Judge Moynihan Addresses Boston Alumni Meeting

At the Oct. 10 dinner meeting of the Boston College Alumni Association, guest speaker Judge Cornelius J. Moynihan spoke on "Looking at the Bar from the Bench."

Over 300 Alumni, the largest turnout for an alumni dinner meeting, enjoyed meeting old friends and talking with Judge Moynihan and the faculty at the before dinner cocktail hour.

Mrs. Margaret Heckler, chairman of the dinner, introduced the members of the head table.

Father Robert F. Drinan presented a short introductory speech welcoming the Alumni and was followed to the rostrum by the new Assistant Dean, Francis Larkin, who had several interesting comments to make on the school's new placement program and praised the Alumni for their active support of the law school.

Professor Emeritus William J. O'Keefe introduced the guest speaker who was no stranger to those present. Judge Moynihan first joined the faculty in 1931 and is probably best known among students past and present of property law for his Preliminary Survey of Real Property. The Little Red Devil (as it is often referred to) is an invaluable aid in the study of real property.

Drawing from his experience of his first few months on the Bench, the judge related several humorous incidents before turning toward the more serious matter of the avalanche of cases facing our courts today. This overload of cases requires such a hectic schedule that usually a judge has only a few minutes break between cases leaving him no time to work on the case or do research on his own. As a result the

Pre-Legal Institute To Be Held At Law School Dec. 7

It has been announced that the Seventh Annual Pre-Legal Institute for Pre-Law Advisors, Law School Admissions Officials and Pre-Legal upperclassmen will be held at the Law School Saturday, December 7, 1963.

During the last six years the Boston College Law School has assisted pre-legal students and pre-legal advisors by means of an annual conference discussing the various problems of those who have the opportunity of counseling college students who may desire to enter law school, and to supply information and otherwise assist those students interested in becoming attorneys.

In the past many questions have been discussed; among the more important questions to which distinguished speakers have addressed themselves are: "Is the Legal Profession Overcrowded," "Pre-Law Counseling for Undergraduates," "Who Should Go to Law School?" and

Review Features Symposium On Govt. Contracts

Last year, Mr. John R. Murphy, then Article and Book Review Editor of the Boston College Industrial and Commercial Law Review, undertook steps to secure for the Review an authoritative article treating the legal problems in the field of government contracting. Two facts soon became apparent: first, the legal considerations involved in the field are so many and so varied that one article could effectively cover only a small part of the whole and second, there is a noticeable dearth of quality writing in the area.

As a result of the above, the Law Review, in its soon to be distributed Fall issue, will contain its first symposium. The symposium is titled "Government Contracts and Related Problems" and is made up of nine articles. The authors and the articles briefly are as follows: Ernest J. Leatham, lawyer, government official and teacher, has written an interesting article on the complexity of the conflicts and tensions in defense procurement. This article serves as a useful introduction to the other eight.

It is worthy of note that a reprint of it is being used by a Northeastern University professor in his business management course.

Further background is provided by the article written by Robert Sheriffs Moss, a Washington, D.C. attorney. His article is devoted to the nature and scope of government contracts. Gilbert A. Cuneo and Eldon H. Crowell, both Washington, D.C. attorneys, analytically have treated the types of contract bidding now being employed.

Irving R. M. Panzer and Paul H. Gantt, also Washington, D.C. attorneys, have written about the prevailing practice of government blacklisting. This is the term given the refusal by the government to consider the bids of certain contractors because of wrongdoing suspected or proved, on the part of the latter.

Geoffrey Creyke, Jr., a Washington attorney, has analyzed the rights of a surety on a contractor's performance and payment bonds.

First Of Luncheons Sees Dooley Presented Chair

The first of a series of luncheon meetings for the alumni planned by Commissioner of Corrections, George F. McGrath, was held on Wednesday, October 23 at 12:30, at the Golden Dome, formerly the Hotel Bellevue in Boston.

William J. Dooley, Class of 1952, former House Counsel for Dewey and Almy Corporation, a subsidiary of W. R. Grace and Company with headquarters in Philadelphia, and now District Manager for the Construction Chemical Division of W. R.

Grace, was present at the meeting. This gave the Alumni the opportunity to present him with a token of appreciation, a Boston College chair, for the excellent job done by him in conducting student career counseling seminars during 1962-63.

Also at the luncheon was the newly elected council member, William E. Ryan, Class of 1946, General Attorney for the Metropolitan Transit Authority. He is filling the vacancy created by the death of Leo A. Reed, Class of 1943.

