

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

We would like to sincerely thank Dr. William Hogan, Associate Professor of English and Director of the Center for Engaged Learning, for the support and financial contribution in the production of the Heritage Journal. We also recognize the coalition who is seeking to make our community more just and equitable. May the Demands be met.

CALL FOR PAPERS

We invite our scholarly community—students, faculty, staff, alum and community members to contribute to Heritage. Our theme for the AY 2016-17 is “University Based and Community Centered: A Year of the African Diaspora Woman”. In line with that theme and the ongoing struggles for representation and equality, we invite you to contribute an “article” that address, but not necessarily limited to the following: activism and Black womanhood, the meaning of Black womanhood/girlhood, living Blackness in the digital age. Pieces can take multiple forms such as art, poetry or prose; they can be reflective or analytical. We do ask that all submission be no more than 400 words. Submissions to be sent to black.studies@providence.edu no later than February 15, 2017. We are also calling on the artist among us to help us design our next cover. Thanks in advance for your contribution.
