William Farrish, owner of Lane's End Farm, served as chair of the Board of Churchill Downs from 1992 to 2001, has been a steward and vice chair of the Jockey Club, a director and chair of the Executive Committee of the Breeders' Cup and a member of the Board of Directors of the Keeneland Association.

WILLIAM FARISH

One of the country's leading Thoroughbred breeders and owners, William Farish was inspired to make a gift to laminitis research at the School of Veterinary Medicine in part by the care given to Barbaro at New Bolton Center and also by his own interest in helping find a cure for laminitis, the condition that led to Barbaro's demise. About 15 percent of the horses in the United States suffer from laminitis over the course of their lifetime. Despite its prevalence, the exact cause of the disease remains unknown. Mr. Farish's gift will support the recently implemented Laminitis Research Initiative at New Bolton Center. "Through Penn Vet's efforts, we look forward to great strides in conquering this devastating disease," Mr. Farish says.

 Dr. Rebecca R. Leas

In December 2007, philanthropists Marianne and John K. Castle announced a gift of $1 million to support the School of Veterinary Medicine's laminitis research. In speaking about the gift, Mr. Castle said, "Marianne and I are thrilled to be able to support the faculty of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine in their research. Our hope is that the knowledge acquired will be important in helping both animals and humankind."

In addition to funding research in laminitis, the Castles' gift will support the directorship of the School's new Laminitis Institute, which will be held by Dr. James Orsini.

MARIANNE AND JOHN CASTLE

When fully funded, the institute will include new research laboratories, funding for research projects at Penn Vet, and in collaboration with other institutions, a home-care treatment model, support for student research opportunities, and improved clinical facilities.

welcome all animals, big and small.*

Jim Stewart, V⁶⁸ (equine practitioner and surgeon), and Brenda Stewart, V⁷⁰ (small animal practitioner), both have dedicated countless time to Penn Vet in the form of membership in the Development and Opportunity Scholarship committees, and Jim is past president of the Veterinary Medical Alumni Society.

"Giving back to the vet school that first gave me the opportunity to be a veterinarian is the easy part. Being able to find enough funds to help students decrease their total average debt loads of $160,000 is the hard part. This giving back assistance should be an unending obligation," explains Jim.

"A Penn education begins with appreciation and support of all interests and directions of veterinary medicine. It then teaches using reasoning, not reaction, to solve problems, hands on clinical skills, and researchers' instincts without doing research. This is a philosophy we must support and maintain."

Punki

I became acquainted with Penn Veterinary Medicine when my dog Punki fell ill with liver disease. On our initial visit to the Matthew J. Ryan Veterinary Hospital, I was overwhelmed with the wonderful care Punki received. Our doctor was not only knowledgeable about Punki's medical condition, but she never was too busy to take my many calls, explain options and support us when hard decisions had to be made.

When Punki's condition advanced to the final stage, our doctor and her entire team were waiting for us at the entrance to Emergency Services. They truly cared for all of us during this very difficult and emotional experience. As any animal lover can attest, a pet's end-of-life process is traumatic, but the acts of kindness offered by the hospital staff had a deep effect on me. That's when I decided to commit my time and effort to the needs of the Ryan Veterinary Hospital and Penn Veterinary Medicine.

A year later, we again faced a challenging situation with our newly adopted dog, Goliath. This time we sought the services of the Hospital's Behavior Section, who taught us appropriate training and caring for Goliath. Every member of the team offered us help that exceeded our expectations. They guided us day, night and even on weekends to create conditions safe for Goliath and those interacting with him.

I am proud and honored to be part of the Penn Veterinary Medicine family. They live up to their mission to provide the highest-quality care in conjunction with compassion, support and understanding of both the patient and the client.
