Melody Hall Wins AWS Door Decoration Trophy

Competing against more than 30 entries, Melody Hall was awarded first place last night by judges of the annual AWS Door Decoration contest and will be awarded the perpetual trophy for the ensuing year as well as the winners cup, according to Miki Murphy, contest chairman.

Winners of second and third place cups were Gamma Phi Beta and Merton Manor, respectively.

"The Night Before Christmas" was the theme of Melody Hall's decorations which depicted a living room scene consisting of a fireplace, gifts and a decorated tree.

The Gamma Phi Betas decorated their door as a package with magnolia leaves painted gold. "Frosty, the Snowman," was the theme of Merton Manor's scene which included a recording of "Frosty, the Snowman."

Honorable mentions were won by Alpha Phi, House of Earl and Di Bari House.

Judges for the annual contest were Mrs. Izetta Pritchard, housing supervisor; Miki Murphy, AWS; and Dick Jones, Spartan Daily co-editor.

SJS Honors 5 Fall Grads At Senior Fete

Five December graduates were awarded membership in the campus chapter of Phi Kappa Phi, national honor society, at last night's Senior Banquet, according to Dr. Lawrence H. Mouat, chapter president.

They are Barbara Summers, education major; James Chapman, aero operations major; Gretel Andberg, German major; Harold Grouch, English major; and John Neeley, psychology major.

The five are representative of the top 5 per cent of graduates from each division of the college. Dr. Mouat said. In addition to scholarship, prospective members are judged on the basis of character.

The SJS chapter of Phi Kappa Phi was installed last spring. In addition to the 10 charter members from the faculty, 40 June graduates were taken into the organization, Dr. Mouat said.

William J. Krueger, a spring pledge to the group, who missed initiation, was awarded membership during the banquet.

Other men trying out for the positions were Jim Wellington, Bill Friselle, Herb Hybert, Ben Reichmuth, Bob Whitehead, Tom Bonetti, Melvin Laub, Chuck Bollen, Ray Bitterman and Len Schannell.

Driver Education is the topic slated for discussion today in the third and last Public Safety lecture of the quarter at 3:30 p. m. in Morris Dailey auditorium. Addressing the class will be Robert Johnson of the Industrial Arts department.

Students Define Cheating in Poll

The Spartan Daily was in error in stating in yesterday's issue that the Fairness Committee report revealed that various kinds of cheating are being practiced by students at SJS.

Data released Wednesday by the Fairness committee disclosed only what SJS students consider to be cheating and not whether any of the practices mentioned are being committed by them.

The Fairness committee report was merely an effort to construct a definition of what cheating is.

Information included in only the first four pages of the poll results was released by the committee through Lowell C. Pratt, public relations director.

The report indicated that "direct copying during test" was mentioned most often by SJS students when asked what they considered cheating.

Other practices considered cheating, according to the report, include opening books during tests, tapping or other signals during tests, using "ponies," copying term papers, letting friends copy from you.

Obtaining tests through readers and secretaries, talking about questions during tests, having tests written before the test starts, copying other's homework and copying published material without citing author.

SAC Will Delay Group Selection

The selection of a group to play for intermission for Wintermist, Feb. 25, will not be made until January, according to Jim Cottrell, Social Affairs committee chairman.

Cottrell said yesterday that the SAC would audition a musical group from Santa Clara which plays Latin American music in January.

Odegard Talks At Graduation Rites Monday

Dr. Peter H. Odegard, professor of political science at the University of California, will speak on the responsibility of citizens at December graduation ceremonies Monday at 3 p. m. in the Morris Dailey. His speech will emphasize the rational approach to politics rather than just name-calling.

Receiving his A. B. and M. A. degrees at the University of Washington, Dr. Odegard was a lecturer in government at Columbia University while getting his Ph.D. degree. Starting his teaching career in 1928, he has been a member of the faculties of Williams College; Ohio State University; Amherst College; Stanford University; Reed College, where he served as president from 1945 to 1948; and the University of California. During the war, he was associated with the Treasury Department.

