there will not be another war." Marshall also came out in favor of drafting 18-year-olds for military service immediately after they are graduated from high school. Bradley Warns Americans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 26-Gen. Omar N. Bradley said today that the emergency now is just as great as it was six months ago despite "so-called peace talks." He warned Americans to watch out against "hoodwinked" in international talks looking to peaceful being settlements.

Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, told the House Armed Services committee that he sees nothing to support hopes we might be able to lower our military goals "in the near future.

Reluctantly, Bradley said he would accept the committee's pro-posal to reduce the draft age from 19 to 18 and one-half, but he objected to provisions cutting the length of service from 27 to 26 months and reducing physical and mental standards for induction.

The chairman of the joint chiefs of staff said that he thinks the Defense department is the best judge of the physical and mental standards to be used as induction tests.

Atlantic Command is Split

LONDON Prime Minister Clement Attlee said today the Atlantic Pact naval command would be split into eastern and western areas. A British admiral will command the approaches to Europe.

He made the announcement after conservative leader Winston Churchill had delivered a bitter speech in the House of Commons last week about reports that an American admiral would be in command.

Meanwhile informed sources said today that Britain almost cer-tainly will refuse to enter into separate "peace talks" with Russia at this time. They saw the latest Soviet note to Britain hinting at the desirability of Anglo-Soviet negotiations as another Russian attempt to drive a wedge between the Western powers.

A Moscow dispatch said it was believed that Prime Minister Attlee would welcome such talks. The note also stated that Russia's armed forces have been reduced to pre-war size and total less than half the 5,000,000 men allegedly under arms in the United States, Britain and France.

The British Foreign office said that the latest Soviet note on Anglo-Saxon relations was just another "propaganda outburst.

Menendez Aids Bronc Boxing

While the San Jose State col-1 lege boxing team is in vigorous preparation for Saturday night's clash with Cal Poly, the Santa Clara Broncos will enter the local ring limelight tonight when they entertain California at the Civic auditorium.

Both having beat Stanford by identical 61/2-11/2 scores, the Bears and Broncs promise to battle it out to the final match before either of the two is declared the victor.

Although veritable newcomers in the field of collegiate boxing, the Brones are rising to West coast contention in the ring.

The chief factor behind the Broncs recent rise is Coach Julie Menendez. A former assistant to Dee Portal, SJS coach, Menendez has refereed all of the Spartans' home matches this season. Menendez is no fledgling in the
