ARCHITECTURAL SPECULATIONS ON THE LIBRARY OF THE FUTURE

This poster details work from a graduation design studio for M.Archiscture students at the University of Adelaide in 2015, and its engagement with the university is central library, the Barr Smith Library, concurrently undertaking its own major review. ones botray, concurrently understanding as over major review.

The central task of the studio was to grapple with the question of "the library, at he future", it sought ways of minimenting the library, an inetitation and a social and architectural typology: that is seriously threatment by sterihological and social charges, chief among them being digitalisation and privatination.

es, chief among them being diplatitation and privilations. In its desident mantestation, the litters is a mysterious, excellent the space. An emblant of however, the space, and extending statistical statistics. An emblant of however, and the statistics statistics of modernity, a "heaterstopper" devoted to a com-petite and high privilent emblants of medical statistics. The book is the atom of the matter of the littersy—yet under the impact of displatiation, the interfers, and the protices reading device, this atom is disentagiating—becoming preferance pure reflections impact.

As a haven, an refuse, a space traditionally free from intrusiof commerce, an end in itself, the library upholds the ideals of an accessible public space. Yet our era is one in which the public resim is splintering, atrophying, and being slowly starved response to this situation, the studio asked its participants: at new hybrid configurations, scenarios, programs, and ty-logies are plausible to sustaining the promise of the library?

The studie was conducted over a 14 week privil determined by August and November 2015. New studiest developed invidual process, dusting the room specific questions, themes, the service of process of process of the service of the se