Included in Monday's program will be a report from Dr. John T. Wahlquist, three selections by the a cappella choir, invocation and benediction by the Rev. John S. Duryea, organ procession and recessional by Richard R. Jesson and the conferring of degrees by Dr. Wahlquist.

Thrust and Parry

Tragic Deficiency

Dear Thrust and Parry, . . . With all the lengthy discussion of money needed for new building, etc., we wish to bring out an alarming discovery—there is a drastic shortage of pencil sharpeners on this campus.

We think that the state should be informed of this glaring oversight and an emergency appropriation be made to correct this tragic deficiency.

If it is impossible to receive aid at this present time, could a small amount of money be set aside to print maps directing students to the dilapidated, inaccessible models now installed?

Consideration to this matter would be greatly appreciated.

CLOTHES MAKE THE BMOG

A few weeks ago I discussed fashions for coeds. I pointed out then that any girl who really wanted to go places on campus had to be bold and ingenious when it came to clothes. This is no less true for the male student.

Believe me, men, you'll never get anywhere if you keep skulking around in those old plus-fours. What you need is some dash, some verve, some inventiveness in your apparel. Don't be imprisoned by the traditional conservatism of men's clothing. Brighten up your appearance with a single earring, or a cavalry sabre, or a gold derby.

However, guard against gaudiness. If, for instance, you are wearing a gold derby, do not also wear a cavalry sabre. This is too much. Wear a dagger instead, or, for informal occasions, a Bowie knife.

(Speaking of Bowie knives, I wonder how many of you know what a great debt this country—indeed, the whole world—owes to the West Point class of 1836? You all know, of course, that Colonel James Bowie of the Class of 1836 invented the Bowie knife, but do you know of the many other important contributions to cutlery that were made by classmates of Colonel Bowie's? Are you aware, for example, that Colonel Harry Clasp invented the Clasp knife? Or that Colonel Harry Jack invented the Jack knife? Or that Colonel Harry Putty invented the Putty knife? Or that Colonel Harry Cannon invented the towel?

By a curious coincidence, every member of the graduating class at the U. S. Military Academy in 1836 was named Harry, save for Colonel James Bowie. This coincidence is believed unique in the history of American education, though, of course, quite common in Europe.)

But I digress. We were talking about men's campus fashions. Let us turn now to a persistent rumor that a garment called the "suit" is on the verge of making a comeback. Some of you—older students may remember the "suit." It was an ensemble consisting of a jacket and trousers, both of which—this'll kill you—both of which were made out of the same material!

The last "suit" ever seen on an American campus was in 1941—and I ought to know, because I was wearing it. Ah, 1941! Well do I remember that melancholy year. I was an undergraduate then and in love—hopelessly in love, caught in the riptide of a reckless romance with a beauteous statistics major named Harry Sigafos. (She is one of the two girls I have ever known named Harry. The other one is her sister.)

I loved Harry though she was far too expensive a girl for me. She liked to eat at fancy restaurants and dance at costly ballrooms and ride in high priced cars. But worst of all, she was mad for wishing wells. It was not unusual for her to drop coins into a wishing well for two or three hours on end. My coins.

Bit by bit I sold off my belongings to pursue this insane courtship—first my books, then my clothes, until finally I was left with nothing to wear but a "suit." One night I came calling for her in this garment.

"What is that?" she gasped, her lip curling in horror.
"That is a 'suit.'" I mumbled, averting my eyes.
"Well, I can't be seen around campus with you in that," said she.
"Please, Harry," I begged. "It's all I've got."
"I'm sorry," she said firmly and slammed the door.

I slunk home and lit a Philip Morris and sat down to think. I always light a Philip Morris when I sit down to think, for their mild vintage tobacco is a great aid to cerebration. I always light Philip Morris when I don't sit down to think too, because Philip Morris is my favorite cigarette, and I know it will be yours too once you try that crazy vintage tobacco.