The next scheduled luncheon meeting will be held on December 5, 1963 at the Golden Dome and it is hoped that many alumni in the area will attend.

Moot Court Competition

The Boston College Law School represented by Kevin T. Byrne, Joseph Dornig and Stephen Silverman was defeated by Yale Law School in the final round of the Regional Moot Court Competition after defeating Univ. of Conn. in the first round. Kevin was chosen the best oral advocate of the competition and awarded a Paul Revere Bowl for his efforts.

DEAN'S NOTES

The Dean spoke to the Kiwanis of Boston on October 17, to the Rotary Club of New Bedford on October 23 and to the Berkshire Medical Society in Pittsfield, also on October 23.

On Sunday, October 20, the Dean debated Mr. Leo Pfeffer, General Counsel of the American Jewish Congress on religion in public schools. The Dean also spoke before the Rhode Island Affiliate of the American Civil Liberties Union.

The Dean addressed a group of 1500 public school teachers at the Waldorf-Astoria, Saturday, November 2.

The Dean spoke to the Combined Rotary clubs of Hampshire County in Northampton on November 4.

The Dean also spoke at the Temple Israel in Swampscott on Sunday, November 10.

The Dean was a reporter at the Yale Law School on November 15-16 for a conference of all of the trial judges for New England. The conference was sponsored by the American Bar Association.

On November 24, the Dean addressed the John Carrol Society in Washington, D.C.

In the future, the Dean will speak at a conference on race and the law at the University of Chicago Law School on November 22-23. It is co-sponsored by the Anti-Defamation League and the University of Chicago Law School.

On December 9, he will speak at a luncheon in Springfield to the Hampden County Bar Association. The Dean will outline all of the legislation proposed by the Massachusetts Bar Association for enactment in 1964. Much of the legislation originated in the 21 man committee of the Administration of Justice of the Massachusetts Bar Association of which the Dean is Chairman.

The Dean has an article in the November issue of Parents Magazine. The Dean argues the case of federal aid for private schools while Linaer Hunt, high ranking official of the National Council of Churches, states the case against federal aid for non-public schools.

The Dean has an article in the Interracial Review entitled "Will Public Accommodations be Desegregated in 1963?" which is an analysis of Title II of President Kennedy's Civil Rights Bill.

"Emotional Problems of Law Students."

The Institute for pre-legal advisors and pre-legal students held annually at the Boston College Law School has attracted wide national attention. The American Bar Association in a report on legal education specifically commended the seminars at the Boston College Law School.

bench is forced to make many snap judgments and on the spot decisions. Weekends and late evening hours often are the only available times a judge has time to do his research and case work.

Auditors, he said, help in that they do bring about some settlements, often narrow the issues and occasionally reduce testimony particularly with regard to medical evidence, by stipulating that it be taken from the Auditor's report.

The Judge praised the ability and efficiency of the lawyers in general in the speed with which cases are disposed.

The main point of his address raised doubts as to the weight the legal profession carries in Massachusetts. No other group plays such an important part in American life and yet is so unorganized. Although we have city and county bars in Massachusetts, the Judge pointed out that there was no state wide cohesive organization of lawyers. Due to this the voice of the bar is "fragmented" and "dissipated," and thus having no weight. It has little or no effect in the legislature on matters that vitally effect lawyers. As an example, the Judge doubts if the lawyers of the Commonwealth played any part in the recent legislation designed to give probate courts equity jurisdiction and yet this act will effect every lawyer engaged in probate work.

Tribute was then paid by the Judge to the lawyers of the bar, saying that they have done as much as any group for the American way of life. Particularly, he pointed out, was the loyalty the American bar gives to its clients. However the Judge was appalled at the lack of disciplinary action taken by the Massachusetts Bar on its errant members and then cited some examples that came to his mind.

In conclusion Judge Moynihan repeated that in his opinion Massachusetts needs a strong and cohesive organization that would provide the bar with an effective voice, active leadership and enforce its high ethical standards.

FACULTY NEWS

Professor Frederick M. Hart has an article, "In Defense of Certain Provisions of the Uniform Commercial Code relating to formation of Sales Contracts: A Partial Reply to Professor Babb" (Maine Law Review, vol. 15).

Professor Richard G. Huber has written "Courtroom Evidence and the Appraiser" (American Society of Appraisers, 1963 Annual Edition).

