ALLENDALE -- Psychic Suzy Smith, noted author in the fields of parapsychology and the occult, will present an informal public talk at Grand Valley State College on Tuesday, January 11, 1 p.m., in room 132 Lake Huron Hall. Sponsored by William James College of GVSC, the free talk is part of a commemoration of the 130th birthdate of William James, America's great 19th century philosopher and psychologist.

Miss Smith, who at first denied any affinity for mysticism and who approached her first message with skepticism, discovered through careful experimentation, her talent for automatic writing from the spirit world, including extensive messages from William James.

Since her discovery, she has traveled throughout the U.S. and abroad, "investigating psychic phenomena, consulting with (scholars), and sharing her knowledge with the public."

A resident of Tuscon, Arizona, Miss Smith is author of over fifteen books dealing with such topics as ghosts and poltergeists, ESP, and "a highly regarded biography of the famous medium, Mrs. Leonard." Among her works are: ESP FOR THE MILLIONS, WIDESPREAD PSYCHIC WONDERS, PROMINENT AMERICAN GHOSTS, and an autobiography, CONFESSIONS OF A PSYCHIC.

The attached policy concerning "Alcoholic Beverages on The Grand Valley State Colleges Campus" was distributed at the western Michigan collegiate center on Wednesday, January 5, 1972.

ALCOHOLIC BEVERAGES ON THE GRAND VALLEY STATE COLLEGES CAMPUS

At its November 5 meeting, the Community Council resolved to recommend that the Board of Control vacate its previous prohibition of possession of alcoholic beverages on the campus and directed the Committee on Campus Life (CCL) to propose a scheme for permitting possession and consumption. At its December 17 meeting, the Board of Control passed the following resolution:

Resolved, effective on January 1, 1972, that the Board of Control approves the possession and consumption of alcoholic beverages on the campus, provided that the President of the College approves and regularly reviews restrictions under the policy that will insure that the primary functions of the College are not impaired.

The change in the age of majority has not been accompanied by any change in law regarding alcoholic beverages. The laws of the State of Michigan and the precedents set by court cases allow that a person may, without a license, serve alcoholic beverages to his personal guests, particularly if he does so in home surroundings. Situations outside of the application of this hospitality clause are heavily weighted with legal restrictions and implications. Grand Valley State College must support these laws without exception.

The following regulations regarding the possession and/or consumption of alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, are in effect. Violation of any of the following regulations constitutes misconduct for which individuals and groups may be subject to disciplinary action and prosecution under State law.

Section A

Subject to the laws of the State of Michigan, the consumption and/or possession of alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, is permitted in the individual's private living unit of the College housing facilities. This hospitality situation does not allow for sale, exchange, barter or traffic. Determination of specific policies regarding alcoholic beverages within College housing facilities, including the use of public areas will be decided by individual residence halls subject to approval by the Vice President of Student Affairs.

Section B

Subject to the laws of the State of Michigan, the consumption and/or possession of alcoholic beverages, including beer and wine, is otherwise permitted only at functions properly registered with the Coordinator of Campus Activities and approved in advance by the Vice President of Student Affairs or his designate. When classes are in session, these functions may normally be scheduled to take place only after the hour of 5:00 pm and only in the following designated areas:

- 1) The downstairs portion of the Commons (excluding the lobby, Bookstore and Game Room area);
- 2) The Grand Traverse Room in Lake Michigan Hall;
- 3) The Crew House;
- 4) Seidman House lounge area.

5) ~~Seidman House~~

003
005

To comply with State law, the following regulations must apply to all group functions involving the consumption and/or possession of alcoholic beverages on College property:

- 1) Each individual must assume personal responsibility for:
 - a) the purchase and consumption of his own alcoholic beverages, food, mixers, ice or other fluids used with alcoholic drinks;
 - b) his own conduct;
 - c) the disposal and/or storage of any alcoholic beverages not consumed.
- 2) The group's chairman, president or other designated individual will be held to overall responsibility for the function.
- 3) No transactions can be permitted on the premises or for the facilitation of the function; i.e., no charges will be made for admission, no tickets will be sold, and no food, mixers, ice or other fluids used with alcoholic drinks will be sold or supplied by or to the group.
- 4) Attendance must be limited to the group members and their specific previously invited guests.
- 5) No group funds can be used for the facilitation of any function involving the consumption of alcoholic beverages; i.e., the use of Student Activities Fee monies, General Fund monies or other "common funds" is prohibited in connection with the function.

ALLENDALE -- A voter registration drive for students at Grand Valley State College will begin Monday, January 10 and continue throughout the month. Aimed primarily to reach new 18-21 year old voters, registrants will become eligible to vote at polls in Allendale Township.

"There are approximately 1,050 students on campus possibly eligible to vote for the first time this year," Josh Austin, chairman of the Grand Valley Voter Registration Committee states. "Our goal will be to reach all those who haven't already registered in their hometowns. This could be between 700-800 students."

Austin, a GVSC freshman from Muskegon (1368 East Airport Rd.), is also general chairman of the Western Michigan Voter Registration Committee, a group promoting similar registration drives throughout the west side of the state.

Kick-off events of the GVSC drive, which will be repeated throughout January, include registration tables manned by deputized voter registrars, set up in The Commons cafeteria at noon and evening meals on the 12th, and a door-to-door campaign scheduled in GVSC's three residence halls on Tuesday evening, January 11. Further plans also include door-to-door drives in apartments adjacent to the campus, and reminder calls.

- more -

Deputized registrars at the college include Allendale residents, The Rev. Erwin Bode, Dr. John R. Henderson, Rosa Walkoe (Mrs. Wilbur), and GVSC students, Penny Klein and Steven Tharp.

On-campus information concerning voter registration may be secured from Tharp, telephone 895-6611, ext. 517, Robinson House.

Psychologists from Grand Valley State College's counseling center and three autonomous colleges in Allendale, Michigan, have recently formed a GVSC Psychology Guild, offering once-a-month information exchanges for members at the expanding collegiate center. Such broad matters as psychological developments in research and scholarly journals are shared, as well as day-to-day cooperative developmental efforts in the field at GVSC.

Formed to combat isolation within growing units at the college, members represent GVSC's Counseling and Mental Health Center, The College of Arts and Sciences, Thomas Jefferson College and William James College.

ALLENDALE -- Michigan Senator David Plawecki of Dearborn, youngest member of the Senate, will speak informally about a bill proposing an April 1972 special election of precinct delegates at Grand Valley State College Monday, January 10. The public, particularly new 18-21 year old voters are invited to the 5 p.m. talk in room 220, Mackinac Hall.

Sponsored by the Grand Valley Voter Registration Committee, Chairman Josh Austin, freshman from Muskegon, stated, "House Bill 5748, which is presently in committee, involves an opportunity for newly enfranchised voters and others to be elected as precinct delegates during this major election year. Present delegates were elected in 1970.

"Senator Plawecki will discuss how students and others can work toward passage of the bill," Austin continued. "The bill would allow new voters participation inside convention halls."

ALLENDALE -- As many of the nation's young poets move away from 'beat' detachment and despair into a movement of revitalization and celebration, L. Eric Greinke's recently released collection, SAND & OTHER POEMS, presents a thoughtful, refreshing example of this "new age" of poetry.

Including such poems as "Morning Bells to Sail By," "An Encounter," and "The Warmth Inside," Greinke's collection is representative of his works to 1972, some of which have previously appeared in local and nationally distributed publications.

SAND & OTHER POEMS is published by Metamorphosis Press Books of Grand Rapids, and is available in a number of western Michigan bookstores.

A Grand Valley State College senior from Grand Rapids, Greinke is editor of The College of Arts and Sciences' English Department literary magazine, "Amaranthus."

ALLENDALE -- An eight-week summer study program in France's historic Loire Valley will be offered for the third year to qualified students from accredited institutions in the United States through Grand Valley State College's Office of International Studies.

Presented in conjunction with the Institut d'Etudes Francaises de Touraine in Tours, France, GVSC's French Foreign Studies Program will take place July and August 1972. Early registration is recommended. Further information may be secured from Dr. E. F. Gearhart, Director, Office of International Studies, GVSC, Allendale, Michigan 49401.

Classes within the Institut's 18th century town house will be led by resident director Pierre E. Robert, faculty member of GVSC's foreign language department, and faculty of the Tours' Institut. Robert, who is currently completing his Ph.D. degree in Paris, states, "Courses are open to members of the U.S. group within the Institut. If there is sufficient enrollment, however, courses will be specially designed exclusively for members of this group." Up to 15 hours of GVSC credit may be earned in the eight-week program.

Living accommodations are available both in student housing and with French families in Tours. Trips to Paris, only two hours from Tours, and excursions throughout the "chateau country" and to the seacoast, are also planned.

ALLENDALE -- Rising star in the national music world, singer/song-writer Carly Simon, will headline Grand Valley State College's Winter Carnival Concert, Saturday, January 22 at GVSC's Field House. Sponsored by the Campus Activities Office, doors open to the event at 7 p.m. Advance tickets at $3 are available at the GVSC Bookstore, and in Grand Rapids at the Flaming Rat, Sound Room (Eastbrook), Record Hut, Chess King (North Kent), Tape World, Record and Tape Center (Woodland), and Indian Ocean Trading Co. Tickets at the door will be $4 each.

Backed by Paul Glanz, pianist and guitarist, Andy Newmark, drummer, and Jimmy Ryan on bass guitar, Carly Simon moves from country, pop, to "funky" rock 'n' roll in what one reviewer states is a kind of "musicianship that instinctively knows what the sound should be and how to get it, and ... the kind of poise seldom seen even on seasoned veterans."

Recording for Elektra, her first album, "Carly Simon," ranges from "high and low, hard and soft, rough and smooth" in such songs as her own "Reunions" and "Rolling Down the Hills," through her interpretation of Jacob Brackman's lyrics in "That's the Way I've Always Heard It Should Be."

- more -

Both on record and in concert Carly herself switches from six to twelve string guitar and piano accompaniment.

On the bill with Carly Simon at GVSC January 22 will be single folk artists, Mickey Newbury out of Nashville, and John Round of Detroit.

Round, who records for Westbound Records, has played the Raven Gallery and Poison Apple in the Motor City, and recently completed a two-week date at the Gaslight in N.Y.C.

Newbury's songs, including "Sweet Memories" and "Funny, Familiar, Forgotten Feelings," have been chosen by many of the nation's leading recording stars including B.B. King, Ray Charles, Joan Baez, and Buffy St. Marie.

ALLENDALE -- Adventure and study in the Grand Canyon combine in a talk and slide-film presentation by Dr. J. Cotter Tharin, chairman of Hope College's geology department, at Grand Valley State College Thursday, January 20 at 7 p.m. Sponsored by the GVSC Geology Club, Dr. Tharin's topic will be "Floating on the Colorado - Geology and Scenery of the Grand Canyon." The event, in room 107 Manitou Hall, is open to the public free of charge.

Dr. Tharin's presentation is based on his field study in the canyon, and by raft down the Colorado River.

An "incomplete" totally replaces any designation of "unsatisfactory" in the new complete-incomplete grading system of the Thomas Jefferson College of Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Michigan.

"'Unsatisfactory-satisfactory' seemed completely out of context in tracing a student's progress through his studies and project work at TJC," Dr. T. Dan Gilmore, dean of the experimenting college stated.

"Now, either a student completes a commitment to the best of his ability and to the satisfaction of his tutor, or he continues that commitment indefinitely as an 'incomplete' for as long as he and his tutor agree is necessary.

"Only completed courses are carried on TJC students' records, counting toward GVSC graduation and the high level of Thomas Jefferson students' acceptances in graduate schools."

RE: Fall News
January 15, 1972

I am currently gathering information on what's new on campus for fall news supplements. Metro Newspaper Services, Inc. (which services 4000 papers) has expressed an interest in the following:

1. New methods of instruction on campus
2. Any save-the-faculty drives by students similar to the one at Mankato State (see MEMO January 1, 1972)
3. Any unusual ways students have devised to finance their college costs. Have they started their own businesses, etc.

In addition, if you have any stories on something new you are doing, or something old you are doing in a new way that would be of national interest, please send the story to me.

Good captioned pictures that illustrate any of these stories are also much in demand.

My deadline is March 15. Look forward to hearing from you.

ALLENDALE -- As the question of a one-house legislature in Michigan is considered for possible inclusion on the November ballot, the nation's only unicameral legislature in Lincoln, Nebraska is focus of an evaluative study by Grand Valley State College political science major William Nicholas of 3443 Canal St., SW, Grandville.

As a GVSC intern, Nicholas not only works as an aid to Nebraskan senators, but is also collecting information toward a senior thesis which will "be an attempt to determine the feasibility of an unicarmel system in Michigan." Interest in Nicholas' evaluation and data compilation has already been expressed by Michigan State Rep. Joseph P. Swallow, leader of a petition campaign to place the one-house question on November's ballot in this state.

An air force veteran, 28-year-old Nicholas first became aware of Nebraska's legislative structure when stationed for 3-1/2 years at Lincoln Air Force base. When Michigan's unicameral plan came under serious consideration, he made arrangements to serve as intern in Nebraska through Sen. William Swanson, chairman of that state's legislative executive board.

Scheduled to return to western Michigan in March, Nicholas is taking part in one of the numercus city, county, state, and national internship programs of GVSC's political science department of The College of Arts and Sciences. His work-study activities in Nebraska were recently featured in an Omaha World-Herald newspaper article.

ALLENDALE -- A new Grand Valley State College string quartet, consisting of outstanding members of the Grand Rapids Symphony, has been formed as the first GVSC artists-in-residence performance group at the west Michigan collegiate center.

Led by Arturo Delmoni, concertmaster of the Grand Rapids Symphony, the Grand Valley String Quartet's first public performance will take place on Sunday, January 30 at 3 p.m. in the Louis Armstrong Theatre of GVSC's Fine Arts Center. Program selections will be: "Quartet in G, Opus 54, No. 1," by Haydn; Beethoven's "Quartet in C minor, Opus 18, No. 4;" and "Quartet No. 3," by Dvorak. No admission will be charged to the event.

Members of the Grand Valley String Quartet are, Delmoni, leader and first violin; Jo Margaret Farris (Mrs. John A.), second violin; Daniel Kovats, viola; and John Smith, cello. Within the Grand Rapids Symphony, Mrs. Farris is assistant concertmaster; Kovats, principal violist; and John Smith, principal cellist.

According to Wayne Dunlap, chairman of the music department and professor of music in GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, "The Grand Valley String Quartet will be a part-time resident group, rehearsing each week on campus, and presenting one concert each academic term. In addition they will be available for concerts off-campus."

- more -

Dunlap continued, "In addition to their performance responsibility, each quartet member will teach advanced students on string instruments.

"String instrument players who are not enrolled as GVSC students, may also have the opportunity of studying with members of the quartet with advanced permission.

"The Grand Valley String Quartet is the first of three artists-in-residence performance groups which will have their home on the GVSC campus," Dunlap, who is also conductor of the Plymouth, Michigan Symphony, stated. "Next fall it is the plan to organize a companion Woodwind Quintet which will function in the same manner as the String Quartet. When this group is in operation, the Quartet and Quintet will be combined to provide a resident Little Symphony. It is possible that other staff members and advanced students may augment this group to provide a highly competent orchestra for many functions on and off campus.

