Registration ritual

Students pack Woody Hall

Long lines and grumbling were the rule at Woody Hall Monday as students rushed about to accomplish last-minute registration or program changes.

Although the Registration Center was filled to overflow and part of Woody Hall cafeteria had been given over to cope with the crowd, Henry Andrews, assistant director for registration, said, "Down at the Arena that wouldn't even look like we were open."

Andrews was referring to the past practice of moving the Registration Center to the SIU Arena for the first few days of each term.

Andrews said a check Monday morning showed that most students were moving through the lines in about 40 minutes. Some students reported longer delays, but Andrews said this was normal because a student found a desired class closed and had to go back to select another course.

Students making program changes must have a paid-or deferred-fee statement, a printed class schedule showing fees paid and a program-change form.

After Wednesday, Andrews said, a dean's permission is required for program changes if a new section or class is involved. Permission is not required if the student wishes only to drop a class.

Some students are still in the process of registration although Andrews said, "Theoretically the last day for registration was last Friday. We're in the late registration period today."

Andrews said late registration requires a dean's permission. He also said there is no definite deadline date for late registration, but that the decision is left up to the dean of the appropriate academic unit.

The registration center is using, for the first time this semester, a new system which utilizes a CRT (Cathode Ray Tube) computer link instead of punched cards. Speaking of this new system Andrews said, "We see some problems and areas for adjustment, but we're well satisfied with it. Once we get out all the kinks we'll have a much better system than when we used the card system."

Andrews said the new system has advantages of speed and accuracy. "During non-peak periods the student can come in and process a registration in half the time required by the old system," he said.

When asked if the new system will save money, Andrews said, "We think overall it will because of increased accuracy." He said under the new system the Registration Center employs about 10 fewer people, but "part of that difference is budgetary."

Other benefits of this system, according to Andrews, include a print-out of the student's selected courses, which is immediately available to the student, and the fact that some errors in registration possible under the old system are automatically detected by new equipment.

After standing in registration lines Mon. for an hour and 15 minutes, Ben Courson, junior in architecture, scrutinizes his schedule displayed on one of the new terminals in Woody Hall. Cindy Payne, junior in childhood education, programs his schedule into the computer, which was installed to expedite registration and relieve long lines. (Photo by Chuck Fishman.)

Nominations open for Leasure's post

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The search committee for a new vice president for academic affairs and provost got down to business Monday, and is seeking nominations for the post from students, staff and the rest of the University community.

Willis Malone, special assistant to the president and chairman of the committee, said he was asked by members of the committee to issue a memo soliciting nominations.

The committee is seeking a replacement for John K. Leasure, who announced his resignation Dec. 9 and asked to be returned to teaching duties as a professor in plant industries.

Leasure will remain in the post until his replacement is named.

The appointments to the committee, which are tentative pending approval by their respective constituencies, are: Jack Cody, professor of guidance and educational psychology, Neal Foland, chairman of the mathematics department, and Donald Tindall, associate professor of botany, representing the Graduate Council.

Members of the Faculty Senate on the committee are: Gerald Coorts, chairman of the Plant and Soil Science department, Thomas Pace, professor in the speech department, and Joanne Thorpe, chairman of the women's physical education department.

Representatives of the Deans Council are Charles Hindersman, dean of the College of Business, and Stanley Smith, dean of the College of Human Resources.

Representing graduate students on the committee is Jeffrey Pyle, from Mattoon, who's enrolled in the School of Engineering; and representing the undergraduate students is Forest "Rusty" Lightle, Park Forest, a senior majoring in political science and philosophy.

Geraldine Kelley, a secretary for University Programs, is on the committee representing Civil Service personnel, and Jane Harris, academic advisor in the College of Liberal Arts, will represent administrative and professional staff.

With all of its members present, the committee set 11 a.m. on Mondays to meet. Malone said the target date for selection is July 1, and added the committee is "approaching the task in a professional manner."

Across the board raise

Student checks reflect pay hike

SIU's 3,300 student workers will find their paychecks fatter by ten cents an hour.

A 10-cent increase in the federal minimum wage which went into effect Jan. 1 will be paid to all student workers at SIU, Frank Adams, director of student work and financial assistance, said Monday.

Adams said SIU officials were uncertain whether the increase was mandatory for all student wages or only wages less than the new $2 per hour minimum. But officials decided to make the increase effective across the board to avoid unfairness, he said.

"All student workers are now making $2 per hour or more," Adams continued.

He added that more money from SIU's budget will be necessary to keep the present number of students employed.

The number of hours per week that students are permitted to work may be reduced before the end of spring semester, according to William French, coordinator of on-campus student work.

"One thing that always happens when student wages go up is that the budget does not. There will be a problem in maintaining the current number of student work hours," he said.

Presently, student workers are limited to a maximum of 20 hours a week.

Swinburne fills student affairs post

By Ray Urchel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Bruce Swinburne, former dean of students, has been appointed vice president for SIU student affairs by President Warren W. Brandt.

Swinburne, dean of students since September, 1973, is SIU's first vice president for the Student Affairs office.

His appointment, which has no additional responsibilities, was scheduled to be approved at the Board of Trustees meeting on Jan. 9. But the meeting was postponed until the Feb. 13 board meeting in Edwardsville.

Swinburne's salary was raised $1,200 to $28,200 a year as a result of the appointment.

Swinburne's appointment came nearly three years after the SIU Board of Trustees created the post of vice president for Student Affairs. Previously, the Student Affairs division was headed by the dean of students.

Brandt said that the person heading the student affairs office has duties comparable to other vice presidents so the man with those responsibilities should be a vice president.

Swinburne said Friday that he hopes to create an environment at SIU "That is acceptable to the diversity of our students and, second, that facilitates their growth.

"That means, frankly, a pleasant place for them to be. I also want it to be a place where the environment is supportive of their learning activities."

Swinburne said he is "committed" to the "Second curriculum concept" that learning can also occur outside the classroom.

The vice president said he hopes to develop additional programs for students needing financial assistance and an expanded student health plan to include dental care.

"I hope this says to the students on this campus that we are interested in them," said Swinburne, "that this institution is committed to making this institution an even better place for them to be.

This is not just a commitment of the Student Affairs division, Swinburne continued. "I see this as kind of a University commitment to students and the concerns the students on this campus have."

As head of the Student Affairs division, Swinburne supervises the operations of the Health Service, Student Work and Financial Assistance, Student Services and Student Life agencies.

Some of the tasks facing the new vice president include the preparation of a proposal for General Studies students to purchase textbooks, approval of a new student conduct code, centralization of student service agencies into Woody Hall, the selection of a new dean for the

Bruce Swinburne

Student Life office and a report about SIU enrollment to be presented to President Brandt and SIU vice presidents, possibly later this week.

Swinburne, 42, received a B.A. degree from the University of Northern Iowa in 1953. He completed his master's degree in educational psychology and guidance at the University of Northern Colorado in 1960.

He served as student personnel director and assistant to the dean at Iowa Lakes Community College from 1962 to 1966. He became the academic dean of Glen Lakes Community College in Centerville, Mich. where he served as both the dean of instruction and dean of students until 1968.

Swinburne took his doctorate degree in higher education from Indiana University in 1970 before becoming an associate professor in the SIU Higher Education department.

In 1973, Swinburne was cited as the outstanding teacher in the College of Education. He has also been selected as one of the top 20 teachers by the Mirror, an SIU teacher evaluation publication in winter, 1974 and every succeeding term.

SIU officials have mixed reactions to IBHE recommended budget cuts

By Wes Smith
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Budget cuts for the 1976 fiscal year recommended for SIU by the Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) have been termed "devastating" by presidents of both SIU campuses. But one University official feels "it could have been worse."

James Brown, general secretary of the Southern Illinois University System, said Monday "basically we could have done a lot better but we could have done a lot worse."

Brown said the SIU system, made up of the Edwardsville and Carbondale campuses, "fared worse than any other university system in the state in part because our enrollments didn't behave well."

SIU-C's request of $32,279,800 for capital improvements was cut 75 per cent to $7,913,200. The request for campus operation funds was trimmed from $107,557,700 to $76,751,600.

SIU-C President Warren W. Brandt was out of town Monday but had commented earlier that the cuts "do some things devastatingly in an internal way." Brandt was quoted as saying he was thankful that the cuts in the budget were just half of what they were for SIU-C last year.

"It's a like slowing down in beating yourself over the head with a hammer.

"Brandt said. "It feels a little better."

Brown said the budget recommendations from the IBHE will call for "some re-trenching" on the Carbondale campus.

"We are going to face a problem in working out a realistic approach in salary increases since the IBHE recommended a 9 per cent increase." Brown said he didn't see much possibility of a faculty cut in the near future, but stressed that a lot depended on recommendations from the governor's office on the budget. He said rumblings from Springfield have hinted that the IBHE's recommendations may be high.

"We could still have much more trouble if Springfield doesn't accept the recommendations," he remarked.

Brown said Brandt has expressed a need of approximately $300,000 in additional funds for the SIU medical school but Brown related, "he seems to feel we can adjust successfully elsewhere."

SIU-P, President John Rendleman has been less satisfied with the cuts for his campus. The capital improvements budget at Edwardsville was cut by 91 per cent and the operating fund was dropped by 33.2 per cent.

Rendleman has commented that "if the budget is not amended by the legislature it will mean that SIU-E will not be able to implement many academic programs this area needs."

