Education Levels of U.S. Adults

FACTS IN BRIEF

More U.S. Adults are College Educated

• In 1983, 19 percent of U.S. adults (25 years and older) had a baccalaureate degree or higher, compared to 13 percent ten years earlier. In addition, more adult males were college educated than were adult females (23 percent versus 15 percent).

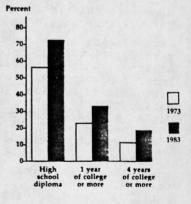

· The level of education attained varied not only by sex, but by race as well. The proportion of the population with a college education in 1983, by race, was: whites 20 percent; blacks 10 percent; and Hispanics 8 percent.

 In 1983, 72 percent of all U.S. adults had earned a high school diploma. The percentage of blacks with a high school diploma in-creased significantly between 1973 and 1983, from 34 percent to 57 percent.

• More than a quarter of the population (27 percent) between the ages of 30-34 years had earned a bachelor's degree.

As of 1983, the U.S. population was 234 million

Faculty and Staff Sketches

Carolyn Corbin, assistant program manager at WGVC/WGVK, will represent public broadcasting programmers from the Midwest at a meeting of the Inter-regional Program Service in Boston on October 28.

Daleene Menning, associate professor of art, lectured on the developmental aspects of children's art and how those considerations affect children's viewing and perceptions of art works to the Docent Training Group at the Muskegon Museum of Art. The lecture was part of a special grant received by the museum to introduce all fifth-grade children from the greater Muskegon area to the museum and was required training for museum docents.

Deanna Morse, associate professor of communications, has received a $6,000 Creative Artists grant from the Michigan Council for the Arts. She was awarded the grant for her film "Domestic Chores," a project which she began while on sabbatical. Morse was also honored when her film "Charleston Home Movie" was included in the program "Retrospective of American Animation," which was presented at the Hiroshima International Animation Festival in Japan in August. This was the first international animation festival to be held in Asia.

Diana Pace, director of counseling services, recently presented a paper entitled "Innovative Ideas for a College Career Planning Center" at the annual meeting of the Association for University and College Counseling Center Directors held in Saratoga Springs, New York.

Case Western Reserve University, Cleveland, Ohio, has selected two sets of verses by Roberta Simone, associate professor of English, for publication in Light Year '86. Titles of the selections are "Clerihew Couples" and "A Literary History of Cheese."

Saga saved $700 by not preparing the meals and will contribute that sum to Africa through Church World Service and Catholic Relief Services. Lavon Larson of Saga commented, "We are happy to cooperate in this kind of cause. I'm impressed with the students' response."

According to Director of Campus Ministries Chic Broersma, "Although the needs of Ethiopia have been met through contributions from many sources, there are a number of other African countries that are still in need. Church World Service and Catholic Relief Services will distribute the funds where they are most needed."

The Dialogue and Catholic Mass student worship services on campus assisted in African relief by contributing one week's offerings to the effort.
