Marines in Panama fire at possible intruders

PANAMA CITY, Panama (UPI) — U.S. Marines fired mortars and automatic rifles in a mysterious two-hour firefight against possible intruders at the same Navy fuel depot where a Marine accidentally was killed a night earlier, U.S. officials said Wednesday. But Col. Ron Sconyers, director of public affairs at the U.S. Southern Command, acknowledged he could not rule out the possibility there may not have been any intruders after all in the Tuesday night incident.

Former S. Korean president quits public jobs

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — Former President Chun Doo Hwan resigned from influential public offices Wednesday apologizing to the nation for a multimillion-dollar scandal allegedly masterminded by his younger brother, Chun Kyunghwan, 46, who is under arrest, charged with embezzlement, bribe taking and other wrongdoings.

FAA wants Eastern fined for safety violations

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The government proposed an $23,000 fine against Eastern Airlines Wednesday for alleged safety violations, launched a thorough inspection of the financially struggling carrier's Geet and opened an investigation of its parent company, Texas Air Corp. Eastern denied the allegations and called its operations "perfectly safe." Federal Aviation Administration chief T. Allan McArtor said during the 30-day investigation, FAA inspectors will literally "touch' every one of Eastern's 267 planes through a special 100 percent ramp inspection program."

Mecham slams cancellation of recall election

PHOENIX (UPI) - Fx-Gov. Evan Mecham attacked the state Supreme Court's canceling of the May 17 recall election because of his impeachment conviction as the "last act of the Arizona coup." The court's 4 to 1 ruling late Tuesday appeared to doom any chance Mecham had of recapturing the governorship. He said he would announce his future plans in an appearance on a Phoenix television newscast Wednesday night.

Massachusetts guarantees health care to all

BOSTON (UPI) — The Massachusetts Legislature approved early Wednesday a first-in-the-nation program guaranteeing universal access to health insurance to all residents of the state. The plan, targeting an estimated 600,000 people — most of them the working poor — will be phased in over four years and is viewed as a welcome prize for Gov. Michael S. Dukakis, who has been dogged on the presidential campaign by questions about his compassion and his effectiveness as a manager.

UK stays neutral on trustees' racial remark

LEXINGTON, Ky. (UPI) — The University of Kentucky administration is taking a neutral position on a call for a walkout of classes Thursday and march on Frankfort over a racial remark by former Gov. Pettit obscured the truth on gifts

CHANCELLOR LAWRENCE K. Pettit must stop misrepresenting his actions in lobbying for a state tax hike for higher education.

Pettit either twisted or obscured the truth on a number of accounts relating to New Zealand lambskin business or accounts retaining to view Zealand lamoskin business card holders he gave to state legislators.

First, and most important, Pettit told a Daily Egyptian reporter the card holders were paid for by the SIU Foundation, which is funded by private donations. In fact, the card holders were paid for with an SIU account, which is extra property is state money.

It was only after the DE reporter discovered that the holders actually were bought with state money that Pettit changed his story. He claimed he didn't know where the funds came from and that the Belleville News-Democrat misquoted him in saying Pettit claimed the money came from the SIU Foundation.

THERE ALSO WERE other, more minor, errors in Pettit's statements about the card holders.

He said he gave out about 20 holders at about $5 each to

He said he gave out about 20 holders at about $5 each to state legislators. This seems innocent enough. Spending about $100 for small gifts to legislators, while a silly investment, doesn't seem to be anything to get excited about. But Pettit actually gave out 100 holders at a total cost of $735. Pettit's office even ordered another 100 holders, which also were to be paid for with state money. After the original gifts were reported in the DE and the Belleville News-Democrat, Pettit's office canceled the second order. Apparently, the Chancellor's office realized it was about to be found out and tried to avoid further damage.

REGARDLESS, THE SECOND order would have

REGARDLESS, THE SECOND order would have pushed Petiti's total expenditures to about $1,470 — and all for silly little perks that almost certainly would have had no effect on whether legislators support a tax increase.

State Rep. Ron Stephens, R.Troy, said the card holders showed that Illinois does not need a tax increase, but simply needs to spend the money it has more sensibly. If spending $1,470 of state money on lambskin business card holders is any indication of how Pettit uses the money alloted to him, Stephens may be right.

It is truly a shame that something as silly as card holders might hurt the chances of a tax increase for higher education. Illinois must put more money into higher education and a tax increase appears to be the only way to accomplish this, but blunders like Pettit's do nothing but hurt the cause. hurt the cause.

Finally a producer of chlorine chemicals that destroy the ozone has taken the lead to be socially responsible. By its plans to stop making these chemicals - known as chlorofluorocarbons the Du Pont Co. has taken a bold step that the nations of the world have shied away from.