Among the advantages of artists-in-residence groups at GVSC which Dunlap cites include: The stimulation and enrichment of professional artists on the campus, both to GVSC students and to young musicians within driving distance of the college; and, the highest quality of musicianship for cultural enrichment in live concerts at Grand Valley and in the area.

Brief resumes of the Grand Valley String Quartet members follow:

Arturo Delmoni began his violin studies at the age of 4. A holder of numerous awards and scholarships, he has appeared five times as soloist with symphony orchestras at Carnegie Hall, and with symphonies in Italy, Germany, and Switzerland. A graduate of Julliard School of Music, Mr. Delmoni was a featured musician during the Casals Festival in Puerto Rico on television in 1964. He is a resident of New York City.

Jo Margaret Farris (Mrs. John A.) graduated from the University of New Mexico, and attended Aspen School of Music for two summers. She has appeared with numerous symphony orchestras in the southwest and eastern United States, as well as in chamber music and solo work. Mrs. Farris began Talent Education (Suzuki) in Grand Rapids in 1969. She is a resident of southeast Grand Rapids.

Daniel Kovats, director of the Grand Rapids Youth Symphony, was for ten years chairman of the instrumental music department of Grand Rapids Junior College, and for three years served as director of orchestra at the Blue Lakes Fine Arts Camp. He has also been director of orchestra at the Creative Arts Workshop of Olivet College. Kovats holds the Master of Music degree from the University of Michigan, and is presently a member of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences music department faculty. He lives in southeast Grand Rapids.

John Smith first appeared with an orchestra as solist at age 15. He attended the University of New Mexico, and studied at the Un. of Illinois, and the Music Academy of the West in Santa Barbara, Calif. He has played with symphony and chamber orchestra in the southwest, and currently plays with the Lansing Symphony as well as the Grand Rapids Symphony. Presently, Smith is working toward a certificate in Bible at Grand Rapids School of Bible and Music.

ALLENDALE -- As long-range career planning becomes increasingly difficult for students looking to limited prospects in a tightening job market, Grand Valley State College's Student Affairs Division has initiated a four-step program designed to give students as much assistance as possible in career and academic choices.

Guided by various offices of the GVSC division, the program involves collection of national information concerning employment patterns, both present and future; cooperation with faculty members in developing sensitivity to career orientations; academic and counseling career seminars for students; and, a series of seminars related directly to specific areas of "job seeking."

Coordinator of the program's development, Dr. Robert H. Woody, GVSC Dean of Student Development and Director of the Counseling and Mental Health Center, states, "The fact that a college student can no longer choose a major area of study that matches his personal aspirations, and then progress through college with the confidence that he will eventually attain a rewarding position in his chosen field, may well be one of the most significant adverse influences on youth today."

- more -

Dr. Woody continued, "Professionals who work directly with high school and college students encounter a variety of indications that the student's motivation for learning, and perhaps even life in general, is hit hard by the uncertainty of whether he can eventually have individually-determined vocational activities. Our program at GVSC is designed to help counteract this adverse, and psychologically draining, uncertainty."

During January and February, almost all major areas of study at the college are being examined in light of their career opportunities through "career seminars." Each seminar is led by a professor from the field and a college counselor. Guiding this portion of the four-step program is James R. Springer, counselor and coordinator of educational and vocational counseling services.

A series of seminars related to the specifics of job seeking, including such areas as application, interviews, and follow-up, is also being offered by the Student Affairs Division, coordinated by George Phillips, assistant director of placement.

In another phase of the program, members of Grand Valley's Student Affairs staff have contacted national employment research specialists and other sources, attempting to determine predictions of employment trends, particularly for coming years. "Even these sources though have been unable to present accurate, definitive predictions," Dr. Woody stated. "We have been able to discern some broad, general future employment patterns though, and we are continuing the search.

"'Micro-teaching,' the phrase used to describe teaching encounters scaled down both in time and number of students involved, offers unique opportunities for student teachers to analyze and gain a better understanding of the process of teaching," states F. Weston Wochholz of Grand Valley State College's Educational Studies Institute in Allendale, Michigan.

Micro-teaching at GVSC involves brief 10-20 minute teaching encounters between student teachers, teachers, and local school students, recorded on video tape, and immediately analyzed and critiqued by all participants, forming what Wochholz calls "a cyclical opportunity for self-improvement through interaction, analysis, student and peer feedback, change, practice, and again, interaction.

Produced through the services of GVSC's audio-video department, encounters involve student teachers at the college and practicing teachers from area schools, in scheduled sessions on-campus and within west central Michigan school classrooms.

The offerings Wochholz states, "are a part of Grand Valley's effort to meet the challenge of quality and pertinence in teacher education, both undergraduate and continuing, within an increasingly crowded career field."

Take two enterprising students, mix in dreams of completing college degrees and of publishing their own and others' works, add success as an ingredient, and the result is "Metamorphosis Productions" of Grand Rapids, Michigan.

The young publishing company of L. Eric Greinke (seated) and Ronnie M. Lane, seniors at Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Mich., already has over eight published volumes of poetry to its credit, and increasing popular demand for more.

The two men not only often write, edit, and do layout and illustration themselves, but handle all consignment sales of their refreshing hard-cover and paperback editions in bookstores and department stores in western Michigan.

ALLENDALE -- The Japanese language has gained in popularity in Grand Valley State College's Self-Instruction in the Neglected Languages Program. Seven new students joined the Japanese program during winter 1972, joining two students in their second phase of the offering from fall '71. Working primarily with taped materials at home and at GVSC, students in the program review their progress each week on-campus with native speakers. Two faculty members of Grand Valley's College of Arts and Sciences, Robert S. Junn, political science department, and Takeshi Takahara, art, are serving this winter as native speakers.

Dr. E. F. Gearhart, chairman of GVSC's foreign language department, reports that three students are also taking the first offering of self-instruction in Arabic in winter 1972. Abba Howell of Grand Rapids is assisting as native speaker.

Dr. Gearhart noted, however, that no one has yet taken advantage of the program in Serbo-Croatian, the native language of Yugoslavia. Further information concerning this offering, as well as those in Japanese and Arabic, may be obtained from his office, telephone 895-6611, ext. 213. Information relative to initial registration at GVSC may be obtained through ext. 254.

ALLENDALE -- "Latino Day" at Grand Valley State College Wednesday, February 2, is expected to draw over 100 Latin American students from Grand Rapids area high schools to a full day of speakers, group rap sessions, a movie, and campus tours. Coordinated by GVSC's "La Lucha" student organization, all events, particularly the rap sessions, will attempt to help students of Latin American descent to "know and understand more about themselves and about other Latinos around them."

Students will begin arriving at the GVSC campus at 9 a.m., and will take part in a 9:15, room 174, Lake Michigan Hall, "Morning Speaker" program, consisting of introductions to "Latino Day," and to guests and GVSC students who will later serve as tour guides and rap session leaders.

At 9:45 a.m., the film, "I Am Joaquin" will be shown in the same room, serving "as a means to starting meaningful discussion (within rap sessions) to the awareness of the Latino situation in reference to (the students') future."

Rap sessions, also in room 174 LMH, will precede luncheon and campus tours. At 1:45 p.m., staff members, Jose Gomez of Michigan State Un. and Jose Pios of Central Michigan Un., will be featured in a series of talks on the subject, "Motivation."

LATINO DAY
Grand Valley State College
February 2, 1972

AGENDA:

All students must be at G.V.S.C. by	9:00 a.m.
Morning Speakers (introduction)	9:15 a.m.
Movie (I AM JOAQUIN)	9:45 a.m.
Individual Group Rap Sessions	10:15 a.m.
Lunch	11:30 a.m.
Campus Tour	12:30 p.m.
Afternoon Speakers	1:45 p.m.
Students should be on the bus by	3:00 p.m.

Rundown of events:

Morning Speakers: These speakers will simply introduce all guests and G.V.S.C. students who will be working as tour guides and as rap session leaders. There will also be someone, possibly a member of the G.V.S.C. Latino organization ("La Lucha"), who will explain the purpose of "Latino Day" to all present.

Movie: Purpose for this movie is to provide the rap session leaders a means of starting a meaningful discussion as to the awareness of the Latino situation in reference to his future.

Rap Sessions: Hopefully some meaningful discussion will come out of these rap sessions. We hope that when the student leaves, he knows and understands more about himself and about other Latinos around him.

Campus Tour: Self-explanatory.

Afternoon Speakers: We hope that these speakers will concentrate on the subject of "Motivation." We will not push G.V.S.C. to a degree that the student will be "turned off" to college in general. We will, however, try and influence the student so that he will try and better himself. There will be a flock of possible speakers available, including Jose Gamez who will very likely say a few words. There may be others depending, of course, on time remaining.

Formed in 1969 by Milwaukee's leading Black choreographer, Ferne Caulker Bronson, the Ko-Thi Dance Company will appear during Grand Valley State College's "Black Culture Week" in the Louis Armstrong Theatre, Fine Arts Center on Saturday, February 12 at 8 p.m. No admission will be charged to the event.

Ko-Thi, meaning "Go Black," derives from the Shebro dialect of Mrs. Bronson's native Sierr Leone, West Africa.

From its beginning with seven members, the Ko-Thi Dance Company has grown to twenty-five dedicated young Black men and women, dancers and musicians. Its repertoire is based on Black history, African and African-American, past and present.

"Through the type of repertoire performed, we hope a better sense of communication and awareness may be established through identity with something positive and constructive," Mrs. Bronson states. High praise has been accorded the group's performances throughout Wisconsin.

ALLENDALE -- "Intensive German language studies will be joined by degree and non-degree offerings in art this summer," Dr. E. F. Gearhart, director of Grand Valley State College's International Studies Program stated this week as he announced openings in GVSC's German Language Summer School.

The overseas offering, totally administered by Grand Valley, begins July 10 and continues through August 18, 1972. Open to all qualified undergraduates and selected graduate students from accredited institutions in the United States, further information about the Austrian summer school may be secured from Dr. Gearhart, Office of International Studies, GVSC, Allendale, Michigan 49401.

"Language and art are particularly suited to the Austrian locale of GVSC's German Language Summer School," Dr. Gearhart stated. "Klagenfurt is the capital of Carinthia, a picturesque, mountainous province rich in history, and cultural opportunities.

"Morning classes of the school, including language, literature, painting and drawing, are taught by GVSC and Austrian instructors, with afternoons free for study and recreation, particularly water sports on nearby beautiful Lake Worth. Such activities as sponsored trips to historic sites, art and folklore events, and social institutions, are included within the GVSC program. Tutoring by Austrian students and teachers, as well as ample opportunity to meet European young people are also highlights of the summer school experience."

Dr. Gearhart also noted that opportunities for weekend travel to such cultural centers as Vienna; Venice, Italy; and, Bled, Yugoslavia, as well as independent European travel prior to and following the German Language Summer School session, are also available.

He continued, "We are particularly pleased to announce that Donald Kerr, Grand Valley State College professor of art, will teach painting and drawing at advanced, intermediate, and beginning levels in both degree and non-degree offerings this summer." Currently chairman of the art department of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, Kerr's works have been featured in art exhibitions throughout the United States, including exhibits at the Detroit Art Institute, Salt Lake City Fine Arts Center, Brooklyn Museum, and Tucson Art Center. Prior to joining Grand Valley two years ago, he was a member of the faculty of the University of Nevada at Reno for nine years. Locally during fall 1971, Kerr conducted a highly popular evening art program at Grand Haven's Community Center.

ETV PROGRESSES AT GVSC

GVSC News Bureau

Progress in the development of WGVC-TV, Grand Valley State College's new educational television station is moving close to its projected schedule, Gordon Lawrence, station manager reported recently.

Lawrence particularly noted two developments toward bringing the best of national, regional, and local educational programming to west central Michigan by late 1972.

First, approval has been received from the Federal Communications Commission for a construction permit modification, permitting construction of the WGVC-TV tower and antenna on the campus of Grand Valley State College in Allendale. Lawrence stated, "There are several advantages to this move. We will be able to use underground lines to studios and transmitter, rather than a micro-wave link to an outlying location, thus creating a much more satisfactory installation from a technical view. Also, the move provides a better coverage pattern for a primary grade signal to Grand Rapids, Muskegon, Holland, and areas between, and a good quality grade B signal to all communities within a 45 mile radius of the campus."

Lawrence also noted that David H. Doebel, director of audio-video services at GVSC has accepted the dual appointment of A-V director and chief engineer of WGVC-TV. Doebel, whose commercial and educational TV experience spans more than twenty years, has been working closely with Lawrence in preparation of equipment and technical specifications and planning for the new station.

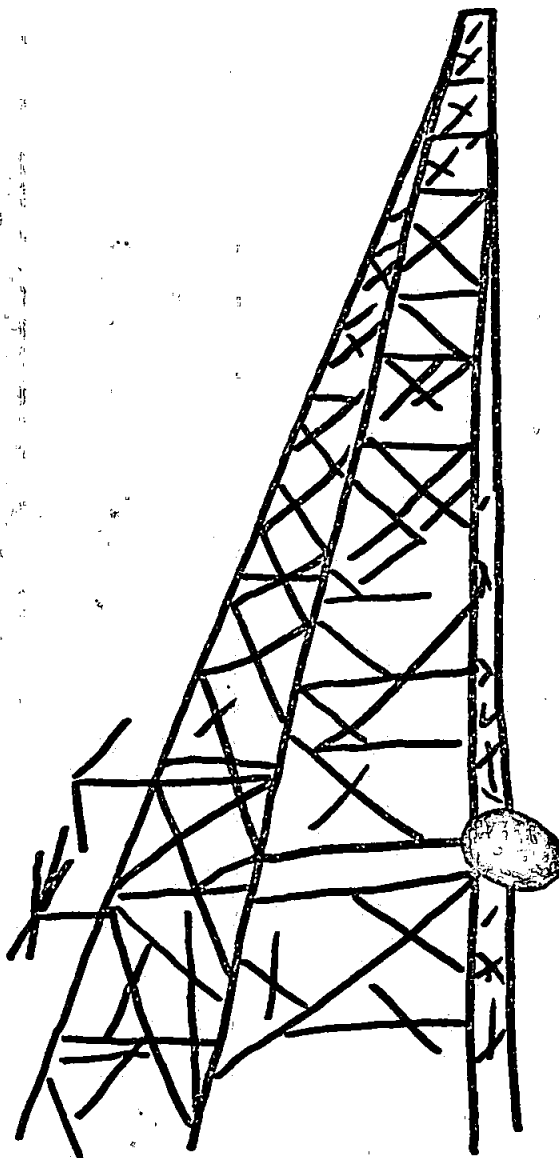

"It is our goal to be of broad, general service to the community at-large," Lawrence states, "and it is our hope that we can particularly serve the school districts of this area. Cooperative efforts are already being explored with school personnel and will be continued."

Lawrence, who was very active in the Gold Chip Chapter of the Athens, Ohio Jaycees, joined Grand Valley in October 1971. He had been associated with WOUB-TV, AM and FM in Athens since March 1966, and served since 1970 as public television program director. During 1970 he was president of the Athens Jaycees. "I feel quite a relevance to Jaycee efforts within my career in educational television," he states. "Jaycee membership is represented on the Friends of Public Television, an important advisory group to the Corporation of Public Broadcasting."

Lawrence holds the B.A. degree in television, radio and film from Michigan State Un., and since 1959 his career has also included association with WKAR-AM and WMSB-TV, East Lansing; WGBH-TV, Boston, Mass.; and, WJIM-TV, Lansing.