Brown said Rendleman has considered appealing the recommendations to the legislature in Springfield although, Brown said, "that often does little good."

The complete results of DeMartino's study are published in a book, "Sex and the Intelligent Woman."

Study links high IQs to sex drive

A 10-year study has shown women with high IQs are more sexually aggressive and less sexually inhibited than women of average intelligence.

In a recent article the University of Wisconsin campus newspaper reported Syracuse clinical psychologist Manfred F. DeMartino as saying:

"Men have been looking in the wrong direction for a long time. If anything, women of high intelligence are not only as sexy as those of average intelligence but are somewhat more so."

DeMartino, a professor of psychology at Onondaga Community College, said men still believe intelligence and sexuality are incompatible while women react negatively to that belief.

The study results showed intelligent women are most sexually active between the ages 20 and 29. They also see themselves as having stronger than average sex drives.

In his interview, DeMartino said women, "tend to have feelings of high self esteem, they seem to be more adventurous, more experimental and even more innovative in their sexual relationships. They also tend to be very well informed on matters pertaining to sex.

"But I would hope as a result of these findings that women would no longer find their intelligence a detriment in love-sex relationships. They shouldn't feel they have to hide their intelligence and sexual responsiveness do go together."

DeMartino's study was based on a questionnaire filled out anonymously by 324 women in the genius intelligence range.

Their ages spanned from 16 to 61. Most of the women were from the United States, but some live in foreign countries.

DeMartino said he won't attempt a similar study about the sexuality of intelligent males because you can't get them to tell you the truth, and they all consider themselves experts from the age of 14, anyway."

How do genius men compare with the women in sex drives? The world may never know.

Burglaries, thefts increase during student vacation

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale Police reported Monday that 41 January burglaries in Carbondale have netted more than $13,000 for thieves.

Police reported four more burglaries Monday. SIU students were victims in three of the incidents.

Penny Bernard, Janice Dugan, Judith Keyes and Judith Vandewater suffered an estimated loss of $1,000 when their residence at 401 W. College St. was burglarized sometime between Dec. 22 and Jan. 19.

The police report said burglars apparently entered through a window leading to the second floor of the house.

An eight track tape player, tapes, stereo equipment, records, cash and canned food were among the items taken, according to the report.

John Siler, a Wilson Hall, resident had $90 worth of merchandise stolen from his room between Dec. 20 and Jan. 20 police reported.

The burglar apparently gained entry through the window, the report said. Siler told police the thief took a television set and six records.

The third burglary occurred at Chris Muszycki's trailer at 900 E. Park St.

The burglar gained entry through a rear window of the trailer, the report said.

Muszycki told police a portable radio, and alarm clock and a wicker basket were missing. She estimated the loss at $35.

The Rexall Drug Store at 222 W. Freeman St. was burglarized Jan. 18, police reported. William Chaney, the store's owner, told police that drugs and other items were missing. Police found pry marks on the front door.

SIU Security Police Sgt. Robert Drake said no burglaries had been reported to his office by Monday afternoon. The sheriff's office in Murphysboro reported a quiet weekend.

Car accident kills SIU student Friday

An SIU student was killed and two others were injured when their car struck a utility pole at about 1:40 a.m. Friday on U.S. 51 north of Carbondale.

Chris Austin, 18, of Vandalia, was killed when the car he was driving skidded into a utility pole near Hunter Sales Corp., Carbondale. Police said the car was totaled.

Passengers in the car, James Kidd and Scott McAllister, also of Vandalia, were listed in satisfactory condition at the SIU Health Service Monday afternoon.

Only one student candidate remains in Carbondale elections

By Bruce Hackel
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale primary election for two city council seats and mayor will be held Feb. 25—but with only one student among the candidates instead of the three who had announced they would run.

Duncan Koch, who announced he would run for mayor, and John Hardt, who said he would run for councilman, did not file petitions as candidates.

Koch was forced to withdraw because he didn't live in the city limits for the required 12 months. Hardt said he withdrew because Koch did.

Al Turner, junior in political science, remains the only student who filed a petition by the Dec. 28 deadline. This means that Turner will be the only student with his name placed on the ballot, but the possibility of Koch or Hardt running a write-in campaign cannot be ruled out.

With six candidates running for city council, two will be eliminated in the primary. The four winners will have their names placed on the general election ballot.

Incumbent council members Helen Westberg, 706 W. Cherry St., and Clark Lee Vineyare, 902 S. Oakland, both filed petitions with the city clerk for reelection.

The four other candidates for city council are Joseph T. Dakin, 107 S. Parrish Lane; Elmer C. Brandhorst, 630 W. Rigdon St.; Walter G. Robinson, Jr.,

701 N. Billy Bryan St., and Al Turner, 207 W. College.

Dakin is a former chief of police for Carbondale. Robinson is a former director of the Black American Studies program at SIU.

Incumbent Mayor Neal Eckert will be running against Irene Altschuler, a Libertarian Party candidate.

According to city clerk Elisabeth Leighty, there is some question whether the candidates for mayor will appear on both the primary and general election ballot. Usually, a primary is only necessary when more than two candidates file for the same seat. In this year's mayoral race, only two have filed, leaving it unclear if their names will appear on the primary ballot or not. Ms. Leighty said she would have this matter cleared up in the near future.

The last day to register before the primary is Tuesday, Jan. 28. The last day to register before the general election is Tuesday, March 18. The general election will be held April 15.

News Roundup

State speaker race still deadlocked

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—Two Republicans broke party ranks Monday and voted for a Democratic candidate for speaker of the Illinois House, but other GOP legislators held firm and the 13-day-old race remained deadlocked.

Reps. Lee Daniels and Gene Hoffman, both of Elmhurst, cast their votes for Democrat William A. Redmond of Bensenville, their neighbor from the same legislative district.

But other Republicans honored an agreement reached at a party meeting before the marathon balloting began and cast their votes for GOP leader James Washburn of Morris.

Redmond received 79 votes on the 89th ballot, short of the 89 needed for election. Sixteen key Democratic votes again went to veteran party leader Clyde Choate of Anna.

Clemency board to 'fan out'

WASHINGTON (AP)—With only 11 days left of President Ford's amnesty program, the Presidential Clemency Board announced Monday its members will fan out across the nation to spread the word about the plan.

Board Chairman Charles E. Goodell said they will go to the big cities, with the largest television markets, to hold news conferences and make themselves available for interviews to explain and answer questions.

"I want to make it clear that this is not a recruitment drive," but to inform "those who may decide for themselves in case they care to participate," he said.

Fifteen cities have been chosen and Goodell said five or six more may be added.

CIA probe committee set up

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democratic senators voted 45 to 7 Monday to create a bipartisan special committee to investigate the entire U.S. intelligence establishment, including the Central Intelligence Agency and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The Senate's Democratic caucus placed no restrictions on the selection of panel members, a move that represents a sharp defeat for the small cluster of senior senators who traditionally have overseen CIA activities.

Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield said he would be very flexible in naming Democrats to serve on the Watergate-type committee and that some young senators will be named.

State tax fraud case ends

PEORIA, Ill. (AP)—Former State Rep. Pete Pappas, R-Rock Island, pleaded guilty Monday in federal court to filing a false income tax return and was sentenced to three years' probation.

Pappas became the eighth person to plead guilty in connection with payoff schemes for legislation affecting the ready-mix and rental car industries.

Besides the income tax indictment, Pappas was last year named as an undicted co-conspirator in two other federal indictments. He was accused of accepting or arranging payments in both the cement and car rental schemes.

Authorities said Pappas agreed to cooperate in the investigation of the payoffs.

Wallace begins third term

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP)—A partially paralyzed George C. Wallace, beginning a third term as governor, said Monday the suffering he has endured was worth it because Alabama has shown the nation how to live together in peace and tranquility.

"We might be able to give some sort of courses in maybe how to get along in other parts of the country," he said.

Wallace, paralyzed in both legs from an assassination attempt in the 1972 presidential campaign, made no mention of what part he may play in the 1976 election, but he promised to "continue to speak out on national affairs."

House Speaker rejects Ford proposal

President Ford's proposal to rebate some of 1974 income taxes would put 43 per cent of the refund into the hands of the richest 17 per cent of taxpayers, House Speaker Carl Albert said Monday night.

"The Democratic leadership has asked the House to pass a substantial tax reduction bill for middle and lower income persons only by the end of March," Albert said in reply to the speech in which Ford detailed his economic proposals a week ago.

Albert said Ford's proposal for a tax on all fuel "would have an astounding inflationary impact, and would seriously disrupt many industries."

City Council delays ambulance proposal

By Mary Whittler
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale City Council tabled a motion Monday night which would have created a franchised city ambulance and invalid coach service.

Acting Mayor Clark Vineyare said that the question before the council was whether or not to provide a monopoly franchise where one company would have the business exclusively or to have an open franchise in which all who met council standards could provide the service.

The city currently has a contract for ambulance service with SIU. The city reimburses SIU for its losses in operating the ambulance service. City Manager Carroll Fry said the city paid SIU $8,000 for the service last year.

Massage parlor poll will guide City Council

By Mary Whittler
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Carbondale voters will get a chance April 15 to tell the City Council whether massage parlors should be regulated, but council members won't have to accept the verdict.

