

THRUST AND PARRY

Hysterical Charges

Dear Thrust and Parry:

I suggest the editors of the Spartan Daily, certain department heads, and Dr. MacQuarrie read again the article on the University of Chicago that appeared in the Daily a few days ago. If these individuals are so afraid of militant democracy and so ashamed of or unconcerned with the cancerous intolerance and discrimination that plague America, that they choose to smear an honest effort to put San Jose State on record as being against real un-Americanism, perhaps they might draw a lesson from the actions of one of the world's outstanding educational institutions.

In light of the fact that for years SJS has been clamoring for national scholastic and athletic recognition, it is strange that these people fight a move that would put this college up into the class of those finer institutions that have been unafraid to proclaim and practice traditional democratic principles in the fields of civil liberties and academic freedom. (To comfort timid souls in the Athletic Department, Chicago abandoned major intercollegiate sports long before it adopted its present stand on civil rights.)

Pious declarations of tolerance, put forth by the administration and the Daily, have that old familiar ring: "Sure, I'm 100% against discrimination against Negroes, Jews, Nisei, Catholics and Lower Slobbovians, but—" There's always that "but," with people who are afraid to face the truth. Not content to bury their own heads in the sand, they must indiscriminately fling labels around at those who believe in paying more than lip service to democratic ideals.

Witness the fantastical and hysterical charges by the Daily that the student government would "disintegrate" with passage of the anti-discrimination amendments. Perhaps they need reminding that they are dealing with college students, not morons! Such tactics are reminiscent of those used against the FEPC bill on the 1946 California ballot, and a more misleading, degraded campaign was never carried on than by the opponents of that bill.

If the administration and the Daily choose to resort to innuendo and misstatement they are more to be pitied than berated. As student-voters, however, we owe it to ourselves and our college to give the anti-discrimination amendments an overwhelming vote of approval this Wednesday.

Jack Sproat, ASB 3429

Commie Methods

One of the favorite methods that the communists use in creating dissension and confusion is to infiltrate into a group and introduce controversial issues which split it into warring factions.

It is interesting to note that several of the sponsors of the recent anti-discrimination petition have been members of the AYD which, according to the Justice Department, is communist supported.

Robert W. Eldridge, ASB 64

Interpretation of Amendments

Since space was not available in the Daily, the Petition Committee is utilizing this method of answering the questions raised concerning the proposed anti-discrimination amendments.

Nearly a month ago the anti-discrimination amendments were submitted to the committee which revised the Student Constitution; then the amendments were introduced to the Student Council at one of its regular meetings. They were tabled and taken up again at a subsequent meeting. At this latter meeting the Student Council discussed the proposals and voted them down. The reasons given for their action were the usual arguments against efforts to end discrimination. They did, however, suggest that the initiative provision of the constitution be used.

A committee of interested students was formed to carry out the job of bringing the petition for the amendments to the Student Body. The members of this committee are the undersigned. Actual circulation of the petition forms was carried on by more than forty persons. Who are they? They are all people who were enthusiastic when they heard about the idea and wanted to circulate a petition because they felt that their friends and acquaintances would be just as interested as they in doing something constructive to stop discrimination. The petitions were not "foisted" upon anyone. If they were "sold" it was because the idea sold itself. Over 1200 signatures in one week are testimony to the power of the idea. That, in brief, is the story of how and by whom the anti-discrimination amendments were brought to the Student Body.

There are many students at State who feel that such amendments are a highly desirable addition to the new constitution. There can be no doubt of this, in view of the number of signatures obtained in just one week. Certainly, there can be no objection to putting State on record as opposed to discrimination. Opposition to these amendments has come up in some quarters, nevertheless. The sponsoring committee feels that this is because of misunderstanding as to the purpose and the extent of the amendments. This can be easily clarified. Here are listed a few of the objections.

- (1) One objection which has been raised is that various departments will be forced to withdraw from Student Body support. But the heads of the Journalism, Speech and Drama, Physical Education, and Music departments have publicly stated that no discrimination exists. The amendments could not possibly interfere with the functioning of these departments. The only way these amendments could affect a department would be if it were proven that discrimination was being practiced, and the department refused to correct it.
- (2) It has been said that the amendments would infringe on the right of fraternities and sororities to choose their members. This is not so. They merely forbid one group of students to imply, by means of a "white clause," that any other group is inferior. They do not limit the right of students or student organizations to choose their friends and associates.
- (3) It has been claimed that these amendments would be dangerous in unscrupulous hands. The enforcement of these amendments, however, will rest solely in the hands of the Student Council, the Board of Control, and the Student Court.

