

fragments 1 thru 5

- 1 Buddha is a diesel
train
always passing passing
left to right
- 2 & i don't like
other people who have to lie to other people about
me to keep them from them
- 3 & of course you realize no matter wat we're sayin there's two drunks in a bar havin the same conversation
- 4 & the simplest way to equalize wealth in a capitalist system is levyng 10 x's more tax on properties not lived upon by the owner
- 5 & some say laffing water committed suicide &
some say settin buzzard never says nuthin no more everybody's wrong sometimes

letter to the poet
for g. m.

the grown up
dragons all lie slain.
there is nothing left
but to wipe off
yolk & white &
let the thing grow
a little bit. but mead drunks & blugeons are all
that's needed to
slay the monsters
anymore. what
romance is reduced
by this? dirty
rivers wash us all.
& all the old dragons
remain lying, slain.