Well sir, smoking and thinking thus, my eye happened to fall on an ad in the campus newspaper. "WIN A COMPLETE WARDROBE" said the ad. "Touhy's Toggery, the campus's leading men's store, announces a contest to pick the best dressed man on campus. The winner of the contest will receive, absolutely free, a blue hound's tooth jacket, a yellow button-down shirt, a black knit tie, a tattersall vest, gray flannel trousers, argyle socks, and white buck shoes with two inch crepe soles."

My mouth watered at the thought of such a splendid wardrobe, but how could anybody possibly pick me as the best dressed man on campus—me in my "suit"? Suddenly an inspiration struck me. I seized pen in hand and wrote a letter to the editor of the campus newspaper:

"Dear Sir, I see by the paper that Touhy's Toggery is going to give a complete wardrobe to the student picked as the best dressed man on campus. What a ridiculous idea!

"Obviously, to be the best dressed man on campus, you must first have a lot of clothes. And if you have a lot of clothes, what do you need with another wardrobe?"

"Touhy's Toggery should give a new wardrobe to the worst dressed man on campus. Me, for instance. I am an eyesore. There isn't a crow in town that will come near me. Three times this month the Salvation Army salvage truck has picked me up. Esquire has cancelled my subscription.

"I submit that a vote for me is a vote for reason, a vote for equity, in short, a vote for the American way."

With a flourish, I signed the letter and sent it off, somehow feeling certain that very soon I would be wearing a complete new wardrobe. And I was right—because two weeks later I was drafted.

Engineering students of Norman Gunderson's Construction Estimate and Cost class gave a luncheon yesterday for City Engineer Harold Flannery and several local contractors at the Hawaiian Gardens. Dean of Instruction Fred F. Harclerod thanked contractors on behalf of SJS.

"College Jazz Goes to Carnegie Hall" was the bill of the first collegiate jazz concert ever staged in the New York concert hall. Last Saturday's program starred Princeton's Stan Rubin and Williams' Spring Street Stompers. Both groups are favorites in the Ivy League and eastern colleges.

The Washington U. Lost and Found Department recently became the perplexed possessors of a partial set of false upper dentures!

Hear this, SJS skiers and would-be skiers! At Chico State a course entitled "Recreation 50" is offered. The half-unit class consists of instruction in skiing!!

Even the faculty at Arizona State believes in party-time. More than 120 faculty members attended this year's annual game dinner. The meat course of the dinner came from two bucks the president of the college and his wife shot this deer season.

During the USC-UCLA Big Game week, a USC botany prof passed out "Beat the Bruins" sackers to her students while they were taking an exam.

Reported missing by the Harvard University Band is one Zildjian, Turkish, 12-inch, left-handed cymbal. The student conductor said that no questions would be asked of the person who returned the instrument, and he could, if he wished, play the cymbal for one of the numbers in a coming concert.

For students with that fagged-out, mid-day lag, The Aztec of San Diego State announced that the Health Service Center is providing "napping" cots.

The Supreme Court ruled that the New York State University could ban national fraternities and sororities from the campuses of 22 of its units. Trustees of the university approved a resolution, in October of 1953, that required student social organizations to sever their connections with national groups and to eliminate "artificial criteria" in the selection of members.

Panhellenic Council at North Dakota University is sponsoring swimming sessions for polio-afflicted children. Approximately 15 children and their parents attended the first session, the youngsters spending an hour having fun in the water while their parents were instructed in the fundamentals of swimming.

A filler in the Williams paper: "Time was called by mutual agreement in a football game between Trinity College and Williams College in 1884 while both teams searched for a gold tooth belonging to a Williams player who could not afford to lose it."

The students of USC really want their "Walls of Troy." Their student senate contributed money from their own pockets toward the fence fund, and the girls of ADPi scheduled an afternoon of car-washing, with proceeds going to the fund.

The men at Taylor Hall, Arizona State, say that the public can have "Dennis, The Menace" of comic strip fame. They have their own live one; he's the four year-old son of the house residents. He's only three feet tall, but listen to his routine: He awakened one student at 5:30 a. m.—by poking him in the ribs with a yard stick; he periodically repairs (?) furniture with his toy tool kit; and his favorite sport is riding down the boarding house halls full speed ahead on his tricycle.