He is a member of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters and the National Academy of Television Arts and Sciences. He and his family are currently Jenison residents.

ALLENDALE -- Innovative theatre for young people in "A Psychedelic Bag of Beans" will be highlighted by the Grand Valley State College Lilliput Players on Saturday, February 12, 1:30 p.m. in the Fine Arts Center on campus. Improvisation and imaginative participation will be bases for creative interchanges between actors and audience in the public programs geared to specific age groups: Ages 5-7 in room 105 of the Center; ages 8-9, room 121; and, ages 10-12, room 115.

Admission will be 50¢ each. However, due to room size, reservations will be necessary and may be placed by telephone, 895-6611, ext. 339 or 495.

Lilliput Players' productions, which last year played to more than 15 schools, churches, and other organizations in the state, will be available for tour again this year. Groups interested in scheduling performances of the new "A Psychedelic Bag of Beans" are invited to call Laura Salazar, director, at the above telephone number for further information. Mrs. Salazar states, "Our new program this year presents opportunities for young audience members to have a taste of creative dramatics and theatre games which are designed to develop creativity and sensitivity. We are able to set up the show in any open space." A $10 fee, plus 10¢ per mile beyond 15 miles from the campus, remains in effect this year.

Mrs. Salazar, GVSC assistant professor of theatre, continued her description of "A Psychedelic Bag of Beans," "Experimental 'game theatre' is not often done in this area of Michigan. For children 5-9, the program consists of music, movement, games, and a play, 'The Best of Clowns,' which calls for children to help the young hero become a member of a famous clown troupe.

"For ages 10-14, the GVSC players will present improvisational theatre much in the style of Chicago's Second City. In this type of theatre the actors may perform a story at the suggestion of an audience member. In another version, they may play a story in gibberish with the audience challenged to identify it. Young people can plan on being an active part of the performance without embarrassment. Using these techniques to play, every performance is unique."

Mrs. Salazar not only directs the productions, but is also author of "The Best of Clowns." Costumes for "A Psychedelic Bag of Beans" are by Virginia Helton, GVSC assistant professor of theatre.

"In the small private school, one advantage is that you can develop programs and see them to their stage of reality in a shorter period of time, which is very gratifying," George Cleveland, former principal of Union High School, Grand Rapids, stated recently in describing his present position as superintendent of Escuela Bella Vista, Maracaibo, Venezuela.

Owned by local oil companies and allied industries through common stock, Escuela Bella Vista offers "quality education in English to over 380 children of North American families employed in Maracaibo, from pre-school through 10th grade," Cleveland stated. The school, which plans to add grades 11 and 12 in the near future, is fully accredited by the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. All members of the faculty are certified teachers from accredited colleges and universities in the U.S.

One of the programs which involved Cleveland in its development was the first student teaching program at Escuela Bella Vista, developed in cooperation with Grand Valley State College's Educational Studies Institute. Accompanied by a college coordinator, the first group of 17 GVSC student teachers arrived in Maracaibo during fall 1971. Cleveland stated, "The first group was received with some question and doubt by the Maracaibo community, as most parents had little knowledge of the nature and function of a teacher education program."

"It was not long, however, before all doubts vanished," he continued, "and at the end of the assigned period of directed teaching unanimous support indicated the continuance of the program at Escuela Bella Vista."

During January 1972, 13 student teachers from Grand Valley and 3 from Western Michigan University arrived to take part in the second program in Venezuela, again working with the guidance of a coordinator from GVSC's Educational Studies Institute and faculty of the school.

"I benefited so much from the personal contact which the American community and the people of Maracaibo afforded me," Patricia Roth, GVSC senior from Northville stated after her fall term in Maracaibo. "The full impact of the fall term student teachers was felt at every level of the school," Cleveland stated. "New programs were instituted with the use of special skills of the Grand Valley group, while many of our students received individual attention not otherwise available with the present assignments of the school faculty."

Dr. Dale Olsen, director of GVSC's Educational Studies Institute, visited with other American school superintendents from throughout Venezuela this winter, and has firm indications that Grand Valley's overseas student teaching program will expand in the future.

ALLENDALE -- The brilliant young Argentine classical guitarist, Guillermo Fierens, a student of world-renowned Andres Segovia, will present two public recitals in west-central Michigan on Friday and Saturday, February 18 and 19.

Co-sponsored by the Grand Valley State College Beethoven Festival and the Latin American Studies Program, Fierens will appear at St. Cecilia Auditorium, Grand Rapids, on the evening of Feb. 18 at 8 p.m. Tickets at $3 adults, $1.50 students, will be available at the door, or may be purchased in advance at the GVSC Bookstore.

On Feb. 19, Fierens, who has been described by Segovia as "one of the most gifted young guitarists in recent memory," will appear in the Louis Armstrong Theatre of GVSC's Fine Arts Center. Tickets at $2 adults and $1 students, may be purchased in advance at the GVSC Bookstore, or reserved by telephone, 895-6611, ext. 222.

At 12 noon, Friday, February 18, Fierens will also present a discussion and demonstration of classical guitar in room 140 of Grand Valley's Fine Arts Center. The event is open to all those interested without charge.

February 8, 1972

A native of Buenos Aires, Fierens studies with Segovia began in 1961, the same year he completed his musical studies at the Conservatorio Manuel de Falla. In 1964 Segovia selected Fierens as one of six special performers at his classical guitar seminar at the University of California in Berkeley. Fierens repeated this role when Segovia held similar classes at the North Carolina School of the Arts in Winston-Salem in 1966.

Following a widely acclaimed European tour, Fierens was First Prize winner in 1971 of both the Fourth International Guitar Competition, "Citta di Alessandria," in Italy, and the International Villa-Lobos Guitar Competition held in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil.

Besides his recent recital appearances, Fierens has been featured soloist with such South American orchestras as the National Symphony of Costa Rica and the Argentine National Symphony.

ALLENDALE -- Paintings by Grand Valley State College graphics artist Robert Hart, and over 100 photographs by Whitney Sevin, associate professor of art in GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, will be featured in Manitou Hall Art Gallery on campus commencing the weekend of February 19 and continuing through Monday, March 13. Gallery hours are 8:30 a.m.-10 p.m., Mon-Thurs.; 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Fri.; and, 1-5 p.m., Sat. and Sun.

Sevin states, "After reading THE GREENING OF AMERICA, I realized that the mid-western photo survey I was making under a GVSC research grant, was parallel in approach to the book's theme." He subsequently entitled his extensive display of prints, "A Greening of Mid-Western America."

Sevin's photographic exhibit, featuring people and architecture as focal subjects, is his first in that medium. Art exhibitions throughout the United States have displayed samples of his paintings, many of which were prize winning entries in juried exhibits.

A graduate of Cranbrook Academy of Art, where he received the M.F.A. degree, Sevin has taught art at Cranbrook, Franklin College of Indiana, Wisconsin State Un., and Hampton Institute in Virginia. He is mentioned in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICAN ART.

GVSC's distinctive publications consistently offer samples of Robert Hart's imaginative graphics work. He states of his present exhibit paintings, "They are mainly recent transitional pieces, both hard- and soft-edge." His works, paintings, graphics, and prints, have been exhibited, and published, nationally, and are represented in a number of private collections. Hart holds the B.S. degree in applied art from Montana State University.

ALLENDALE -- Norton Shores Deputy City Administrator Charles W. Skala stated recently, "The experience of having Janice Brown of Grand Haven as an intern in our city offices was a mutually satisfying one in 1971. It is one of the main reasons we are looking to expanded cooperation with Grand Valley State College's public service program internships during 1972."

In summer and fall of last year, Miss Brown assisted with studies of public communication and assessment in Norton Shores, and also took part as an intern at the city manager's office in Holland. Now back at GVSC's campus, she is one of ninety-three majors working toward the Bachelor of Science degree in public service.

Directed by Samir T. IsHak, Grand Valley's public service program itself has been characterized by expansion this winter. In the past, program combinations of study and internship were within public administration and municipal government, as well as police administration. This year they have been joined by new offerings in criminal justice and urban affairs.

Required 20-week internships in the program lead to work-study within governmental units at the local, state, and national levels, within area police departments, and now also within court administration and social service units. The program offers these opportunities not only to full-time GVSC students, but also to employees working full-time in public service fields, with their job experience combining with on-campus evening seminars for degree credit. Deputy Sheriff Vance Yenc of the Muskegon County Sheriff's Office, and Deputy Sheriff Michael Zalsman of the Ottawa County Sheriff's Office, are both currently taking part in the later offering of GVSC's expanding public service degree program.

According to Director IsHak, students enter the program at any level and participate in course study within inter-related disciplines including political science, business, economics, health studies, sociology, and psychology, all geared toward public service.

"We have continually worked in cooperation with junior and community colleges, particularly Muskegon Community College and Grand Rapids Junior College," IsHak stated, "so that developments in public service areas of study, and students' course credit transfers would be as consistent as possible."

ALLENDALE -- "Positive growth at the college has created its own challenges in choice, and a rewarding personal need for re-evaluation of my goals throughout the past three years," Mary Pelon of Fremont, Michigan stated as she entered her senior year as a history major at Grand Valley State College.

Since its first class of 226 students in 1963, the four-year college west of Grand Rapids in Allendale, has grown not only to an enrollment of over 4,100, including Miss Pelon, but also to a complex of three autonomous cluster colleges functioning with their own deans and faculties.

"The best in educational challenge and function is offered by The Grand Valley Plan," GVSC President Arend D. Lubbers states. "It retains in its expansion the personal contact of faculty and students through small, decentralized academic units, while it maintains economies and efficiencies through centralized administrative services. Throughout its expansion into new colleges, schools, and programs, the learning environment at Grand Valley is filled with satisfying individual choice for students."

Indications of the evaluative processes which students in the colleges of GVSC have undertaken becomes apparent in their comments. Pamela Poorman, freshman from Grosse Pointe, states, "I chose the College of Arts and Sciences because I wanted the best in faculty and facilities for the specifics of an art major." John Fonger, controller of the City of Holland, returned to evening course work in the College of Arts and Sciences' public service program, and stated, "After 20 years in public finance and administration I find the program not a review, but rather a discovery of the reasons behind what experience teaches."

Judith Alms, a junior from Muskegon working toward the Bachelor of Philosophy degree in GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College, stated, "It was the concept of a 'generalist' education and its inter-disciplinary approach to learning, that first attracted me to TJC." And, Larry L. Ball, a freshman from Allendale, added, "To me, its career, person, and future orientations, make William James College the cornerstone of the future of education."

Largest of the GVSC colleges, the College of Arts and Sciences, offers according to Dean Dr. Glenn A. Niemeyer, "the best in modern education along traditional departmental disciplines." Offering Bachelor of Arts and Bachelor of Science degree programs, the college contains the School of Business and Economics and the School of Health Sciences, as well as numerous internship programs and extensive evening degree course offerings.

"Both the freedom and the responsibility for designing their own programs in cooperation with faculty members" characterize students' entrance into studies of Thomas Jefferson College according to Dean Dr. T. Dan Gilmore. Described as "experimenting," TJC studies, highlighted by independent and field work throughout the world, are graded on a complete/incomplete basis, and lead to the Bachelor of Philosophy degree.

Newest within The Grand Valley Plan is William James College which opened in fall 1971. "Its programs are directed toward specific professional opportunities, combining practical and theoretical study," Acting-Dean Dr. Kenneth R. Venderbush states.

New challenges and personal choice for students continue to expand this year as GVSC opens a nursing program within the College of Arts and Sciences; further develops off-campus credit studies through Thomas Jefferson College; expands the programs of William James College to include communications; and, explores and proposes the concept of a fourth collegiate unit.

ALLENDALE -- Six members have recently been appointed to Grand Valley State College's new Rehabilitation Review Board by GVSC President Arend D. Lubbers. Serving on the consulting board which will evaluate referrals involving mainly drug and alcohol abuse are: Dr. Robert H. Woody, chairman, consulting psychologist; Dr. David Register, clinical psychologist; William A. Johnson, law enforcement agent; Booker Washington, student representative; and, Rodney Mulder, faculty representative, all of Grand Valley; and, Carl E. VanKrimpen, M.D., physician from Holland, Michigan.

The Board, meeting regularly throughout the year, is designed as a consulting body for referrals from approved "referral sources" including: The All-College Judiciary or Hearing Officer when abuses involve a student; the Admissions Officer for new applicants; the Vice President for Student Affairs; and the President or the appropriate Dean or appointing officer in the case of a faculty or staff person.

Persons referred from these sources may meet with the Board, and will be afforded evaluation services, such as psychological testing, that are available at GVSC. If he or she prefers, the person may make arrangements for this type of assessment data to be gathered by an approved outside professional at his or her own expense. "The Rehabilitation Review Board will also make use of outside medical, legal, and psychological specialists on a consultation basis, as professional judgment deems necessary," Dr. Woody explained.

In its consultation role, the Board will make recommendations back to referral sources for their decision on disposition of each case. If persons refuse to meet with the Board, this also will be referred back for decision by the referral source.

Certain guidelines were agreed upon by all members of the Review Board. The Board would not serve as a decision-making body; it would not have any original jurisdiction; it was not in any way involved in detection or a part of any appeals process. Rather, the Board will serve only as a professionally representative consultant service.

Emphasis by members was also stated in that "personal" actions of members, or manifestations of other professional roles, should not be construed as representative of the Rehabilitation Review Board. All proceedings of the Board will be held completely confidential.

Referrals for evaluation by the Board will be left to the discretion of referral sources, and will not be limited to those persons convicted in a court of law. Dr. Woody stated, "Existing resources such as the GVSC Counseling and Mental Health Center, should be fully utilized, so that every known drug or alcohol abuser need not be referred to the Board."

Sponsored by GVSC's Committee on Campus Activities, the residence hall event is open to the public free of charge.

For over a decade the Patons have researched and shared folksongs and ballads throughout the United States and Great Britain. As one review stated, "Their music is gentle, their style informal, but their scholarship is precise."

As in all their extensive concerts at colleges and universities across the U.S., the young couple will encourage chorus participation while at Grand Valley, and will share with the audience the stories of where, how, and from whom their songs were discovered.

In 1961, with friend Lee Haggerty, the Patons founded the Folk-Legacy Records, Inc. From their remodeled barn home in Sharon, Connecticut, the company has issued over forty albums of folk music and tales.

ALLENDALE -- One of the outstanding writers and spokeswomen of the women's liberation movement and the underground newspaper world, Claudia Dreifus, will speak at Grand Valley State College Monday, March 6 at 3 p.m. in the Louis Armstrong Theatre, Fine Arts Center. Sponsored by GVSC's All-Campus Events Coordinating Committee, the event is open to the public free of charge.

A native of New York City, Miss Dreifus is a prolific writer whose articles on feminism and related subjects have appeared in McCall's, Ladies Home Journal, Rolling Stone, Nation, and Social Policy, among others. Her book, RADICAL LIFESTYLES, concerning women's liberation and "the alternate culture" was released in 1971. Now in preparation is a second book, CONSCIOUSNESS RAISING.

In addition to writing, Miss Dreifus has produced public affairs broadcasts for WBAI, New York's listener sponsored radio station, and was WBAI's correspondent in Northern Ireland reporting on fighting there. She was through 1970, author of a weekly political column and news editor of the East Village Other, the nation's oldest underground newspaper. In 1970, she was one of the leaders of a group of women who invaded the offices of the Ladies Home Journal, "demanding that the Journal put out a magazine that presented women with material more relevant to current times."

