Senate overrides split veto

The Illinois Senate voted Thursday to override Gov. Daniel Walker's veto of a bill to give SIU-E a separate board of trustees, but the bill faces a tough battle in the House of Representatives, said Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville.

Vadalabene, the bill's sponsor, said he was "elated and overwhelmed" by the 39-13 vote, just three votes over the 36 required to override the veto. Vadalabene said he "wasn't optimistic when we started the override vote. I really didn't know whether I had enough votes to do it."

Vadalabene said he picked up the necessary votes on the second roll call vote from several senators who were absent during the first roll call.

The bill to split the Carbondale and Edwardsville campuses was passed by the General Assembly last spring, but Walker vetoed the bill in September saying it "would be a major departure from the present system." If the bill becomes law, the Edwardsville campus would be given its own seven-member governing board as of July 1, 1976.

Vadalabene said it will be difficult to get the House to override the veto. The House passed the bill by a vote of 94-58 last spring, but 107 votes are needed to override Walker's veto.

"It took a lot of hard work to get the bill out of the Senate. To override the veto in the House will be equally as hard if not harder," Vadalabene said.

When the General Assembly reconvenes Nov. 18, Vadalabene said he will have less than two weeks to get the House to override the governor's veto.

Vadalabene said he feels he has "presented a strong case in favor of the split."

"The two campuses are different and separate. Edwardsville is basically a commuter school. We have 10,000 students from the Metro-East (St. Louis) area. Many of this group could go nowhere else to college," Vadalabene said.

He added, "A commitment was made to us at groundbreaking that one day we would be autonomous." The Edwardsville campus is celebrating its 10th anniversary this year.

Supporters of the split bill say that SIU-E has been treated like a step-child by the SIU Board of Trustees, but the board, in opposing the bill, says the charge is untrue. The Illinois Board of Higher Education has also voiced its opposition to the bill.

CCHS business manager resigns

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) Board of Education accepted the resignation of CCHS Business Manager Cecil Hollis Thursday night and in doing so raised the possibility that the board, perhaps unknowingly, violated the Illinois Open Meetings statute.

The board voted unanimously to accept Hollis' letter of resignation dated Oct. 22. The letter was a reply to an Oct. 21 letter from Supt. Melvin Spence requesting the resignation. The resignation was effective immediately.

Hollis' letter quoted Spence saying Spence was acting "at the instruction of the Board of Education of Carbondale Community High School District 165."

Board President Robert Brewer said Friday that Spence was directed by the board, in a closed session Oct. 16, to meet with the district's legal counsel Charles Hines to discuss the possibility of asking Hollis to resign. Spence was advised at the meeting to act on Hines' recommendations, Brewer said.

Brewer said it was his understanding that Spence would report his finding to the board and said that report consisted of Hollis' letter of resignation.

Hollis was asked to resign because he was "no longer effective as a business manager for the school district," Brewer said. He said the board had been considering the action for the past several months.

The Illinois Open Meetings Statute states that, while a governmental body such as a school board may hold closed sessions when deliberating the dismissal of an employee, but "no final action may be taken at a closed session."

The question of whether the board's direction to Spence to ask Hollis to resign constitutes "final action" is open to interpretation. Both Brewer and board member Charles Hindersman said they think the board's acceptance to the resignation was final action and the request for Hollis to resign was an "administrative decision."

A spokesman for Illinois Attorney General William Scott's office said Friday that an opinion could not be issued without a thorough examination of all the facts of the specific case.

Scott's spokesman said he could not recall any court cases in which the definition of "final action" had arisen.

Speaking of the board's request that Hollis resign, Brewer said, "As far as I'm concerned, I'm not sure that that's official action. If we were wrong, it was an honest mistake."

Hollis was out of town Friday and could not be reached for comment.

Hollis had been serving on a half-time basis since July at his own request, Brewer said. He added that Hollis' request was made for health reasons.

The board approved a half-time appointment for Hollis at a salary of $11,000—half his previous salary. The board also approved compensation for additional services Hollis may have been asked to perform.

Brewer said the additional services provision was included because the district had recently hired a new superintendent (Spence) and that Hollis would have to be putting in more time.

Terms of Hollis' resignation included the district paying him $9,166.68 and the continuation of his life and hospitalization insurance until the end of Hollis' normal contract, June 30.

Ex-student charged in hash bust

By Daniel Hofmann
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A former SIU-C student and an antique dealer from Cape Girardeau were arrested Wednesday morning in New York City and charged with trying to smuggle half a ton of hashish into the United States.

Joseph J. Sherlag, 27, of Cambria, a cinema and photography major who graduated from SIU in June, 1974, and Frederick S. Leuckel, 26, of Cape Girardeau were arrested by customs agents and Drug Enforcement Agency officials when they allegedly tried to pick up a camper truck in which the hashish was hidden, from a Brooklyn pier, customs spokesman Charles E. McGee said.

"It was one of the biggest hashish seizures in the history of the New York area," Assistant U.S. Attorney Jonathan N. Marks said. Authorities estimated that the confiscated hashish was worth about $2 million wholesale and had a street value of $4 million.

The truck had been shipped to this country from Iran. The hashish was pressed into bricks and was wrapped in paper and foil. The hashish was found in the doors, rocker panels and floors panels, a customs official said.

Customs officials said a specially-trained dog, "Smacks," sniffed out the hashish while routinely inspecting cargo along the pier Tuesday.

A special team of customs inspectors was then brought in and the truck was dismantled, McGee said.

Sherlag and Leuckel were freed on personal bond Thursday at the U.S. District Court in Brooklyn. They are charged with attempting to smuggle a controlled substance into the United States, McGee said. The maximum penalty is five years in prison and a $15,000 fine.

McGee said customs officials theorize the hashish was to be transported to the Midwest. "These guys had full intention of taking the truck and driving it home," he said.

Travel emphasized in park plans

By Mike Springston
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Carbondale Park District plans its agenda to coincide with the SIU semester calendar, but the needs of the area residents are still the No. 1 priority of their programs.

One new development in the park district plans is the emphasis placed on travel programs.

The park district has sponsored trips to Six Flags Over Mid-America and the Eleven Points River this fall.

Trips to Opryland U.S.A. in the spring and a ski trip to Denver in January are on the park district's agenda. The park district is also hoping to sponsor trips to Southern Illinois attractions such as Garden of the Gods, Bellsmith Springs and Randolph County historical sites, said Dan Crunk, park district programs director.

"One reason we're going into this is because Southern Illinois is a rural, agrarian type area with a lot of beautiful sites that people are not aware of. We think this is one form of entertainment that is relatively inexpensive," Crunk said.

