No Change Today

Fair weather for Santa Clara Valley residents today, except for early morning high fog, is today's prediction from the weatherman. He predicts little change in temperature, a high between 74 and 84 degrees, a low between 50 and 59 degrees, and gentle, variable winds.

101st Airborne Division Lands At Little Rock To End Violence

LITTLE ROCK, Ark.—(UP)—Five hundred crack troops from the 101st Airborne Division started landing yesterday at Little Rock Air Force Base to put down violence in the integration-torn city and late in the day the army issued orders to all Arkansas National Guardsmen to report for federal service "forthwith."

The Army troops were drawn from an elite army outfit stationed at Fort Campbell, Ky. They were flown in air force transports to Little Rock.

Delta Upsilon Plans New SJS Home

Delta Upsilon Fraternity revealed plans recently for the building of the first new fraternity house at SJS.

Costing $180,000, the house will consist of three sections and will cover an area larger than that of the two houses now used by the fraternity at 155 S. 11th St. Surrounding land has been acquired for college use.

The total property cost has been set at $50,000 and the furnishings will total another $30,000, according to Building Chairman Ed Mosher.

Plans developed by Architect Hollis L. Logue Jr. of San Jose, a former Delta Upsilon member, call for a three-story building with basement totalling 10,500 square feet and providing housing for 48 members. The three-story section will contain 24 bedroom units, dining room, library, kitchen and snack room. The basement will have a chapter room, social room and service facilities.

The house, an outgrowth of a 10-year fund-raising program, provides for a private suite for the house mother. This wing will consist of a living room which opens onto a private patio, a sitting room, bedroom, bath, and a powder room for visiting women students, according to Mosher.

Bids are expected to be opened on the project next spring and completion is slated for the 1958 fall semester in time to mark the chapter's ninth anniversary on campus as a national fraternity. Otis Baldwin, chairman of the corporation board, said the building's library will be a memorial to members who died during wartime service.

Boat Owners Meet To Organize New Water Sports Club

Boat owners and water skiers are invited to attend a meeting this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Room 139 to discuss the organization of a club for those interested in water sports.

Movies of the 1957 National Water Ski Championships will be shown, according to San Jose State graduate student Don Reaves, who is behind the effort to organize the new club.

Those interested who are unable to attend may leave their names in the Activities Office if they wish Reaves to contact them with further information.

The army announced that Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker has been placed in command of federalized Arkansas guardsmen who will be used in Little Rock. He is commander of the Arkansas Military District, a paratrooper and an army ranger.

President Eisenhower arrived in Washington late yesterday and made a nationwide radio-television report last night explaining the action he took.

Gov. Price Daniel of Texas told Eisenhower his order to use fed-

A determined President Eisenhower last night said he had sent federal troops to Little Rock to prevent mob rule from overriding the decision of a federal court.

He said in a nation wide radio-TV speech that he had hoped that local officials could see to it that the orders of the federal court were carried out. After Monday's violence he had issued a proclamation asking the mobs not to return to Central High. When the mob formed again yesterday, he said, federal action became "inescapable."

The troops will be withdrawn, he said, when local officials have shown they can handle the situation.

eral forces at Little Rock was "reminiscent of the tactics of reconstruction days." Daniel asked if he intends to "occupy with troops every non-integrated school in the south."

GOVERNOR "SHOCKED"

In a telegram to the President, Daniel said he was "shocked" by Eisenhower's order federalizing the Arkansas National Guard and authorizing use of regular troops in the Little Rock integration controversy.

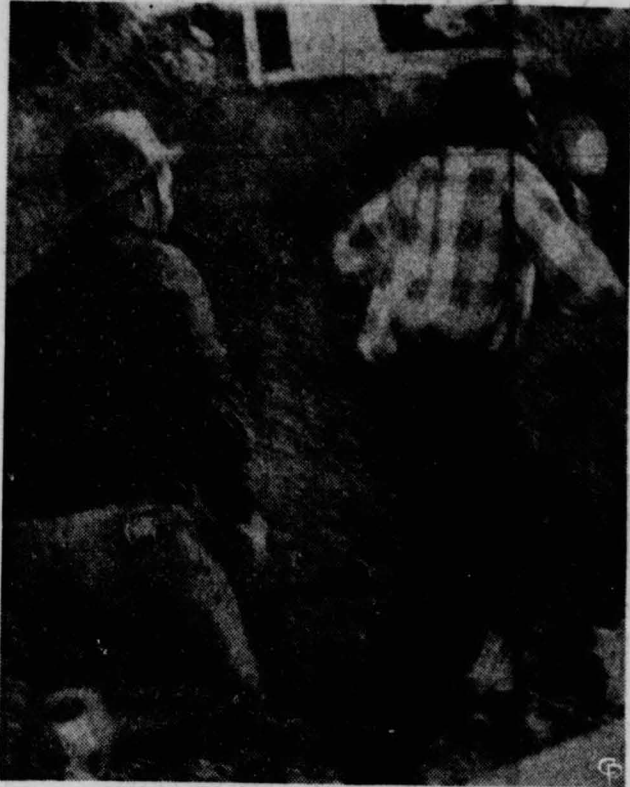

P.E. Dept. Reports Missing Students

There seem to be approximately 160 misplaced male students roaming the campus. The Men's P.E. department happens to be the villain in this particular case.

