Council Appoints Bryan New Journalism Department Spartan Daily Editor

The three-hour session was taken up mostly with the bud-get reconsideration and committee reports. The reconsideration issue was postponed until to-morrow afternoon at 3:30 p.m. in the Student Union.

A rooters train to the Oregon university football game was the main point of business brought up by Jerry Ball, chairman of the Rally committee. The suggestion by Ball was that the committee sell the train tickets, which are approximated at about $28 per person, round trip, for a penny profit. The matter was referred for study and comparison to other rooter train trips that had been planned in the past.

Ball was granted an appropria-tion of $25 for a speaker who will talk at Sparta Camp, at Asilomar, Oct. 9 and 10.

Bill Eckert, vice-president of the student body, reported on Preshmen Camp and also on the movie ticket rate matter. He stated that 3000 tickets, which are now on sale for 50 cents, must be sold before the end of the year before the theaters will consider continuing the rate decrease for students next quar-ter. At the present time, he said, only 2000 have been sold, leav-ing a total of 1000 yet to be purchased by students."

A request from Nelson Wadsworth, news editor of the Spartan Daily for permission to prepare a send-home issue to raise money for the "30" club was referred to the Social Activities board.

President Greets Journalists

Today the Spartan Dally joins thousands of newspapers throughout the nation in celebration of National Newspaper Week which extends through Oct. 8. Here are comments by President Dwight D. Eisenhower on the subject:

director of the play.

National Newspaper Week prompts us all to renew our awareness of the remarkable national service rendered daily by the newspapers of America.

Our free press does more than tell our people the history of our times. It explains that history, inteprets it, and, so doing, often actually helps to create that history.

A free press and a free society are essentially one. As the press can know freedom only in a democratic state, so democracy itself is fortified by a free press.

This strengthening of our society is, of course, the antithesis of the ignoble service performed by the press of totalitarian countries. The effectiveness of a free press is virtually to be measured by the integrity, candor and responsibility of its criticism.

On this occasion I am happy to send warm greetings to the reporters, editors and publishers of our Nation's newspapers. I know as they must themselves—that they are custodians of a majestic trust, a solemn responsibility: to help arm our people with the knowledge and understanding without which free choice, free government, free men could not be.

Her return to America in 1939 seemed a good excuse to travel around the world, and she came home via Europe, spending four months en route.

A teaching post with the Amer ican Reservation service in South Dakota was Miss Staple's next job. South Dakota was familiar territory to a woman who'd been born and brought up in the Black Hills

While working with reservation doctors, she became interested in nursing and decided to switch professions. She enrolled for training at Children's hospital in Denver, and received her degree from the University of Colorado.

She was director of nursing at San Francisco's Mt. Zion hospital when asked to head the college's ever-growing department of nursing education.

DELIGHTED WITH COLLEGE

"I'm delighted with the college, said Miss Staple, emphasizing the statement with her warm, ever-present smile. "I've never met a friendlier group."

When finished with school activities Miss Staple relaxes in her San Carlos home by working in her garden and playing recordings of symphonic and organ music,

At present she is studying and surveying trends in Nursing Edu-cation. This is so San Jose State college will not only keep abreast of what is done at other colleges but will lead in the field.

Miss Staple believes the department of nursing education has tremendous possibilities. "My job," she believes, "is to see they are fully developed."

"Where are today's dummies?" These are the words which start work on the make-up desk and preparation on the "Spartan Daily," which tomorrow morning ev-eryone will pick up and read. (We hope.)

The dummies are replica pages of the "Daily" on which only ad space has been marked in by the business manager. The "editorial hole" is still a hole.

Now starts the process by which these replies pages will assume the appearance or make-up that each paper will bear tomorrow. The person in charge for today is the day editor. To him falls the responsibility of filling the "editorial hole" with news matter in an interesting

From the "in" basket he selects stories which to him are newsworthy or important enough to ap-pear in print. Depending on the story's importance or the "play" he wishes to give it, the day editor selects the placement of the story. On this basis he assigns the story a headline, marks it on the copy, counts the lines for accurate measurement on the "dummy," marks the headline on the "dummy," places the page number on the copy and sends the story across to the copy desk for processing.

Starting on the back pages he repeats this process on each story until each page is completed. During this process it also becomes the day editor's responsibility to get a story into the paper which comes to him with the editor's or news editor's signature and a "must" written on it. These are the only two persons who can tell him what to put into the paper.

