BATHING AND FISHING at JEAN RIBAUT CLUB FORT GEORGE ISLAND, FLORIDA

For those who wish to combine carefree days in the sunny climate at Fort George Island with the informality of a large house-party; to experience the restive joys of escaping large commercial activity; to partake of the excellent cuisine; to discover, at last, personal comfort and attention as opposed to collective opportunities and high-g geared amusements, the JEAN RIBAUT CLUB offers its charming facilities for the winter season. Situated at the mouth of the beautiful St. Johns River on Fort George Island, about twenty miles east of Jacksonville, the club property of six hundred acres includes the Main Club house, the Lodge, four cottages belonging to members, two tennis courts, the golf course, the yacht basin and several other facilities for pleasant diversion.

CLUB BUILDINGS

The Main Clubhouse, designed in keeping with Island tradition, consists of fourteen bedrooms, two dining rooms, lounge and locker rooms. It is within three hundred feet of Fort George Inlet, which it faces, and adjoins the tennis courts and bowling green.

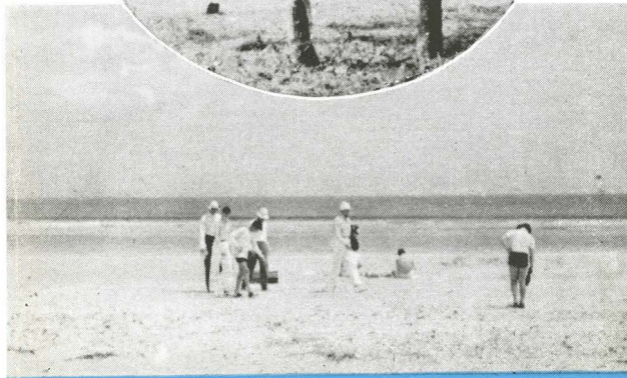

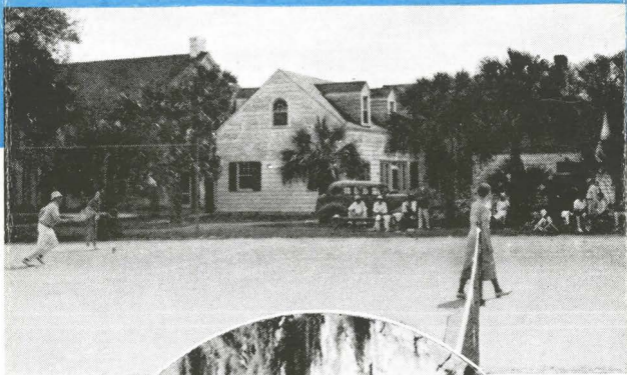

The Lodge, a separate building on the bank of Fort George Inlet and three hundred feet from the Main Clubhouse, has twelve large bedrooms, a living room and porch.

DIVERSIONS

GOLF on the course laid out directly through the natural moss-hung oaks. Excellent greens enhance the beauty of its irregular fairways, and comment has been made that this course is second to Pinehurst in difficulty of play. GOLF privileges are COMPLIMENTARY to guests.

TENNIS on two fine clay courts adjoining the Main Clubhouse.

FISHING on the superb main beach with surf-casting rods for bass, or by special arrangement for sea trout, red snapper and whiting in the rivers.