Most park district programs are aimed at the young population, but adult and senior citizen programs are also offered.

Sports play a big role in the adult activities. Football, co-ed volleyball tennis instruction are some of the sports programs offered. Crunk said that an adult basketball league, which is presently forming, will take registration until 5 p.m. Monday.

Other adult activities include yoga, macrame, bridge instruction, square dancing instruction, belly dancing, the Adult Holiday Craft Workshop (Dec. 6).

and two cooking courses, Dishes of India and Vegetarian High-Protein Cooking.

Because of the Carbondale Junior Sports and school athletic programs, the park district minimizes its youth athletic programs.

"We don't try to compete with other agencies," Crunk said. "If someone offers a program at less than we can charge, we'll work as a referral. We try to develop new and innovative programs to meet the residents' needs."

One innovative idea aimed at young people is a proposed indoor soccer program. Crunk said the park district is trying to find out if there is enough interest in the program to run it during the winter.

Other youth programs include classes in guitar, ballet, tap dancing and baton. Also offered are bowling, Spanish, a children's Christmas Craft Workshop, a Little Theater, a basketball shooting tournament and wrestling. A Tiny Tots program is open for children between the ages of three and five.

Many Carbondale clubs also use park district facilities. Among them are the Bridge Club, Square Dancing Club, Coin Club, Old Timers, Photo Society and Firemen's Wives.

Some special programs the park district has sponsored include the Mini-Golf Tournament, Ghost Walk and adult and youth tennis tournaments. In the future, Crunk said his organization will offer a wheelchair billiards tournament at the Student Center on Nov. 15, a Christmas carol group to sing to shut-ins and Santa letter delivery service.

Crunk said the park district is looking for resident input to provide Carbondale with new programs.

High school board apologizes to clerk

By Laura Coleman
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A public apology was issued by the Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) Board of Education Thursday night to a library clerk who was abruptly fired by the board Oct. 16.

The clerk, Catharine Halleran, came to work Oct. 17 to find out, unofficially, that she had been fired. Halleran had been employed in the Learning Resources Center while she was a senior in a CCHS office occupations class and was hired full-time when she graduated in May. The board said Halleran was fired because she was in a non-budgeted expansion position.

In addition to the apology, the board granted her two weeks severance pay.

The board was presented a letter by 30 CCHS-Central faculty members protesting the firing. The letter said the Learning Resource Center is below recommended staffing in both professional and clerical personnel.

The letter also said the board "shabbily treated" Halleran because she was told unofficially Oct. 17 that she had been fired. Martha Harmon, director of the Learning Resource Center, said she was not informed of the board's action and had to call CCHS Supt. Melvin Spence to learn of it.

The letter was not acknowledged by the board Thursday night.

In other action, the board:

—approved the appointment of Spence as fiscal officer for the district.

—heard a report from Steven Mahan, director of pupil and personnel services, saying that one-third of all CCHS classes have fewer than 15 students. The board has a policy of calling for a minimum of 15 students per class except in special situations.

Classes with the highest enrollments are in the physical education and social studies departments. Those with the lowest enrollment are reading and special education classes.

—passed a resolution submitted by board member Roy Weshinsky calling for the building principals to "investigate and evaluate the extracurricular program" in their respective buildings.

The resolution stated investigations should include an in-depth "search into the role and educational values of activities which comprise" the program. The investigations are to probe program sponsor and student response and to draw up a statement of philosophy, guidelines and policy statement on extracurricular activities.

The report is to be submitted to Spence by Feb. 1.

Sentencing delayed for prison escapee

WINNIPEG, Man. (AP) — Sentencing of an escaped convict from the United States for a Winnipeg armed robbery was delayed a week Friday to allow completion of advisory reports.

Dennis D. Hunter, 26, of Salem, Ohio, pleaded guilty Oct. 31 to charges he robbed a downtown bookstore the night before of $119.

Arresting officers discovered he had escaped from the maximum security federal prison near Marion on Oct. 10 with four other inmates. He was the only escapee still at large.

Winnipeg police said another armed robbery charge, this one in connection with a Vancouver restaurant stickup, has been filed against Hunter. Prosecution is to be handled in the Manitoba Provincial Court at Winnipeg.

New death penalty bills before assembly

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — New death penalty bills to replace a state law held unconstitutional by the Illinois Supreme Court have been introduced in the General Assembly.

One measure would make the death sentence mandatory for certain types of murder. Another would call for the death penalty in those same cases unless one or more specified conditions existed.

However, it is unlikely the General Assembly will pass a death penalty bill when it resumes its fall session Nov. 18 for a four-day meeting.

A measure sponsored by Reps. Romie Palmer, R-Blue Island, and Roscoe Cunningham, R-Lawrenceville, calls for a mandatory death sentence for multiple murders, murder by contract, murder during a hijacking, murder of policemen, firemen and prison guards and murder during certain violent crimes.

School spending compromise sought

SPRINGFIELD (AP) — A plan designed to boost school aid payments to downstate districts in Illinois this year but scale down the statewide increase projected for the 1976-77 school year has been introduced in the Illinois House.

Rep. Arthur Berman, D-Chicago, said passage of the bill this fall is essential if the Senate should override Gov. Daniel Walker's $81 million cut in payments to schools.

Current methods for distributing school aid would permit the state to hand out only $61 million of the $81 million appropriation, he said.

Changes must be made in the state law which spells out how aid is distributed to schools to free nearly $20 million more for downstate districts. This would involve passage of his bill to allow districts to include their transportation tax rate as proof of additional taxing efforts when seeking state aid, Berman said.

Railroad craft union plans Nov. 18 strike

WASHINGTON (AP) — Four railroad shop craft unions announced Friday they will strike the nation's railroads at 6 a.m. on Nov. 18 in a lengthy contract dispute with the industry.

The union had announced the strike for next Tuesday but later agreed to delay it one week at the request of federal mediators who hope to arrange new negotiations.

Although the unions represent only about 15 per cent of the nation's half-million railway workers, a walkout could effectively shut down the major rail lines.

Defense policy unchanged, Ford says

BOSTON (AP) — President Ford called criticism of his high-level personnel changes "domestic political potshots" and vowed Friday to maintain a policy of detente and strong national defense.

He said he wanted to put to rest speculation that the dismissal of Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger means a change of direction.

"I want to be absolutely sure that these domestic political potshots are not heard 'round the world,'" Ford said. "Our allies and our adversaries must not be confused or misled."