Professor John D. O'Reilly gave an address centering about recent decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court, at the New Hampshire Bar Association annual meeting.

Over 600 Applicants

The Administration of the Law School states that the total number of applicants for the class entering in September, 1964 will total more than 600 applicants. The class entering in September, 1963 numbered 510.

In order to inform and serve prospective applicants to the Boston College Law School, the faculty of the Law School visited several colleges during the fall and spoke to pre-legal groups and interviewed upperclassmen.

Professor McCarthy spoke to the Pre-Legal Society at Providence College and Professor Huber addressed the pre-legal upper classmen at Northeastern University.

Review . . .

Edwin P. James, manager of the Contract Analysis Department of Collins Radio Co., Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has written about the ability of the government to terminate a contract either because of some default on the part of the contractor or because the completion of the contract is no longer felt to be in the national interest.

John W. Gaskins, a Washington, D.C. attorney, explains the procedures available to aggrieved contractors. The first of these by H. Crane Miller, an attorney with the Chief Counsel of the Department of the Navy; the second by E. Manning Seltzer, Chief Counsel of the Department of the Army, and John H. Ryan, an attorney on his staff. Mr. Ryan is a graduate of Boston College Law School.

The members of the Review staff believe that the symposium issue will be very valuable reading for their fellow students. It will provide an understanding of the nature of the problems faced by attorneys, whether government counsel, private practitioners or corporate lawyers in the field of government contracts. The issue will also fill a vacuum existing in the school library. At present, neither the reports of C.C.H. and Prentice-Hall nor the published decisions of the administrative tribunals are found on the library shelves.

Judge Jones Tells Alumni Of BC's Days Of Yore

Some thirty-five members of the Boston College Alumni Association gathered at the Statler Hilton Hotel in Hartford on Tuesday, October 22. The event was held in conjunction with the Connecticut Bar Association.

Judge William F. Jones, '37, of the Court of Common Pleas of Connecticut was the principal speaker at the event. His topic was "Studying Law at Boston College in the Thirties." The judge discussed the early days of the Law School and contrasted them with the great changes which have occurred at the Law School in recent years. He spiced his talk with many anecdotes concerning the city of Boston during the years when James M. Curley served as mayor. The talk was extremely well received by the gathering.

Assistant Dean Francis J. Larkin spoke to the alumni on recent developments at the Law School.

Leslie R. Brimmer, '56, was Chairman of the event.

SBA Governors Set Forth Basic Policies For Year

The first meeting of the board Governors of the Student Bar Association was held on the evening of Oct. 14 in Roberts Lounge. This initial gathering was for the purpose of setting forth the basic policies to be followed by the student organization during the year.

Following the election of Richard M. Cotter (III Day) to fill the vacant post of Secretary, the Board considered the proposed budget for the coming year. The sum of $3,420.82 was found available and was appropriated in the following manner:

Sui-Juris — The student newspaper, being expanded to nine issues, was allocated $800. While this is lower than the projected costs, it is expected that, as in previous years, the Alumni will make a contribution to defray expenses. The Alumni receive five out of every six copies printed.

Moot Court — The sum of $300. was set aside for the benefit of the Moot Court program. This is intended to take care of the costs of: programs, rental of judicial robes, a reception for the presiding jurists, and for adequate prizes for the participants.

Law School Forum — An expanded evening program, coupled with the demands of the regular Thursday morning forum, was granted $750.

This amount, it is believed, will enable the Forum to continue to present to the students interesting and informative speakers.

Social — The biggest item on the budget was the $1,300. appropriation for social activities. As the hour was late, consideration of the schedule of events was postponed until the next regular meeting. The Board did vote, however, to have a smoker during October.

A contingency fund was established out of the unappropriated funds to be drawn on for administrative and emergency requirements.

Law Careers Studied In Seminar Series

On Thursday evening, November 21 1963, at 7:30 p.m., in Roberts Lounge, the Law School Alumni Association and the Student Bar Association jointly sponsored the first of a series of seminars discussing career opportunities within various areas of the law. The first seminar was devoted to a career in the PERSONAL INJURY area. Panelists were: Thomas E. Cargill, Jr., Esq.; Charles W. O'Brien, Esq. and John J. McNaught, Esq. Mr. Cargill, a graduate of Northeastern University Law School, is an individual practitioner specializing in the representation of plaintiffs in PI actions. His proficiency recently resulted in his client's receiving the largest award ever given in a PI action by an auditor in Essex County. He is also a lecturer to the Bar and Medical groups on Medical-Legal problems. Mr. O'Brien, a graduate of Boston College Law School, is a member of the firm of Brickley, Sears and Cole and specializes in the defense of PI actions. Moderating the discussion will be Mr. McNaught, a graduate of Boston College Law School. Mr. McNaught was formerly clerk to Judge McCarthy, Federal District Court, and is now a partner in the firm of Esdaile, McKenney, and McNaught. He also was a lecturer on "Torts" for several years in the evening division of the Law School.