The choice of news selection is up to the day editor because every day more copy is written than can ever appear in print.

At the same time, the day editor must pay attention to making the appearance of the paper as interesting and pleasing as possible. He learns many devices to attain this goal. He breaks up grey spaces with boxed stories or boldface. For contrast he alternates Roman heads with italic heads, and uses double column lead paragraphs.

For emphasis he uses banner headlines or two or three col-umn heads. At all times he must see that his page is properly balanced, that there are comsating elements on each side of the page, top and bottom. He learns the various types of makeup, such as balanced, focus, and circus to name the major types. These he uses for front page variety.

And finally," when he has the paper completely made up, he he must go down to the print shop that night and read proof. He checks the galley sheets for mistakes in grammar, spelling, names, dates or facts, and when the printer has made up the pages, he checks the page proofs against the corrected galleys to make sure all the mistakes have been corrected

When all is done, about midnight, or later, he wanders off in the general direction of home and waits until the following week when it will be his turn again.

In the Spartan Daily office the teletype runs continuously from 4 a.m. to 3 p.m. Yard after yard of copy is received each day. A great deal more copy is received than the newspaper can use.

It's the job of the wire editor to scan the stories that come over the teletype and select the ones of most interest to the paper's readers, For the Spartan Daily, these stories are usually gathered under a single heading, United Press Round-up. Stories of particular interest to college students are given separate headlines and identified by the letters UP at the beginning of the lead paragraph.

As for the teletype machine, it's owned by the United Press news service, serviced by the telephone company, and rented by the Spartan Daily on a monthly basis.

"The course is one of two in the United States," Dr. Smith revealed. "The only other is taught at New York university." He indicated that others may be started following the SJS model, since he has received several inquiries rea garding the class.

In addition to providing classroom study of a variety of animals, the course includes three field trips. The first of the three is scheduled for Oct. 7, when the class will visit an aquarjum factory in Los Altos.

After inspecting the factory, the students will be permitted to buy materials and use factory facilities to construct an aquarium or other container of their own design, the professor explained.

Most of the students products will be used in nearby classroom he stated, "since approximately 90 percent of the class is made up of teachers in the San Jose area."

The Wednesday evening course, officially titled Science Education 116, originated last quarter for the benefit of classroom teachers who would profit from such a class but could only attend during an evening session. It is open to any interested student, however.

Another field trip during the quarter will be to San Francisco, While there, the group will tour the California Academy of Sciences and other sites in San Francisco Golden Gate Park and the Haight Aquarium, a large importa-house in the city. The third trip will probably be taken to Carmel valley. Dr. Smith indicated.

New Building Replacing Old At Oregon U.

The third oldest building on the University campus remains only in the memories of the chemistry journalism students who studied there during its 52 years of existence.

Ivy-covered McClure hall has been torn down to make room for the new journalism building which slated for completion wext fall. McClure, the first permanent building ever to be torn down on the campus, was razed during the summer, and workmen are now engaged in excavating for the basement of the new building.

In 1922 a new journalism building was constructed on the east end of McClure. Confusion reigned during the years when the journal-ism school set up a print shop in the basement of McClure, and the chemistry offices spread to the first floor of journalism.

The chemistry department deserted both buildings in 1952 to move into the new science building. Journalism took over, but Mc-Clure was doomed with the au-thorizations of funds for the construction of the new journalism

The building which will rise on the site of McClure is being constructed at a cost of apprixomately $559,000, in bold contrast to the $28,000 cost of the original build-

This is for freshmen, Freshmen, on the whole, are not very smart. They think that they know it all. They don't. Most of them think that university life is going to be nothing but one big round of various good times. The fact of the matter is that, if they play it right, that is all university life is This understandably leaves little time for study. Ergo (this is step one in moulding an SC student, training him in the proper use of Ergo. It confuses things so well, and it sounds so logical), ergo, the freshman must cultivate the ability to study intensively in the little time that he can afford

Of course, freshmen must realize that the college attitude towards home assignments and studies and things is different from the high school attitude. In the University, nobody really cares if you study or not. The profs don't care, your parents don't care, and you don't care. I centainly don't care. Conse

Let me give you a for mstance. The first day after my appointment I came to class all smiles, willing and ready to dig in on my job. Four long, hard hours later I left class, dirty, tired and completely confused.

The honeymoon was over and work had begun.