Glass cutting, or sheet metal work?

Actually David Baker of Spring Lake is carefully cutting a plate for etching in his Grand Valley State College "Introduction to Print-Making" course. A junior at GVSC, Baker is one of many students enrolled this year in new print-making opportunities offered by the College of Arts and Sciences art department.

The popular print classes are under the direction of Takeshi Takahara, assistant professor of art, who joined Grand Valley in September 1971. A graduate of the University of Tokyo, Takahara studied at Smith College, and received the M.A. and M.F.A. degrees from the University of Iowa. He is currently a resident of 803 Sheldon Road, Grand Haven.

David Baker's artist talents, besides his current work with prints, are often visually apparent in his sculpture pieces within Grand Valley's Fine Arts Center. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Baker of 2825 Judson Road, Spring Lake.

ALLENDALE, Mich. -- Internationally renowned child psychologist, Jean Piaget, considered by many as the towering figure of twentieth-century psychology, will travel this spring from his post as co-director of the Institute of Educational Science in Geneva, Switzerland, to present a series of lectures at Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Michigan. His talks, as well as papers, and discussion sessions concerning his lifetime of published works led by GVSC and adjunct faculty from major universities throughout the nation, will form the bases of a week-long "Piaget Conference," Monday, May 8 through Friday, May 12, 1972.

Sponsored by the William James College of Grand Valley's cluster institutions in west-central Michigan, all interested persons are invited to register for this memorable opportunity to hear the lectures of Piaget, the papers of other professionals in the same field of human development, and to take part in informal discussions with all participants. "Interest in the event has already drawn inquiries and early registration from people coast-to-coast in the U.S.," Daniel Clock, WJC faculty member and coordinator of the event states. Further information about the conference may be secured by writing: "Piaget Conference," William James College, Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Michigan 49401.

March 2, 1972

For more than 54 years Piaget's investigation of the origins and development of intellectual faculties in the early years of life have had profound effects within our culture. His lifelong studies and theories of cognitive development, of cause and effect, in children will be the basis of his lectures at Grand Valley.

Piaget, who is also presently professor of child psychology and history of scientific thought at Geneva University, was called the "Giant in the Nursery" in a 1968 New York Times Magazine article by David Elkind. Elkind, who has indicated that he will attend the May 8-12 "Piaget Conference" in Michigan, stated in his article, "The ... major phase of Piaget's endeavors began about 1940 and still continues. During this period he has studied the development in children and adolescents of those mental abilities which gradually enable the child to construct a world-view in conformance with reality as seen by adults. He has, at the same time, been concerned with how children acquire the adult versions of various concepts such as number, quantity, and speed."

These areas, as well as Piaget's earlier findings, will be background for the discussions and papers by other professionals at GVSC's conference, including such areas as the development of political notions, of spatial relations, and of religious concepts in children.

March 2, 1972

Having generated innumerable books and articles by others on his theories, Piaget is himself a prolific writer, often collaborating with Bärbel Inhelder who has worked with him for many years. Their collaborations have included among many others, THE PSYCHOLOGY OF THE CHILD, THE GROWTH OF LOGICAL THINKING, and THE CHILD'S CONCEPTION OF GEOMETRY.

The one-week "Piaget Conference," open to all interested registrants May 8-12, is also an integral part of a William James College synoptic lecture course entitled, "The Works of Piaget." To be offered March 28 through June 5, the intensive study course is one of numerous career, future, and person-oriented programs of the William James collegiate unit. Further information regarding enrollment may be secured by writing: Admissions Office, Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Michigan 49401.

ALLENDALE -- "Vas Dias is a space age poet," is the descriptive phrase used in a recent Library Journal review of Robert Vas Dias' new collection of poetry, SPEECH ACTS & HAPPENINGS. Published by The Bobbs-Merrill Company of Indianapolis and New York, the book will soon be available nationally in hard and soft cover in all major bookstores.

From "Urban Crisis" to "roses grow in city streets . . .," Vas Dias' poetry speaks to the world of today, from pollution to space travel to technology. His warm observations of the gentler world are also apparent in such poems as "The Spider" and "Birds That Day."

As his first major collection, SPEECH ACTS & HAPPENINGS, incorporates Vas Dias' work of the last seven years. As an introduction to the new collection and to its author, Allen's Bookstore, 26 N. Division, Grand Rapids, will hold a "Publication and Autograph Party" on Saturday, April 8 from 1-4 p.m. The event is open to the public.

Vas Dias' poetry and criticism have appeared throughout the U.S. in such magazines as The Nation, The New Yorker, Partisan Review, and many others. He recently edited an anthology of contemporary poetry, INSIDE OUTER SPACE: NEW POEMS OF THE SPACE AGE, which was published by Doubleday Anchor Books. He is also currently associate editor of Sumac, a magazine of poetry and criticism.

March 8, 1972

Currently tutor and poet-in-residence at Thomas Jefferson College of Grand Valley State College, Vas Dias was director of the first National Poetry Festival held at TJC in the summer of 1971. During 1964-67, he was director of the Aspen Writers' Workshop in Colorado, and prior to joining GVSC in '71, taught at New York University's Washington Square campus.

Born in London, England, Vas Dias graduated from Grinnell College, Iowa, and completed his graduate work at Columbia University. He and his family live at 1706 Gladys Ave., Grand Haven.

The colorful cover design of Vas Dias' SPEECH ACTS & HAPPENINGS was executed by Robert Hart of Lamont, graphics artist at Grand Valley State College.

ALLENDALE -- Martin Schaub's colorful "Untitled" oil is a stand-out in Grand Valley State College's new student art exhibition within Seidman House student center. A resident of Acme, Schaub's work is one of over thirty pieces currently on exhibit, representative of artists from throughout the student body of the four-year west-central Michigan college in Allendale.

Organizer of the exhibit, James Hardy of Cary, Illinois, states, "There seemed to be a need for an exhibit area where both art majors and all others could display their works. With the help of Whitney Sevin, associate professor of art in the College of Arts and Sciences, we plan to continue the exhibit throughout the spring, with pieces rotating as interest grows."

Others currently exhibiting, besides Hardy and Schaub, are GVSC student artists, Richard Greenless of Traverse City; Michael Faden, South Haven; Susan E. Far, Rochester; and, Tim Davies of Petoskey. Their works range from acrylic paintings, pen and ink sketches, to metal welded sculptures.

ALLENDALE -- Music by national recording artists, Buddy Miles and his band, and Johnathan Round, is due at Grand Valley State College's Field House on Thursday, March 30, 8:30 p.m. The event is sponsored by GVSC's Campus Activities Office. Advance tickets at $3 are available at Grand Valley's Bookstore, and in Grand Rapids at Chess King, Clothes Joint, Flaming Rat, Indian Ocean Trading Co., Kleinman's, Record Hut, and Sound Room. Tickets at the door $4. (GVSC students $3 with I.D.).

Miles, who began as drummer with such legends as Jimi Hendricks and the Electric Flag, started in rhythm and blues, later incorporating it into his own brand of progressive rock. As drummer-singer, he and his band have risen on the charts with their Mercury albums "Them Changes," their first, and subsequently with "Message to the People," "We've Got to Live Together," and "Buddy Miles Live."

Folksinger Johnathan Round's renditions on his Westbound album bearing his name, and including "To Love Somebody" and "Symphony for the Devil," as well as his single of "In Quest of the Unicorn" from his Campus Records album, have made him one of the country's top nightclub and recording artists.

ALLENDALE -- "We were saddened to receive word this week from Jean Piaget, the world's foremost child psychologist, that for health reasons he will be unable to take part in his planned May lecture series at William James College of Grand Valley State College," Daniel Clock, WJC faculty member announced today.

"However, the William James College sponsored 'Piaget Conference' will continue as planned," Clock stated, "with Dr. David Elkind of the University of Rochester, noted author in the field of human development and often reviewer of Piaget's publishings, as principal speaker at the Monday, May 8 through Friday, May 12 event."

In his announcement, Clock stated that the seventy-five year old Piaget had indicated from his Institute of Educational Science in Geneva, Switzerland, deep regret in his decision, and offered to visit GVSC's William James College in 1973.

Papers and discussions at the west-central Michigan collegiate center May conference on Piaget's lifelong works, will include among many other topics and participants: The state of elementary science education, presented by Darrell Phillips of the Un. of Iowa; development of musical concepts in the child, led by Marilyn Pfelderer Zimmerman of Illinois State Un. at Normal; the surprise element in dreams, with John Merryweather of the Un. of Denver; the development of political notions in the child, presented by Judith Gallatin of Eastern Michigan Un.; and, the elusiveness of thought in adolescence, with Ann Higgins-Trenk of the Un. of Wisconsin at Madison.

A new elementary and secondary program intended for Appalachia and based on Piaget's theories will be described by Eric Collins of State Un. of New York College at Fredonia. Accompanying Collins to the May conference at WJC will be the director of curriculum for New York State, and members of the N.Y. boards of education where the program is being used on a pilot basis.

Further information concerning the conference may be secured by writing "Piaget Conference," William James College, Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Michigan 49401.

The one-week May conference, open to all interested registrants, is also an integral part of a William James College synoptic lecture course entitled, "The Works of Piaget." One of the career, person, and future-oriented programs of WJC, the course of intensive study will be offered March 28 through June 5. ALLENDALE -- Area teachers of Spanish at the elementary and secondary levels have been invited to take part in a workshop at Grand Valley State College, Saturday, April 1, for the purpose of discussion and decision at the local level toward establishment of state-wide content objectives for Spanish instruction.

The 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. informal workshop is sponsored by the 1971-72 Program Committee of the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese. Meeting in rooms 112 and 114 of GVSC's Lake Superior Hall, the workshop is entitled, "Tentative Criteria for Performance Objectives for Spanish Language Instruction."

In his letter of invitation, Robert J. Hoeksema, assistant professor of Spanish states, "The Michigan Dept. of Education, through the office of Dr. Barbara Ort, State Foreign Language Specialist, asks that the AAT's undertake the writing of specific content objectives for each language, for the first four levels of instruction." Dr. Hoeksema points out, "Either we, as a professional group, undertake to prepare performance objectives and criteria for our profession, or we will have them prepared and imposed by others outside of it."

Professor Hugh E. Veltman, also of GVSC's Spanish language faculty, and secretary of the Michigan Chapter of the AATSP, will take part in the April 1 workshop.

ALLENDALE -- The gentle humor and wisdom of Mark Twain's "The Diary of Adam and Eve" will be presented by the Alpha-Omega Players of Dallas, Texas, one of the nation's most active touring theatre groups, at Grand Valley State College's Louis Armstrong Theatre, Thursday, April 6 at 8 p.m. Sponsored by GVSC's All-Campus Events Coordinating Committee, the public is invited free of charge.

Adapted from a short story by Mark Twain, with music by the composers of "Fiddler on the Roof," "Diary" is the story of the beginning of the age-old struggle between men and women, "as relevant today as it was in the Garden of Eden." Twain's tale, written in memory of his wife, is filled with poignant humor and nostalgia.

Alpha-Omega Players, Repertory Theatre of America, consists of talented young actors and actresses, who have travelled over 400,000 miles in the last three years, performing in 45 of the 50 states.

ALLENDALE -- Deborah Piskowski of Sterling Heights experiments with clown make-up in Grand Valley State College's extensive, new make-up room of the Fine Arts Center on campus. The junior year student is taking part in one of the many opportunities for independent studies within areas of special interest which are offered through the theatre department of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences. Besides her independent study in make-up, Miss Piskowski's Theatre Lab course has included experience with costuming, set construction, and staging.

An English major at Grand Valley State, she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Piskowski of 2340 Elmhurst, Sterling Heights.

ALLENDALE -- "Ladies please remove your wigs!?"

Thomas Knapp of Garden City isn't really involved in wig styling, he's actually preparing a mannequin for a Grand Valley State College theatre production. A freshman at the west-central Michigan collegiate center, Knapp is taking part in one of numerous theatre experiences, including costuming, set construction, make-up, and staging, which are included in GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences Theatre 101 course.

With the opening of Grand Valley's Fine Arts Center in fall 1971, and the addition of a degree program in theatre, the course and performance offerings at the college have greatly expanded for all students at the Allendale campus.

Knapp is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Knapp of 31523 Fosslyn, Garden City.

ALLENDALE -- Although the setting at first looks more like a home economics class, the ingenuity and talents of Sherri Rizzardi (1.) of Iron River and Celeste Borsky of Wyandotte are actually combining in a costume laboratory at Grand Valley State College's theatre department.

With costumes ranging from the harlequin of children's theatre to the dramatic flair or buffoon of drama and comedy, the development of costuming skills is an ever-expanding learning experience for GVSC students involved in theatre.

Miss Rizzardi of 52 7th Avenue, Iron River, is a student employee with the theatre department, taking part in one of the numerous work-study employment opportunities offered at the west-central Michigan four-year college.

Miss Borsky of 2816 Second Street, Wyandotte, is taking part in a 16-hour costume-lab requirement of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences Theatre 101 course.

Both students are currently freshmen at Grand Valley State.

TULIP TIME EDITION, 1972
[April 1972]

Since 1969, the leadership of Grand Valley State College President Arend D. Lubbers has set the tenor of GVSC's expansion into separate colleges, into a group of colleges, meeting both the need for individual, personal rapport of students and faculty generally found only at small colleges, while at the same time presenting the economies and service diversity characteristic of large university centers.

"Each college of Grand Valley State, operating as an independent academic unit with its own dean and faculty," Lubbers states, "offers a large number of students a greater variety of types of education. Personal qualities, the very essence of individual development, as well as career education, can best develop in these smaller educational units."

Presently three established colleges exist at Grand Valley, with a fourth college in the planning stage.

GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences offers the best in traditional education with modern innovation, and is organized in departments along specific academic disciplines, with degree programs leading to the Bachelor of Arts or Bachelor of Science degree. Such programs as environmental science, business internship, public service, medical technology, and others have expanded in their scope of educational opportunity and community involvement for CAS students.

Through President Lubbers' encouragement, and the active support of medical associations throughout western Michigan, a new four-year nursing degree program will join the academic curriculum of the College of Arts and Sciences' School of Health Sciences in fall, 1972. The close cooperation of GVSC and Calvin College in development of this program at Grand Valley, is, according to Lubbers, "One fine example of the closer cooperation developing between public and private institutions of higher education."

Further expansion and cooperation between the College of Arts and Sciences and area businesses is also under way within CAS's School of Business and Economics, particularly noteworthy in growing evening degree programs for those working during the day.

Offering a freely structured, experimenting program, GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College, gives students both the freedom and responsibility for designing their own curriculum in cooperation with faculty members. TJC studies lead to the Bachelor of Philosophy degree. Its emphasis on Independent Projects and Field Studies has guided TJC students into work-study within community service programs, within other U.S. colleges and universities, and to studies throughout the world.

In September, 1971, the organizational concept of Grand Valley State expanded to include William James College. Offering career, future, and person-oriented programs in social relations, administration and information management, and environmental studies, its programs will expand next fall to include the communications field. Lectures highlighting visiting international speakers are integral parts of course offerings, as well as serving all of GVSC and surrounding community residents.

"The need for higher education which meets the needs of our society," Lubbers states, "has been pointed out more clearly than ever in our current problems of unemployment and slight recession. Society cannot live without a rich cultural, religious, philosophic, and historical tradition. At the same time, the demands of jobs in the future must be met to keep society healthy and employed."