The threat to the ozone, a layer of gas that helps block out the sun's harmful rays, has reached a critical stage as more and more of these chemicals drift up to the stratosphere ... Clearly, radical steps are needed to cut the production of these chemicals. In a recent treaty, several countries - including the United States — agreed to trim production by 50 percent by the end of the century. That isn't good enough. What's needed is a phaseout of 95 percent to allow the ozone to bounce back over time.

Political pundits reveal 'wisdom' in their consistent bad predictions

Throughout this unendingly capricious political season there has been one constant, one fixed reference point on which you could set your compass. North and south, east and midwest, in caucus states and primaries, the ladies and gentlemen of the political press corps have been wrong — wrong wrong late.
Pat Robertson surprised and surprised pains well in Iowa, them by doing well in Iowa, then surprised them again by doing poorly everywhere else.

They sensed a victory for Robert Dole in New Hampshire, just hours before he was crushed by George Bush. They hailed Dick Gephardt a force to be reckoned with after he won in Iowa; he promptly disappeared from view. As soon as they detected a ground swell for Paul Simon a ground swell for Paul Simon, be hit a sinkhole. Albert Gore showed well on Super Tuesday, was immediately installed as a legitimate contender and hasn't landed a punch since. No sooner had the press an-nounced that Jesse Jackson

It's been an amazing per-ormance, really. My own It's been an amazing performance, really. My own record has been less than prescient — I expected the nominees to be Joe Biden and Jack Kemp — but I do not count myself a member of the political press corps. I don't work the field hard enough; I prefer to get my misinprefer to get my misin-formation secondhand.

The men and women of the corps, however, labor at their trade. They spend long months tra veling the country, following candidates, interviewing voters, reading the fine print in polls, dissecting frogs. They work brutal hours, they eat bad food, they sleep in their clothes. It is not two their clothes. It is not two weeks at the beach, being a political reporter. And for what? So they can be surprised every time there is an election, just like the rest of us.

I'm beginning to get the hang of things, though. For example, by Monday morning of this week I had figured out that Dukakis was going to beat Jackson in Wisconsin and beat Jackson in Wisconsin and Dear him soundly. How? All the news stories I was reading were telling me how great Jackson was doing in the state, how enthusiastic his crowds

Jackson was doing in the state, how enthusiastic his crowds were and bow ne was surging in the polls. In this campaign when the polltical analysts begin to gather around a candidate — like professional mourners at a sickbed — telling him how well he looks, it's all over.

The task of predicting what's going to happen should get easier from now on. You have to think that the Jackson candidacy has peaked. New York is next and it's hard to imagine him winning there, given the implacable hostility of the Jewish community, not to mention that of New York City Mayor Edward ("You'd have to be crazy to Jackson") Koch. The fact that Dukakis can address Dukakis can ad Hispanics in their address

Then we go on to Pennsylvania, another tough sell for Jackson. It is possible that Dukakis has started his cruise toward the nomination. toward the nomination. On the other hand, it's possible that he

In any case, Jackson's candidacy has begun to undergo a scrutiny far more intense than any it has known before. When he was viewed before. When he was viewed largely as a symbolic can-didate it was perhaps ap-propriate to focus mainly on the symbolic aspects of his campaign. After Michigan, however, he became a real candidate and he is now get-ting real attention. Reporters who were once interested in his vision of the future are now digging into his uast. His closet. digging into his past. His closet will be searched for skeletons, will be searched for skeletons, the statements of his youth will be taken out of the vauit and examined with a jeweler's eye, his every hypocrisy will be blown up and projected on a nationwide screen

No longer will he be able to float over the issues on wings of rhyme. He will have to come or rhyme. He will have to come up with a workable blueprint for his vast programs. In short, he will be treated like every other candidate. It will be an interesting time for Mr. Jackson. If he handles himself reall the cand with house of the condition of the c Jackson. If he handles miniser well, he could yet have a brilliant political future. If he recedes behind charges of racism, he could destroy himself and the Democratic Party as well.

You know, it could be that dull Mike Dukakis is the right candidate for the time, not merely for the Democrats but for the nation. Most people are doing OK right now - not great, but OK. Employment is up, there's no war. But they're up, there's no war. But they re afraid it's not going to last, so they want someone who tells them he can make things run better without changing much, someone who doesn't scare

That's Dukakis. The That's Dukakis. The conventional wisdom is that Dukakis' greatest liability is his lack of charisma, his inability to inflame the masses. Instead, that just might be his greatest as

Alcohol related ac-cidents cause well over twenty thousand highway deaths per year. I would be interested in knowing how many traffic deaths can be attributed to smoking. Recent studies have shown that even moderate drinking (two ounces of alcohol per day) doubles the chances of heart attacks and I have smoked about two packs of cigarettes per day for over fifty years, except for six months when I was on a Christian jag. Also, I was a heavy drinker from 1970 to April 10, 1986. In the last six months of my drinking, I had four strokes in three months, and I could not talk without coughing. I still smoke two packs of menthol cigarettes a day, by! I have had no heart trouble since I quit drinking and my cough is gone. I am hesitant to quit smoking as I am afraid the Chicago Bears will try to recruit me, and I will try to recruit me, and I don't want to give up my Social Security.

