IA alumna Sarah Hewitt '01 visited campus on April 24-25 to speak to a few classes, to meet with students interested in her career path, and to address seniors at their IA Graduation Luncheon.

A 2001 graduate with a dual major in international affairs and French, Sarah earned her master's degree in international affairs and world politics from Catholic University in Washington, DC, with a concentration in security studies.

Following graduate school, Sarah accepted a position with the Department of Homeland Security Office of Inspector General. Currently she is working in the private sector as an intelligence consultant for Bearing Point Management and Technology in Washington, DC.