"Higher education must answer the needs of two worlds: its focus must retain the highest quality of a liberal education, while at the same time offer definitive career educational opportunities."

"Grand Valley State through its distinctive organization, through its work-study and independent programs, and through its continual community cooperation, is meeting this challenge."

Born in Milwaukee, Wisconsin, Arend D. Lubbers graduated from Holland High School in 1949. His father, Dr. Irwin Lubbers, was at that time president of Hope College.

Following graduation from Hope in 1953, Lubbers received the M.A. degree in history from Rutgers University, and was instructor for two years at Wittenburg College, Springfield, Ohio. In 1958, he returned to Rutgers to complete residence for his doctorate.

He was appointed vice president for development at Central College, Pella, Iowa in 1959, and inaugurated as its president in 1960. In February, 1969, he became president of Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Michigan.

President Lubbers serves during 1971-72 as chairman of the Youth Service Committee of the Grand Rapids Rotary and as president of the World Affairs Council of Grand Rapids. His memberships include, the Executive Committee and Planning Committee of United Community Services (Kent County) and the Committee on Public Affairs, American Association of State Colleges and Universities.

He, his wife, Nancy, and three children are Grand Rapids residents.

[April 1972]

As Holland, Michigan enters its 125th year, Grand Valley State College in neighboring Allendale, begins its 12th year of service to area communities and the State of Michigan. From a student body of 226 in its first 1963 class, to a student population of over 4,100 in fall, 1971, the four-year collegiate center has provided ever-expanding challenges in quality education within its picturesque campus setting along the ravines of the Grand River.

Highlights of its past, present, and future potential can be found in a chronology of its development.

1960 -- A bill requesting appointment of a Board of Control and chartering of a 10th state college is introduced into the Michigan Legislature. Bill is passed. First Board of Control appointed by governor. One million dollar fund raising campaign initiated. Site selections studied. Temporary administrative offices opened in Randall House, Grand Rapids.

1961 -- Name of college selected. Million-dollar fund raising campaign goes over the top. Allendale site selected. Professional planning staff loaned by other universities and colleges. Search for a president begins. Phillip W. Buchen named Vice President for Business Affairs, first appointee at the college. Campus plan developed and general curriculum planning begun.

1962 -- Dr. James H. Zumberge is appointed first president of the new college. Administrative offices move to farm house on campus. First two academic buildings are started. First six faculty members are appointed.

1963 -- First building, Lake Michigan Hall, is almost completed as first class of 226 students enrolls. GVSC is officially opened, and first steps toward accreditation are taken. Administrative offices move to Lake Michigan Hall. First sport, rowing, initiated as racing shells arrive.

1964 -- GVSC established in new state constitution with eight-member Board of Control appointed by governor. Lake Superior Hall, Lake Huron Hall, and Seidman House completed. Construction begins on Loutit Hall of Science. Research vessel, "Angus," donated to the college.

1965 -- Loutit Hall of Science completed. Work starts on first residence hall on campus, as well as on student center, The Commons. "Little Mac" bridge connects plateaus of first and second campus complexes.

1966 -- First year that all four classes, freshman through senior, are enrolled. Copeland House, first resident hall, opens. Field House construction begun, as well as starts on Mackinac and Manitou Halls. Application is made for North Central Association accreditation.

1967 -- Bids are opened for a new library on campus. Courses leading to the Bachelor of Science degree are added. First graduation is held for 138 seniors.

1968 -- North Central accreditation is granted. School of General Studies initiated. Dr. Zumberge resigns. Enrollment exceeds 2,000.

1969 -- Arend D. Lubbers inaugurated as second president of GVSC. Field House and James H. Zumberge Library dedicated. Thomas Jefferson College becomes new name for the School of General Studies. Community outreach is initiated through such programs as business internship, Project Make-It, Latin American Studies, and many others. Enrollment reaches 2,750.

1970 -- Reorganization results in The Grand Valley Plan of decentralization of academic units and centralization of administrative and auxiliary services. Dr. Glenn A. Niemeyer named dean of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences. License application made to the Federal Communications Commission for a new educational television station for west-central Michigan at GVSC. Football is initiated in an "informal" season. Dr. T. Dan Gilmore appointed dean of Thomas Jefferson College. Enrollment totals 3,301 students. Approval is given two new schools within the College of Arts and Sciences, the School of Business and the School of Health Sciences.

1971 -- GVSC opens its German Language Summer School in Klagenfurt, Austria, the first in a series of international programs offered through the college, which is fully structured by Grand Valley. Intercollegiate sports now number ten programs as GVSC's first intercollegiate football season gets fully underway. Thomas Jefferson College hosts the first National Poetry Festival on campus. Fall term enrollment increases 27% over 1971, totaling 4,174. A four-year baccalaureate degree program in nursing within the School of Health Sciences receives State Board of Education approval, to commence in fall 1972.

William James College joins the ~~colleges~~ colleges of Grand Valley State offering career, future, and person-oriented programs. Dr. Kenneth Venderbush appointed acting dean of WJC, concurrent with his duties as vice-president for student affairs. Financial support from area residents enables GVSC to receive matching funds from HEW toward equipment and construction of WGVC-TV, educational television at Grand Valley, to begin broadcasting on UHF channel 35 later in 1972.

Residence halls, Copeland, Robinson, and Kistler House, filled to 900 capacity by mid-August. Fine Arts Center theatre named to honor the memory of Louis Armstrong. Student teaching offered at Escuela Bella Vista, Maracaibo, Venezuela.

1972 -- Grand Valley String Quartet, first artists-in-residence performance group formed, consisting of members of the Grand Rapids Symphony. GVSC's basketball team enters the NAIA District 23 tournaments.

1972 (cont'd) -- An HEW debt service grant is received toward financing a new Student Center to be started in spring 1972. French Foreign Studies Program enters third year in conjunction with the Institut d'Etudes Francaises de Touraine in Tours, France. GVSC students serve as United States and Colombian delegations to Harvard Un.'s National Model United Nations. Studies in Japan join the offerings of the International Studies Program. Planning for Living Unit IV commences.

ALLENDALE -- The environment, viewed from a perspective perhaps not spotlighted enough in our modern concern, will be examined in a public talk at Grand Valley State College Wednesday, April 12. Entitled, "A Geographer Views the Environment," the 10 a.m. lecture in room 102 Manitou Hall will feature Harold A. Winters, professor of geography at Michigan State University.

Dr. Winters' visit to GVSC, sponsored by the Association of American Geographers, will also include a 3 p.m. informal slide-talk program on "Deglaciation of Michigan" in room 118 Loutit Hall of Science.

Both events are open to all those interested, free of charge.

While at Grand Valley, Dr. Winters states he will be available to discuss graduate and career opportunities in geography with students following each of his talks.

ALLENDALE, Mich. -- Psychologist Hans G. Furth, Ph.D., joins the William James College spring "Piaget Conference" at Grand Valley State College directly from discussions with the renowned child psychologist Jean Piaget in Geneva, Switzerland. His talks are scheduled during Friday, May 12 in the week-long May 8-12 conference at the Allendale campus.

Dr. Furth, whose international research and publications have dealt with child development, particularly the development of thought among the deaf, has been a visiting lecturer this winter for the second time with the University of Geneva, where Piaget is professor of psychology and history of scientific thought.

Presently chairman and professor of psychology at Catholic Un., Dr. Furth's books have included PIAGET AND KNOWLEDGE: THEORETICAL FOUNDATIONS, PIAGET FOR TEACHERS and THINKING WITHOUT LANGUAGE: PSYCHOLOGICAL IMPLICATIONS OF DEAFNESS.

He is an editor of Child Development magazine, editorial advisor of the Journal of Communication Disorders, and a member of the Study Section of the National Institute of Health. He is cited in WHO'S WHO IN AMERICA, AMERICAN MEN OF SCIENCE, and the DICTIONARY OF INTERNATIONAL BIOGRAPHY.

Don't Miss --

ALLENDALE -- "An Evening of Choreography" with professional dancer and teacher, Christine Loizeaux and students of Grand Valley State College, will be presented Friday and Sunday, April 14 and 16 at 8:15 p.m., and Tuesday, April 18 at 12 noon, in the Louis Armstrong Theatre, Fine Arts Center. There will be no charge to the program. However, Miss Loizeaux has requested that parents planning to attend, leave very small children at home.

During the first part of the program, Miss Loizeaux will perform two solo pieces: "Yieldpoint," a new work, and "Solo," which she premiered at New York's Lincoln Center Library Auditorium in 1971. Julianne VandenWyngaard of Grand Valley's College of Arts and Sciences music department faculty will be featured at the piano in music by J.S. Bach during the "Yieldpoint" performance.

Second half of the program will highlight a student work as well as a group piece choreographed by Miss Loizeaux. Featured GVSC students include Jean Hostetler of Fremont, Joseph Marfia of Fennville, and David Mars of Chicopee, Mass.

A graduate of Bennington College, Miss Loizeaux studied with Martha Graham, Mary Anthony, Jose Limon, Nina Fonaroff, and at the Laban School of Movement in London. She has performed and choreographed

Her works have previously been reviewed by such publications as the New York Times, where Clive Barnes stated her choreography held "genuine kinetic exploration," and Jacqueline Maskey of Dance Magazine reviewing a number of works, wrote, "The most professional work on the program was that of Christine Loizeaux." She herself states, "Generally I do not talk about my dance pieces very much. I hope they 'speak' for themselves."

ALLENDALE -- "Soil and Water Conservation from the Urban and Agricultural Viewpoint," will be discussed by Arthur E. Peterson, Ph.D., in a public lecture at Grand Valley State College Thursday, April 13 at 7:30 p.m. in room 102 Manitou Hall. The lecture, part of a two-day visit to the GVSC campus by the University of Wisconsin professor of soil science at Madison, is sponsored by GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences department of biological and environmental sciences and the American Society of Agronomy. All those interested in conservation are invited to attend the event free of charge.

For the past 20 years, Dr. Peterson has been engaged in research, teaching, and extension in soil and water conservation. During 1966-67, he was granted a two-year leave from the Un. of Wisconsin to join the Rockefeller and Ford Foundations as chief resident consultant to a cooperative maize improvement program with the Ministry of Agriculture in Egypt. A stay which was cut short by the Six-Day War in '67. He has, however, returned in 1968 and 1971 to follow this research.

ALLENDALE -- As the interests of our Western world turn with increasing intensity toward lands of the East, Grand Valley State College's International Studies Program director, Dr. Ezra F. Gearhart, announces establishment of a new GVSC Far East Studies Program in cooperation with Kansai University of Foreign Studies in Hirakata, Japan.

Located between Kyoto and Osaka, courses at the University, which will be available to all students enrolling at GVSC, will be taught in English by Japanese professors. Such broadening opportunities as studies in Japanese civilization, politics and international relations, economic history of the nation, and Oriental thought and religion, as well as those in Japanese language, will be featured.

The new program's first fall semester will depart from California on August 21 and return late in December or early January. Dr. Gearhart states, "Students will live with Japanese families during their academic session, and will have numerous opportunities to take part in student group activities at the University. Field trips, as well as optional personal side trips to Hong Kong, Taiwan, and other Asian countries will also be available."

April 10, 1972

Applications for the fall session will be due at GVSC by April 28.

Dr. Gearhart also noted that within the new Far East Studies Program it will be possible to plan an academic year at Kansai University, or to take part only in a summer program.

Beginning and second level Japanese language study has been offered at the west-central Michigan college for two years through a growing self-instruction program funded under a grant from the U. S. Office of Education. Oriental religions, history, and philosophy have also been a continual offering of GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College seminar studies.

In announcing the establishment of Grand Valley's new program at Kansai, Dr. Gearhart also noted that commencing 1973-74, a year abroad program in the greater Tokyo area will be offered through auspices of the International Christian University, "a highly regarded liberal arts college with graduate studies in education and public administration."

Further information about GVSC's new Far East Studies Program may be secured from Dr. Ezra F. Gearhart, Director, International Studies Program, Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Michigan 49401.

Two Grand Valley State College environmental sciences majors have been meeting each week throughout the year with members of the Allendale Township Planning Commission, sharing data gathered from regional planning research and evaluation at the college, and returning with further requests for future studies.

Larry Kolenbrander and Gregg Alward are two of seventy-five GVSC students taking part as majors in a developing program of concentration geared, Professor Frederick Bevis states, "To meeting both the critical need for re-evaluation of past land-use practices, and to meet a reported need by 1980 of over 1,200,000 workers in environmental careers."

Four options in curriculum planning are available to students within GVSC's environmental concentration: Regional Planning, Ecosystem Analysis, Environmental Monitoring, and Natural History Interpretation. Such studies as those of regional planning by Kolenbrander and Alward; Alward's continuing interpretation of data gathered from Grandville to Grand Haven by monitoring stations for the Grand River Water Shed Council; and Susan Mathews' inventory study of "natural areas" of Michigan, are a few of the numerous projects developed within the program by upperclass students.

For those beginning the program, Professor Bevis of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences department of biological and environmental sciences, besides classroom studies, often also uses such popular games as "Extinction" and "Dirty Water" to illustrate and help students gain a better understanding of man's relationship to his environment.

As students progress, their work becomes involved in classroom, laboratory, and in-the-field, with research, interpretation, evaluation, graphing, and mapping. Maps and graphs of landform and soil, topography, stream drainage basins, flood plains, residential developments, agriculture, and industrial development are formed.

Bevis states, "We have been concentrating on Allendale and the college's immediate area. However, we hope in the near future to enlarge this type of shared evaluation between college and community to include the entire tri-county area of Kent, Ottawa, and Muskegon.

"The benefits of such study and preparation for students in environmental studies accrue two ways, not only to Grand Valley students in their practical knowledge for entrance into careers in the field, but also to residents of areas where cooperative efforts in future land-use planning can be beneficial."

Bevis continued, "The program, both in its present developmental stage, and in its future cooperation with larger areas of west-central Michigan is particularly pertinent in light of Governor Milliken's January 1972 recommendation that a "major change in commitment of the State of Michigan to the management of its lands and resources is ALLENDALE -- Seventeen of twenty-five Grand Valley State College students working for candidates in Michigan's May 16 primary for college credit, have chosen to campaign for George McGovern. Two students taking part in the GVSC College of Arts and Sciences political science department offering have chosen to work for President Richard M. Nixon's campaign; one for Shirley Chisholm, and one for Henry "Scoop" Jackson.

The spring term credit offering at GVSC will involve students in active campaigning, publication study, and a required 25-page term paper evaluation.

Assistant professor of political science, James Thompson, recently explained that students in the 5-credit program will be required to fulfill campaign commitments; read "A Student Guide to Campaign Politics" by Herzberg and Peltason and "Presidential Primaries: Road to the White House" by Davis; and, answer in depth in their term paper such questions, among others, as, "Why did you chose this particular candidate?" "What were the strengths and weaknesses in your opinion of the campaign?" and "Are professional preference and delegate selection primary elections of positive value in the quest to make politics at the national level more democratic?" Credit will be granted to students based on success in fulfilling requirements and quality of the term paper, Peterson said.

ALLENDALE -- Two men closely associated with renowned child psychologist Jean Piaget will take part in William James College's "Piaget Conference" during the week of May 8-12 at Grand Valley State College's campus in west-central Michigan.