In short, these amendments will not limit in any way the right of the college administration, the departments, of student organizations to evaluate students on their merit.

The sponsoring committee is confident that the Student Body, as a whole, will give the amendments mature consideration, and that when the amendments are voted on, the election results will mark San Jose State college as a leader in democratic attitudes.

Sincerely,

The Committee.

DONNA GRAYSON'S FAMILY INCLUDES MODELS, PATRIOTS

When a student has been subjected to the rigors of Texas training and can still leave without thinking that the "Lone Star State" is almighty and the other 47 are just something to put up with—well, when something like that happens it could be news.

Aside from the unusual Texas angle, Donna Grayson provides a quite interesting family background. The family closet is fairly rattling with the bones of illustrious family skeletons.

It all begins (as far as the interview is concerned) with great, great Uncle Patrick Henry, who you'll recall was one of the gents who spent his time dipping his fingers into the pre-revolutionary political pie. Well Patrick makes a nice pile of bones to rattle around in anybody's closet but that isn't all. Donna had the break of spending several years of her childhood living at the old Henry estate.

TIME STEPS BACK

She reminisces that it was strange to live in a place that seemed so out of temper with the times. "It was kind of like being taken into a chapter of history," was her remark. "The caretakers still used the original kerosene lanterns for lighting, and the old quilted bedsteads and the furniture was still intact just as they used it then." The only handicap to living at the estate, Donna pointed out, was the sightseers. "It was more like life in a goldfish bowl during those long visiting hours."

A paternal asset in the figure of Washington Grayson popped up to chalk up his mark in family history. Washington was selected to represent the Creek nation in a conference at the White House. He went at a time when the Creeks were beginning to go to pieces. Not only was Washington given the honor of being selected but he managed to kill two birds with one stone and be the first Indian ever to be invited to hold pow-wow and bury the hatchet, too, with any of the great white fathers in the White House.

BIT OF ENGLAND

With still another ancestor holding down the position of Prime Minister of England, a father having been a Rear Admiral in the Navy, and a mother a Power's girl in the roaring twenties, Donna has quite a record to live up to.

She has decided to try and follow her mother's career. This summer she takes the big step with an interview in the offices of John Powers himself. If she gets by that one, only three months at modeling school stand between her and a future with one of the biggest modeling agencies in the country.

Every line in her face is the line of least resistance.—Cobb.

Thrust and Parry

Towels Please

Dear Thrust and Parry and P.E. dept.:

WHERE ARE THE TOWELS? For the last three days a few hundred other people and myself haven't been able to get clean towels.

Could it be that the P.E. department doesn't know that a certain number of students take P.E. every day and that—until someone invents a better way of getting dry—each and every one of these said students need a towel?

We have paid our registration fee and have bought our A.S.B. cards—what else do we have to do to get a clean towel?

We don't want much, just a clean, dry towel. It doesn't have to be pressed, gold-plated or even in one piece, just as long as it is dry and semi-clean.

PLEASE, may we have some towels?

EX-BEAR, PLEBE, CARD, SEAHAWK, ROCKET HERE

By ARNOLD WECHTER

Did you ever hear the story of the Golden Bear who played on the banks of the Hudson and ended up down on the Farm. That is the story of Hampton Pool, recently appointed Spartan assistant grid coach. Pool is probably the only man who has competed in inter-collegiate sports at the University of California, West Point and Stanford.

Hampton played only his freshman year at the Berkeley institution, competing in two sports, track and football. He starred on the grid team as a fullback and ran the 220 and 100 yard dash plus throwing the discus for the frosh track team.

He left sunny California for a filing as a West Point plebe. As a plebe he again went out for football and track. But the life of a cadet didn't appeal to him so he resigned and returned to the West Coast.

CHANGES MIND

Friends prevailed upon him to enter Stanford instead of returning to California and that accounts for the change in his preference of schools.

His career on the gridiron at Stanford was varied and is well known to West Coast football fans. Under Tiny Thornhill, who it seems couldn't make up his mind, he played as a fullback, halfback, quarterback and guard. Pool was named to various all-coast teams during his time on the farm.

Hampton also went out for Dink Templeton's track squad. He threw the discus and left out the sprints, which he had competed in from high school days.

TINY OLD ACQUAINTANCE

Tiny Hartranft, Spartan director of athletics, Pool's present boss, gets a large share of the credit when the athletic achievements of Pool are discussed. Tiny happened to be coaching at Paso Robles High school when Hampton attended.