Specifically, I was told that ob consisted of taking care of all the dirty metal cuts that the Spartan Daily uses to reproduce pictures. I file and crossflie cards so that these same dirty metal cuts can be dug out and re-used at a moment's notice — any moment's notice.

On top of this, I order the cuts,

But I am trying.

Still no matter how I may joke about my work, I wouldn't trade it for anything — anything, except maybe another job.

Wipe That Smile!

University of Minnesota authorities have ordered no more humor printed in the Technology, a magazine published by that school's institute of technology. From now on only technical articles and serious fiction will be allowed.

The action stems from a controversy over "objectionable" okes which the administration required to be cut from last month's issue of the magazine. As he cut the off-color material from that issue, the editor promised to print no more.

But this month's edition was judged a violation of the promise. And no one seems to be able to find the objection.

MJC Boasts

By PAT WOODBRIDGE

MJCS has all kinds of noted personalities on campus this semester, including a cover girl. Latest cover discovery is Bernice Hampton, a sophomore student from Ceres.

Bernice is a Home Ec major and plans to continue her studies at San Jose State so she can be a Home Ec teacher in high school.

Last year Bernice was queen of the homecoming events at MJC, and in June was sponsored by the 20-30 club of Modesto as Miss Modesto, 1953.

As Miss Modesto, Bernice's

-28-34 measurements won her a trip to Santa Cruz in June to compete in the Miss California contest. 5'6", 127 pound figure didn't do so well in the contest. About her running for the title of Miss Modesto, Bernice said, "I was very surprised and honored when I was asked to run for Miss Modesto, by the 20-30 club, and was even more pleased when I was asked to pose for the cover of Rod and Custom magazine. I have enjoyed it very much and would never have believed that it could have happened to me.'

Her posing for the cover of the hot rod magazine came about after she had accepted an invitation to present the awards at the auto show the Century Toppers Auto Club was sponsoring.

The next day a photographer from the magazine asked Bernice if she would pose beside one of the cars for his magazine.

Bernice explains that the whole summer was full of wonderful experiences for her. From the time she went to Santa Cruz to compete for Miss California up 'til the time school

As a result of her efforts to cop the California title, Bernice was rewarded with a watch, clothing of all descriptions and tion. If you (freshman) are sitting in your room at your desk, and everything is quiet, it follows with necessity that you will begin to think of how neat it would be to be at that real, fine blonde's house, sipping absinthe, and listening to some dark-green dixle, done by Lutz Lunceford and his Dro-mendary Six. This thought will distract you, no matter how hard you try to defeat it. The only really efficient way to stop thinking about the blonde, etc., is to go over and visit (her name is Joan. but her phone number will cost

After this distraction is out of the way, perhaps you can study. Perhaps not, I doubt if you wanted to study, anyway.

The best time is between 2 p.m. and 2:20 p.m. If you (freshman) are ruthlessly efficient in your studies during this 20 minutes, you will get the illusion that you are prepared for class, and conscience will not bother you when you are out living-it-up that night.

Also, if you are particularly weak-minded (the percentage possibility for freshmen is 92.4 for it), your self satisfied belief that "really studied" might even foot the prof into thinking that you merely misunderstood the question, which is probably also true, for all the difference it

There are a number of other rules (23 other rules) for studying, but they are too practical, and actually lead to good study habits. Unless you want to remain at SC, do not take these other, rules seriously. They are the sort of things that any faculty member can tell you all about.

But, don't trust faculty mem-bers. They are usually fat, wear glasses, and I don't like them at all. They have the wrong idea about education.

Sigma Chi Songfest Gets Odd Reaction

The vocal efforts of the Sigma Chi's first song-fest of the year at Williamette university received questionable reception by the women of Lausanne hall, the Williamette Collegian reports.

The singing session was in full swing with the ladies watching and listening from porches on the second and third floor, when suddenly they began screaming and slapping the air. From the second floor veranda a hord of yellow-jackets had issued forth to reg-ister their complaint at being disturbed - not on the musicians, but on the audience.

About 40 of the women were stung by the yellow-jackets as the fraternity men just stood there wondering if the serenade could have prompted the reaction.

By RITA PATTERSON

The society section of the big-city newspaper is one of the most widely-read in the entire paper; on the local or small-fown weekly level, its importance increases; and to the college newspaper, whether daily or weekly, it is indispensabe.