At USC again . . . Two sorority girls had home-coming parade watchers wondering when they'd kill themselves on their tandem bicycle, and candy kisses weren't all they had in their satchels, as was revealed after their biggest accident. One of the coeds almost collapsed when a flask dropped out of her bag before the eyes of a couple of thousand on-lookers—not knowing it was there. Daily Trojan columnist, Mark Thoreson, said, "Never to be caught with her flask down, the famous member of sorority society picked it up and went right on in the best traditions of show business."

APhiO Operates Holiday Car Pool

A car pool for students returning home for the holiday vacation is now in operation in front of Morris Dailey auditorium, according to Lazaro Garza, car pool chairman.

The pool is being operated by Alpha Phi Omega, national service fraternity, as a service project to aid students desiring transportation or those having transportation, a means of getting together to share expenses. Garza emphasized that the service is open to all students and not limited to any group. The areas being covered by the pool are Northern and Southern California, Arizona, Oregon, Washington, Nevada, Utah and points farther East.

The fraternity has a board set up in front of Morris Dailey. The board has a large map in the center showing points covered by the pool. Those desiring the help of the pool are asked to come to the auditorium and fill out a card stating whether they need riders or transportation.

The car pool will be in operation until the end of the quarter. Garza states however, "Persons wishing to use this service offered by Alpha Phi Omega should come as early as possible, to make certain that aid will be given."

Class To Hear Penney's Man

Gordon Paulson, assistant manager of the J. C. Penney Company, will be the last of six speakers to address the Buying For Retail Stores class Monday.

Paulson will discuss the buying problems and their effect on a local chain retail department store. The talk will be presented in Room 139 at 11:30 a. m. Interested students and faculty are invited to attend, according to Dr. Milburn Wright, class instructor.

A series of downtown merchants have appeared before the class during the past month to discuss the problems and operations of the various types of retail businesses.

SJS Student Transforms 'Junk' Into Organ

By BOB JOHNSON

Building a musical organ out of old pinball machine parts and other "junk" is the lifetime hobby selected by an SJS student whose experience with music is only scientific.

This hobby includes teaching himself to play the organ without instruction.

It all began for Preston Boomer, a Spanish major with a physics minor, when he saw the console and some pipes of an organ lying in the yard of San Jose's Trinity Episcopal Church and was sorry to see them go to waste.

The only impulse provoking him to take the remains in the church yard was the thought that he might be able to fix them so they would play again.

This was August of 1953; now Boomer, affectionately called "The Boom" by his friends, has completely re-wired the console, built an air pressure reservoir and put into operation two sets of pipes, the trombones and the viola da gamba ranks.

Boomer taught himself to play the organ by finding middle "C" on the keyboard and on the music sheet. Then he counted how far the note he wanted was above middle "C" and painstakingly found it on the keyboard.

The organ is located in the backyard of Boomer's home, 1671 The Alameda. The only time his neighbors have complained about the noise was when he first played it. That time he had the organ turned on full blast for 30 minutes.

"My neighbors gave up after that," he says. "When they call to complain now, the police can't hear them above the organ's noise."

In addition to making the air reservoir and re-winding 91 pinball machine electromagnets to operate an electrically controlled set of pipes, Boomer also completely re-wired the console with a new switch system. Forty-eight switches with 61 electrical contacts apiece went into the console. He estimates that in the console alone there are 2928 soldered connections. He has spent only $200 on the organ by using salvaged materials.

To complete the organ will take a lifetime for him, he said. "There are 40 sets of pipes in the organ at Trinity Episcopal Church and I have but two so far."

PRESTON BOOMER, SJS student, adjusts a reed on a trombone pipe of the organ he built from old pinball machine parts and other "junk." His only music experience is from theory in physics classes. —photo by Stan Gorke

Here Comes Santa Claus . . .