Hans G. Furth, Ph.D., internationally recognized authority in the field of deaf child development, and Robert Maier, Ph.D., former secretary of Piaget's Center of Genetic Epistemology in Geneva, Switzerland will attend. Dr. Furth will be speaking to participants on Friday, May 12, while Dr. Maier will present two papers during his week-long attendance at the conference.

Dr. Furth joins the "Piaget Conference" directly from talks with Jean Piaget at the University of Geneva, where he served as visiting lecturer this winter for the second time. Dr. Furth is chairman and professor of psychology at Catholic Un., and the author of a number of books, including PIAGET AND KNOWLEDGE: THEORETICAL FOUNDATIONS, PIAGET FOR TEACHERS and THINKING WITHOUT LANGUAGE: PSYCHOLOGICAL IMPLICATIONS OF DEAFNESS.

A member of the Study Section of the National Institute of Health, Dr. Furth is editor of Child Development magazine, and editorial advisor to the Journal of Communication Disorders.

March 12, 1972

Dr. Maier received his doctorate degree from the University of Geneva where he was guided in his work and served as research assistant to Jean Piaget. Maier is currently taking post-doctorate study in child development at the University of California at Berkeley.

Each year, the Center of Genetic Epistemology, with which Maier was associated, draws international leaders from various fields of study and research to Geneva, where one question, one body of knowledge, is explored and evaluated.

ALLENDALE -- LaVerne Lobdell, former prisoner and disciple of Kahlil Gibran's philosophy of love and understanding, will speak at Grand Valley State College's Robinson House pit area at 7 p.m., Wednesday, April 19. Sponsored by GVSC's Campus Activities Office, the event is open to the public free of charge.

Lobdell, who spent seven years in prison at San Quentin and Jackson State Prison, began lecturing on the philosophy developed by the Lebanese mystic, author of "The Prophet," following his release. He has appeared at colleges throughout the U.S. and on radio and national TV.

A native of west-central Michigan, Lobdell returns on the 19th for his second appearance at GVSC. His informal program, besides conveying his own thoughts and recitations from Gibran's writings, includes samples from the works of Shakespeare, Voltaire, Emerson and Edgar Allan Poe.

Junior year student at Grand Valley State College, Phillip W. Conley of Wyoming, is working this year at the college for Howard Vandevusse, purchasing agent, as a participant in Grand Valley's Business Internship Program.

The program, which currently involves over one-hundred students in work half-days concurrent with classes on-campus, or alternate terms of work, is described as "An enrichment program of cooperative work experience to prepare the business administration student for his career and to provide him with an opportunity to earn while learning." Directed by Professor John B. Payne, referrals, salaried experience in the field, and the potential for permanent employment within placements, are all part of the offering of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences business administration degree program.

Conley who was in business for himself before returning to Grand Valley for his degree is a resident of 2629 Jenkins Place, Wyoming.

ALLENDALE -- The Board of Control of Grand Valley State College, meeting Friday, April 14, approved appointments of two new deans of colleges at GVSC, approved a slight tuition increase of $8 per term, effective summer 1972, elected officers, and named GVSC's Fine Arts Center, among a number of actions taken during the annual meeting on campus.

Dr. Adriann Tinsley, presently a member of the English Department faculty at the University of Maryland, has been appointed Dean of GVSC's William James College, commencing July 1, 1972. Dr. Kenneth R. Venderbush, who has served as Acting-Dean of WJC since it opened in September 1971, will return full-time after that date to his responsibilities as Vice-President for Student Affairs.

Dr. Robert Jens Toft, director of the Science Curriculum Improvement Program of the National Science Foundation, has been appointed Dean of College IV, a new unit of Grand Valley, anticipated to open in fall 1973. Dr. Toft will assume responsibility for development of the new college on July 1.

Board approval of the $8 per term tuition increase, raises tuition for Michigan residents from $152 per term to $160; from $456 to $480 per academic year, an increase of $24 per academic year. Out-of-state tuition will also rise $24 per academic year, from $1,200 to $1,224. Extension tuition, presently $20 per credit hour, will increase to $21 per credit hour.

"The slight tuition increase," Ronald VanSteeland, GVSC business manager stated, "reflects growing operational expenses necessary to meet the educational needs of Grand Valley's anticipated growth in student enrollment."

Room and board charges at GVSC of $1,140 per academic year, were not increased.

The Board re-elected L. William Seidman, national managing partner of Seidman & Seidman, public accountants, Grand Rapids, as chairman of the Board of Control for 1972-73. Dr. Arnold C. Ott, chairman and chief executive officer of Cascade Data Computer Systems, Inc., Grand Rapids, was elected vice-chairman. Grand Valley personnel, Ronald VanSteeland, James Starkweather, and Adrian Dawson, were re-elected secretary-treasurer, assistant secretary, and assistant treasurer respectively.

Based on Governor Milliken's recommendations, the Board approved a tentative General Fund Budget for 1972-73 of $9,414,000, reflecting a $2,543,532 increase over 1971-72.

In other action, the GVSC Board of Control approved naming of Grand Valley State College's Fine Arts Center, "The Alexander Calder Fine Arts Center," honoring the artist whose works and contributions have greatly benefited western Michigan and Grand Valley.

April 14, 1972

The Board also received a status report concerning WGVC-TV, Grand Valley's new educational television station due to begin broadcasting later in 1972. Awards to low bidders on equipment were reported and included: Antenna and tower, Radio Corporation of America; transmitter, General Electric; cameras and projectors, Philips; video tape, RCA; switching and monitors, Vital; and, audio, Audio Distributors.

In addition, the Board authorized the GVSC administration to execute and file with the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, an application for an interest subsidy grant for Living Unit IV, an apartment-type complex on campus; authorized the Student Center Subcommittee of the Board to approve award of construction contracts after bids are released May 1 for GVSC's new Student Center, anticipated for completion in fall 1973; and, appointed the Director of the State of Michigan Department of Administration to "award or approve award of professional services and construction contracts for the Campus Stores Building."

The Board also approved the first three-year contract between GVSC and the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees, AFL-CIO, Local 2074, which was ratified by the Union on February 1, and approved by Board sub-committee members shortly thereafter. The contract, retroactive to Nov. 14, 1971, includes an average 26¢ increase across the board.

ALLENDALE -- Area school administrators gathered at Grand Valley State College's television facilities Friday, April 14, for an informational meeting concerning instructional services to be offered by WGVC-TV, Grand Valley's new educational television station due to begin broadcasting later in 1972.

Among those attending from a number of west-central Michigan school districts were, Harvey Lugter of Byron Center; Bud Whipple, Caledonia; Joan Randall, Coopersville; Don Lennon, Catholic Diocesan School Office, Grand Rapids; William T. Kutsche, East Grand Rapids; Keith Ellsworth, Fennville; John Wallis, Fremont; Gorman Dice, Godwin Heights; James Tamminga, Grandville; Robert N. Radunzel, Greenville; Frank Hunnes and Ted Lascaris of Kelloggsville; Leonard Wilkins, Kenowa Hills; Russell Hornbaker, Kent Intermediate; James Versluis, Kentwood; Allen Trimpe, Lutheran School Office, Grand Rapids; and, Kenneth Burger, Ottawa Intermediate.

Participants at the meeting were introduced to station manager, Gordon Lawrence, by GVSC Vice President for Administration, Arthur C. Hills. Lawrence reviewed the overall purpose and philosophy of WGVC-TV, and stressed that "The success of WGVC-TV's in-school services will be in direct relation to participation and support from area school districts."

April 17, 1972

Projected plans for instructional programming for in-school viewing were reviewed by Rita Gentile, director of instructional television for WGVC-TV. Miss Gentile stated that a needs-assessment survey is being conducted in nearly 100 area school districts to assist in program selection and development priorities relating both to classroom students and teacher in-service education.

She also stated that a program advisory committee consisting of school district representatives, to assist in matters related to instructional programming, was being formed.

Information regarding technical aspects of school reception of WGVC-TV and the variety of systems available was also reviewed with the group by David H. Doebel, chief engineer.

ALLENDALE -- The rich geological features and history of the San Juan Mountains of Colorado await college students this summer as participants in Grand Valley State College's "Introductory Geology Program" in Durango.

"The program," Dr. Richard Lefebvre of Grand Valley's College of Arts and Sciences geology department, states, "will begin at the campus of Fort Lewis College in Durango, and will run from June 19 to August 11. Besides field work in the San Juan, side trips to such areas as the Grand Canyon, Mesa Verde, and other sites are also planned in the 15 credit hour offering.

"Although limited in the number of students accepted, the offering is open to all area college students who may or may not be interested in geology as a major," Dr. Lefebvre explained. "Strong motivation is an essential."

Further information concerning the summer offering in Durango may be obtained from Dr. Lefebvre, telephone 895-6611, ext. 314.

ALLENDALE -- "Designed on the broad 'family nurse practitioner concept,' Grand Valley State College's new program in nursing, which will develop this year, reflects the changing role of nurses," Dr. Marcia Boyles, director of GVSC's School of Health Sciences recently explained.

"Elements of the program, heavily physiological in nature, will enable students to function fairly independently in diverse roles no longer limited to hospitals alone," she continued. "Their training will be of particular value in rural, inner city, and other settings where a good deal of independent judgement will be expected. And, as we move toward a first graduating class in the summer of 1974, we can look forward to GVSC graduates entering nursing positions in public health, care centers, teaching, graduate studies, and others, as well as hospitals."

Dr. Boyles stated, "Tremendous local, state-wide, and national interest and response has been generated by GVSC's new program in nursing, including a recently approved $303,000 nursing planning grant from the National Institutes of Health, Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to be spread over a 5-year period."

April 18, 1972

Pre-nursing study concentrations in the first two years of the 4-year program at Grand Valley will be within School of Health Sciences "core" courses, which are shared with others in such programs as preprofessional and medical technology. At the end of the sophomore year, students will apply formally for admittance into junior and senior year levels of nursing courses and clinical experience.

"The broad training necessary to this program," Dr. Boyles states, "will use a large number of community health facilities, most likely including a number of area hospitals. Clinical experiences will begin in January 1973.

"A large group of area hospital administrators, directors of nursing administration and of health services, have been meeting regularly," she explained, "to review current uses of clinical facilities by existing nursing education programs, as well as providing input into the development of the Grand Valley program."

In late June, Vera Brand, Ed.D., director of GVSC's nursing education program and three nursing faculty members, will join the college to begin work with Dr. Boyles in curriculum planning and determination of clinical facilities.

Entry into the program will be on a competitive basis, with a limitation of approximately twenty students the first year. "After that," Dr. Boyles said, "growth in the number of students accepted is anticipated to be a fairly rapid one."

April 18, 1972

She also explained, "Although transfers will be accepted, they should work closely with Dr. Brand in program planning. After Dr. Brand has set up curriculum here, she will attempt to determine the best method to give credit for clinical experience already gained by Licensed Practical, Diploma Registered, and Associate Degree nurses."

Grand Valley's baccalaureate program will lead to the Bachelor of Science degree in nursing (B.S.N.), and eligibility for graduates to obtain the Registered Nurse (R.N.) license.

"We have been working very closely with the State of Michigan Department of Nursing, and will request approval of the final curriculum at Grand Valley when it is fully determined," Dr. Boyles stated. "As soon as the program is eligible, we will also seek accreditation from the National League for Nursing."

Questions concerning GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences nursing degree program may be directed to the Admission Office, 895-6611, ext 266, or to the CAS School of Health Sciences, 895-6611, ext. 318. Full-time students enrolling at Grand Valley who are interested in nursing, should upon arrival declare their interest with the college Counseling Office.

ALLENDALE -- The indomitable spirit of area mentally handicapped children currently preparing for local Special Olympics for the Mentally Retarded, can perhaps best be expressed in the Special Olympic Oath: "Let me win, but if I cannot win, let me be brave in the attempt."

This year, Special Olympics in both Ottawa and Kent Counties will be held during May. Friday, May 12, swimming events will take place at Hudsonville High School, and Saturday, May 13, field and track events will be held at Grand Valley State College during Ottawa County's Special Olympics. On Friday, May 19, Kent County's swimming events will take place at Union High School, and Saturday, May 20, field and track events will be held at Houseman Field.

Practice sessions for these very special competitors have already begun for Ottawa County events, taking place every Saturday from 12-2 p.m. at the Hudsonville and Spring Lake High Schools, and also on Saturdays at Holland High School.

ALLENDALE -- The electric variety of San Francisco's "It's a Beautiful Day," Taj Mahal's warm country blues, and the gusty voice of Genya Ravan, will fill Grand Valley State College's Field House, Sunday, April 30 commencing at 8 p.m. Sponsored by GVSC's student activities office, the concert is a benefit for Grand Rapids Free Schools. Advance tickets at $4 general admission are available at Grand Valley's Bookstore, and in Grand Rapids at Chess King (North Kent Hall), Family Bazaar Imports, Indian Ocean Trading Co., Painted Caravan, Record and Tape Center (Woodland Mall), Sound Room (Eastbrook Mall), and Tape World Stores. GVSC students with I.D., $3.

Folk, jazz, rock, bluegrass, Latin, blues, all characterize the music of It's a Beautiful Day. Their single, "White Bird," and albums, "Marrying Maiden" and one bearing the group's name, have been national bestsellers, while their new LP, "Choice Quality Stuff/Anytime," looks "like another winner."

In his search for the background of blues, Taj Mahal has earned a "reputation as a genuine blues musicologist." With this background and his natural musical ability, he brings a "charismatic presence to performances," and has established himself as a major performer and recording star.

ALLENDALE -- Grand Valley State College's International Studies Program continues its growth in study opportunities offered within other nations, as Dr. Ezra F. Gearhart, director of the program, recently announced the addition of a new offering at the University of Copenhagen, Denmark, available through GVSC affiliation with the agent institution, Northern Illinois University.

Offered to all students enrolling at the western Michigan college, Grand Valley's international studies now include ten institutions within nine countries, either as directly administered programs or through affiliation with other consortium.

Courses in the new offering in Copenhagen, taught by Danish instructors in English, except for languages, will include such studies as Social Welfare in Denmark, Government and Politics in Contemporary European Society, Scandanavian Art and Prose, International and Comparative Education, and Modern European Philosophy.

Students will live with Danish families, or in student dormitories if desired. The program normally involves the fall semester, however, Dr. Gearhart points out, a two semester program is available. Further information may be secured from Dr. Ezra F. Gearhart, Director, International Studies Program, GVSC, Allendale, Michigan 49401.

ALLENDALE -- Time spins backwards as rock 'n roll of the 1950's arrives at Grand Valley State College's Field House Sunday, May 7 at 8 p.m. with the music of Australia's "Daddy Cool," and California's "Flash Cadillac and the Continental Kids."

Sponsored by the GVSC Student Activities Office, advance tickets at $3 are available at the GVSC Bookstore; in Grand Haven at the Record Spot; in Grand Rapids at Cover Up, Flaming Rat, Indian Ocean Trading Co., Painted Caravan, Sound Around, and both Tape World stores; in Holland at Electronic Sound; and, in Muskegon at Generation Gap. Tickets at-the-door will be $3.50.

The rock groups arrive just one week after the Sunday, April 30, 8 p.m. Field House concert highlighting ~~"It's a Beautiful Day," Taj Mahal, and Genya Ravan.~~

Daddy Cool's recordings and appearances, particularly their work with the hit "The Eagle Rock," made them one of Australia's best known pop music groups before their current U.S. tour. One publication stated, "When they go on stage, the guys from Daddy Cool are like four Zap comic characters who have come to life."