I am opposed to taxation for the purpose of achieving a victory for anyone's prejudice. I would never advocate outlawing booze, since the Second Law of Life of my religion says "I will seek to hold power over no one, nor will I permit another to hold power over me". In states where prohibitive taxation and regulations has been imposed regulations has been imposed on alcohol, bootlegging has become commonplace. Would I buy bootleg cigarettes to avoid prohibitive taxes? Damiright, I would.

If anyone is interested in increasing tax revenues to balance the budget, I would increasing teat revenue to balance the budget, I would suggest that they consider taxing churches, including their properties, such as tenements in New York wowned by some of the Catholic orders. I can see no reasons why I, a pagan, should be forced to pay taxes which provide churches with police and fire protection, as well as other services, free of charge. Not taxing religious freedom, but rather subsidization by the state. -Robert Phillips, Chief Minister, The Caurch of the Outlaw Confederation Minister, The Caurch Outlaw Confederation

Statue of Rice gets a new view

HOUSTON (UPI) — For almost 58 years, the 2,000-pound bronze statue of Rice University founder William Marsh Rice stared blankly at Lovett Hall. This week, he got a change of scenery. a change of scenery

Rice University officials said Wednesday they are trying to find out who used a rope and pulley to lift the 1 ton statue from its base, turn it half a circle and return it to the granite pedestal.

Intracor: Track should be complete by Friday

The long awaited finish to McAndrew Stadium track renovations may come Friday. A five-man striping crew from All American Track of Amherst, Ohio, began marking and painting lines on the track

Wednesday.
"We're going to get some lines down today, the rest tommorrow," Brian Smith, a member of the striping crew,

The last delay occurred when members of the scheduled striping crew were involved in an accident over the weekend while en route to SIU-C.

Intracor supervisor Dan Hunt said members of the Rockford-based Track Ten striping crew had finished a job in Boston, Mass., and were on the way to Carbondale when the driver of the truck fell asleep and got into an ac-cident, resulting in personal injuries to the crew and damage to tools.

"Luckily, they (All American Track) had just finished a job and were able to come down real quick," Hunt sai?

Also Wednesday, more sand was dumped on the turf. Fich Pruit, also with In-tracor, said the additional sand was used to fill out dead spots and wrinkles, filling out the turf a little better.

"It's going to go real fast for the turf crew," Pruit said. "The turf's really OK, but they just want to make sure there are no loose ends, making sure everything is perfect."

The original deadline set for the track's completion was last August. Since Feb. 29, when Intracor sent workers back to Carbondale, only four good days were needed to finish up the project.

the project.

Rain and wind have been blamed since February for holding up the work.

So now, if the weather holds: "They'll be done by Friday," Hunt said.

The Salukis did not get Marion's Scott Shreffler, who signed with Evansville. Herrin had offered him a

Salukis cruise to 11-7 victory over St. Louis

By Dave Miller Staft Writer

St. Louis knocked and started to walk in but Doug Shields slammed the door on the Billitone to give the the Billikens to give the Salukis a 11-7 victory Wednesday at Abe Martin Field.

The Salukis cruised to a 7-1 lead after five innings before St. Louis put four runners across the plate in the sixth.

The Salukis then duplicated the Billikens' four-run inning in their half of the sixth. Shields knocked in his third and fourth runs of the game with a two out-triple to give the Salukis an 11-5 lead. In the final two innings, Shields came in from center field to make his 1988 pitching debut. He allowed one run on two hits and two walks. He struck out one.

"I felt strong," Shields said.
"I thought if I threw hard and kept the ball down, I could do the job. In the first appearance on the mound you're bound to be a little wild. I wasn't as fine as I'd like to be."

Pitching coach Kirk Champion said the right-ha..der may be able to help shore up the bullpen.

"He's got a good arm and he's got a clue to what he's doing," Champion said. "When he tries to overthrow, when he tries to overthrow, his ball straightens out. When he stays within himself, he's got a good live ball. He's one of the few guys that can go out and get a strikeout."

The Salukis moved to 21-12 while St. Louis fell to 8-14. See VICTORY, Page 17