Saint Nick Again Brings Season of Joy, Gladness

By CLAYTON PETERSON

This month, as the rafters begin to ring to the music of the carols and as eager eyes in little faces stare at toy trains careening around bends and chugging up grades, we enter another season filled with gladness and good will.

Probably the most amusing story this time of year is the yarn about one S. Claus.

This old fellow, who was brought to this country by early Dutch settlers, survives Saint Nicholas, favorite saint of Holland. The white-bearded saint, originally a bishop of Asia Minor, was paraded by the Dutch through the streets of New Amsterdam on his white horse. Going from door to door, the saint would leave gifts for the good, and switches for the bad.

In the Middle Ages, the Romans introduced another December custom, the Christmas tree. It is believed popularly that Martin Luther set up the first Christmas tree in the 16th Century. But, according to history, the Romans were there first.

Dutch and Germans share the credit for creating the habit of hanging stockings on Christmas Eve. However, the actual origin of this custom is not known. One interesting legend is that Saint Nicholas once dropped some gold coins down a chimney and they were caught by a stocking hung to dry.

Mistletoe is traced back to ancient Gaul and Britain. This plant was venerated by the pre-Christian religious society of Druids, who gathered the plant to celebrate winter solstice. It was considered an emblem of peace and good fortune and whenever enemies met beneath it, they embraced.

Most recent addition to Christmas is the brightly painted Christmas card. These greetings first were printed commercially in London in 1846.

The drama of the crib, or the Nativity, was popularized by Saint Francis, although it was presented in churches as early as the Eighth century. Living in Grecco, Italy, the saint placed a life-sized image of Christ in a manger in the mountain cave where he lived above the town.

Christmas soon will be here; then it will be gone for another year. Santas no longer will flash through chilly skies, needles of evergreens will turn hard and brown and fall from the branches, gifts will grow worn, stockings will be rolled and stuffed with white moth balls, mistletoe will be thrown away, cards will be boxed and stuffed in corners, and the drama of the crib will fade from the mind. But St. Nick's spirit somehow weathers it all and arrives again next year with all his customary cheer.

Storm Didn't Halt Tau Delt's

Tau Delta Phi members braved strong winds and rain Friday when they hoisted their traditional Christmas tree into place on the Tower, according to Alan Hugo, member of the society's Christmas tree committee.

The tree was hoisted up to the balcony near the top of the tower by rope, since the 18 foot tree was too large to be carried up from inside.

"It took a half hour to haul the tree up because of its weight," Hugo said. "By the time the tree was in place, society members were thoroughly waterlogged."

Then it was decorated with colored lights and a star. The tree will stay up during the remainder of the quarter, Hugo said, but whether or not it will be left up during the vacation has not been decided yet.

"Each year the tree gets larger and larger," Hugo commented, "and this year it is as large as it can get." A larger tree will not fit between the balcony and the roof, he explained.

The honorary scholastic society has been putting up a Christmas tree for at least 30 years, according to Bill Burke, magistrate. Like all traditions, it has been going on as long as anyone can determine.

SJS Floating In 'Sea of Silt'

"Floating on a raft of piles in a sea of silt," is the precarious situation of SJS's 101.54 acres of college buildings, Dr. Norman Dolloff, assistant professor of geology, stated recently.

It seems that the land under them that college buildings is just one jelly-like mass of coarse watery mud known as silt. In order to support any buildings on this swamp land, a great many piles, spaced according to building weight, are necessary for support, Dr. Dolloff explained.

The college land includes 44.23 acres extending from Fourth to Ninth between San Carlos and San Fernando Sts., the Spartan Stadium, athletic field and Spartan City.

SJ Co-ops Incorporate Policy Of Living on Community Level

Campus living on a community level is the policy of SJS's two cooperative living groups, Campbell Manor and Mary George co-ops.

Each co-op runs as a self-governing, self-supporting organization of girls agreeing to live and work together, and surprisingly enough, liking it!

A self-governing group, the 22 girls in each house settle disputes and questions through reference to their constitution and at general house meetings held Tuesday evenings.