A college is a curious mixture of the social and the serious; one could not survive without the other. The social life here at State is an integral part of every student's college experience. Learning on the scholastic level can never produce a well-rounded individual without learning on the

The society editor acts as the medium by which the student becomes informed of what events are available for his participation. She also reports what has happened on the social level — from the independent and Greek parties and functions to news of the campus wedding.

While simply stated, the above is not an easy task. The wellrounded social scene consists both of independent and fraternal activ-It is not easy to maintain impartiality as to space allotted the two categories, since Greeks support more strictly "social" events than do independents. It is the society editor's job, nevertheless, to maintain impartiality.

She does little actual "reporting" in the sense of chasing down the news. By necessity, she must depend on the publicity chairmen of various groups and the individuals on campus for her news. It is their duty to keep the news coming in con-tinually. If they don't, their organization is likely to lack the publicity it desires.

The job of society editor, then, is to act as a receiver of the social news and to put it together as impartially as possible. It is her duty to portray an accurate picture of the scene that is "socially Sparta."

Spartababes Get Ready For First Tilt

Frosh footballers are going through brisk practice sessions 30 (UP)-Hugh Sill, Bakersfield, this week is preparation for their first game of the season against East Contra Costa at Concord Saturday night.

The team will have had only eight days of practice before this first encounter, whereas their opponents already have three games under their belts.

From all indications, the team is loaded again. The Vikings have six returning lettermen, including two all-league selections, and a host of players who are service veterans and others who have been out of high school over a year.

The Vikings have rolled to three straight wins in their first games. Last week they smothered Vallejo JC, 30-7.

Backfield coach Bob Amaral said yesterday that the local squad has concentrated on defense this week, and scrimmaged every day.

First scrimmage was held last Saturday. The team has been giv-en all its play patterns, and the, coaches' job now is to mold it into Shasta a smooth unit in a very short time.

Squad Works At Track Daily

Spartan cross country team candidates have been working out daily on the college track, according to Coach Bud Winter.

Winter said that he has a "great bunch of boys" out for this year's squad and that they are full of enthusiasm for their sport. "In fact," he said, "I usually have to chase them off the track every night. They just love to run."

Only setback, to date, he continued, is that there are not enough men as yet to fill out a team. Seven men are needed for a cross country squad and we have only about five outstanding men thus far, he said.

These men are Allen Dunn, Warren Emm, Don Hubbard. William Stephens and Robert Trott.

Winters explained that there is a possibility that two men from the freshman squad, who are eligible for varsity cross country, may fill the present vacant spots. They are Jack Jones and Frank Wulftange.

A schedule is still in the process of being formulated, Winter pion, played very good golf and said. He expects that the slate for was approximately par for his this season will be ready for release within a few weeks.

"Fresno State is bigger, faster. nd there is more of them," according to Coach Bob Bronzan of the San Jose State Spartans. State's head menter seemed to feel that Cal Poly's 20-6 win over the Bulldogs last weekend was an upset and that the Spartans would not find the going so easy.

The Raiders tackle Fresno State Saturday night in the Raisin city. Bronzan stated that "the Bull-dogs consider this their 'big game' of the season and to beat State would make their season a suc-cess regardless of the outcome of the remaining games on their

The Spartans have played Fresno 21 times, winning 11 and tying three. San Jose rolled up its largagainst the Bulldogs in 1949. They won that one, 43-7.

Coach Bronzan pointed out that the big difference between the two teams last weekend was probably due to the absence of Full-Larry Willoughby in the Fresno lineup. Willoughby, a twoyear letterman, is returning for his final year with the Bulldogs. The chunky fullback set an alltime FSC ground gaining record last year of 1092 yards. He made honorable mention Little All-American and first team Little All-Coast last season to work on an unsuspecting Spartan squad if such be the case.

The Fresno flash, who incidently hits the books as hard as an opposing line, scored 11 touchdowns last year and averaged 7.74 yards per try. Willoughby was injured ast week but will be ready to go valley school.

The Raiders continued heavy workouts this week with accent on defensive patterns. Bronzan's revamped forward wall was still intact yesterday afternoon and the head coach gave no indication that he was about to make any changes. The backfield of Quarterback Larry Rice, Halfbacks Larry Matthews and Bill Walker, and Fullback Joe Ulm, remained the same

The Bulldogs have 20 returning lettermen on their squad from last year's team that won eight and lost two. Although F.resno lost 19 lettermen from last year's squad, they sport experienced men at every position except left

The Bulldogs suffered two setbacks last season. Their first defeat was at the hands of the Spartans, losing that one, 40-6. College of Pacific rolled over the Bulldogs at a later date, 50-0.