Glen "Tiny" Hartranft, department head, stated that the enrollment in the Men's P.E. department should have increased by 100 students this semester. Instead, it has dropped by about 160 persons.

It is advisable that any frosh or soph running around loose who haven't fulfilled their P.E. requirements "get hep" and check into the matter.

What has to be has to be, and all freshmen and sophomores are required to complete four semesters of physical education courses.

BAD DAY AT LITTLE ROCK—Violence of this type led President Eisenhower yesterday to send federal troops into Little Rock, Ark. Here, a Negro photographer is chased by a crash-helmeted white man as he tried to decoy crowds from the entrance where eight Negro students went into Little Rock's Central High School.

Registration Is 11,439 and Still On the Move

Total registration for fall semester has reached 11,439 students, but the figures still are climbing. This total, which includes 9431 full-time students and 2008 limited students, is already 453 enrollees greater than last year's total of 10,986 students (8973 regular and 2013 limited).

The greatest number (5404) of the 9431 full-time enrollees are continuing students. In 1956 there were 5091. New students entering State who are coming from high schools total 1852, as compared with 1673 last year. Last fall there were 1699 college transfers enrolled. This year there are 1727. The smallest group (448) is made up of returning students (those who missed last semester). In 1956 there were 510 returning students.

Due to the fact that registration cards will continue to come into the I.B.M. office until Monday, final totals will not be available until early next week.

Health Plan Still Open To Students

All regular students enrolled for more than six units at the college are eligible for membership in a voluntary health insurance program now being offered by the California Physicians Service.

The program is designed to provide medical services that are beyond the scope of the College Health Service, covering both on- and off-campus accidents and illnesses. The benefits offered include hospital, laboratory, surgical and medical.

Although the usual cost of a similar program is approximately $100 per year, it is available to eligible students at a cost of $12.50 per semester. This is only possible because the policy is being offered as a group plan, according to Dr. Thomas J. Gray, director of the College Health Service.

"Although it does not offer a complete coverage," Dr. Gray said, "it is the best for the money that is available today." Clarifying this statement, the doctor pointed out that what services the program did not cover were for the most part covered by the College Health Service.

Students interested in enrolling for CPS may apply at the Student Business Office before September 30th.

U. S. Scooped On ICBM

The United States finally has announced that it has an intercontinental ballistic missile. This is supposed to be good news. People can come out of their bomb shelters and worry about nothing more than the ulcers they got worrying about the Russians' ICBM. As we said, this is supposed to be good news.

However, if we may be somewhat critical about our nation's announcement, we'd like to ask, "What took us so long?"

No, we're not referring to the actual development of the big rocket. What bothers us is the length of time it took the Pentagon's brass polishers to let the world know that we, too, have an ICBM.

Russia scooped us badly on this. When they came out with their announcement of a perfected rocket, it made news all over the world. This was the first. No other country could match their claim. Do not mess with the big bad bear. Go home and hide. Russia is invincible.

This is what the world's papers said.

This, from our standpoint, is not good.

Heretofore, the United States had been looked on by the other nations as, among other things, the great protector. If Russia started dishing out some hard knocks, the United States would be right there.

Then came the missile news and the U.S. didn't look so big. And we have enough national pride and patriotism to become highly annoyed at this.

Now, after the Russian tub-thumpers have been spreading their propagand throughout the world, virtually unopposed, the U.S. announces that it has an ICBM. And Russia can reply that, "We were first."

As far as this corner is concerned, the script should have read like this:

Russia: "Is being afraid, world. Is glorious Russian heroes perfecting ICBM."

United States: "So talk. You try and use it and we'll counter with one of our own. We've got one, but we're not the type to bluff our way into control."

Although the last sentence might have been of the "little white lie" variety, it would have served its purpose, that being to take some of the wind out of the Commies' sails.

But no. We didn't do this. We said, in effect, "My goodness. We'll have to see about this. Later."

And, half a month later, we finally say we have an ICBM. You know what Russia was doing in the interim.

It's like starting a fight by saying, "My daddy can beat your daddy." Only saying this after the other guy has left.

the Hot Seat

by Randie E. Poe

Censorship is a biting abridgement of one of our most treasured freedoms—freedom of press.

The mystifying case of Caryl Chessman, who has been under sentence of death since 1948, poses an interesting question. Should a man in prison have the right to display his literary finesse for public consumption?

Chessman's first novel—"Cell 2455 Death Row"—was an almost instant success. Aglitter with rich, commercial drama, it was interwoven into a movie.

Prison authorities briskly stepped into the picture, however, when the natty kidnaper-rapist published his second novel, "Trial by Ordeal." They tossed it into the fire, inferring that a man in prison has no right to publish a book.