The President then attacked congressional cuts in the defense budget, saying that at the rate cuts are being made, by the year 2000, "The United States defense will be reduced to one soldier carrying one rifle—just like the statue at Concord bridge" where the American Revolution began.

Hearst found competent to stand trial

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A federal judge declared Patricia Hearst mentally competent Friday to stand trial on bank robbery charges. The judge said she appeared perfectly able to assist in her own defense.

U.S. District Judge Oliver J. Carter said his studies of psychiatrists' reports had provided "a psychiatric profile of what is clearly a troubled young woman."

But he said that none of the four experts who examined Hearst had convinced him there was any evidence of "psychosis or any serious mental disease, or defect in the defendant...."

Carter said in his written decision that Hearst had openly discussed the bar, robbery charges with the psychiatrists who examined her.

He quoted one doctor as saying she "demonstrated full understanding of the significance of the bank robbery charges, the legal consequences ... and the possible penalties if she were convicted."

Unemployment reaches 8.6 per cent

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate reversed a four-month decline and rose to 8.6 per cent of the work force in October, the Labor Department reported Friday, indicating a slowdown in the recovery from recession.

The report showed that the economy failed to make room for the increasing number of Americans who entered the labor force in October and apparently thought job prospects had improved.

By September the jobless rate had fallen to 8.3 per cent from its recession peak of 9.2 per cent last May.

Donald A. Johnson, director of the Illinois Department of Labor, reported the unemployment rate during October at 9.9 per cent, up only one-tenth of a per cent from September but well above the 8.6 per cent nationwide rate reported in October.

The Chicago and Rockford areas reported the worst employment situations. Nearly 333,000 persons, or 10.2 per cent of the work force, in the six-county Chicago-metropolitan area could not find work last month; in Rockford, 15.9 million persons were out of work, or 12.1 per cent.

Editor fights for 'high standards'

By Nancy Landis

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

A Kentucky editor is fighting to keep his newspaper operating with "high standards" 15 months after his printing office was burned by arsonists.

Tom Gish, editor of the Whitesburg, Ky., Mountain Eagle, received the Elijah Parrish Lovejoy Award for courage in journalism from the SIU School of Journalism and Graduate Student Council. He delivered a speech on his experiences at 8 p.m. Friday in Lawson 141.

The Elijah Parrish Lovejoy Award commemorates an Alton, Ill., editor who was killed by an anti-abolitionist mob on Nov. 6, 1837. Lovejoy repeatedly printed articles attacking slavery, despite mob destruction of two of his presses.

The award program began in 1954 and has been given annually to one weekly newspaper publisher or editor for courage in journalism.

"If I were not here, I would be in a lawyer's office," Gish said in an interview Friday afternoon.

Letcher County Fiscal Court judges have voted to take legal printing privileges away from the Eagle and give them to the next largest paper in the county, which is half the Eagle's size, Gish said.

He said he will appeal the court's action. Privileges to print legal notices are supposed to be given to the largest newspaper in a county, Gish said.

Gish's printing office in Whitesburg was burned Aug. 1, 1974 after Gish took strong stands against police actions against youths.

The police were overequipped and overstuffed, Gish said.

"I think the situation ultimately concentrated a lot of police in a small town," he said. "Kids became the sport."

Gish said that, over a period of a year, there were several high speed police chases, resulting in the deaths of two youths, five shootings of youths and a great number of incidents, where youths were beaten up.

"We just simply detailed every instance we came across," Gish said.

"I've always considered that the front page and editorial page belonged to us, and by damn we were going to say what goes there and be responsible for it," Gish said last year in an interview with a "More" reporter.

Strip mining and local government were other controversial subjects for the Eagle, Gish said.

"We did a total job of covering local government," Gish said. "That's really never a very popular thing."

"I think most newspapers don't fight," Gish said.

He said he wanted to keep high journalistic standards, by printing the truth about police and local government.

Gish said Letcher County Deputy sheriff Johnny Caudill was found guilty recently of hiring two other persons to burn the Mountain Eagle office. Caudill was sentenced to a year in prison, but the sentence was suspended, Gish said.

"I was disappointed because a lot of evidence was excluded," Gish said.

He said three persons confessed to the burning, but only two confessions were used in court. The confessions used were edited by the judge, Gish added.

Gish said his problems with police have not stopped.

"A load of papers was stopped and searched by police two weeks ago," he said. "The situation continues to be strained."

"We're not getting any special threats at the moment from anyone," Gish said.

Gish said he has rented office space and is having the paper printed in another town. Volunteers, local correspondents and his wife are the staff.

"The essential fact is that I've enjoyed putting out the paper and still do," Gish said. "I wouldn't want to quit."

Police nab homicide suspects

Chicago homicide detectives announced Wednesday they had arrested two persons and charged them with the murder of Ronald Moore, 27, a political science major who graduated in June, 1974.

Police said Moore, 6837 S. Indiana Ave., Chicago, was fatally shot in the head on Oct. 28 during a robbery while driving a cab for the Checker Taxi Company. Thirty dollars was taken from Moore during the robbery outside the Henry Horner Housing Project, 2111 W. Lake St., Chicago.

Charged with the murder were Arthur Jackson, 22, formerly of 659 W. Garfield Blvd., and Darlene Joseph, 23, who lived at the Horner Housing Project. Jackson was arrested Wednesday in Salt Lake City, Utah.

The arrests followed an investigation which led police to taverns, rooming hotels and apartments, said Joseph DiLeonardi, city homicide commander. He said, "This is a typical homicide case that takes perseverance and just plain hard work to solve."

Shorter check line options discussed

By Nancy Landis

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

SIU's Acting Controller Jack Simmons said Wednesday he is considering alternatives to the student paycheck disbursement system to eliminate long lines in the Bursar's Office.

"No definite decision has been made as to how to modify check distribution," Simmons said.

Simmons said alternatives being considered include:

—sending checks to departments so students could receive checks where they work.

—moving the distribution center from the Bursar's Office to the Student Center or the Disbursements Office.

—mailing checks to the students' residence.

—depositing checks directly in banks for students with Carbondale bank accounts.

Depositing checks in local banks seems to be the most feasible alternative, Simmons said. However, all the alternatives have draw-backs.

The Internal Auditor's Office disapproves of sending the checks to departments because the system would lose internal control, he said.

Simmons said 6 per cent of the checks are not picked up at the Bursar's Office in the first week after payday. He said those checks would be scattered across campus if departments got the checks.

To move the distribution center to the Student Center would require a staff member to sit with nothing to do after most of the checks were picked up, he said. To move the center to the Disbursements Office would require students to pick up checks.