All cooking and household tasks are done by the residents. Living costs, shared equally, cover food, rent, and utilities. Mrs. Izetta Pritchard, housing director, supervises the accounts, in addition to being faculty adviser.

Cooperatives came to SJS in the fall of 1936 under the direction of the college YWCA and a group of faculty members, with the formation of Mary George and Grace Hall living groups. In 1946, Varsity House, a third cooperative, was set up but was abandoned in 1948. At present, the co-ops are an incorporated group, and no longer under the "Y".

The Little Boy

A heavy fog covered the campus. Carols filtered through from a nearby church as Angelica, the clock on city hall, struck eight.

In the dim glare of a solitary streetlight, the fog grasped trees and shrubs. Only a small boy was visible.

He stood, not much taller than the lamp's base, and viewed the college buildings. The yellowed glow of lights pointed to where the few instructors were finishing their last hour's work. It was Christmas Eve.

In one office a professor flipped a slide-rule off-handedly as he checked a math problem. Holding the rule arm's distance, as if his glasses were ill-ground for his work, he jotted a few figures on his scratch pad and slumped back in his chair.

He took off his glasses and rubbed the place on his nose where they had rested. Straightening up, he was starting to grade another paper as the door opened.

It was only the little boy.

"Yes," said the Professor of Mathematics in a still-surprised tone of voice. . . . "Yes, what is it?"

"IethereaSandyClaus?" It came in one breath.

The boy's cheeks were red from the cold outside. His maroon scarf, neatly tucked into his knee-length brown coat, made them seem even redder. He was wearing a plaid cap with a white lamb's-wool band on the rim.

"Is there a Sandy Claus?" He thought the man hadn't understood.

Santa Claus? Santa Claus indeed.

The professor reached for the rule as the boy moved closer, leaving damp shoe-marks.

"Santa Claus? Well, let's see."

"For instance Santa, as I recall, travels by sleigh."

The professor moved his feet from under the desk and crossed his legs.

"Now, sonny, it is highly probable that, considering the area of the runners applied to the obstructing surface, or plane, upon which it travels, that the friction created by the movement of such a primitive device would make it almost impossible for it to move efficiently."

He turned toward his desk.

"For instance, the formula . . . look here, boy . . ."

The lad stepped closer to see the mystic marks the wise professor was putting on a scratch pad.

"So, you see son, Santa's sleigh just couldn't be pulled on the ground without snow. And we haven't any snow."

Self-satisfied, the Professor of Mathematics looked at the boy, whose mittened hands were clinched at his sides.

"But Santa flies," the boy said, and left.

The hall was dark. Steam hissing through the radiators sounded like slithering serpents as the boy hurried to the next lighted office.

He stood before the door, and, as if he had knocked, it opened. The Professor of Psychology was about to switch off the light and leave.

"Won't you come in," the man said, after a moment's hesitation.

The boy followed him into the office. Putting his leather brief-case on the floor, the professor moved to his swivel chair.

"ISTHEREASANDYCLAUS?" the boy blurted.

Caught off guard by the question, the professor leaned back.

"How's that?" he said, looking at the mittens and matching maroon scarf.

"Is there a Sandy Claus?" the boy repeated his question, distinctly.

"My boy," the wise man said, "Santa Claus was created by man to satisfy an inner hunger. He, Santa Claus, that is—gives the individual a feeling that there is something good in the world, and thereby satisfies a definite need within millions of people, especially the younger folk. No, he isn't actually a person. He's only a figment of imagination. . . ."

Lips pressed together and brows furrowed, the boy's eyes questioned him.

"That is to say, he's make believe—sort of 'let's pretend'."

"But I saw him," the boy said quietly, turned, and was gone.

The boy moved toward the lighted door at the very end of the long hall, glanced at the strange words on the door and knocked three times with mitten-covered knuckles.

After a few moments he turned the knob and looked in.

A round shouldered man with greying hair leaned over a small booklet.

The Professor of History looked up.