Students interested in the personal injury area found the comments of these distinguished practitioners both informative and interesting. Since a good percentage of the time was set aside for questions and answers, students were encouraged to actively participate in the discussion.

Catholic - Jewish Dialogue Dec. 8

On Sunday, December 8, the second Catholic-Jewish dialogue sponsored by the Boston College Law School will be conducted. This all day meeting will be a continuation of a dialogue co-sponsored by the Boston College Law School and the Anti-Defamation League of Boston.

Frosh Win 24 - 0; Review Staffers Down BU Editors

The Boston College Law Review staff deserted its office and typewriters the morning of October 12 to defeat the Boston University Law Review representation 12-6 in an extramural football contest.

With cheering wives as onlookers, coach Jack Conroy's "Legal Eagles" took the lead in the opening minutes of play. Taking advantage of a Terrier fumble on the initial kick-off, Ed Bograd swept around right end for twenty yards and six points.

From there on, pass interceptions figured in the scores. Dick Cotter, a ringer playing QB, saw fit to try to pass to Phil Callan while on his own five yard line. The result was six points for the downstreeters.

Late in the final quarter, the good guys broke a 6-6 tie as Callan picked off an enemy aerial, took advantage of a beautiful downfield block by Al Stiglitz, and cashed in for a touchdown and the victory.

But the B.U. Reviewers were good sports about it and treated the winners to liquid refreshment at a local establishment, said liquid refreshment being — Coke ! !

1st Year v. 2nd Year

Friday, October 11, at Cleveland Circle, trial by combat was resurrected by the more athletically minded of the First and Second year men of the B. C. Law School. In a two and one half hour contest, the Frosh gained a decisive judgment, 24-0, but the second year team excepted and demanded their right of appeal.

Consequently, a "grudge match" ensued October 17 in the same "courtroom." The second year must have practiced in the meantime, for the legal tyros were able to best their alleged betters by only 6-2. Some excuse may be found in that first year men were seen to attack their cohorts, at least one having been observed to smash his eye into a teammate's elbow, to the consequent suffering in body and mind of the latter. No action for battery has yet been lodged by the victim.

An anonymous participant of both games observed that the players were obviously lawyers, as there was as much argument as football on the field.

Named Law Clerk

Charles B. Abbott, '64, Article and Book Review Editor of the Boston College Industrial and Commercial Law Review, has been appointed law clerk to the Honorable Arthur E. Whittemore of the Supreme Judicial Court of Massachusetts for the 1964-1965 term of court.

Law Wives' Club Plans Meaningful Social Meetings

The second meeting of the Law Wives Club is coming this month. Ask your husband to watch for the date . . . and come! Don't put it off or put it aside. It is an excellent opportunity to meet and talk with women who have so much in common. Speakers will be brought in throughout the year who are of interest to you only if you are around to voice your opinions. The year ahead looks promising and enjoyable. Give it a try.

Marty Proskin, the president, is only too willing to accept your suggestions and try to plan a year that will be worthwhile. But . . . she can't do anything without you. Don't pass up an opportunity for attendance at meaningful and socially enjoyable meetings. As Fr. Drinan mentioned in his opening message to the club, a lawyer's wife is the most important person in his life. Thus she must be aware of the world he lives in. An awareness of this world doesn't come to she who sits and waits. Get out! see! learn! and and be a better lawyer's wife

First Smoker

That "other people's tastes better" was proven once more the evening of October 25 when a large segment of the law students attended the first smoker of the season sponsored by the Boston College Student Bar Association in the law school cafeteria. From the opening of the social at 9:00 p.m. until the "last call" around midnight, long lines were in continual attendance at the table where the iced brew was being dispensed.

The smoker was a great success and the students have sent up a general cry of "Encore!"

A total of 60 persons of the Catholic and Jewish faiths will speak about intercredal points of difference.

Father Edward Flannery, Editor of the Providence Visitor, the diocesan weekly of Rhode Island, will be a keynote speaker along with Rabbi Brickner.
