Ventura said. "I was a little lucky." Manager Bobby Valentine toyed with the idea of starting

Jones made the decision pay off. He baffled the Giants with big breaking curveballs that didn't even reach 70 mph. He struck out Bonds twice — both to big ova-tions — and retired the first 12 batters before Kent's double over Ventura's head down the left-field line.

"I figured we would pop one," Giants manager Dusty Baker said. "It wasn't a one-hitter where he was completely dominating. We hit some balls hard.'

One of the biggest decisions in the game came in the fifth inning. San Francisco loaded the bases with two outs and Gardner coming up. With a weary bullpen, Baker chose to let his pitcher hit, and Gardner popped out to second

Making the move even worse, the Mets knocked Gardner out with two runs in the bottom of the fifth. With one out, Jones swung and missed at strike three in the dirt, but reached first on a wild pitch

Late-season callup Timo Perez followed with a double to the right-field corner, his fifth hit of the series. Edgardo Alfonzo hit a two-run double to center to make Jones then retired the final 13 batters, making him perfect in every inning but the fifth.

"He really knew how to work the hitters," Piazza said. "As the game wore on he just got tougher and tougher.'

After the concert, Nakabayashi thanked the audience for coming and invited everyone to a reception with refreshments in a Music building classroom.

"I am very proud of them," Nakabayashi said of his students during the reception. "They have come pretty far in the last five

With the whole year already planned out, Nakabayashi said their next concert will be on Nov. 17. The symphony's concerts are free to the public.

In his fourth year at SJSU, Nakabayashi said the orchestra is a new generation of young and old, with a 50 to 60 year difference between some of its members.

"The common ground is we want to play," Nakabayashi said.

Yom Kippur brings peace rally in L.A.

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Prodemonstrators sang and Israeli waved the Israeli flag Sunday while Palestinian advocates marched with a mock coffin in Orange County to protest West Bank violence on the eve of Yom Kippur, the holiest day in the Jew-ish calendar.

and-white Israeli flags during a two-hour rally in the Westwood neighborhood around the Universi ty of California, Los Angeles, "Israel is for peace. Israel is give ing land back for peace and in return we're getting attacked,' demonstrator Sigal Erez said.

At a cemetery in the Hollywood Hills where Jews made traditional visits to the graves of loved ones, Barry Bender said the issues are difficult to decide. The Israelis are right. The Palestinians are right. They don't realize the harm that they're doing to everybody," Bender said.

In Anaheim, dozens of protesters called attention to the latest violence between Israelis and Pales-tinians, which erupted more than a week ago along Israel's West Bank and Gaza Strip. Most of the 84 killed have been Palestinian.

Kamal Elsayed said there was no hope for peace.

"After what happened it's hard "After what happened its hard to imagine They murdered chil-dren," Elsayed said, amid signs that read "Oppression Always Wrong," and a mock coffin. Yom Kippur, the Day of Atone-ment began at sundown Sunday.

ment, began at sundown Sunday. Jews traditionally mark the holiday with fasting and prayer. But Jewish community leaders took the opportunity to speak out about the violence in the Mideast.

"The Jewish community will stand with the state of Israel in this terrible hour of need, in which Israelis and Palestinians are needlessly being exposed to the threat of war because Israel took the gamble for peace," said Rabbi Abraham Cooper, dean at the Simon Wiesenthal Center.

ty impressions, received more applause than the previous comedians' routines did. "He got everyone enjoying themselves," Hoag said. Spears said he didn't know what to expect from the event or the crowd.

"They were really alert," Spears said.
"There's no time to be half-ass."

Spears said he didn't change his material to suit San Jose in particular.

"I guess the end result was what it was supposed to be," Spears said.

Laura Kightlinger, a Saturday Night Live alumna, had top billing for the event. She discussed dating and relationships on stage, throwing in a few California Sne said she prefers doing stand-up to television work because she is more comfortable on stage. Kightlinger said her style of comedy is not as physical as the other comedians' styles and would probably not be as popular with the crowd. Some audience members mentioned that although Kightlinger's routine was funny, not many people were laughing. "Drunk people are not good audiences," said Meghan McDonough, who graduated from San Jose State University in 1996.