"Is there a Sandy Claus?" The boy spoke clearly and quietly.

Reflecting for a moment, the man turned and looked at the boy.

"History definitely shows that there was a Santa Claus. Only that wasn't exactly his name—and he died a long, long time ago."

The professor fidgeted as the boy turned and walked out and closed the door. In a moment the instructor opened the door and watched as the little figure moved toward the exit.

The fog still hung on the trees and shrubs as the boy walked slowly toward the streetlamp.

The boy didn't count the bongs as the clock struck the quarter hour.

"Merry Christmas, sonny." It was a tall man, who appeared suddenly from the mist. Startled, the boy was silent for a moment, until he managed. . .

"Merry Christmas, Mr. . . . and—and a very Happy New Year," the boy shouted at the retreating gentleman.

By the light of the solitary streetlamp, the white lamb's wool on the boy's cap appeared luminous—almost like a halo. A melody from a group of carolers broke through the fog. . . . "Praise God to the Highest. . . ."

The solitary lamp continued to cast off its light. The fog remained motionless.

The little boy was gone.

Louderback Wins Top Honors at Grid Banquet

Hiram, Hardy, Arends Cop Coveted SJS Team Awards

Guard Tom Louderback captured a lion's share of the awards at the annual football banquet last night at the Hotel Sainte Claire.

Louderback, who begins training with the West Shrine team Dec. 19 at Stanford, was voted the most valuable lineman and the player contributing most to the team by his Spartan gridmates. He also received the first annual Mr. Pass Protector Trophy.

Voted the most valuable back-field man was Halfback Roy Hiram while Charles Hardy won the most inspirational player honor and Eric Bob Arends the most improved player distinction.

Hardy also received the trophy for Mr. Downfield Blocker and Quarterback Tony Teresa was awarded the Gene Goldberg Interception trophy.

SJS Uses Unique New Point Style

San Jose State utilizes a unique rating system in boxing that Coach Julie Menendez believes will eliminate mismatches and thereby improve the sport.

The idea was devised by the late Dee Portal, former Spartan boxing coach, and rates the boxer on a 1-100 point basis.

The first tally is subjective judgement, and could conceivably be inaccurate. However, after a few bouts, the boxer would arrive at his true score.

A working example of the system is Dick Bender, PCI 155 champ and NCAA runnerup, who is ranked an 88 boxer. Would Bender have defeated Wisconsin's Bob Meath, who decisioned him in the finals, he would have theoretically rose to 90, Meath's rating while Meath would drop to 89.

The key to the system is boxers are matched within a range of 15 points above or below their respective scores. The 30 point spread allows enough leeway to account for a good or bad night and tends to eliminate one-sided mismatches.

The rating should become as much a part of the boxer as his name, according to Portal's idea.

Coach Menendez endorses this system and claims that if other colleges would do this matches would be even.

"Forfeits should be made when a college has no boxer within its opponent's class," Coach Menendez declared. He continued, "Then the college could substitute a lesser-experienced boxer in his place for an even match. That way the stronger school would not be penalized and the boxer mismatched."

The system will aid Coach Menendez in matchmaking for the All College Tournament, Jan. 15 in Spartan Gym. With his boxers ranked according to points he practically will be assured of no mismatches.

The exciting new idea behind the motoramic Chevrolet

The Bel Air 4-Door Sedan—one of 14 new Fisher Body beauties in three new series

Maybe once in a car-buying lifetime, you come across something that breaks all the old patterns and establishes new ones. This is that kind of car. This is the true story of how Chevrolet and General Motors shaped a new idea in steel.

Like most good ideas, this one is pretty simple. Chevrolet and General Motors set out to build the first low-priced car that would:

- bring you the very freshest and finest styling to be had.
- bring you the most advanced engine design and engineering features;
- bring you the kind of performance and the kind of ride that have never been available before in a low-priced car.
- bring you the highest quality of manufacture and materials.