In either case, moving the center would still require students to go to the Bursar's Office to cash checks, he said.

Simmons said Disbursements would have problems mailing checks because student addresses change frequently.

To deposit checks in local banks would require that students open local bank accounts.

Simmons said a majority of faculty-staff checks are sent directly to Carbondale banks.

He said checks could be hand-delivered to Carbondale banks. Mailing checks to out-of-town banks would involve postal problems, and students could not be sure when the checks arrived.

Simmons said he would have to have a consensus of two-thirds of the students to change the system.

He said his office is open to suggestions from students.

Simmons said any change in the system would have to be approved by the auditor and vice president for fiscal affairs. The vice president could ask for the president's approval, Simmons said.

SIU Bursar Thomas Watson said he is considering doing a survey of student sentiments about taking checks to local banks. He said the survey would be passed out with checks.

Students would have to sign written authorizations for checks to be sent to local banks, Watson said.

He said about 3,300 students are employed at SIU, with the first day of check disbursement the heaviest in the Bursar's Office.

When it coincides with the last day to pay fees, the office has a serious problem, he said.

Simmons said there is no timetable for changing the system. He said he is still considering alternatives.

Police search for murder clues

By Pat Corcoran

Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

Search warrants for the homes and offices of three men charged with the gangland-style murder of three men and the attempted murder of a fourth were served and returned Friday to Jackson County Circuit Court.

Carbondale police, assisted by officers from the state crime laboratory at DeSoto, searched the house of Grady Bryant, 314 N. Washington Ave., and his office at the Eurma C. Hayes Community Center.

Police also searched the apartment of Ronald M. Jenkins, Ambassador Apartments, E. Danny St., and the Narcotic Addicts Rehabilitation Coordination Organization (NARCO) office, 103 S. Washington Ave.

Bryant, 26, Jenkins, 29, and Luther Carter, 43, are charged with three counts of murder and one count of attempted murder. The charges followed the Halloween shooting spree which left Terry Eanes, Robert Gillmore and James A. Williams dead and Buford Lewis Jr. wounded.

The shooting occurred in Eanes' and Gillmore's mobile home at 401 N. Barnes St. around 1 a.m., Nov. 1.

Police arrested the trio at 6 a.m. Saturday.

State's Attorney Howard Hood

requested the search warrants so the police could recover evidence which was not picked up when the tree men were arrested.

In the warrants, Hood said the police were to look for bloodstained clothing and .38 caliber special ammunition.

Hood said some clothing and towels containing stains were found, and the articles were taken to the crime laboratory for analysis.

Bryant was released from Jackson County Jail Friday morning after posting 10 per cent of a $50,000 bond. Jenkins is also under $50,000 bond, but the Illinois Department of Corrections has placed a parole hold on his release.

The new boss is the same as the old boss

By Mike Brecklin
Student Writer

On Oct. 23, the Illinois House of Representatives deacknowledged in an 86-96 vote on veto override action on Gov. Walker's budget cuts in education. The vote, though, was not split along party lines. Mayor Daley headed the override faction, while Gov. Walker led the sustaining action.

The smoke from the political in-fighting on the House floor helped mask the fact that neither's interest in the override action was based on the welfare of Illinois school children.

Walker's cuts in education came as part of an "across the board" reduction of the state budget to save Illinois taxpayers from a tax increase—and in turn, his political credibility. (One of Walker's main strategies in 1972 was campaigning against a raise in the state income tax associated with then incumbent Gov. Richard Ogilvie.) But State Comptroller George Lindberg has said that even with Walker's budget cuts, the tax increase will occur. The only question is when.

Daley's rabid fanaticism for the veto override was born recently—immediately after the settlement of the teacher strike in Chicago. His interest in the school children of Illinois is as great as—but no greater than—the deficit the strike settlement will place in Chicago's budget.

Possibly more significant than the outcome of the override action are Walker's and Daley's machinations influencing the decision. Both men need to prove to state and national Democrats who the real power is in Illinois.

Daley made a bravura debut in the House, while Chicago and Cook County Democrats twisted arms and cajoled Representatives on the floor. Daley's entourage hired a band and then packed the observers' section with rowdy pols. Walker aides also exerted political muscle on the House floor.

Chicago Democrats touted State Treasurer Alan Dixon as the No. 1 opponent for Walker in the primaries. And Dixon dutifully supported Daley's override. Sec. of State Michael Howlett then hinted that he would be interested in being governor, and Daley Democrats touted him as the No. 1 opponent for Walker in the primaries. Dixon dutifully supported the decision.

Both Walker and Daley have said they will run candidates in the primary for delegate positions at the 1976 Democratic Convention in New York.

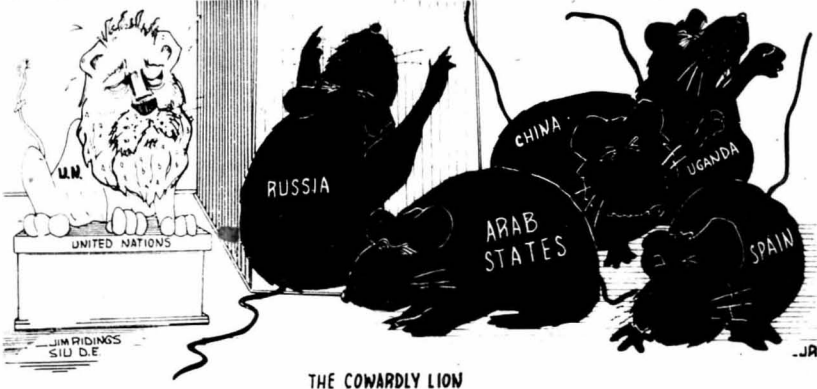

Daley wants very badly to regain the pre-eminence in national politics he enjoyed in 1960 when he pushed the young John Kennedy into the White House. His national power since then has been continually eroding. Lyndon Johnson needed little Daley help in the 1964 landslide. And after the debacle at the 1968 Democratic Convention in Chicago, Daley couldn't carry Illinois for Humphrey. Daley's clout was at its lowest in 1972 when his delegation was tossed out of the convention in Miami by McGovern forces—an action he did not forget in November.

Quite probably, the 1976 Convention will be Daley's swan song, and he wants to go out with a bang.

Walker's future in politics is also tied directly to the 1976 Democratic Convention. Walker has said that he is human, he has thought about being president. Or at least vice-president. To have a measurable force at the convention, Walker must usurp the power of Daley.

Since 1972, a major pre-occupation of Walker has been the dismantling of the Daley political machine. In 1974, Walker canvassed the state in a media blitz, personally urging election of candidates who would support his plans for a better Illinois. In effect, Walker's been replacing the Daley machine with one of his own.