At the Jan. 6 meeting of the Council, the motion authorizing the non-binding referendum received yes votes from Council members Helen Westberg, Archie Jones, Clark Vineyare and Mayor Neal Eckert.

The referendum will ask: "Shall the city of Carbondale, allow the massaging by persons of one sex, for money, of the bodies of persons of the opposite sex?" and "Shall the city of Carbondale allow the massaging by one person, for money, of the genital parts of the body of another?"

The referendum will serve only to advise the city council on public opinion. The council has the authority to authorize the referendum through its home rule powers.

However, home rule powers in Illinois are relatively new, being first authorized by the 1971 constitution. Jack Ven Der Slik, of the Department of Political Science, said that an ordinance regulating or banning massage parlors would probably be subject to a court test. He said, "The full meaning of home rule powers has not yet been tested on enough court cases to know precisely what it means."

City Attorney John Womick said he believes that the city of Carbondale has the legal right to regulate the massage parlors, and also has the right to ban certain acts within the parlors, such as the massaging of genital areas, or the massaging of persons of the opposite sex. He too feels that the ordinance would be subject to a court test.

Choate choke

Two weeks and a record 89 ballots later, the Illinois House remains locked in a political stalemate over choosing its new Speaker. Clyde Choate, D-Anna, a House leader for over 20 years, was the early favorite of Chicago Mayor Richard Daley but has since been abandoned by hizzoneer in favor of a "compromise" candidate, William Redmond, D-Bensenville. Gov. Dan Walker is also backing Redmond but, without Choate's support Redmond cannot push his vote total to the required 89. Because of the deadlock, the legislature has done nothing but bicker over this influential position.

Most Illinois newspapers have attacked this apparent waste of time, but all is not negative. Just think of some of the things that have not happened because of the legislative clog.

For example, Illinois law-makers have not had time to increase our taxes or their salaries. They have not awarded any padded construction contracts to gift-bearing builders.

Some people hastily point out the problems of our ailing society which have been neglected during these long hours of debate. However, looking at our House's past record, it is doubtful these problems would have been solved by now.

This bickering has also led to some positive things for our boys in Springfield. Major television networks have granted air time to the House election, providing free publicity to the spotlight loving politicians. This mess has also given Southern Illinois legislators the opportunity to air regional loyalties. Everybody has had a chance to sound off, "on the record," against the Daley machine or the Walker mob.

In addition, a new and perilous situation has developed. A maverick freshman Republican, Lee A. Daniels, crossed party lines, in an attempt to end the paralysis, and voted for Redmond.

Daniels said he wanted "to look beyond party lines" for the good of the government. Evidently, Daniels doesn't realize how politically dangerous his maneuver is. It could destroy the political stability of the state. Lobbyists will be reluctant to come around with money-stuffed shoe boxes for anyone concerned merely with the good of the government.

With many new faces in the House this year, the possibilities for chaos are tremendous. If these greenhorns follow Daniels and vote their consciences instead of party allegiance, the entire system will erode.

Illinois' entire political system of road building, ribbon cutting and tax deducting would have to be altered. Maybe this enormous time-waste will, in the end, accomplish something after all.

Ready for ballot No 200?

Drugs not all that killed Bobbie

The most irreconcilable aspect in the suicide of Bobbie Arnstein, executive secretary to "Playboy" magazine's empire mogul Hugh Hefner, is the stupidity with which Hefner explained away her death. While he magnanimously noted she was "already emotionally troubled," Hefner lashed out at the federal government's narcotics investigation of himself as the prime factor leading to her self-inflicted drug overdose.

Hefner's vituperative remarks were self-serving. His charges that the United States Attorney's Office's drug probe is politically motivated may or may not be true. But to say Miss Arnstein annihilated herself solely because of her cocaine conspiracy conviction and pressure to implicate her boss is sheer stupidity. Hefner's ego fails to admit that the forces which made Miss Arnstein's condition so traumatic might be the very lifestyle and philosophy which he, Hefner, expounds so commercially in our society. The "Playboy philosophy" is dehumanizing and consistently depicts women in the demeaning role of objects to be possessed by males and then discarded.

That philosophy is an outrage against the human spirit. It manifests itself in this case by trying to explain something as singularly complex as suicide in simplistic political terms. It did Bobbie Arnstein no good while she was alive and does nothing for anyone with her dead.

There's gotta be ...a better way

By Bob Springer

Wives of national political writers must have a kind of courage and stamina unknown to most mortals.

For nearly nine months every four years, they must endure long, lonely days and nights while their spouses traipse bewilderingly around the nation reporting the latest mealy-mouthed rhetoric of presidential primary candidates.

For so it used to be. Somehow, in the emerging new politics of the 1970s, that nine-month stretch of alienation has been elongated to nearly two years. And it is not wholly their husbands' faults.

Part of the blame at least can be put squarely on the shoulders of the late President John F. Kennedy and the message he sent to every White House hopeful through Theodore H. White's "The Making of the President—1960." That message was simply: organize early and do not look to the party organization for real support until after the national convention.

George McGovern used this lesson well in 1972. With the aid of a delegate-selection rules reform, McGovern was able to build a grass-roots organization early. With it, he was able to blitz through non-primary states and maintain enough strength in primary states to capture the Democratic nomination by Miami's first ballot. To the amazement of most party bosses and political affairs reporters.

Now comes the 1976 presidential election. McGovern may have blown the '72 election, but the lesson he left for Democratic aspirants endures. Barely had the polls closed in November's off-year elections when the ring had already been filled with numerous hats—officially and non-officially.

By some counts, figured in a crazy mystical way which only political writers can concoct, there are no less than fourteen Democratic candidates—those actively seeking their party's nod and those being pushed while publicly denouncing any Air Force One dreams.

Even our own irascible Governor Dan Walker is mentioned by some as a very impossible "possible." You can bet he won't be Daley's "favorite son" in 1976, and all this in-fighting in Springfield over the house speakership has kept Walker too busy to do anything worthwhile for the voters.

The unit-rule reform passed by the Democratic National Committee in Miami has made it imperative that any candidate, even if his dreams are vague and his chances minuscule, get into the race early and get in hard.

Some, such as Washington's Senator Henry "Scoop" Jackson, Texas' freshman Senator Lloyd Bentsen and Stuart Udall's little Congressman brother Morris have openly declared their candidacy. They are already hopping around the country trying to raise the $30-40 million it will take to win the White House in 1976.

And that must drive those poor political writers' wives crazy. Not only does all that stumping keep hubby away from home for unbearable lengths; but, table conversation when the bread-winner IS home must be as meaningless as the silence which prevails while he is gone.

After all, what can a Jules Witcover talk about other than how Wallace may affect such and such and what McCarthy's resurrected insurgency will do to Mondale's chances since Kennedy pulled out and on and on, ad infinitum.

Wives of national political writers have the second greatest amount of courage and stamina than any other mortals.

Brandt discusses higher education

By Mary E. Gardner
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The purpose of higher education means different strokes to different folks, but, in general it all boils down to making "a more meaningful, useful and satisfying life," for each individual, according to SIU President Warren W. Brandt.

Brandt said he realizes that some persons may be looking for careers through higher education, but this is not always the case. For one person the development of creativity is the most important goal, but for someone else that may not be as desirable.

Brandt discussed a wide range of topics recently, outlining what he thinks are the purposes of higher education and some of its problems. While admitting that a university presidency can become involved in political affairs, Brandt said a university should stay out of partisan politics.

The 11th SIU President, who assumed his $50,000-a-year post Dec. 1, said higher education's goals could probably be broken down into four categories: teaching, research, service and the development of students as individuals.

Choosing his words carefully, Brandt said, "in one manner or another you are trying to create educated minds." Brandt discounted as cynical the view that this means merely training students to write the correct answers to particular test questions.

"Higher education is accomplishing much more than that," he said.

The real thing to be gained from all this going to school should be the ability for students to "sift through what they hear, read and see."

"It is the ability to visualize the other person's side and see things in a larger context" which should be the motivating force driving an individual into higher education, Brandt said.

He defined this concept as "a commitment to enhance knowledge."

He said this should not be limited to any particular areas and that "we have to include what the painter does as well as the chemist."

Brandt holds a Ph.D. in Chemistry.

Related to this is "the development of the student as an individual: his personality, maturity. Things that are important to the individual are not always on the academic side of things. I personally feel that higher education should accomplish some of this," Brandt expounded.

"Maybe this is an old hat idea these days," he said.

Aware that some persons claim a student should experience the world before going to college, Brandt contended this view criticizes universities as not contributing to the development of the students as individuals. He disagrees.

Regional services by the institution is another goal to which Brandt has dedicated his administration. He termed service as taking "the knowledge, the expertise, of the educational institution and making it beneficial to John Q. Public."

Brandt said educational service can be boosted in many ways: offering shop courses or teaching a merchant how to better run his firm are just two. Service is bridging the gap between the place that stores knowledge and the people who need it, he said.

"When the public is supporting you, you feel like returning the commitment," Brandt said.

"I don't subscribe to the philosophy that everybody should share and share alike," said Brandt. "Nor do I subscribe to the philosophy that one man ought to benefit from the suffering of another. I am somewhere in between."

He said a person with a higher education should be "better equipped to get a fullness out of life than an uneducated person. If that doesn't happen we should stop and go back," he said, because something has been left out.

