INTRODUCTION

It is our pleasure to present the 2013-2015 report on research and scholarly activity across KPU. The depth, breadth and diversity of scholarship speaks to the commitment and engagement of our faculty and students, extending well beyond the classroom and deeply into the fabric of the communities we serve.

The research and scholarly activity profiled in this publication illustrates the variety of topics and methods by which KPU is enhancing its reputation as an applied polytechnic university. There is a growing body of thematic and individually inspired research that we believe can be characterized as - driven by demand; informed by science; and transformed by impact.

As KPU's reputation grows, more faculty and students are combining experiential learning and applied research opportunities with industry, government and community partners to tackle complex problems in real world settings.

Please enjoy this report and celebrate with us the impressive accomplishments of KPU researchers and scholars.

Sincerely,

Arthur Fallick, PhD., Associate Vice President, Research
Office of Research & Scholarship

Kwantlen Polytechnic University (KPU) is committed to actively supporting innovative research and scholarship that informs authentic, relevant, and integrative learning communities. It is developing cutting-edge curriculum and hands-on learning experiences to equip students with the practical knowledge, skills and abilities in four major areas of applied research: Design Thinking, Sustainability Thinking, building Healthy Communities, and innovations in Clean Technology.

KPU encourages the exchange of knowledge and expertise between academia and public/private partners that are mutually beneficial. Collaborative partnerships enable students and faculty to work on projects of interest with industry and community, while exploring real-world solutions. Such partnerships promote and expand the mobilization and transfer of knowledge to the benefit of the broader community, and provide students with job relevant skills.