New politics? Not really. And while Walker and Daley slug it out in Springfield, Illinois waits patiently a responsible government.

Carbondale teenagers are trustworthy and well-behaved

To the Daily Egyptian:

The Carbondale Parent Teen Board has sponsored dances using the Women's Gym facilities at Carbondale Community High School (CCHS) for almost two years with no real problems. When the headline "Racial Tensions at CCHS" came out in the Southern Illinoisian last year, rumor had been permitted to grow for four days.

A student had been grabbed by the shirt by an inebriated non-high school and non-attender of the dance. A chaperone was there to handle the incident. At the time my husband, two police officers, a student and myself were in the foyer of the Women's Gym with the doors wide open to the parking lot.

Neither we nor most of the teens were aware that an incident had occurred. The adult did not consider it important enough to call me and the Board that was responsible for the dance.

By Monday, rumors were running rampant. I learned of the incident at the close of the school day. On Wednesday evening, I called school personnel concerning publicity for Friday's after-school dance. At this time, rumor had it that the "youth had been stabbed and had been taken to a hospital in St. Louis and was not expected to live."

There were policemen in the school and outside at CCHS. I was there. Rumor ran rampant. On Wednesday evening the Southern Illinoisian stopped the presses to insert the above statement.

The above facts were presented to the teachers at a meeting Thursday afternoon. We had a Parent Teen Board sponsored dance the following evening with an attendance of 377 students—and we had no problems.

The teens of Carbondale are trustworthy. The dances at the high school are well chaperoned. At the dance on Sept. 26, we had one chaperone for every 20 teenagers plus three security men.

The teens are not drinking alcoholic beverages in the Women's Gym, nor have we seen alcoholic beverages being consumed in the parking lot.

I called Mr. Spence, CCHS Superintendent, on Monday, Oct. 6, to request him to be certain that the Gym would be open. It was at this time (ten days after our dance) that I was informed that the pre-Homecoming dance could not be held. I inquired as to reasons and he asked me to come to his office on Tuesday. At that meeting, Mr. Spence stated that there were insufficient chaperones, and wanted to charge a dollar to cut down on the crowd as well as the debris alleged to have been placed there by teens.

Smoking is not permitted, but an occasional student does light up. It is immediately requested that he put it out or go outside. Teens are most cooperative. Mr. Spence did not like the large gatherings of teens in the parking lot even though we had sufficient chaperones. This is a natural situation. We have permitted students to move about freely for two years almost without incident.

The Parent Teen Board carries its own insurance. We had a band contract, a contract for the Women's Gym for the night of the Homecoming game. I contacted Mr. John (Jack) Feirich and he stated that legally we could use the gym. Therefore, I am expecting the High School Board to pay the Parent Teen Board the cost of the band—$150.00. We are looking for a building for the teens of Carbondale.

The churches have expressed interest in helping us.

We of the parent Teen Board, say and believe, "We trust the teens—they are a great group of young people"—and Mr. Spence should trust the teens too.

I did not state that the Board was either inconsiderate or irresponsible, as stated in the Southern Illinoisian. I did state that Mr. Spence's demands were unreasonable.

Protest the ban on aid to Vietnam

To the Daily Egyptian:

The American Friends Service Committee has been denied a license by the federal government to send a shipment of reconstruction supplies to Vietnam. The denial was based on the "Trading with the Enemy Act," on grounds that, while relief aid is approved as humanitarian, items such as fish nets, tractors and wood-screw machines are economic, therefore, illegal.

We wonder how it can be humanitarian to feed people for a short time and not humanitarian to give them the means by which they can feed themselves for a long time. The banned shipment is part of a $900,000 collection of materials made possible by the outpouring of contributions from Americans across the country who share the sense of moral obligation to rebuild what our military intervention helped to destroy. It has long been an American tradition to help war and disaster victims toward self-support. To label aid to Vietnam now as "trade with the enemy" thus appears arbitrary and misguided. The war is over. The Vietnamese are not our enemies.

It is our hope that the United States government will cease to regard the Indo-Chinese nations as enemies, and instead initiate positive relationships with them, including normalization of diplomatic, trade and cultural relations. We are sending letters expressing this concern to our congressmen and the President, urging them to support the pending legislation which would alter our government's stand toward reconstruction of Vietnam.

A number of us will also express our concern for a change in American policy by holding a vigil in front of Faner building on noon, Monday, Nov. 10. We hope that individuals and other religious and humanitarian groups will join us in our efforts.

Committee slates stereo seminar

Stereo rating specifications and their relevance will be the topic of the second stereo seminar to be held at 7 p.m. Monday in Lentz Hall, Thompson Point.

Russ Harper, instructor of Conceptual Insights into Modern Communication Systems (GSA 101) will present the basic laws needed to understand the functioning of high fidelity sound.

Four stereo retailers have been invited by the Thompson Point Cultural Educational Activities Committee to present their merchandise on Wednesday at Lentz Hall, at 7 p.m.

Retailers from Brown & Columbo, Radio Shack, Doner Stereo and Stereo Supermarket will talk on their different stereo systems.

Carbondale Briefs

The Carbondale branch of the American Association of University Women will meet at 7 p.m. Tuesday in the Faculty Club, 1001 S. Elizabeth St. Bill Wickersham will speak at 8 p.m. on "Global Potentials." The speech is part of the 1975-76 program which includes World Pluralism and the Twenty-First Century.

Alpha Phi Alpha fraternity will hold a rush at 7:30 p.m. Sunday in the Student Center Ballrooms C and D.

Student Senate Candidates will be given the opportunity to present their platforms on WIDB Radio at 6 p.m. Monday. Each candidate will have roughly three minutes to state his platform.

The Newman Center will sponsor a make-it-yourself pizza night and coffeehouse Sunday in the center at 715 S. Washington. Pizza ingredients will be provided. The coffeehouse will feature folk singing, piano and guitarists. Admission is 50 cents.

The Biofeedback and Psychic study group will meet at 7:30 p.m. Monday in Communications Building Room 1007. Those with psychic ability are especially welcome.

H. Eugene Dybvig, associate professor in Radio-Television, has been invited to participate in an International Radio-Television Society Seminar in Terrytown, New York the week of Nov. 10.

Professor Jacques Kagan, University of Illinois at Chicago Circle will speak on "Molecular Rearrangements with Ethoxycarbonyl Group Migration" at a Departmental Seminar at 4 p.m. Monday in Neckers C218.