All this in Chevrolet's price field? That did take some doing! And isn't it logical that only Chevrolet and General Motors have the people, skills, resources and facilities, to carry out this exciting new idea? Here is how this new Chevrolet changes all your ideas about cars!

to its wide-eyed Sweep-Sight windshield : : a new outlook for motoring. And that outlook doesn't change when you slip inside : : exciting fabrics and trim are harmonized with the whole car.

A Sensational Ride!

You live the new idea instantly : : you glide : : actually glide because spherical joints "roll with the punch" of the road in Chevrolet's new Glide-Ride front suspension. And outrigger rear springs mean new balance in turns : : turns made so effortlessly by new ball-race steering.

And when you stop suddenly, new Anti-Dive braking control checks that nosing down in front : : you get "heads up" stopping. Tubeless tires mean much greater protection against blowouts. And with new high-level ventilation there's fresher air.

Power Beyond Compare!

You also feel the new idea quickly : : quick power like a panther's paw with the new "Turbo-Fire V8" (162 h.p.) and two new "Blue-Flame" 6's. And sparking this performance is a 12-volt electrical system giving you better ignition, faster starting, greater electrical reserve for any of the power assists you might desire. You have a transmission choice of economical Overdrive and improved, automatic Powerglide (optional at extra cost) or standard shift.

Even Air Conditioning!

And if you desire the convenience of power assists (optional at extra cost) : : you'll find new power-steering and improved power brakes on all models. Power-controlled windows and powershift seat are available on the Bel Air and "Two-Ten" models, while air conditioning may be added on V8 models.

Won't You Try It?

Here, we can only tell you how successfully the Motoramic Chevrolet expresses the new idea behind it. But the car itself can quickly show you! Come in for a demonstration drive, won't you, first chance you get.

Cagers Seek Third Victory of Season Over Southlanders

San Jose State encounters a youthful Cal Poly of San Dimas quintet tonight at 8 p. m. in Spartan Gym in a non-conference fray.

Making their last appearance before discarding the hardwood for homework and finals week, the Golden Raiders pit their 2-1 record against Cal Poly's 5-4 slate, compiled against Southern California clubs.

The Cal Poly hoopsters, composed of sophomores and freshmen, have defeated Sequoia, Biola, and Cal Baptists while losing to Los Angeles State, Long Beach State, Pasadena Nazarene and Cal Teachers.

The Cal Poly five is paced by Center Al Boyd, 6 ft. 5 in. while other starters are Ernie Gee, 6 ft. 1 in. and Ken Kelley, 6 ft. 2 in., at guards and Fred Miller, 6 ft. and Tom Peltzer, 6 ft. 2 in. at the forward posts. All are sophomore letter winners.

Although Spartan Coach Walt McPherson plans to go with his regular starting lineup, he indicated yesterday that he will try several of his reserves.

Guard Carroll Williams, who has averaged 19.3 points per contest in State's initial three outings, will spearhead the Spartan offense that will be composed of Bob Bondanza at guard; Bud Hjelm, center; and John Ereeg and Tor Hansen at forward.

The San Jose State frosh will meet Lincoln High School tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in Spartan Gym for their third contest of the year.

Local Drama Fans See New Staging

By NORMA WRIGHT

SJS drama enthusiasts were introduced to arena-style production this week with the presentation by the Advanced Acting class of the Fred Ballard comedy, "Ladies of the Jury".

Scene was the new Studio Theater. On stage, sometimes fairly in the laps of the audience, were students of John R. Kerr, portraying the colorful characters of the jury comedy.

The intimate atmosphere of this type of production was emphasized when the 12 jurors, closeted until they reach a decision, were served dinner. The dinner looked delicious. Those in the audience who had eaten lightly before coming were soon to squirm.

The characters in the comedy were just as absorbing to the audience as the style of production. These included the magnificently silver-tongued Mrs. Livingston Baldwin Crane, played by Mary Campbell; the tight-lipped prude, played by Barbara Forbes; the equally prudish and equally tight-lipped Jay J. Pressley, played by Brad Curtiss, and the pipe-smoking Irish woman, played by Jacquelyn Wood.
