From the Editor

I am very pleased with the articles included in this edition of the SPNHA Review. They are diverse in content, showing the range of issues and research in which our students engage. They are also articles that were very carefully vetted by the full faculty of the SPNHA.

As a new editor, I have relied on the careful review by our faculty members who are most qualified to review the content of the articles. So many thanks to them for taking the time to prepare their reviews and comments. I have also benefited from the expert attention and advice from Dr. Neal Buckwalter, who has joined me as an associate editor, ensuring another set of eyes and perspectives on the nominated articles in the selection process. I also found gratifying the willingness of the former students, now alumnae, to further edit their original papers to meet the publication standards for the journal articles, and for including their bios and photos for the publication as well. Much of the layout and preparation for publication rests on Fran Cain, who works closely with our printer to get the SPNHA Review ready for publication.

So as you can see, this SPNHA Review is the work of many in our School. I hope that readers find it a strong addition to the fields in which they work, as we are directing the SPNHA Review to the professionals in the fields of Public Administration, Philanthropy and Nonprofit Leadership and Health Administration.