Prof. James Bailey will present "Kinetic Proofreading—A New Mechanism for Reducing Errors in Biosynthetic Processes Requiring High Specificity" at the Biochem Journal Club meeting at 4 p.m. Tuesday in Neckers C218.

A karate demonstration by Greg Washwell will be presented from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Wesley Foundation, 816 S. Illinois Ave.

Bring your pardon

Statements made by Tom Britton on Tuesday, Nov. 4, at a meeting of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), were opinions he had developed from research as a student.

In the course of his presentation Britton raised the questions of if the Board of Trustees has the power to bargain, if the Board will agree to bargain, and the question of exclusive representation and arbitration.

At the meeting Britton urged the AAUP to study and attempt to answer the many questions concerning representation and arbitration before deciding whether to approach the Board asking to bargain.

The headline on Wednesday's article relating the topics of discussion may have given the impression Britton urged the AAUP to reach agreement with the Board. Britton said the Carbondale campus could be subject to the same kinds of collective bargaining policies, not agreements, as the SIU-Edwardsville campus.

SIU to host prison art show

A statewide prison art show and sale will be held Saturday through Tuesday in the Student Center Ballroom D.

About 400 individual artworks will be on display from Joliet, Pontiac, Stateville, Vienna, Dwight and Vandalia Illinois correctional institutions.

Turkey Shooters schedule carnival

Alpha Kappa Psi will hold its 5th annual Turkey Shooters Carnival Sunday. Ten-dollar gift certificates and turkeys will be given as prizes for contests in trap, skeet, rimfire rifle, pistol, target, archery, and black powder shooting, and in duck and goose calling.

The event will begin at 10 a.m., at the Carbondale Gun Club, one mile east of Carbondale on old Route 13. Proceeds from the event will be used to give a turkey dinner to underprivileged children of Carbondale on Nov. 15.

Morris Library moves documents

Morris Library officials are "just about finished" moving the map and document collection from various areas in the library to the basement.

The items will occupy the area formerly used for textbook rental, said Sydney Matthew, library director.

The map and document move will clear space on upper floors for other materials, Matthew said.

Another space-clearing operation involves the moving of some little-used humanities and education periodicals from the second and fourth floors down to one corner of the library's basement, he said.

A special reception will be held from 2 to 5 p.m. Saturday at the display with Gov. Dan Walker as guest of honor and other area politicians in attendance.

Public showings will be conducted from 6 to 10 p.m. Saturday; 1 to 10 p.m. Sunday; 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and 4 p.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday.

Members of the SIU Art Department will judge the show. Awards will be granted in three categories: 1) oils, acrylics, pastels, drawings; 2) crafts (leather, ceramics, jewelry); 3) sculpture.

All works in the show will be for sale. Purchases will be accepted but may not be picked up until the last evening of the show.

County reclamation center recycles natural resources

By Dennis Rice
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

About 150 individuals or families in Jackson County have recently become involved in a citizens non-profit corporation for the recycling of human and material resources.

Resource Reclamation Incorporated (RRI) is an organization which operates on voluntary basis at the recycling Center (the old brewery in Murphysboro).

"Monday night we will present a petition of 1,500-2,000 signatures to the Carbondale City Council to show them the interest the people have taken for a recycling center," said Sue Casebeer, Resource Reclamation board member.

By presenting the petition to the city council, Resource Reclamation hopes to obtain money from the Block Grant Contingency Fund or from general funds, which would enable it to purchase one used two-ton truck and one used three-quarter ton pickup. The trucks will be used to haul trailers to and from deposit locations, and processed material to markets.

Casebeer said that if these funds are secured, mentally and physically handicapped persons from the Jackson County Workshop in Murphysboro will be hired to perform tasks such as paper sorting. A supervisor and other employees for the operation may then be hired also. The Workshop is leasing processing equipment and facilities for the Recycling Center.

"We take high grade paper, such as IBM cards from SIU, and recycle it," explained Casebeer. "We also sort glass by color and put it in a glass crusher and then it is sold to glass manufacturers located within 100 miles of Jackson County."

Although RRI had its first meeting in August, only last week was it able to get the recycling project underway.

A public information booth for RRI was displayed at Student Center Ballroom B on Friday at the request of the Midwest Geographers Convention being held at SIU.

A display booth during Recycling Week (Sept. 22-29) provided tremendous public contact at the University Mall, as did an exhibit used at the Carbondale Chamber of Commerce Yard Sale on October 11, said Casebeer. Resource Reclamation, Inc. has also been the topic of discussions on radio and TV interview shows including "Viewpoint" on WSUI-TV.

Additional talks have been held with service and civic clubs, including a slide presentation at the Carbondale Foundation for a Better Environment on October 21.

The first board meeting of (RRI), on October 23, established by laws and organized the corporation. Officers include: Lillian Adams, President; Lewis Chaney, Vice-President; Hilary Cummings, Secretary; and Susan Mitchell, Treasurer.

Anyone interested in joining RRI or wishing further information should contact board members Lowell Solterman or Sue Casebeer at the Murphysboro Recycling Center, 684-6751.

Panhellenic Council gains recognition

By Peggy Sagona
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

The Panhellenic Council at SIU was nominated and awarded an honorable mention in the Awards Committee Trophy category by the National Panhellenic Conference Awards Committee.

The council was notified Monday of the award for the notebook presentation explaining the functions of the council, its educational programs, social activities, projects, expenses and special programs.

Nancy Harris, advisor to the Panhellenics, nominated the campus chapters for the award. In April the council received a letter that it was accepted as a nominee.

A committee was set up to organize a notebook and compile information for it.

The committee, consisting of eight Panhellenic women, was chaired by Mary (Tinker) Calandro of Delta Zeta and Linda Stocks of Alpha Gamma Delta.

In three months, along with the assistance of Nancy Harris, the notebook was compiled and completed.

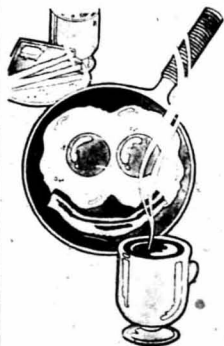

Each member of the committee was assigned a division of the application form and was responsible for gathering and arranging that information.

There are three categories judged by the Awards Committee, depending on the number of chapters within the various councils.

The Awards Committee trophy category presents trophies to the councils with the least number of chapters represented on campus.

Trophies for this category were presented to Millikin University, first place; Clemson University, second place; and University of Wisconsin at LaCrosse, third place.

Handwriting analysis gives insight into one's personality

By Rolanda Williams
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

"Handwriting is a behavior, a representation of your activity," said Jeanne Drew, author of "Symbolic Meaning of the Letter Formation."