"She's very good. She's very dry. Other audience members said they didn't have the patience for Kightlinger's style of comedy.

"Her set was so bad," Hoag said. "Maybe people were too drunk.

Anne Klunder, who graduated from SJSU in May, said the performers were better in previous years as well.

"The comedy is not that good this year," Klunder said.

Hoag agreed and said there were also more beer vendors in previous years. Richard Jacinth, a Humboldt State University graduate, said he came to the festival for the beer and prefers Alaskan Brewing Company's "Downtown Brown" beer to the other kinds of beer offered.

"If I were still a college student, I would have chosen to spend my money elsewhere," Jacinth said.

Kelly Barry, who said she also came to the festival for the beer, was singled out and sung to by one of the comedians. "Who wants my bootie?" Barry said, referring to a part of the comedian's routine. "That guy was hella funny." Stevan Hoffman said he thought glassware in the streets was a bad idea. "Somebody is gonna get rowdy and throw it," Hoffman said. "It only takes one or two people to ruin it. Sgt. Gordy Bowen, of the San Jose Police broken. There was one assault in a parking garage, Bowen said. The Brew Ha Ha was produced by the San Jose Downtown Association.

According to Jorge Briones, San Jose

Downtown Association's event sponsorship director, Comedy Central and AT&T have a three-year agreement to sponsor the Brew На На.

"What Comedy Central brings to the event is real credibility as a comedy event," Briones said.

Briones said he hopes Brew Ha Ha will on be nationally recognized, with Comedy Central possibly taping the event next holds doctor's degrees in dental surgery and medicine, and is also a native of Chile.

ART: Examples of ancient, modern diseases shown in lecture

Salinas said many cultures have been looked at with archeological expertise, but few have been examined from the clinical side, as he has.

Dr. Marion Meyerson, a lecturer in speech pathology at San Jose State University, invited Salinas to speak on campus. Meyerson applied for grants and the help of sponsors to make his visit possible, she said.

Meyerson said she first met Salinas at a birth defects conference in Kansas in 1972 and recognized the relation between their areas of specialty.

She said she asked professors from various departments to attend in the hope that they would bring together the same interests from many professions. While the contemporary clinical description of such malformations were made in the late 1950s and early 1960s, these ancient representations suggest high artistic skill and great insight into the disorders they portrayed, Salinas said.

The slides and lecture included mostly sculptural pieces from varying civilizations, such as well-known cultures like the Mayas and the Inca, as well as the lesser-known Olmecs and Several of the slides depicted motherhood, whether it was giving birth or a mother with her child.

One piece of a carved man with a picture of another man on his chest suggests the understanding of an inner soul by the culture, Salinas said.

A few sets of slides showed artwork depicting a malfor-tion and then a photograph of a person or skeleton with the same mutation.

In one such instance, a mask with indentions in the two front teeth was shown next to a skull dug up from the same area that had the exact same defect.

Another set included a sculpture of a figure with an oddly enlarged abdomen and a photograph of a woman with a pro-truding belly from the multiplication of parasites from drinking water, Salinas said.

Other representations included scoliosis, or crookedness of the spine, palsy, or a paralysis resulting from a nervous system disorder of the face, blindness and Siamese twins.

A sculpture of a person was shown with its legs bent over behind its back and its feet resting on its head, which Salinas explained is only possible with hyperextensibility of the joints. "It was amazing to see representation that was exactly like what we had seen in books," said Suzanne Clegem-Siler, who is majoring in communication, disorders and sciences, commonly referred to as CDS. Clegem-Siler, the president of the SJSU chapter of the National Student Speech Language Hearing Association said she helped Meyerson with the organization of the event by distributing fliers and drumming up support.

"It's like applying the scientific method to the art world,"

Clegem-Siler said.

Danielle Samson, also a CDS major and member of the national association, said the lecture was "very enlightening." After the lecture, Salinas said he has never seen such an extensive understanding of birth defects and genetic disorders in any other culture than in these pre-Columbian cultures

"It is a richness that has not been tapped," Salinas said.