Asked if he thought a liberal arts education is important, Brandt replied, "Yes I certainly do. I guess I am not sure that it has to be there for absolutely everybody, but I would hope that everybody would understand the benefits of it."

Responding to the question whether he thinks higher education should avoid any subjects, Brandt replied, "My instinctive answer is no."

While Brandt said he is not sure that everything should be taught in high school, he said universities are different. In high school, subjects are taught more from the "handing it out" process than they are in higher education, where there is a "seek and explore situation," he said.

On the subject of athletics, Brandt said that he feels sports events are an important aspect of higher education. However, he said, there are abuses and imbalances in this field.

Athletics, he said, should not "step on other toes." He said an athletic program should not interfere with or pressure the academic programs.

Brandt said that, for example, he would consider it an abuse of a "football player got an 'A' for a course he never showed up for." He commented that "you can get compromised in this business in a lot of places."

SIU: Come up north

To the Daily Egyptian:

A common question asked by many students at SIU who are about to be assigned to a student teaching position is: Why can't I have my assignment in the Chicago area—where I can live at home with my parents?

The answer usually given by the assignment director (at least when I attended Southern) was: Well, we just can't get you into the schools up there because we aren't contracted with enough schools. In other words, they have more students wanting to teach in the Chicago area than SIU has made placement arrangements.

In retrospect, I can now ask: Why hasn't the Student Teaching Placement Office come up north and tried making the necessary arrangements to place more of their students?

I am happily teaching in the Chicago area and come in contact with educational administrators daily. A question they have asked on several occasions is why can they not get more student teachers. SIU Placement Office, here's your chance. Why not do some checking and more placing in and around Chicago? It can only give SIU the much needed exposure it needs up north.

No accrediting agency can do a better job than SIU's own students being placed in Chicago area assignments. I am convinced that by placing some of Southern's dedicated and hard-working students in the Chicagoland area, SIU will show its true colors, and the talent it can offer, particularly to those who will be in hiring positions when SIU grads come looking for full-time positions.

So just a few words to the short-sighted student teaching placement people at SIU: Put away your typewriters and put down your phones and come up here in person. You'll be surprised what a little footwork can do, and the student teachers requesting a Chicago assignment will love you.

Can't eat the cows

To the Daily Egyptian:

Members of the National Farmer's Organization (NFO) are planning a cattle massacre near Anna. They intend to herd their prime steers into a pit and shoot them.

Supposedly, the killing will protest the inequality of high prices for beef at the counter and low prices paid for cattle on the hoof. The NFO claims it is cheaper to shoot the cattle than to feed them. The cost of feed keeps rising, forcing ranchers to sustain huge losses.

I grew up on a farm and can sympathize with the farmer's plight. They should receive better prices for their stock. But, after watching cattle die in winter's cold, from disease and at birth, I cannot imagine how anyone could suggest the wholesale slaughter of healthy animals.

With millions starving, this proposed bloodbath is obscene. Similar killings have taken place with no effect.

If farmers really want to protest, they should just turn the livestock loose. After enough lawns have been chewed up by hungry cattle, people may understand it all.

Candidate clarifies a point

To the Daily Egyptian:

While Laura Coleman generally gave me sympathetic coverage in her article of Nov. 26, she misunderstood what I had said as reported in the last part of her article. She quotes me as saying "city officials should not 'babyp' the students." I used the words but went on

Helen Reddy

To the Daily Egyptian:

Although I understand that the Arena is meant to serve the entire Southern Illinois area, it seems to me that the people who give the Arena most of its business are getting screwed, i.e., the students.

First you gave us Robert Goulet. Now you come up with a really heavy act: Helen Reddy. I can't wait until Feb. 6 so I can go to the concert and boogie.

Speed laws

To the Daily Egyptian:

After having just driven down Interstate-57 from Chicago, and between getting tail-gated and passed by other cars flying along at 80 m.p.h., I think the lawmakers in Springfield ought to wise up with this 55 m.p.h. speedlimit stuff. It's okay for regular hi-ways, but it doesn't make sense on the interstates.

to explain that students should be given the same consideration as any other citizen. They should not suffer special penalties or be offered privileges not offered to other citizens. Unless they are treated as responsible persons they will never become responsible persons.

Further on she quotes me as saying "if more students were allowed cars, the numerous bars on Illinois Avenue wouldn't have such a captive audience." Miss Coleman tried to telescope a statement of mine and the meaning became distorted. I did say that many of the problems on Illinois Avenue are historic and not easily remedied. Genevieve Houghton on Dec. 18 complained that my article advocated enforcing clearing the streets. This interpretation could only be made from the article because my full statement was not presented.

Follow nature

To the Daily Egyptian:

Nature voluntarily confines herself within harmonious limits. Some men, today, are harbouring sources of greed. I think of the inequities of wealth and the prospects of redistribution. SIU, and most schools in this country, have faced their economic crises with a patience sometimes climaxing in despair.

I am not an expert in finance, yet I understand why a just system of allocation has not been realized. Either all of the parts are harmonious or most of us suffer involuntarily.

Could a state or federal act of legislation be an effective means of limiting private accumulations of wealth and procure much needed funds for other areas of the economy—especially our troubled schools?

Letters to the Daily Egyptian

The Daily Egyptian welcomes expression of opinions from all members of the University community. Writers are requested to be concise and, in the event the subject has a time element, to bring letters to the Daily Egyptian newsroom as early in the day as possible. The editors reserve the right to condense letters to permit a larger variety of opinions, to correct minor typographical and grammatical errors, and to edit out material that is considered libelous or in bad taste. Letters should be typed, double-spaced and accompanied by the full address and signature of the writer.

Feminist comedy, bluegrass, mime will highlight spring convocations

AIR ILLINOIS OFFERS DAILY SERVICE TO CHICAGO
ST. LOUIS
MEMPHIS
AIR ILLINOIS INCORPORATED
5, 11L AIRPORT 457-2143
We still offer student fares.

Feminist comedy, bluegrass music, open theater and an evening of mime will highlight this semester's University Convocations Series. Ten programs have been booked for the winter and spring series, all of which are admission free for both University and local people.

Opening the series this Saturday will be The American Kantorie. "A Schweitzer Celebration." Albert Schweitzer would have been 100 years old this Jan. 14, and the program is composed of music by his favorite composer, J.S. Bach.

The music will be performed by The American Kantorie, and Marianne Webb of the SIU School of Music, will play the Shryock organ. Distinguished Professor of Philosophy Paul A. Schilpp and Professor of Religious Studies John Hayward will speak on Schweitzer.

"An Evening of Mme." the silent theater art of movement and expression most frequently associated with Marcel Marceau, will take to the Shryock Stage on Friday, Jan. 31. Bert Houle and Sophie Wibaux, resident mimists with the Loretto-Hilton Theater of St. Louis will present the program.

Bits and hits of Broadway musicals and operettas are the substance of "Three on Broadway," scheduled for Monday, Feb. 10.

Singers Jan McArt and Ronald Rogers, and an accompanying pianist are the three who perform musical numbers from a wide variety of shows.

On Tuesday, March 11, feminist comedienne "Harrison and Tyler" will present their special brand of humor.

Julia Henderson, Secretary General of the International Planned Parenthood Federation will be the United Nations Week speaker on Friday, March 14. This program, which is being cosponsored by the SGAC Model United Nations, will be held at 7:30 p.m. in Ballroom D of the Student Center.

Contemporary Dance soloist Daniel Nagrin will perform a retrospective of his dances on the Shryock stage on Wednesday, March 19. Nagrin will be at SIU for a two-and-one-half-day residency in collaboration with the dance program, Academic Affairs, the Illinois Arts Council and The National Endowment for the Arts.

The Orchestra of St. John's Smith Square, from Great Britain, will present a concert on Monday, April 7. The group will feature world renowned oboist Bert Lucarelli.

A show based on the character and career of the great film comedian W.C. Fields, will happen on Saturday, April 19. "W.C. Fields, 80 Proof!" starring actor Richard Paul, will be a theatrical look at Field's humor.

Picking and singing bluegrass music on Wednesday, April 30 will be "Red, White and Blue (grass)." The group previously enjoyed an enthusiastic response from SIU students when they appeared in the Convocations series in the Fall of 1973.

And finally, the Medicine Show Theater Ensemble from New York City will finish this semester's series on Saturday, May 3. This company was originally one-half of the famous "Open Theater" in N.Y.C., and will use comedy, music and techniques of modern theater in their program.

All 'Convo' programs are held in Shryock Auditorium at 8 p.m., unless otherwise listed, and are followed by a free backstage coffee hour. Sponsored by Student Government Activities Council, the coffee hour offers an opportunity for the audience to meet with the performers.

We've designed UNIVERSITY 4 Theatres with you in mind!

- 4 YOUR COMFORT — COOL AIR CONDITIONING AND SOFT WIDE COMFORTABLE SEATING
- 4 YOUR CONVENIENCE — ALWAYS ACRES OF FREE PARKING AT THE DOOR
- 4 YOUR PLEASURE — FOUR LUXURIOUS MOTION PICTURE THEATRES UNDER ONE CLIMATE CONTROLLED ROOF
- 4 YOUR SELECTION — FOUR FILMS CHOSEN TO APPEAL TO ALL AGES AND TASTES AT REASONABLE PRICES

WHY FOUR THEATRES?