San Jose State leaves for Fresno by bus Saturday and will return by the same way after the game.

Five of San Jose State's first string players were sidelined with injuries yesterday as the Spartans went through drills for Fresno

Bronzan said he hoped Joe Ulm, nations leading ground gainer, Larry Matthews, Benny Pierce, Dale Summers and Tom Louderback would be back in action before Friday's contest with the

Sports Staff Covers Varied News Sources

By KEITH KALDENBACH Spartan Daily Sports Editor

As a part of the Spartan Daily's observance of newspaper week, we have been asked to explain the duties of a college newspaper sports editor and his staff. Purpose of this is to let the reader know what is involved in "put-ting out the news every day."

First, here is a basic outline of the duties expected of a sports editor.

The editor of the sports department, who is appointed to the position by the editor of the paper, is responsible for putting out the sports page, or pages, each day.

It is his responsibility to see that the reporters assigned to him cover their beats each day and that they are getting the most out of each news source.

At the present time, there are three men assigned to assist the sports editor as reporters. They are: Bart Williams, who covers all Varsity football games and reports the outlook of the team during the practice session, he a preview of each also writes week's game the day before the contest; Don Johnson, newly-assigned sports writer who covers the activities in the following sports - Intramural sports, fall baseball workouts, water cross-country and track, and fall basketball activities later in the season. Neal Frank is assigned to cover the activities of the freshman football squad.

The remainder of the sports, boxing, wrestling, tennis, judo and the rifle team are covered by the editor, whenever possible,

Each day, as the staff gets ready to meet their 3 p.m. dead-line, the reporters visit their various beats and gather the information necessary for their stories. Prime target for all is that of filling up the page with the most interesting and newsworthy events of the current

Decision for the content of the page is up to the editor. It is his responsibility to see that each event has been covered and properly reported. Then, when the reporters have written their stories for the day, he must copy read their work and correct any errors

After the editor has assembled the necessary copy to fill the page, he must then decide how the page going to look. He chooses the top story of the day and outlines the space it will occupy onto a dummy sheet, which is the exact size of the Spartan Daily.

As he dummles the page, the editor writes the headlines for each story and selects a size which will be suitable for the particular spot in which the story will be placed,

If the reporters have been on the "ball" and turned in sufficient copy to fill the page, the editor considers himself fortunate and his job is finished quickly. If they have not performed their duties as expected, he finds himself without sufficient material with which to fill the page, or pages, and then must sit down and write his own copy or get what he can from the wire service.

At the end of the day, he is feeling very good, if everything has gone smoothly, or very frust irritable and nervous, if things have not gone right.

Intramural Squad | WAA Awards Sign-up Continues Girl Athletes

Fraternity signups for the col-lege's intramural football schedule will begin at 3:30 p.m. today in the Student Union, Dave Pantoskey, AMS president, announced yesterday.

total of six independent squads signed up for the program early this week and many more are expected before the Oct. deadline arrives, Pantoskey said.

In an effort to interest more independent teams to take part the AMS has mimeographed letters to all eligible organizations informing them of the program.

All fraternity and independent representatives must attend a meeting to be held in the Student Union at 3:30 p.m. Tuesday, Pantoskey said. Purpose of the meeting will be to discuss qualifying and ground rules and draw up schedules for the teams.

Intramural play will get underway on Oct. 8 for both the leagues. A playoff game between champions of the independent and fraternity leagues will be held at the end of the season to decide the all-college champions.

The number of teams already signed and the number expected to sign before the deadline indicate that this quarter's intramural program has the makings of strong teams in both leagues, Pantoskey said.

On Point Basis

Girls interested in sports and college awards are welcomed to

Awards to the sports-minded college girls are given according to the point system, 600 points being the minimum required for a block letter award, according to Marilyn Jensen, WAA president.

If a girl earns 1000 points she is permitted to buy her own blazer and the athletic association presents her with an emblem to attach thereon

An engraved trophy is the reward to girls accumulating 1500 points.

The activities in which girls can participate to earn these points are badminton, basketball, hockey, orchesis, riding, riflery, softball, swimming, tennis and volleyball, announced Miss Jensen. One hundred points may be obtained for each activity entered provided the participant attends half or more of the scheduled practices. However, a girl may enter no more than three activities per quarter.