April 24, 1972

A California reviewer of Flash Cadillac and the Continental Kids wrote, "... when you realize that they have the musical ability to be a top band in any genre they chose, their choice of 50s rock and roll and their understanding of the special things it can do becomes all the more impressive."

Their musical expertise, antics, and puns, and the combined campy style of their group and Daddy Cool, add up to a promised evening at GVSC of rival in the old-style showmanship of rock and roll.

ALLENDALE -- A new program in deaf education joined the special education offerings of Grand Valley State College's Educational Studies Institute this year. Its three phases of development at the college and within western Michigan community classrooms, enable students to attain not only the bachelor's degree, but also State of Michigan certification in elementary education with approval to teach the hearing impaired, as well as approval to teach the mentally retarded or emotionally disturbed. "With this type of background," Craig Carpenter, coordinator of the program states, "a wide range of employment and advanced study opportunities are open to Grand Valley graduates."

Approved by the State of Michigan Board of Education in December, 1971, the new program, involving 99 weeks of special training, was developed in close cooperation with public school administrators and teachers. Its junior and senior years of educational commitment have been developed in three phases entitled, "Practicum," "Pre-Internship," and "Internship."

This summer the ten-week practicum phase will take students to classrooms in Coopersville, Grand Rapids, and Muskegon. Their summer experience with disabled youngsters allows students to determine if work with the handicapped is, as Carpenter states, "what they really want to do." It also allows the Educational Studies Institute and public school personnel an opportunity to "evaluate the student's potential for success in the area of special education."

In the fall, students will move into a forty week pre-internship program. Twenty weeks of this time will be spent as teacher aides, working in Grand Rapids and Muskegon classrooms for the hearing impaired. The fifth day, Carpenter states, "Will be spent in course-work designed to cover specific methods of teaching the deaf, and core information relating to other disability areas." Following the aide program, students spend ten weeks as student teachers in regular classrooms, and another ten weeks as student teachers in classrooms for the hearing impaired. The latter part of program in the summer of 1973, will also be in Muskegon.

Fall 1973, will find senior year students beginning their 39 week internships as teachers of hearing impaired students in Berrien Springs, Grand Rapids, Muskegon, and Wyoming. Carpenter explained, "During this time the intern is paid a partial salary and an intern consultant is assigned to work with the intern in the classroom one day per week."

Following the internship year, the student will spend ten additional weeks as a student teacher in a second disability area, such as mental retardation.

Further information about the new GVSC deaf education program may be secured from the Educational Studies Institute, Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Michigan 49401.

ALLENDALE -- Summer participation in community projects in the Dominican Republic is available to all area students, ages 17-22, through an offering of the Michigan Partners of the Americas. Involving such projects as construction of dispensaries and roads in the West Indian island from the first week in July to the first week in August, the opportunity as expressed in MPA's aim is "to develop a mutual understanding and respect while making a tangible contribution to the needs of the host country."

"Costs are relatively inexpensive," according to Charles Sorenson, Grand Valley State College assistant professor of Latin American history and coordinator of the offering in this area. For those enrolling at Grand Valley, some financial aid is available through GVSC's Latin American Studies Program.

Further information for all area students is available through Professor Sorenson, History Dept., College of Arts and Sciences, GVSC, Allendale, Michigan 49401, telephone 895-6611, ext. 149 or 298.

ALLENDALE -- Twelve Grand Valley State College students will enter the clinical aspects of GVSC's medical technology program in fall 1972 within hospitals throughout Michigan. The College of Arts and Sciences program, combining on-campus study for three years and hospital laboratory internship in the fourth year, began on a limited basis in 1968. It has continually grown since then, involving this spring over 120 declared majors.

The number of students entering their fourth year hospital internship phase of the program has also progressively grown, to almost double those involved in fall 1971. The fall '72 group includes:

Byron Center resident: Jeanne M. Marker, 10460 Burlingame, interning at St. Mary's Hospital, Grand Rapids.

Edwardsburg resident: Mary Jackson, 205 E. Main St., interning at Blodgett Hospital, Grand Rapids.

Grand Haven resident: Christine A. Marstiller, 1600 Pine Ridge Dr., interning at St. Joseph Mercy Hospital, Pontiac.

Jenison resident: Craig W. Killingbeck, 1247 Woodland, interning at St. Mary's Hospital, Grand Rapids.

Muskegon residents: Marita L. Raehl, 1165 W. Grand, interning at Munsen Medical Center, Traverse City; David E. Mayo, 4677 Martin Rd. and Jean McKinnon, 248 Lake Dr., interning at Hackley Hospital, Muskegon.

Northeast Grand Rapids resident: Bruce Palma, 509 Carrier, interning at St. Mary's Hospital, Grand Rapids.

Northwest Grand Rapids resident: Margaret Sparks, 1008 Tamarack St., interning at Butterworth Hospital, Grand Rapids.

Onsted resident: Wendy K. Osterhout, 200 Pentecost Hwy., interning at Hackley Hospital, Muskegon.

Southeast Grand Rapids resident: Carol L. Veenstra, 1162 Temple St., interning at Butterworth Hospital, Grand Rapids.

ALLENDALE -- Grand Valley State College's business manager, Ronald F. VanSteeland, has been accepted as one of a limited number of participants in The Institute for Educational Management to be conducted at Harvard Business School this summer. The six-week intensive program of study for college and university administrators will be held June 18 to July 28 in this, the third year of its presentation. Studies will include such areas as governance, management of resources, human relations, long-range institutional planning, and collective negotiations.

VanSteeland's participation in the program at Harvard was supported and approved by the GVSC administration and Board of Control as the first departmental leave of absence granted under Grand Valley's Professional Development Program. Approved by the Board of Control in fall 1971, the GVSC program affects staff members not eligible for sabbatical leave and is designed for the purpose of developing new skills and concepts.

Holding the B.A. degree in personnel administration from Michigan State Un., VanSteeland joined GVSC as assistant director of personnel in 1966; was appointed personnel officer in 1967; and, business manager in 1968. Since 1970 he has also served as secretary-treasurer of the GVSC Board of Control.

VanSteeland is a member of national personnel and business officer associations. He and his family are Jenison residents.

ALLENDALE -- Laboratory work aboard Grand Valley State College's research vessel, the R/V ANGUS, and campus lectures at GVSC, combine this summer in "Oceanography," an undergraduate and graduate course offering of Grand Valley and the University of Michigan. Offered at the GVSC campus and on its steel-hulled vessel berthed in Grand Haven, the five week course will be available to qualifying area residents June 20-July 25.

Lectures covering the basic physical, chemical, geological, and biological concepts of oceanography, and laboratory work in aquatic field studies using a wide variety of oceanographic measuring and testing devices, are offered for six quarter hours of undergraduate credit through GVSC, and four semester hours of graduate credit, available by special arrangement with the U. of M.

Further information regarding the Oceanography offering may be secured from Dr. Stephen H. Clark, Dept. of Biological and Environmental Sciences, GVSC, Allendale, Mich. 49401, telephone 895-6611, ext. 301 or 318.

ALLENDALE -- Grand Valley State College's recently organized local unit of the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM), a state-wide student advocacy group, will launch a petition campaign Monday, May 8 to collect signatures of at least 50% of the GVSC student body as "a show of support for the aims of the group." The campaign will begin with a noon rally and guerilla theatre performances on the steps of Zumberge Library.

According to the PIRGIM (pronounced "purge em") organizing committee, GVSC students have been asked to lend their support to students at other colleges and universities organizing throughout the state. In the style of Ralph Nader's groups, the state-wide student group will concentrate in such areas as consumerism, discrimination, housing, and the environment, with petitioning on issues planned through the courts and before the state legislature.

Professionals in law, the sciences, and the social sciences will be hired by student elected representatives to the state PIRGIM board. Michigan organizers state that money for salaries and general operating expenses are anticipated from a self-assessed student fee of $3 per year ($1 per quarter or $1.50 per semester) at participating colleges.

ALLENDALE -- Four appointments to the faculty of Grand Valley State College are area residents of Coopersville, Grand Haven, and Holland.

During GVSC's winter term, Allan TenEyck, former principal and director of special education in the Coopersville public schools joined Grand Valley as assistant professor in the Educational Studies Institute. Holding the A.B. degree in sociology from Aquinas College, and the M.A. in elementary school administration from the University of Michigan, Mr. TenEyck is currently working toward his doctorate degree in psychology and education at the U. of M. Before joining the Coopersville school system, he was principal in Forest Hills public schools, and principal and director of special education in the Flat Rock public schools.

Also joining the college during winter term 1972 was George Calery of Grand Haven, former instructor at Boston University, who was appointed assistant professor in GVSC's William James College. Mr. Calery's career following receipt of the B.S. degree in social sciences from Michigan State University and the M.A. in sociology from the University of Chicago, has included teaching positions at Sault Ste. Marie Junior High School and Lake Superior State College. While at Lake Superior he served as director of the Upward Bound Program. He has also served as editor of the Hellenic American National Pictorial Magazine in Detroit, and was recipient of a National Institute of Mental Health Fellowship.

May 3, 1972

Dr. Larry Arthur, who has settled in Grand Haven, joined Grand Valley in the spring term of 1972 as assistant professor of health sciences in GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences. Dr. Arthur received the B.S. and M.S. degrees from Northwestern State University, Louisiana, and the Ph.D. degree in microbiology from Louisiana State University. His research background has included work at both Northwestern State and Louisiana State, as well as post-doctoral work at Northern Regional Laboratory, Peoria, Illinois.

Holland resident, Dr. Lois Tcevs, will join the College of Arts and Sciences as assistant professor of health sciences in September 1972. Since 1970, Dr. Tcevs has lectured part-time in Grand Valley's biology department and School of Health Sciences. A graduate of the University of Colorado, she received the Ph.D. degree in neurophysiology and developmental biology from the California Institute of Technology. Her career has included research assistant at the Un. of Colorado, and graduate teaching assistant and National Institutes of Health research training fellow at the California Inst. of Technology.

ALLENDALE -- Grand Valley State College President Arend D. Lubbers and "a selected student" were chosen by majority vote of GVSC graduating seniors to be featured speakers at the college's spring 1972 Commencement, Saturday, June 10, 11 a.m., in the Field House on campus. Students also indicated their preference in an early spring ballot vote, for a traditional ceremony to honor 282 spring term graduates, and others graduating in fall 1971, winter 1972, and candidates for graduation, summer 1972. GVSC's student speaker at the Commencement will be announced in the near future.

Besides selection of on-campus speakers rather than outside speakers, returns from the ballot vote, which offered "every graduate ... the option of participating or not in whatever plan is chosen," also were positive in a desire for the formality of processions, deep blue robes, recognition of each graduate by name, and music by the GVSC Concert Band.

An 8:15 a.m. breakfast honoring graduates and members of their immediate families, is planned in The Commons on the 10th, as well as a reception following the ceremonies for all those attending GVSC's sixth formal graduation in west-central Michigan.

ALLENDALE -- Over two-hundred very special competitors are expected at the campus of Grand Valley State College as the Ottawa County Special Olympics for the Mentally Retarded commences with opening ceremonies at 9:30 a.m., Saturday, May 13 near GVSC's Field House. Sponsored by the Ottawa County Association for the Mentally Retarded, youngsters from all parts of the county, including approximately 70 from the Tri-Cities of Grand Haven, Ferrysburg, and Spring Lake, more than 50 from Holland and the Hudsonville-Jenison areas, and numerous other locales, are expected this Saturday in Allendale. On Friday, May 12, the county's Special Olympics swimming events will be held at Hudsonville High School, 7:30-9 p.m.

Steve Redmond, Grand Valley senior who has organized the event this year, states, "There are no losers in these games, every child gets a ribbon and a round of applause for his efforts. The last child to cross the finish line gets as much applause as the first."

Redmond also explained that Special Olympics, involving any mentally retarded child or adult between the ages of 8 and 55, began in 1968 with 1,000 participants across the country. This year, over 300,000 are expected to take part in the Olympics in areas throughout the U.S.

ALLENDALE -- The works of visionary architect Paolo Soleri, combining architecture and ecology in urban designs of the future, will be represented in his sketches and photographs at Grand Valley State College's Manitou Hall Art Gallery, Monday, May 22 through Friday, May 23. The GVSC display, including Soleri's designs of giant geometric self-contained units for city life and work, is on loan from the Corcoran Gallery, Washington, D.C.

Manitou Gallery hours through Friday, June 9 are 8:30 a.m.-10 p.m., Mon.-Thurs. (except Memorial Day, May 29); 8:30-5 p.m., Fri.; and, 1-5 p.m., Sat. and Sun. The gallery will be closed Sat. and Sun., June 10 and 11. Hours resume Monday, June 12 through June 23, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m.

"Arcology" is the term Soleri uses to describe his works combining architecture and ecology. A small version of his visions of cities to come is already taking shape at Arcosanti, the "earth's first self-contained urban structure," near Scottsdale, Arizona. "Its aim," according to Robert B. Kaiser writing in the Saturday Review, "is to determine if man can construct a viable environment that does not intrude on the ecosystems of the surrounding terrain."

A native of Italy, Soleri first worked and lived at Frank Lloyd Wright's compound, before starting his own southwest center where the architect and his students "build, teach, and live."

ALLENDALE -- A 24-hour-a-day/marathon to raise money and publicize the needs of the American Cancer Society began at Grand Valley State College Tuesday, May 16 at 6 p.m. in front of Robinson House residence on campus. Over twenty men from the 4th floor of Robinson plan to pedal their way through at least 200 miles, or over seven days and nights.

Pedaling on the permanently-mounted bike, shifts of one or two hours per man are planned. The group hopes to encourage students and area residents to contribute to local chapters of the American Cancer Society, "Perhaps," as member of the Robinson House group, Les Salacina, stated, "in amounts equal to readings on the bike's odometer."

Replacement parts, including extra tires, for the single bicycle to be used, as well as odometers, have been donated to the effort by Alger Schwinn Cyclery, 28th Street, Grand Rapids.

ALLENDALE -- "Stories, Myths, & Personal Identity," a workshop with Sam Keen, consulting editor of Psychology Today magazine, will be held at Grand Valley State College, Monday, May 22 from 2-9 p.m. in Seidman House. Sponsored by GVSC's Campus Ministry, Campus Activities Office, and Community Council, the event is open to the public free of charge.

A freelance lecturer, writer, and group leader, Keen uses guided exercises, reflection, and encounter, to "explore ways in which the individual can recover the private mythology, the unsung herces, and the silent hopes that influence his identity."

Holding the master's degree in theology from Harvard Divinity School and the Ph.D. degree in philosophy from Princeton, Keen has taught at Rutgers Un. and at Louisville Presbyterian Seminary. He has led groups at Esalen and other growth centers, and prior to his present position, was associated with the Center for the Person at Prescott College. Besides numerous articles, he is the author of APOLOGY TO WONDER and TO A DANCING GOD (Harper & Row).

ALLENDALE -- The element of chance becomes the method of performance choice as avant-garde poet, Jackson Mac Low directs a "chance-operation" event at Grand Valley State College Saturday, May 20, 8 p.m., in room 123 Manitou Hall. The performance, consisting of pieces from Mac Low's newly published book of systematic-chance poems, STANZAS FOR IRIS LEZAK, and other recent materials, is open to the public free of charge.