1. The four theatre concept is a logical bi-product of the trend to more intimate film subjects shown in intimate size theatres not unlike what has been the norm in New York legitimate theatres for years.
2. Audience reaction comes much easier in smaller auditoriums where patrons do not feel lost on slow nights.
3. The four theatres offer maximum flexibility in booking as well as performance schedules.
4. A mix of four different films can be booked with appeal to all ages so that adults may attend a picture with adult appeal while their children may attend another theatre with more appeal for them, etc.
5. The same picture, depending on its importance, may play in two or more theatres at the same time with staggered show times to allow the patron to pick the performance most convenient for him. Then, as a picture drops off it can be dropped out of one house, etc. and held in a single house as long as it deserves to continue to play.
6. Patrons can come to the quad complex every week and see a different picture, as at least one or more theatres will have a change of feature weekly. This, as opposed to a single house playing a long run feature which automatically excludes the area patron having seen the current attraction until a change of program allows another visit to the theatre.
7. The multi-theatre concept also allows the patron wishing to attend a sold-out performance the option of selecting another feature to attend.

Rare books on display

By Tom Zaranonello
Student Writer

Eighty-five items from Morris Library's extensive collection of privately printed works are on display in the Library's rare book room.

The exhibit will remain on display at least another month, a library employee said. The rare book room is located on the second floor. Visiting hours are 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The exhibit ranges from the 1768 edition of Charles Jean Francois Henault's tragedy, "Cornelie, vestale," printed by Horace Walpole's Strawberry Hill Press, to a 1974 publication printed by the Hinterlands Press of Carbondale.

Among private printers represented are William Morris and his Kelmscott Press, the Daniel Press, the Roycrofters, T.J. Cobden-Sanderson and the Doves Press, the Nonesuch Press, the Gregynog Press in Wales, Elizabeth and Lily Yeats' Cuala Press, Harry and Ceresse Crosby's Black Sun Press, and the works of John Henry Nash.

Also displayed is a 1955 Horstmann Press of Carbondale, which was used by SIU faculty members Howard R. Long and Francis Modlin to publish materials on journalism.

The exhibit also includes a number of recent American private press editions and several samples from Southern Illinois' Trovillion private press. The press operated in Herrin in 1908 at Hal W. Trovillion's home. After Trovillion's death in 1966, the library acquired his papers and his extensive library of contemporary private press books.

New laws help vets

An increasingly favorable credit record set by veterans and the effects of spiraling inflation prompted President Ford to sign several bills which will increase and broaden GI benefits.

Veterans with disabilities requiring adaptive equipment on automobiles will be able to obtain grants up to $3,300 to offset expenses.

Other veterans will now be able to obtain guarantees from the Veterans Administration (VA) of up to $17,500 on home loans. Previously the maximum was $12,500.

The new laws will also provide:

—driver training programs at various VA hospitals to better train disabled veterans in using their automotive adaptive equipment;

—loans to purchase lots for previously owned mobile homes; and —an increase in the maximum permissible loan for a single width mobile home unit to $12,500 and double wide to $20,000.

New Health Service bus to begin pick-ups Feb. 3

By Mary E. Gardner
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A temporary bus route to the Health Service will begin Feb. 3, Sam McVay, administrative director of the Health Service announced. The bus will run around the southern end of the campus from University Park.

The bus will leave at 7:30 a.m. from the temporary bus stop at Building 0720, go to Southern Hills and Evergreen Terrace, then end at the Health Service, Harry Wirth, manager of the Travel Service said. Travel service is coordinating the route.

The bus will depart Health Service at 8 a.m., and stop at the entrance to Thompson Point and also across from the Student Center on its route back to the blue barracks, Wirth said.

Wirth said the bus is expected to leave Building 0720 every hour on the half-hour until its last run at 4:30 p.m. It will leave the Health Service each hour on the hour, he said.

The last bus will depart from the Health Service each day at 5 p.m., making its scheduled stops at Thompson Point and the Student Center. However, said Wirth, the bus will not wait till 5:30 before leaving Building 0720. It will stop at the barracks to drop off passengers and then proceed to Southern Hills and Evergreen Terrace, the end of the route for the day.

Permanent signs will be installed at each bus stop about a week before the service begins, Harold Blum, assistant to the vice president for student affairs, said.

The signs will be 24 inches in diameter with a two-inch white border, and a blue background with a white bus in the center, Blum said.

Wirth said although the bus is primarily for transporting students to and from the Health Service, students will be able to get on and off the bus at any of the scheduled stops. There will be no bus fare.

The bus will be able to carry 40 passengers, Wirth said. If a 40-passenger bus is not needed, a smaller bus will be used instead, he added.

The Health Service bus will post a sign on the window opposite the driver indicating its destination so students will not confuse it with buses to VTI and the airport which also stop at the blue barracks.

Filing deadline near for local candidates

Pat Corcoran
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Candidates for local offices must file with the county clerk by Jan. 31 as required by the Campaign Disclosures Law, Dave Belknap, spokesman for the State Board of Elections, said Monday.

The initial filing is a statement of candidacy for elective office in the city elections, he explained. City elections in Jackson County will consist of a primary on Feb. 25 and a general election on April 15.

The disclosures law took effect on Jan. 1 for candidates in local races. It was enacted by the General Assembly last September, Belknap said.

"Local political committees must also file with the county clerk and make reports of their contributions though they may not be directly involved with any particular candidate," he said.

"The law requires both a 30 day and a 60 day report on campaign contributions for both the primary and the general elections," Belknap said.

The law contains criminal penalties for non-compliance and it is necessary that citizens and groups be informed of the deadlines set by law, he said. Contribution reports must be made within 30 days prior to the election and all contributions made after Jan. 1 are subject to the law, Belknap added.

"Annual reports of campaign expenditures are also required from the local political committees as well as the post-campaign contributions report to be made by the candidate.

"Each candidate and committee must file before both elections, and because the elections are so close we will have many reports coming in and the deadlines may get confusing. Anyone with questions is urged to contact their county clerk or the state Board of Elections with questions regarding the filing dates," Belknap said.

GM follows Chrysler, Ford in rebates policy

DETROIT (AP)—General Motors has announced a program of rebates of up to $500 to buyers of specified models of the firm's small cars. The rebates, retroactive from Jan. 13, will extend to Feb. 28.

GM became the last of the Big Three auto makers to announce the rebate policy. Chrysler and Ford announced similar programs earlier this month in an attempt to clear out huge stocks of cars.

GM said Monday that rebates of $200 will be paid to buyers of Chevrolet Vega and Nova, Pontiac Astre and Ventura, Oldsmobile Omega and Buick Apollo and Skylark models.

Buyers of Chevrolet Monza 2 plus 2, Oldsmobile Starfire and Buick Skyhawk will get $500, GM said.

General Motors dealers have 250,000 of the cars in stock and ready for immediate sale, said Board Chairman Thomas Murphy.

Oil decision postponed

The decision to ask President Warren W. Brandt to begin negotiations for oil exploration on University property has been postponed for a third time.

The Campus Natural Areas Committee has no deadline for recommending that President Brandt begin negotiations with the American Petroleum Co. "It seems to me that we could render a decision by early March," Gilbert H. Kroening, committee chairman, said.

Questions were raised at a Jan. 15 meeting by representatives of the botany, forestry and agriculture departments about proposed exploration sites.

If research areas are not disturbed, the botany department will not object to oil leasing, said Robert Mollenbrock, botany department representative.

The University can keep the oil companies out of these areas, T. Richard Mager, vice president for development and services, said.

We would have a site selection committee to okay any site," he said. "I think any company would work this way with us."

Reports from other universities that allow drilling have not mentioned any environmental damage, Mager said.

A spokesman from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) said that few complaints have been received about oil drilling. Complaints received by the EPA concerned overflow wastes causing vegetation damage, the spokesman said.

Death, birth rates increase at 4 a.m.

By Paul Salack
Student Writer

More terminal illness cases die at 4 a.m. than any other single time. Insomniacs tend to wake at this hour and expectant mothers are most apt to give birth at this time.

This phenomenon is caused by biological rhythms regular cyclical changes in body temperature, energy, and fluid levels. The most common rhythms in man are called "circadian," which means "about a day." This refers to the time period of most cycles.

Arne Sollberger, an M.D. in SIU's School of Medicine, has been studying these rhythms since "before 1950." He has written two books and over 80 papers on the subject. He has also served as secretary of the International Society of Biological Rhythms for 12 years.

Sollberger said early researchers in this field were regarded as quacks by their contemporaries. "When I got into the game, it was more accepted," he said.

Circadian rhythms are described by Sollberger as being a survival mechanism. "The environment oscillates. It seems better to follow it rather than fight it," he said. "Being able to adapt to the environment increases a species chance of survival," Sollberger said.

Scientists once believed biological rhythms to be a passive reaction of the body to the environment. It is now believed that rhythms are controlled by an internal mechanism.

Although this is commonly accepted, Sollberger said no one has yet been able to locate this mechanism in the body.

Experiments placing people in constant environments proved the existence of the "oscillator," said Sollberger. Caves and tunnels were used to keep people in constant light and temperature conditions. If biological rhythms are merely a passive reaction to the environment, the rhythms would disappear in this type of environment.

"It didn't," Sollberger said. He said the cycle tended to vary a little (from 23-27 hours) but generally stayed around a 24-hour frequency.