She lectured before an audience Thursday night on handwriting and its relevancy to the spontaneous expression of the personality.

Drew, president of Drew Associates, Graphological Consultants, has been in the business since 1963, and has lectured nationwide to business and professional organizations.

"The analysis of handwriting is 'not measuring the true you, we're measuring personality, the predictable you,'" said Drew, as she defined the science of graphology as the precise measurement of letter formation.

Drew believes that a person's inner feelings are revealed in writing and that there are certain movements and size relations in letters that distinguish a personality. "We always use the same size impulse," she said, "we don't alter the basic length of the stroke until we begin to die."

Handwriting is the registration on paper as a brain impulse, and has a way of recording its movement through the body, Drew said.

The lecture turned into a question and answer session as Drew responded to the audience's curiosity about the validity of graphology and the meaning of certain writing characteristics.

During the lecture, people in the audience were asked to write their names on a sheet of paper three times and analyze their writing as Drew discussed the significance of the stroke formation.

"The first name is characteristic of your person and the second name is the social you," she said. "The capital letter represents the awareness of our adult self." Drew said as she explained that if the height of the first capital is larger than the height of the last capital letter, it is an indication that the individual takes a secondary position to group activity.

If the capital letter is exceptionally large the person is looking for social activity.

Graphologists are also employed to use their skills in fields such as education, business and industry and medicine.

In business and industry a graphologist screens personnel as a guide in determining the rate and nature of promotion.

The educator is able to obtain insight into the personality of the student and to help detect disturbances, with the help of a graphologist, before behavior difficulties arise.

Physicians use the skill as a tool for early diagnosis of illnesses and evaluation of treatments.

Handwriting maybe related to body language in that, "Our eyes move to the left to find things that happen in the past and to the right to represent the future," Drew said. Therefore, if a person writes with a lot of movement to the right, he basically relates to the future.

Drew became involved in graphology as a panacea for a brain dysfunction which caused her to write backwards until the seventh grade. She said she could not read until the age of 12 and started studying graphology when she was 13-years-old to help herself read.

Loggins and Messina rock-out for sparse but enthused crowd

By Keith Tuxhorn
Daily Egyptian Staff Writer

It was a nearly flawless performance Thursday night at the Arena as Kenny Loggins, Jim Messina and band gave the finest performance the campus has seen all year.

A sparse but enthusiastic crowd of 3,700 became totally engrossed in the band's 90-minute set, which drove the excitement level of the night higher and higher to a well-timed climax at the concert's end.

Loggins and Messina began without the rest of their band and did a very tranquil medley on acoustic guitars: "Danny's Song," "I Wanna Sing You a Love Song," "House at Pooh Corner" and "Thinking of You" at once enthralled the crowd, with the latter piece being much improved over the original recorded version.

The band then came out and quickly set the mood for the rest of the night, giving a funky feeling to all the songs, but still being very calm and soothing. All the members gave a superb performance throughout, but the mellow horn playing of Jon Clarke, Vince Denham and Don Roberts and the powerful fiddling of Richard Greene were particularly outstanding.

A Review

The band proceeded to do an assortment of songs from all six of their albums, with the high point being a medley that included "Listen to a Country Song," "I'm Movin' On" and Hank Williams' "Oh Lonesome Me." Also included in the medley was an excellent solo by Greene which received a thundering ovation. Another high point was a song from the group's first album, "Sittin' In," titled "Peace of Mind," which projected a beautiful gospel feeling.

The band closed their regular set with "Angry Eyes," which included great sax and flute solos but ran just a bit too long. The crowd was driven to an excited peak, however, and several minutes of a standing ovation brought the group back. They responded with a driving rock medley that included several 1950's standards and three big hits: "Nobody But You," "That Music" and "Your Mama Don't Dance."

The group left the crowd filled with joyous satisfaction. Bob "Catfish" Hodge preceded Loggins and Messina with an enjoyable mixture of humor and pseudo-blues. His short set included very laughable bits about cocaine sniffers, concert experiences, waking up with marijuana, and Catfish's first major theft as a teenager—a bag of chocolate chip cookies. Hodge was a great help in getting the crowd excited for the headliners with his friendliness and enthusiasm.

'Freaks of Cosmic Circus' pictures mystical characters

By Judy Vandewater
Entertainment Editor

A thin line separates reality and illusion. The Barker at a cosmic circus entices one to cross that line into an altered state of consciousness. He will lead a person into a mystical plane that lies beyond tangible reality.

No circus of madmen is complete without freaks so with a sweep of his arm the Barker presented the cast of "Freaks of the Cosmic Circus." The readers theater production opened before a small audience Thursday night at the Calipre Stage in the Communications Building. The final production will be at 8 p.m. Saturday.

The script was compiled from the short stories and poetry of Tennessee Williams. Robert Fish, associate professor of speech, compiled and directed the play. Fish selected stories that lack the harsh realism found in Williams' plays. Fish intends the play to be a journey transcending the physical plane of suffering. He said the reason people suffer is because they are not intuitive with the many levels of reality.

An enticing aura of the uncanny runs through the play. The stories are tied together with the idea that earth can be heaven or hell depending upon an individual's perception of reality.

Strong, energetic acting throughout the play draws the audience into a mystical mood.

Readers theater doesn't depend on a consistent character sense to convey a message. The director is allowed freedom in presenting the theme.

In a scene entitled "The Kingdom of the Earth," the narrator, Ralph Pearson, Chicken and Dan Cooney portray the same character by trading lines. Together they paint the picture of a poor Southerner who lusts after his half-brother's wife.

Cooney, a sophomore in social welfare, shows the frustration of six weeks of abstinence, with amusing facial expressions that sometimes reflect agony, sometimes pseudo-indifference, but always contain a ray of hope.

A Review

Through Pearson's narration one feels the muggy heat of a Southern night which aggravates the carnal desire he cannot control. Pearson, a junior in cinematography, projects the full intensity of powerful emotions in an outstanding performance.

Myrtle, played by Zo Nut, is the object of all this earthly desire. Myrtle, who once made her living as a prostitute, teaches Chicken that to fully enjoy his erotic desires, he must first accept himself and his needs. Nut's portrayal is fairly effective, but lacks the sultry sensuality described in the narration.

In "Angel in the Alcove," Nut gives a very convincing portrayal of a mouthing old lady whose fortune lies in her ability to tell beguiling stories. She resides in a boarding house described by the landlady as "a haven for human wretchedness."