Many of our greatest books were written in prisons and jails under enforced idleness.

Thomas Huxley batted out his illustrious "Double Memoirs" in prison. Oscar Wilde wrote "De Profundis" in jail. Galileo, Richard Lovelace and Daniel DeFoe were others who wrote while incarcerated.

Should a prisoner, who has forfeited most of his other citizenary privileges, also be deprived from expressing himself in print?

Every Wednesday in this window, four Spartans will take their turn on the Hot Seat.

Yesterday, we captured four worthies and asked them this question: Do you like Ivy League clothes?

And they said . . .

JOE ALTIERI—"I don't care much whether they stay or go. Me, I prefer round-shouldered coats and pleatless pants."

J. ALTIERI

JANE MASON—"I think they look real good, but they already have enough buttons. Ivy League sports clothes look better than Ivy League suits."

J. MASON

BOB JACHENS—"I think its brought something new in the way of clothing. I like it."

JANE SUMMERELL—"I'm very much for them. They're so easy to get into and to launder. But I think some people overdo it by wearing ALL Ivy League."

J. SUMMERELL

THE MIXTURE AS BEFORE

Today begins my fourth year of writing this column and, as before, I will continue to explore the issues that grip the keen young mind of campus America—burning questions like "Should housemothers be forced to retire at 28?" and "Should pajamas and robes be allowed at first-hour classes?" and "Should proctors be armed?" and "Should picnicking be permitted in the stacks?" and "Should teachers above the rank of associate professor be empowered to perform marriages?" and "Should capital punishment for pledges be abolished?"

Should capital punishment for pledges be abolished?

Philip Morris Incorporated sponsors this column. Philip Morris Incorporated makes Philip Morris cigarettes. They also make Marlboro cigarettes. Marlboro is what I am going to talk to you about this year.

Before beginning the current series of columns, I made an exhaustive study of Marlboro advertising. This took almost four minutes. The Marlboro people don't waste words. They give it to you fast: "You get a lot to like in a Marlboro . . . Filter . . . Flavor . . . Flip-top Box."

Well, sir, at first this approach seemed to me a little terse, a bit naked. Perhaps, thought I, I should drape it with a veil of violet prose, adorn it with a mantle of fluffy adjectives, dangle some participles from the ears . . . But then I thought, what for? Doesn't that tell the whole Marlboro story? . . . Filter . . . Flavor . . . Flip-top Box.

Marlboro tastes great. The filter works. So does the box. What else do you need to know?

So, with the Marlboro story quickly told, let us turn immediately to the chief problem of undergraduate life—the money problem. This has always been a vexing dilemma, even in my own college days. I recall, for example, a classmate named Oliver Hazard Sigafos, a great strapping fellow standing 14 hands high, who fell in love with a beautiful Theta named Nikki Spillane, with hair like beaten gold and eyeballs like two table-spoons of forgetfulness.

Every night Oliver Hazard would take Nikki out to dine and dance, and then to dine again, for dancing made Nikki ravenous. Then they would go riding in the swan boats, and then Nikki, her appetite sharpened by the sea air, would have 8 or 10 cutlets, and then Oliver Hazard would take her home, stopping on the way to buy her a pail of oysters or two.

To raise money for these enchanted evenings, Oliver Hazard took on a number of part-time jobs. Between classes he cut hair. After school he gutted perches. From dusk to midnight he vulcanized medicine balls. From midnight to dawn he trapped night crawlers.

This crowded schedule took, alas, a heavy toll from Oliver Hazard. In the space of a month he dwindled from 260 to 104 pounds—but that, curiously enough, proved his salvation.

Today Oliver Hazard is a jockey, earning a handsome living which, combined with what he makes as a lymph donor after hours, is quite sufficient to curb Nikki's girlish appetite. Today they are married and live in Upper Marlboro, Maryland, with their two daughters, Filter and Flavor, and their son, Flip-top Box.

The makers of Marlboro take pleasure in bringing you this free-wheeling, uncensored column every week during the school year . . . And speaking of pleasure, have you tried a Marlboro?

Former Education Professor Dies At Tucson, Ariz.

Miss Elsie Toles, 69, formerly an associate professor of education at this college, died recently in Tucson, Ariz.

Miss Toles was born in Bisbee, Ariz. and was a faculty member of SJS from 1928 to 1946. She attended Pomona College and the San Jose State Normal School, receiving her degree in 1908. Following graduation, Miss Toles returned to Arizona to become superintendent of schools in Cochise County and later became the state superintendent of public instruction. She also held degrees from the Universities of Michigan and California.

While on leave from SJS, Miss Toles assisted the California State Department of Education in establishing child care centers for mothers employed in war production plants during World War II.

After retirement, Miss Toles lived near Portal, Ariz., writing magazine articles and books for children. Because of her illness, Miss Toles moved to Douglas, Ariz., to live with her sister, Myriam. She died a short time later.