"Day and night people" is another phenomenon related to circadian rhythms. "Day people" are those who operate at peak efficiency early in and throughout the day. "Night people" don't really come alive until later in the day, sometimes not until night, Sollberger said. "Little is known about this, except it is certainly true.

"I am good for little but shuffling paper before noon," he said. "Midnight until four in the morning is my best time."

At around 4 a.m., the body switches from night to day activity, Sollberger said. This involves changes in body temperature and function. Sollberger said this might be why the body is most vulnerable at this time. "Possibly it has enough to do with the switch," he said.

Students learn quilting art

By Dan Ward
Student Writer

With the concentrated look of a microbiologist working with a deadly virus, 14 novice quilters sat around a table pushing needles through ornate patterns of patches.

The 14 SIU students, all of them female, were starting to quilt the patchwork pillows they've been making since the first Free School quilting class two months ago.

When the first class was held, 35 potential quilters showed up. Last Thursday only the most patient 14 remained.

"There's a guy in the class, but he couldn't make it tonight," said one of the students.

Although the class has shrunk, the teacher, Alma Taylor, is happy with the number of students she has.

Bill Haley, chairperson of the Free School, said the Free School is lucky to find somebody as qualified as Taylor. "She's been quilting all her life," he said.

Taylor said that although she has done patchwork for 26 years, she learned to quilt only last September at John A. Logan College. "Quilting" means to sew a piece of material on to some sort of insulation. Traditional American quilts were made with down for insulation. The Free School class is using a polyester batting made especially for quilts.

Taylor learned to do patchwork sewing by watching her mother at quilting socials.

"My mother quilted and her mother before her and her mother before her. They had to have something to put on the beds to keep warm," she said.

In addition to the Free School quilting class, Taylor teaches the ancient art to fellow members of the University Women's Club. She has a frame that is used to support a bed-sized patchwork while members cooperate to quilt it to a piece of backing.

The University Women's Club is an organization made up of SIU faculty wives. Taylor's husband, Loren, teaches in the Recreation Department.

While quilting is usually thought of as American folk art, its roots go back to China. Marco Polo brought samples of Chinese quilts back to Europe, where Western variations were created.

"I think it goes back further than China," Taylor said. "Wherever somebody first sewed two skins together—you know, with fur on the inside and on the outside to keep warm—that was the first quilt."

A new interest in quilts has caused many Americans to try their hands at an art their grandparents considered a necessity.

According to Taylor, a hand-made quilt used to sell for $5 or $6. Today the prices range from $35 to $2,000 for a new quilt.

"At an auction," Taylor said, "someone might get one for $35 or $40 if nobody there knows anything about them." She said quilts sold for up to $2,000 at a recent auction in New York.

Residents of Alto Pass formed a quilting co-operative that has proved to be successful.

"I don't think the people in Alto Pass will sell one for under $100," she said. An Amish cooperative in Ohio lists quilts ranging in price from $105 to $335.

"The Amish make just about perfect quilts," Taylor said. "Appalachian quilts aren't as good. The stitches are big and lumpy."

The profits from selling a quilt seem high until one considers the amount of effort involved in making one. Taylor said that it usually takes "three or four months" to produce a bed-size quilt, working at least eight hours each day.

The patchwork, or sewing various colored patches together to make the cloth covering, is the real time-consumer. Taylor said that her mother's quilting socials have quilted patchworks into bedspreads in a day.

A peculiarity of 19th century quilts is that each region had its own patterns and color arrangements that allow an expert to place the origin of a quilt. Students in the Free School class all are working on a pattern called the "Ohio Star." Other patterns have colorful names such as "Texas Star," "Snowball," "Pinwheel," and "Wedding Ring."

Campus buses change routes

Inter-campus bus service to the School of Technical Careers is being routed around Wall Street this week.

Wall Street has been closed by the city from Grand Avenue to East Freeman due to construction. Inter-campus buses will take Grand Avenue east to Lewis Lane and then north to Route 13. Return trips from the school to the Carbondale campus will also take this route. Until Wall Street is reopened, all passengers will load and unload at the blue classroom barracks near the Security office. The University City stop will be used again when Wall Street is reopened.

Employes alarmed by payroll change

A change in payroll procedures for SIU employes has spurred pocketbook panic among many of the University's rank and file. However, university officials say there is no cause for alarm.

The confusion was sparked when federal income tax withholding forms came in the mail to SIU employes. It appeared to many that they were credited with only about half of the wages earned and taxes paid for last year.

Worried workers have set the bells ringing in the office of James Hamilton, payroll office director. The beleaguered Hamilton has been glued to the phone, explaining that a change in procedure implemented July 1 of last year has caused the false alarm. Under the new procedure, state warrants instead of SIU checks began to go to employes paid wholly by the state.

"What's happening," Hamilton explained, "is that persons paid from state funds will get two W-2 forms this year, one from SIU-C and one from the state comptroller's office."

Persons paid in whole or in part from restricted money, such as employes in income-producing units like housing or food service, stayed under the old system, with checks issued by the University. These people will get only one withholding form, Hamilton explained.

Hamilton said most of the forms from the state comptroller should be in the mail by now. About half of the school's regular full-time payroll is affected by the new procedure.

Carbondale property qualifies for flood insurance program

Carbondale was accepted into the National Flood Insurance Program on Jan. 14, according to the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Under the program, individual property owners are now eligible to buy flood insurance protection at federally subsidized rates, according to J. Robert Hunter, acting administrator.

In order to be eligible for the insurance, the property must be located in areas identified as flood-prone by HUD, Hunter said.

Three areas in Carbondale are flood-prone, according to planning director James W. Rayfield. They are areas in the flood plains of Piles-Fork Creek, Crab Orchard Creek and Little Crab Orchard Creek.

The contents of all residential buildings can be insured up to $10,000 per unit at 35 cents per $100 of coverage. For all nonresidential structures, the rate goes to 75 cents per $100, up to a maximum of $100,000 in coverage per unit.

Recycled waste may become food for animals

By J. Peter Gonigam
Student Writer

In a time in which people are becoming increasingly conscious of waste and seeking ways to re-use waste, it is almost inevitable that someone would try to recycle the ultimate waste—manure.

D. Dixon Lee, SIU Associate professor of the animal industries department, is experimenting with the possibilities of feeding cattle on their own manure.

Lee says he began his project working from the premise that between 25 and 50 percent of the nutrients in cattle feed are not absorbed and the esthetics of the situation and environmental regulations demand you do something with manure, anyway.

After pilot experiments with sheep, Lee reports he conceived one year ago of using manure as a component of a feed designed to bring cattle to market weight. Lee's feed consisted of one third manure and two thirds dry whole shell corn. After mixing, the combination was ensilaged to let the corn draw moisture from the manure and allow the mixture to ferment.

Lee fed his experimental mixture, which he calls "cornury," to a group of test animals and correlating weight gain with feed cost. In Lee's experiment, animals fed on cornury gained weight at a slightly lower rate than animals fed a normal finishing feed, but the cost of cornury was found to be about 30 percent less than the normal finishing feed.

This year Lee says he intends a variation of his initial experiment by using corn straight out of the field rather than mechanically dried corn. He says the mixture may be a somewhat more difficult to control during ensilage, but the elimination of mechanical drying might drive the cost of cornury even lower.

Lee says that while there is a great deal of interest in the concept of incorporating manure into feed, two factors could limit the use of cornury. First, Lee says that somewhat special equipment is needed to mix and ferment the feed and that smaller producers may not have such equipment. He says that a second factor is the rising cost of corn and feed grains.

Student aids German youths

By Karen Decker
Student Writer

"Sprechen Sie Deutsch?"

Joe Bob Pierce was at work at the IGA store in Wayne City when he heard his friend Fred Vallowe speak those German words, meaning "Do you speak German?" over the phone two years ago.

What Vallowe meant was, "You've been chosen by the Illinois Baptist Student Union (IBSU) to go to Germany."

Every year, Baptist college students all over the United States volunteer for summer positions in the United States or overseas to help Baptist churches coordinate youth activities.

Pierce, 21, a senior majoring in radio and television, was officially informed by mail of his appointment to the German position in February, 1973. He would work in Germany for two and a half months—from the beginning of June until mid-August.

Lydia Barrow was also appointed to the position by the Baptist Student Union of her home state—Georgia. Together she and Pierce traveled throughout part of Germany, working with American Baptist churches formed by American servicemen near Army posts and Air Force bases.

The Baptist Student Union paid for Pierce's round trip to Germany, and gave him an honorarium of $130. Since he was a guest of the German churches, he said that "wouldn't have had to take any extra money." But, while he was in Germany, Pierce bought many souvenirs, among them crystal ringers and a cuckoo clock.

According to Pierce, the trip was a good experience. "When I first got back, I was not aware that I'd learned anything about human nature, the things I'd learned were mostly about myself," he said, looking back over the year and a half since his return to the States.

Reminiscing about a bicycle trip down the Rhine River Valley, visits to many castles and a trip through Germany to Interlocken, Switzerland, Pierce said that Germany is really a beautiful place to visit.

While in Switzerland, during the week of July 13, Pierce attended the English Speaking European Baptist Convention.

There are no real requirements for an appointment to a summer mission position, Pierce said. To be appointed to a certain job, however, one must be qualified for that position. Requirements for the German position included the ability to lead singing.

"All that changed once I got over there, though," Pierce added. He and Barrow took on responsibilities that they were not used to, he said. Their work varied with each church.