At the Paso Robles school Hampton garnered sixteen letters in four sports. He competed successfully in football, track, baseball and basketball. He ran the 100 and 220 yard dash, threw the discus and shot put in track. On the gridiron he was the star fullback.

JOINS BEARS

Upon his graduation from Stanford Pool joined the Chicago Bears of the National Professional Football League. It was here that he gained fame as an end. He considers the Bears' mentor, George Halas, the greatest coach in the country. Halas, along with Clark Shaughnessy, is considered the father of the modern "T" formation.

In 1943 Pool left the Bears to join the Naval Amphibious Corps as a lieutenant j. g. He was appointed head coach of the Fort Pierce Naval Amphibious grid team, a job which he held with considerable success for two seasons.

When released from the vigors of naval service Pool was appointed assistant coach of the ill-fated

Grid Traveler

HAMPTON POOL

Miami Seahawks of the All American Professional Football Conference.

As is well known, the Seahawks collapsed financially after the first year and Hampton joined the Chicago Rockets of the same conference as an assistant coach. When the Rockets also hit the skids over money matters, Pool left.

Hampton thinks that the National League will some day take in the four or five stronger teams in the All American Conference, and the weaker teams dropped completely. He says, "The new conference is just as strong in players, but the National League is better organized because of their greater experience."

LIKES SJSC

Upon his release from the Windy City team, Hampton took a rest to use his own words. He joined the income tax payers again when he accepted a position here at Spartanville. Pool says, "I like it here, the working conditions and students are swell."

Hampton is happily married with two children, a boy and girl. His wife is the sister of Carl Cammack, former Spartan track captain, 'way back in 1935. Just another coincidence in the life of the Golden Bear whose lair is now in San Jose.

Here's The Deal

By BARNEY BARNETT

We were working our fingers to the keys on the typewriter the other afternoon when the mail arrived. Hidden among the press releases and movie contract offers was a small booklet entitled Trotting and Pacing guide.

BARNETT LOAFES

Although very busy we decided to take a few precious minutes away from the Daily and thumb through the fascinating little volume.

Upon closer examination it proved to be the "Hand-Book of Harness Racing" and not something in the realm of our Track and Field Editor Uncle Carl Underwood.

$50,000 STAKES

According to the hand book, harness racing is not the small time sport it appears to be. There are several big races every year and stakes up to $50,000 are not uncommon.

It is revealed also that the pacers and trotters could give Gene Haynes a run for his money in the mile. The record for the equine cinder stars is held by a horse appropriately enough, Greyhound. Greyhound trotted the distance in 1:55 1/4 back in 1938. He broke the 1:56 3/4 record set by Peter Manning (that's the horse's name) in 1922.

The pacers, it seems are even swifter. Billy Direct holds the mile record with a mark of 1:55 set in 1938. The former record of 1:55 1/4 was made by the famous Dan Patch and stood for 33 years.

NAGS WORTH DOUGH

The harness broomtails are not sold for the price their weight in glue will bring, the little book points out. The record sale is that of a horse named Arion who brought $125,000 away back in 1891.

CHARLIE TOWNSEND RETURNS TO RING

By BARNEY BARNETT

Spartan Charlie Townsend, one of San Jose State's cleverest boxers, will be featured in a semi-windup bout on an amateur boxing program to be presented at the Civic auditorium, May 20, it was announced today. Townsend will square off against Tony Flores, a promising Stockton amateur boxer. Flores is a brother of Jesse Flores, one of the more outstanding contenders for Ike Williams' crown.

Spartan Charlie, after four years of leather pushing for Coach Dee Portal, heard the final bell of his collegiate boxing career at Madison, Wisconsin, this spring when he boxed in the National tournament.

WON PCI TITLE

While a sophomore at San Jose State, Spartan Charlie battled his way to the Pacific Coast Inter-collegiate lightweight championship. Following this Townsend did his fighting for Uncle Sam and returned to school in 1946. His clever boxing style made him a favorite with San Jose fans.

Another former San Jose State student, Bill Semas, scrappy 120 pounder, will also see action on the card.

Eddie Chavez, San Jose lightweight, will meet Jimmy Lucero of San Francisco in the headline bout.

ACTION IN TODAY'S SOFTBALL GAMES

Spartan Daily softball league teams playing today are Buster Browns vs. The Cakers and Ridge-runners vs. ROTC on diamonds 1 and 2 at 3:45 p.m. At 5 p.m. the Gay Ninety meets the Music department on diamond 1 while the Spartan Daily Reds are playing the Student Y nine.