The scene is narrated by another boarder played by Chris Weckler, a Carbondale resident. Weckler's compassionate narration leads the audience into his personal fantasies. He offers insight into the tragic life of a dying artist, portrayed by Pearson. The artist grows embittered with an unrelenting, hostile world.

Familiar faces to meet in Arkansas

By Scott Burnside
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

JONESBORO, Ark.—Saluki football players will see some semi-friendly faces on the scrimmage line Saturday night as SIU faces defensively-tough Arkansas State University (ASU) in War Memorial Stadium in Little Rock.

Game time is 7:30 p.m. and can be heard on both WSIU FM 92 Stereo beginning at 7:15 and WJPF 1340, Herrin beginning with the Doug Weaver Pre-Game Show at 7:05.

Several SIU players will be facing old teammates from both high school and junior college days. Arkansas State has had much success in recruiting football players from the St. Louis area, a section the Salukis comb with much enthusiasm also.

Representing the Vianney High School on the Indian roster is starting tight end Jamie Klipsch. SIU has three players from that alma mater. They include offensive tackles Chuck Blume and Mike McArthur and defensive tackle Ron Brinson.

Blume got to talk to Klipsch after the ASU game last year, in which SIU sustained a 41-16 loss.

"Last year nobody could tackle him (Klipsch). I got to talk to him after the game, but he didn't rub it in," Blume said.

ASU also looked at Blume his senior year in high school, but said he was too small. At that time Blume was 6-foot-2 and weighed 205 pounds. Partly because of this criticism, Blume worked out with weights and reported to SIU topping the 225-pound mark.

One Saluki who did receive some heavy kidding about the loss was defensive tackle Steve Hemmer, a close friend of Indian linebacker Jerry Muckensturm.

Both players played football at Belleville Althoff. Hemmer was red-shirted this year so he will have a chance to work on his speed. Muckensturm leads his team in tackles with 103.

Hemmer and "Muck," as he is known to his friends, worked at a Granite City nightclub last summer as bartenders and bouncers. Also working with them was the younger Muckensturm, Kevin, a freshman wide receiver on the ASU squad.

Another pair of friendly opponents is Saluki offensive tackle Willie Vance and Indian wide receiver Orna Middlebrook. The pair came out of the same junior college, Itawamba, and high school, Aberdeen, in Mississippi.

Also a junior college teammate of Vance is running back Dennis Bolden, the leading Indian rusher.

Indian coach Bill Davidson, in his fifth year at Arkansas State, said they have had good success signing players out of the St. Louis area.

There are also ASU players from Parkway Central, McClure and Ritenour high schools from St. Louis.

Arkansas State will bring an 8-0 record into Saturday's game. The Indians are ranked first in the nation in scoring defense, allowing only 6.1 points per game. ASU is also fourth in rushing defense (89.9) and overall defense (188.9).

Forecasters have established the Indians as clear favorites. The points spread differs from 19 points to 42.

Despite an understandable confidence in his team, Davidson is not quite that sure of victory. He cites the old cliché of "anytime these two teams play, you can throw the record book out the window."

Researcher says:

Women excel in distances

By Mark Kazlowski
Daily Egyptian Sports Writer

If a woman ever challenges a man to a 50 to 100-mile run, the best wager would probably be on the woman.

Sharon Plowman, supervisor of the Applied Science Laboratory at Northern Illinois University with a Ph.D. in Physical Education, explained in an interview Friday that in swimming or running events that take about 10 hours or more, there should be no significant difference in the sexes.

She said other events such as cross country skiing may show the same results, but she has not studied these.

She said there is a five to one ratio of swimming to running, which means it would take five times longer to swim a given distance than it would take to run it.

The traditional marathon run is too short, Plowman said, but the 20-mile English Channel offers only about a minute difference between the best time by a man and the best time by a woman.

The woman's time was slower. In 1973, Natalie Cullimore won a 100-mile race in 18 hours which was two hours faster than the first man to cross the finish line.

The female has more fat in her body, Plowman said. That works to her advantage in the very long distances but hurts in short distances.

"The female is as capable as a man to train 100 miles a week," Plowman emphasized. "The female responds to training as well as males."

Plowman's main area of research is exercise physiology. She said she has worked two months on the topic "Endurance and the Female," which she presented at the Midwest Regional Meeting of the American College of Sports Medicine.

The two-day symposium ends Saturday.

"The female records in comparison with the male is really not the question," Plowman said. "The question is the potential of the female. The question is allowing everybody to fulfill their own potential."

Plowman spoke Friday utilizing data from the 1924 Olympic Games to 1974. Her statistics showed that women have been improving in track and swimming events at a rapid rate.

"Females have been improving far faster than men," she said, "but they've had a longer way to go."

That women may eventually equal men at lower distances is "pure speculation," Plowman said.

The annual meeting ends Saturday with three morning discussions.

Frank Konishi, of the SIU Food and Nutrition Department, will speak on "Nutritional Foundations for En-

Hunting underway

The Illinois quail hunting season opens Saturday and signs point to a bumper bobwhite population in downstate areas.

A yearly survey conducted by Southern Illinois University-Carbondale's Cooperative Wildlife Research Laboratory on a 1,550-acre study area near Carbondale, indicates that fall quail populations are "substantially higher" than in the past few years, according to Laboratory researcher John Roseberry.

The study is designed to provide a reading on a local quail population but Roseberry said the potential for high quail numbers probably exists over all of Southern Illinois.

Factors influencing the upswing, says Roseberry, were good winter and summer weather conditions, a healthy breeding population and the apparent outset of another "high population phase."

The SIU-C study has been going on for more than 20 years and researchers have plotted a definite cyclic pattern in bobwhite populations. They appear to peak every eight to 10 years, fade off for a few years, and then resurge. The last boom year for quail in the census was the 1967-68 hunting season.

Roseberry said that the extent to which the potential is realized by hunters may depend on habitat deterioration (destruction of cover or removal of some productive areas by natural plant succession) could mean that the actual numbers of quail harvested may be no greater than what would have been considered average 10 or 20 years ago.

Clubs compete

Four sports clubs will be in competition this weekend.

Saturday, the SIU Rugby Club will play at Illinois State University. The club will travel back downstate for a game in Springfield Sunday.

SIU's Soccer Club will wind up its season with a game at Park Sir College Saturday. Last week the team won a forfeit from Murray State when the visitors failed to show for a game in Carbondale.

The Road Runner Club will hold a seven-mile social run at 7:30 p.m. Sunday. Runners will meet at the west entrance to the Arena.

Another in the series of championship autocrosses will be held by the Grand Touring Auto Club at 12 noon Sunday in the Arena parking lot.