Pierce and Barrow spent about a week at each church. They helped each church's youth group and usually still had time to sightsee.

The churches Pierce worked with were all small, ranging from 50-200 members.

Any American Baptists who wanted to form a church in Germany had to ask an American Baptist pastor to come to Germany. This American pastor, then, since he was not part of the American military base, had to live on the Germany economy.

When Pierce returned to the United States, his summer job was not completed. With his many slides of Germany, Pierce spoke at about a dozen Illinois Baptist churches about Germany. Speaking to different churches, Pierce said, "is like public relations for the Summer Mission Program."

Bogus graduate student causes 'real' problems

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP)—"I'm a little confused by the whole thing," says John Q. Johnson III—the real one.

He well might be confused. A bogus John Q. Johnson III used the real one's Harvard College transcript to fool three major universities into admitting him to graduate school and two major banks into giving him jobs as a management trainee. He didn't use his picture, however. The real Johnson is white, the bogus one is black.

The real Johnson was graduated from Harvard with honors in 1973 and is now a graduate student in political science at Stanford University in California. He said the episode "involves problems for me."

The fake Johnson, according to an account in Monday's Harvard Crimson, turned up at Pittsburgh's Mellon National Bank as a management trainee last summer.

Jackson Blair, who hired him, was quoted as saying the fake Johnson had an "unbelievable" file of references.

That description turned literally true—the references didn't check out, and the fake Johnson was fired in December.

Mellon lent the impostor $3,000 as an employee's loan but froze his deposits when he was fired. Blair said, "The amount we're out for isn't enough to justify taking any action on our behalf."

The impostor got a similar job at the First National City Bank of New York, which was so impressed that it offered him a $5,000 subsidy for study for a master's degree in business at the University of Chicago and sponsored him for admission there, even though he also had been admitted to Cornell and Carnegie-Mellon universities.

Chicago's dean of students, Harold R. Metcalf, said he did not check the impostor's background because the bank said it had.

Describing the young man's credentials as "spectacular," Metcalf said, "I wasn't smart enough to see through all this. I have a little egg on my face."

Robert W. Brocksbook, a Mobile Oil Corp. recruiter, interviewed the impostor, got suspicious and warned Metcalf, who checked references, confronted the fake, received a denial—and a disappearance by him from the university.

None of the bank's subsidy had been paid.

SIU ARENA

Wrestlers open new year with bang

By Dave Wiczorek
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

One of the busiest and most productive teams during the holidays was the SIU wrestling team.

During the month of January, the grapplers posted a 7-1 record which includes three wins at the Wisconsin Quadrangular meet.

"The road trip was great—that's the right way to do things," said a satisfied Lynn Long, Saluki mentor. "Since we moved Goldsmith (Joe) down to the 118 class, he's gotten more consistent, and it has also shaken a few guys out of their doldrums and they've become more consistent."

Back on Jan. 4, the Salukis traveled to Chick Evans Fieldhouse to face the Huskies of Northern Illinois. Southern came away from that one with a 17-17 draw. Clyde Ruffin, Fred Hoef, Jim Horvath and Mark Wiesen all posted wins for SIU, with Ruffin getting the only pin of the match.

SIU scored its first victory of the new year Jan. 8 by stomping the University of Tennessee-Martin 26-10. The highlight of the match came in the heavyweight division when SIU's Tim Swoboda pinned his man in 51 seconds. Mike Pickhoyer, Dennis Lewis, Hoef, Horvath, Tim Maday and Wiesen all muscled to victories.

On Jan. 11, the Salukis once again made their way to the north, this time to meet the University of Illinois at a meet held at Naperville high school a western suburb of Chicago.

It was here that SIU suffered its first loss of 1975. Goldsmith, Ruffin, Maday and Jay Friedrich were the only Salukis who won in the 21-11 defeat.

Southern got a scare four days later when it edged by Illinois State in Normal 17-16. On Thursday, the Salukis breezed by Western Illinois and its Japanese coach, Mitsuo Nakai (the only Japanese head coach in the country), 28-6. Winners for SIU were Goldsmith, Lewis, Ruffin, Hoef, Horvath, Wiesen, Friedrich and Swoboda with a pin.

Again on Friday, the Salukis got involved in a nail-biter but pulled out a victory over the Marquette Warriors 21-14. Swoboda and Eggert could do no better than draws, while Hoef was being decisioned 5-2 and Friedrich was pinned.

The holiday schedule was completed Saturday at the Wisconsin Quadrangular. SIU handily defeated all three teams with some fine wrestling. Parkside, which lost to SIU 23-13, boasted two NAIA champions in 142-pound All-America Bill West and 158-pounder Randy Skarda.

Ruffin defeated West and Horvath put the clamps on Skarda.

The most exciting match of the day came when Friedrich, at 177 pounds, pinned Parkside's heavyweight, who had more than a 30-pound advantage.

Oshkosh proved no match for the Southern grapplers, losing 25-6, and SIU walked right by the only other NCAA Division I team, Wisconsin-Milwaukee 35-2.

Despite all the action Lynn says the "whole team is healthy."

"The guys started loosening up and wrestling with abandon, with that reckless feeling, then we started rolling," Long said.

The wrestlers will have the rest of the week to recuperate from the holiday action before they entertain the Indiana Hoosiers Saturday, in the SIU Arena.

"I really can't say what we can expect from Indiana, I don't know them that well," Long commented. "If we are consistent and wrestle the way we should, we won't back down from anyone."

Freshmen key win for women acrobats

By Martha Sanford
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

"The freshmen on the women's gymnastics team are giving the upperclassmen a bit of a hard time, scoring wise that is," head coach Herb Vogel said Monday.

Results of the Jan. 17 double dual meet with Grandview College and the University of South Dakota are proof of Vogel's statement.

SIU topped its opponents at Des Moines, Iowa, with a team score of 106.35 to top Grandview's 100.50 and South Dakota's 66.95 and win the meet.

The team also took first place in each of the four individual events, three of the events being won by freshmen.

SIU scored 26.65 in the uneven bars, followed by Grandview with 23.80 and South Dakota with 12.95. SIU freshman Denise Diddier took first in that event with a 9.15 and Beth Shepard and Pat Hanlon took second and third for SIU.

The highest event score for SIU was the floor exercises. SIU scored 27.35 over Grandview's 26.65 and South Dakota's 19.75. Shepard, also an SIU freshman, earned first in that event with a 9.30, despite a sprained ankle she suffered early in the meet. Sandi Gross and Stephanie Stromer placed second and third for SIU.

In vaulting, SIU scored 26.65, led by first place winner Lynn Govin, the third SIU freshman, who scored 9.0. Grandview's team score for that event was 25.85 to South Dakota's 19.50. Gross took third in the event. In the final event, the balance beam, SIU scored 25.70, Grandview 23.50 and South Dakota 14.85. Dianne Grayson won the event with an 8.95. Govin took second and Gross tied for third.

One-man teams can be beaten, but balance can't.

The rugged Saluki gymnastics team found that out in opening an even more rugged schedule, as it won just one of three meets prior to spring semester.

The only win came at the expense of Brigham Young Jan. 18, as the Salukis' depth proved to be too much for BYU star Wayne Young to handle singlehandedly.

Young won every event, with only a tie with SIU's Glen Tidwell in the parallel bars marring the performance. However, the Salukis captured runnerrups and thirds in all events but one to win the meet 207.90 — 186.30.

Young, one of the best in the country, scored 9.1 or better in each event, while totaling 55.7 in all-around scoring. Tidwell tied him with a 9.3 in the parallel bars, while senior Jim Ivceck led the visitors in all other categories.

Ivceck won seconds in the sidesehorse, 8.65; rings, 9.35; longhorse, 9.15; high bar, 9.4, and all-around, 54.4. He also finished third in the floor exercise and parallel bars with 8.65 and 9.2, respectively.

The victory over Brigham Young was sandwiched by two defeats, but neither was a crying-towel affair. Both victors were powerhouses, with Iowa State rolling 216.90 — 212.30 Jan. 13 and California winning 267.65-263.70 (five men scoring) Jan. 18.

"We did real well at Berkeley," Saluki coach Bill Meade remarked. "The win at Provo showed some improvement all down the line, but there was a lot of improvement at Berkeley."

Jon Hallberg keyed the team's performance at Berkeley with his highest all-around score ever at 53.10. His top finish came in the floor exercise where he tied for third, while his all-around total was good for fourth.

Ivceck capped the all-around title in that meet with a 55.30 that included firsts on the pommel horse, vaulting and parallel bars. He added a second on the rings and a tie for second in the floor exercise.

Kim Wall, back from a wrist injury, competed for the first time this season and scored a credible 51.90, third highest on the team.

"Wall blew the rings a little bit, but otherwise it was a good score," Meade commented. "It means he's getting healthy again."

The California loss was much less depressing than the season-opening one to Iowa State, which was lost in the opening two events. The Salukis were swamped in the floor exercise, with only Ivceck topping the fifth-place Cyclone.

After Eddie Hembd's second and Ivceck's tie for third were SIU's only credible showings in the sidesehorse competition, the visitors had dug their own grave.

Ivceck and Jack Laurie finished 3-4 on the rings, and Jim McFaul won the longhorse. Ivceck and Tidwell finished 2-3 on the parallel bars, and Ivceck was first on the high bars.

Ivceck nudged Cyclone Mark Graham for the all-around title, 54.85-54.30. Tidwell was fourth with 51.00, followed by Hallberg with 50.45.

"We lost the meet in the first two events," Meade said. "We did well in the last four, and Hembd and Ivceck worked real well."

The Salukis open their home season Saturday, hosting New Mexico.

Swimmers booed in South America

Jorge Delgado, native and national hero of Ecuador, won individual honors, and sophomore Dave Swenson finished second.

SIU drew crowds of between 3,000 and 3,500 for practices, exhibitions and the meet and "they sold box seats right at the edge of the pool, just like baseball," Steele marveled.

SIU competed in one other meet, which was actually supposed to be an exhibition.

"It was our last night on the trip and we went to Quito for an exhibition, but when we got there they told us it was going to be a meet," Steele said. The officials wanted our guys to swim in several events.

"Quito is a mountain town with an elevation of 9,300 feet. We had been training at sea level, and the guys were having trouble breathing in the streets at the higher level," Steele said.

He agreed to let the swimmers perform in one event each and "we got wisted (booed) out of the place when Delgado won the last event of the night, the 200-butterfly."

Upon their return to Carbondale, the team continued intensive training, averaging 7 to 9 miles per day of workouts but it didn't help tremendously—they were slaughtered in Bloomington, Ind. last Friday by the Hoosiers 83-25.

"Indiana was awesome. They beat us badly," signed Steele. "Of course, the only team in the country that can beat them is Southern California."

Southern wasn't completely

Garrett, who has amassed 12,867. Garrett is third behind North Carolina State's David Thompson and Notre Dame Dwight Clay.

The other members of the East squad's starting lineup so far are Indiana's Steve Green and Thompson's teammate Monte Towe.

shutout and won two events which was an accomplishment in itself.

Dave Swenson went his lifetime bests in the 100- and 500-yard freestyle and finished first and second, respectively. Jorge Delgado captured the only other Saluki first place as he out-stroked a Hoosier by less than a tenth of a second.

The next day SIU returned to the friendly confines of Pulliam Pool where they crushed Ohio State 73-42. The Buckeyes finished tenth in the nationals last season, but all of their points were accumulated in diving competition.

They proved to be no match for the Salukis in the swimming events.

Shag is back, Salukis on right track

By Ron Sutton
Daily Egyptian Sports Editor

The Shag is back.

As a result, the SIU cagers have brushed aside three straight foes for the first time this season to fashion a trim 10-4 mark heading into a week-long midseason break.

The Salukis' next outing will be Monday night at Tulsa, Okla., against the Oral Roberts Titans, 11-3, starting at 7:30 p.m.

The road no longer seems so rocky, thanks largely to the spirited play of 6-foot-4 crowd pleaser Shag Nixon. Nixon, bogged down by a heavy cold for several weeks, recovered in time to lead the Salukis to the three consecutive road triumphs after they had faltered four of seven times on foreign floors.

"We're very pleased with the way the first half of the season went," remarked Saluki Coach Paul Lambert, whose charges were 12-3 at this time last year. A year ago, however, SIU had hosted eight games, compared to half that this year.

"Shag hasn't been doing anything he couldn't always do," Lambert observed. "We were depending a lot on Mike (Glenn) and Joe (Meriweather) early in the season, and our opponents weren't guarding anybody but those two players.

"The rest of our players weren't doing what they could do," he said. "It's obvious we need more than one or two starters and that's what Shag has given us."

The senior forward's all-around performance gives the Dogs a three-pronged scoring attack and balanced rebounding, not to mention a defensive boost.

"Shag doesn't guard you," Lambert quipped. "He backs you up and checks your blood type."

Despite his resurgence, Nixon still has not broken into the starting lineup. The reason?

"Shag is very active and gives us a big lift coming off the bench," according to his coach.

The Salukis were badly in need of some reserve strength after losing 6-foot-6 transfer forward Mack Turner for the season with a knee injury. Turner, out since the Jan. 2 Samford game, required surgery on torn cartilage in his right knee suffered during pre-season.

A rundown of the Salukis' six wins and two losses during Christmas break shows...

West Texas State

Missing only three free throws in a game is impressive, right?

Wrong—when making only one at the same time.

The Salukis got another bitter taste of Missouri Valley Conference officiating in their first encounter with a league foe since their entrance in the MVC. The troubles were almost fatal, but SIU held on 63-62 at Amarillo, Tex., despite going scoreless the final two minutes.

After Glenn's 18-footer put the visitors up 63-58, the Buffaloes threatened to pull it out. Forward Eugene Smith canned a 10-footer at the 1:42 mark and added a pair of free throws with 38 seconds left, but the Buffaloes could not get over the hump.

Meriweather scored 21 points for SIU, with Glenn adding 18.

Indiana State Classic

The Salukis' play was anything but "classic," although the Dogs managed to salvage a win in two outings.

Mississippi State was the beneficiary of SIU's horrible first half in the first round game, jumping to a 49-30 halftime margin. The Salukis roared back behind Meriweather, Glenn and Turner to close to within 77-75 with 1:18 left, but Perry Hines' two-pointer at that time was SIU's last gasp.

Mississippi State rolled 81-75, despite Meriweather's 19 points and Glenn's 14.

No, Paul Lambert doesn't have two right arms. An assistant coach just saw the same error he did. (Staff photo by Steve Sumner)

In the consolation game, Meriweather scored 21 and Corky Abrams added 15 as the Salukis downed Santa Clara 66-55. The winners struggled again, shaking a 22-21 halftime deficit and scoring eight straight points late in the contest to gain their sixth win in nine games.

Samford

Home, sweet home awaited the Dogs Jan. 2, although just 3,000 fans showed for the team's only home game during semester break.

It was a breather in more ways than one, as the Salukis entertained a 1-8 Samford team. The hosts were more hospitable than the final 75-62 score would indicate, totaling 22 turnovers.

Glenn and Meriweather were the only men in double figures with 24 and 22, respectively.

Illinois State

Basketball is a team game—but 51 points from one player can almost do the job by itself.

Illinois State guard Rick Whitlow bombed in 51 Jan. 4, but it took a couple of key rebound buckets by teammate Billy Lewis to send the game into overtime where ISU took a 91-84 win.

Lewis, a freshman, tipped in two shots to keep the Redbirds within two, before Whitlow tied the game with a jumper at the 1:16 mark for a 78-all deadlock. Whitlow then scored nine straight points in overtime while the Dogs were managing four, and it was all over but the shouting.

Glenn treated the hundreds of Saluki fans to a 29-point effort, but Meriweather scored just four of his 21 after intermission.

Evansville

The Aces were high, but the Joker went wild.

That was the tale at Evansville Jan. 8 as the carefree Nixon helped SIU overcome the always-tough-at-home Aces 82-61. After flirting with disaster the first 27 minutes, the Dogs ripped off a 29-7 burst midway through the second half, changing a 48-44 lead to 77-51.

Nixon, playing less than half the game, was one of five in double figures with 11. Meriweather led with 18, followed by Glenn, of course, with 17 and Tim Ricci with 16.

St. Louis

Comparing scores means nothing. That fact was shown again Jan. 11 at St. Louis when the Dogs edged the 4-4 Billikens 77-73.

St. Louis had just ripped West Texas State 100-59, comparing with the Salukis' 63-62 win over the Buffaloes.

However, Meriweather was in fine form this night, hitting a break high of 27 points as the visitors broke into an early 11-3 lead and never trailed. Nixon came off the bench to add 14, the same as Hines, while Glenn collected 12.

Louisiana Tech

Finally, a streak!

For the first time this season, the Salukis had won three in a row with perhaps their best outing, a 94-58 romp at Louisiana Tech.

Nixon again supplied the fuel, coming off the bench after six minutes with the hosts leading 14-5. His rebound basket put the Dogs ahead for good at 21-20, a lead which grew to 47-27 by intermission.

"We executed so well and shot so well after that first five minutes," Lambert exclaimed. "Louisiana Tech was not that bad."

Five Salukis again reached double figures, led by Meriweather with 20. Abrams had 16, Glenn and Nixon 14 and Hines 10.

Swimmers combinee fun, work in Ecuador

While most students were at home over the holidays enjoying the leisure time by indulging in recreational activities or working at parttime jobs, the SIU swimmers managed to combine both fun and work and seemed to enjoy it.

The human fish spent close to two weeks in Ecuador, South America. According to Saluki coach Bob Steele, there were three purposes to the trip: fun, work and clinics.

"It was really a good trip," said Steele, whose tan is already fading. "The swimmers got a lot of work in, we had a lot of fun and we did a lot for the people of Ecuador."

"We conducted clinics and demonstrations for both coaches and kids of all ages," the coach said. "The people said they learned more from our being there and instructing them than from any other American team that had ever been there before."

While in Guayaquil, the team swam between 11,000 and 13,000 meters a day, according to Steele, but it still managed to come face-to-face with people.

"I conducted two clinics with coaches and they lasted from 8 p.m. to midnight. I discussed things like turns, strokes and skill developmental techniques. I also lectured on how to build a swimming program."

He continued, "One day five of our swimmers went out to the suburbs and worked with about 50 kids on their stroke technique. The rest of us worked with about another 100 kids in the city on the same thing. Our guys got right in the water with the kids and moved their arms to teach them the stroke."