Mac Low, whose works are composed for performance by large and small groups, is known as the country's foremost poet of chance. His works have appeared in such publications as The Nation, Poetry, Commentary, and the London Times, as well as being performed throughout the world.

Born in Chicago, Mac Low studied at the University of Chicago and Brooklyn College. He began using systematic-chance and musical types of structuring in 1954. In a recent review of his latest work, STANZAS FOR IRIS LEZAK, in the Grand Rapids Press, poet Robert VasDias wrote that the work "... is a landmark in experimental literature. It is certainly the most remarkable work of avant-garde poetry since the work of the Modernists in the early part of this century."

During his visit to the GVSC campus, Mac Low will work with a Thomas Jefferson College seminar on systematic-chance methods, and with William James College classes in creativity and computer programming.

~~ALLENDALE~~--

Over seventy-five trainable retarded children from Ottawa County are expected at Camp Potawatamie in Grand Haven for three days of camping experiences sponsored by the Ottawa County Association for Retarded Children. The Thursday through Saturday event, May 25, 26 and 27, is as director Steve Redmond, a senior at Grand Valley State College, states, "An opportunity to provide youngsters with a unique outdoor experience."

Youngsters staying at the camp for three days will be from Holland, Hudsonville, Eastmanville, and the tri-cities of Grand Haven, Spring Lake, and Ferrysburg. Their counselors will be from GVSC, Hudsonville High School, Spring Lake High School, and Rogers (Grand Rapids) High School.

Scavenger hunts, movies, fireworks, puppet show, marshmallow roasts, cookouts, watermelon hunts, folk songs, square dancing, boating, and games will fill the three days, commencing Thursday at 1:30 p.m. and ending Saturday at 10:30 a.m. "Everyone will help in camp and cabin up-keep, and big kids will help little kids at dinner," Redmond states.

ALLENDALE -- Two special education programs in Coopersville and Muskegon are planned this summer to accomodate over 500 students free of charge from Kent, Ottawa, Muskegon, and Newaygo counties. Applications to the "Summer School Diagnostic Clinics" are available for Ottawa, Muskegon, or Newaygo county residents at schools in Ottawa and Muskegon counties; Kent county residents may secure applications at Kenowa Hills Public Schools. Further information assistance is available at Grand Valley State College's Educational Studies Institute, telephone 895-6611, ext. 391.

Offered for Type A and Type B, educable and trainable mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed youngsters, and children with learning difficulties, two sessions will comprise the program at Coopersville Elementary School, offered by the Coopersville Public Schools and Ottawa Intermediate Schools. Session #1, June 7 to July 7, is open to children from Allendale, Coopersville, Jenison, Hudsonville, Kenowa Hills, Rockford, Sparta, Comstock Park, and Northview Schools. Session #2, July 10 to August 11, is planned for children from Grand Haven, Grand Rapids, Holland, Spring Lake, West Ottawa, and Zeeland. Transportation will be provided by the Coopersville Public Schools from central locations in each district. Classes will begin in both sessions at 9 a.m. and continue to 2:30 p.m., Monday-Friday.

May 24, 1972

Director of the Coopersville program this year will be Allan TenEyck, former principal and director of special education at Coopersville Public Schools, who is presently assistant professor with Grand Valley State College's Educational Studies Institute. Robert "Rip" Collins of GVSC's physical education department will serve as consultant in physical education and perceptual development, while Craig Carpenter of Grand Valley's ESI, will be responsible for instruction at both the Coopersville and Muskegon programs. Fourteen student teachers and 24 student teacher aides from Grand Valley will be assisting at the special education summer school in Coopersville.

Supportive personnel, including a diagnostician, psychologist, social worker, and speech therapist, will be available at Coopersville this summer from Ottawa Intermediate, Kent Intermediate, and GVSC.

Two summer sessions are also planned at the Marquette Elementary School, Muskegon for Muskegon and Newaygo County residents, administered by Muskegon Public Schools. Session #1 will run from June 19 to July 21; Session #2, from July 24 to August 25, 9 a.m. to 2:30 p.m., Monday to Friday. The program is planned for Type A and Type B, educable and trainable mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed, and deaf and hard of hearing youngsters, ages 5 through 21. Transportation will be provided by Muskegon Public Schools from central locations within each district.

Jeffrey Hinman, former special education consultant with Kent Intermediate Schools, who will join Grand Valley's Educational Studies Institute this fall, will serve as director of the Muskegon program.

ALLENDALE -- Five years ago Charles Robinson of Grand Valley State College's general maintenance staff began his dedication to painting as an avocation, without lessons and "a lot of hard work." He hasn't stopped since, and the fruits of his native talent and patience are now enjoyed, and often acquired, by GVSC students, faculty, staff and friends. "I can't help but paint," Robinson states. "It's something I fee and must do."

His work, samples of which can be found on loan in almost every building at the west-central Michigan college, include landscapes, portraits, and still life. "I always return though to painting the sea," he says.

A native of Grand Rapids, Robinson joined Grand Valley four years ago and works mainly in electrical areas. Following World War II service with the U.S. Navy, he worked first with an area tree surgeon, and then for five years with a local electrician.

During 1971-72, he is chief steward and chairman of the grievance committee of the American Federation of State, Municipal and County Employees, Local 2074 at GVSC.

May 27, 1972

Also at the college, he has for two years been elected by students, faculty, and staff as at-large representative to Grand Valley's policy-recommending body, the Community Council.

With all his activities, Robinson states, "My wife, Connie, simply sees to it that I have time to paint at home. She's my greatest admirer and most severe critic." The Robinsons live in Kentwood and have one nineteen-year-old daughter, Charlene.

This spring, Robinson, whose heroes are Rembrandt and Andrew Wyeth, took his first beginning painting course at GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences. When asked why, he simply stated, "Painters should start at the beginning."

Two-hundred ninety-four Grand Valley State College students are candidates for graduation at the end of spring term, 1972. Ceremonies honoring all graduates and candidates for graduation for the academic year, fall 1971 to summer 1972, will be held on the campus of the west-central Michigan collegiate center on Saturday, June 10, 11 a.m., in the Field House.

By vote of the graduating seniors, GVSC President Arend D. Lubbers, and an outstanding student, will be featured speakers at the event, rather than an outside speaker.

The spring 1972 graduates will join 1,801 who have received their degrees from Grand Valley State College since its first graduating class of 138 students in June 1967. The four-year undergraduate institution will confer 187 Bachelor of Science degrees, 90 Bachelor of Arts, and 17 Bachelor of Philosophy degrees at its June 10, 1972 commencement.

ALLENDALE -- High priority curriculum areas for in-school television were recently surveyed by WGVC-TV personnel at Grand Valley State College, through the assistance of teachers and administrators in nine west-central Michigan counties, including Allegan, Barry, Ionia, Kent, Montcalm, Muskegon, Newaygo, Ottawa, and VanBuren.

The instructional TV survey, which was mailed to over 13,000, indicated in its results, a very high priority for science television lessons for K-12 students in classrooms, and high priority for reading and social studies TV programs. Within the area of in-service television programs for teachers during after-school hours, highest priority was given to programs on educational innovations and new methods, while next in priority were programs concerning educational media and curriculum development.

According to Rita Gentile, director of instructional TV for WGVC-TV, the survey was made "to help determine the direction of program selection and program development for in-school use." Results, which were processed through GVSC's Computer Center, will be reviewed and evaluated by a TV Program Advisory Committee, made up of area school representatives, who will assist Miss Gentile in determination of specific programs for school television in the 9-county area.

ALLENDALE -- Apparent low bidders for Grand Valley State College's new Student Center, scheduled for completion by fall 1973, were announced at the college Thursday, June 1. They were: Omega Construction Co. of Grandville, general building trades, low bid of $1,458,783; Holwerda-Huizenga Co., Grand Rapids, mechanical trades, $379,100; Nieboer Electric, Fremont, electrical trades, $159,400; and, Foremost-McKesson Systems of Birmingham, food service equipment, $78,453. Contract approvals will be sought at the regular meeting of GVSC's Board of Control on Friday, June 9.

Contract approvals will also be sought from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which earlier in 1972 awarded a debt service grant to serve as interest subsidy in financing the Student Center.

The three-story structure, housing dining rooms, snack bars, Campus Bookstore, student organization offices, and a third floor conference center capable of accomodating up to 900 people, will be located west of GVSC's James H. Zumberge Library, and north of the Fine Arts Center.

ALLENDALE -- Grand Valley State College junior, Geoffrey M. Davis, has been named winner of one of five job scholarships for the 1972 cooperative summer training program of Warner Bros. Inc. and the National Entertainment Conference. Davis, who will travel to Hollywood, California to take part in the program June 19 to August 11, is specializing in filmmaking in his studies at GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College.

The second annual offering of the program in Hollywood, affords students opportunities to learn various phases of filmmaking, particularly through observation of "skilled craftsmen in the performance of their specialties." Scholarships, which are awarded to students enrolled in colleges and universities participating in the Warner Bros. Inc.-NEC Film Project, cover round-trip travel expenses, and pay a weekly salary of $125 per week for the eight week period. Davis is the only winner from the State of Michigan, two others are from Illinois institutions, one from Texas, and one from Oklahoma.

Davis is a resident of 233 Madison, SE, Grand Rapids.

ALLENDALE -- Mrs. Dorothy R. Mapes of 7482 Louise, Jenison, recently received an honorable mention award of $20.00 in the 1972 Quirinus Breen Prize competition in history at Grand Valley State College. Mrs. Mapes' paper, which was judged by faculty members of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences department of history, was entitled, "Doniface VIII and Philip IV: The Beginning of the End of Medieval Political Theory."

The essay competition at GVSC was open to all students and alumni taking one or more courses within the College of Arts and Sciences during portions of 1971-72. Its name honors one of Grand Valley's early history faculty members, Dr. Quirinus Breen, who now resides in retirement in Eugene, Oregon.

Mrs. Mapes is a candidate for the Bachelor of Science degree in history at GVSC this spring. She will receive the degree during ceremonies at the college June 10.

ALLENDALE -- Two Grand Valley State College honorary doctorate degrees will be conferred upon outstanding Grand Rapids' leaders during GVSC's sixth Commencement, Saturday, June 10 at 11 a.m. in the Field House. The Doctor of Laws honorary will be conferred upon William Spoelhof, Ph.D., president of Calvin College, in recognition of his contributions as "teacher, scholar, and college president." The honorary Doctor of Humane Letters will be conferred upon Paul I. Phillips, executive director of the Grand Rapids Urban League, in recognition of his contributions as "athlete, association executive, and civic leader."

Dr. Spoelhof has served with distinction for over twenty years as president of Calvin College. During his administration, the college's new Knollcrest campus became a reality, providing "the finest of college facilities."

A graduate of Calvin, Dr. Spoelhof holds the masters and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Michigan. From 1931-38, he was teacher in the Christian schools of Kalamazoo and Grand Rapids, followed by service as a lieutenant in the U. S. Navy during World War II. Following the war, and completion of his doctorate degree, he served as professor of history at Calvin College for five years prior to his appointment as president in 1951.

Besides his college responsibilities, Dr. Spoelhof is active in numerous civic, religious, and professional affairs.

Paul I. Phillips came to Grand Rapids in 1947, where in addition to his professional service as executive director of the Grand Rapids Urban League, he has served as member and treasurer of the Board of Education, and member of several civic advisory bodies, including the Dept. of Public Recreation, Family Life Council, Kent County Dept. of Social Welfare, Grand Rapids-Kent County Council on Alcoholism, and the Grand Rapids Historical Commission.

In 1951, he was elected in a city-wide, non-partisan election, as member of the Grand Rapids Charter Commission, where he served for eighteen months. In 1953, he was selected by the U. S. Dept. of State as one of a six-member team from all parts of the country, to tour Germany in an inter-cultural exchange program.

Born in Nebraska, Phillips holds the bachelors degree from Marquette Un., and the masters from Fisk University. As a college athlete, he tied several world's records as sprinter in short dashes, and qualified for the 1936 Olympic team.

ALLENDALE -- Visiting officials from overseas government manpower agencies, currently touring western Michigan, will be guests of Grand Valley State College on Wednesday, June 7 at a noon luncheon in The Commons and subsequent tour of the GVSC campus. The ten officials from Iraq, Jamaica, Republic of South Korea, Egypt, Liberia, Phillipines, Tanzania, Thailand, South Vietnam, and Sierra Leone, are attending a U. S. Department of Labor International Training Institute, and are in west-central Michigan on a field trip.

The visitors will be welcomed at Grand Valley by Roy S. Lumsden, vice president for college relations. Luncheon speakers will also include other GVSC administrators, while additional guests will include representatives of the U. S. Department of State, the City of Grand Rapids, and the college.

Samir T. IsHak, director of GVSC's public service program and host of the noon event, states that he believes the visit to Grand Valley will be the only U.S. college included within the tour agenda. IsHak is hopeful communication between the group and GVSC will lead to later faculty and student exchanges within the College of Arts and Sciences public service program.

From 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. on June 7, the visiting officials will be guests of honor at a World Affairs Council reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mathias Snite, 1717 Franklin, SE, Grand Rapids. END

ALLENDALE -- Grand Valley State College's outstanding student speaker at the college's sixth spring Commencement, Saturday, June 10, will be graduating senior John C. Struthers. Selected by vote of GVSC seniors, Struthers will join Grand Valley President Arend D. Lubbers as featured speakers at the 11 a.m. event in the Field House.

During his four years at GVSC, Struthers has served as general manager of WGVS, the college's on-campus carrier-current radio station; as president of the GVSC Veteran's Club; and, as business manager of the student newspaper, The Lanthorn. This Saturday, he will receive the Bachelor of Arts degree in philosophy, having completed his undergraduate studies at GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College.

A native of west-side Detroit, Struthers will be making his home in Allendale following graduation. His parents are currently living in retirement in Kettering, Ohio.

Struthers' future plans include continuing his education at the graduate level in law.

ALLENDALE -- The establishment of a School of Public Service within the College of Arts and Sciences of Grand Valley State College was approved by GVSC's Board of Control, meeting Friday, June 9 on-campus. The School, which combines college and community programs of study and internship within public administration, municipal government, police administration, criminal justice, and urban affairs, has developed rapidly from status as a CAS "program" in 1970 to its expanded form, under the guidance of director, Samir T. IsHak, assistant professor of political science. Academic work within the School leads to the Bachelor of Science degree in public service.

The GVSC Board of Control also approved construction contracts for Grand Valley's new Student Center, scheduled for completion west of the James H. Zumberge Library in fall 1973. Contract for general building tradeswork, with low bid of $1,469,553 was approved for Omega Construction Co. of Grandville; mechanical tradeswork contract, at $379,100, Holwerda-Huizenga Co., Grand Rapids; and, electrical tradeswork, at $159,400, Nieboer Electric Co., Fremont. Documents preceding bid opening at the college June 1, stipulated that the general building trades contractor "is to assume the bids of mechanical trades and electrical trades."

June 9, 1972

Contract approval was also given for food service equipment in the amount of $76,686 to Foremost-McKesson Company of Birmingham.

Contract approval will be sought from the Department of Housing and Urban Development, which earlier in 1972 granted an interest subsidy toward financing the structure.

Following completion of the building, a public bond issue will be offered. Construction on the new Student Center will begin immediately.

In other action, the Board of Control approved new concepts for changes in minimum and maximum ranges of salaries for GVSC clerical, office and technical staff, which replace earlier fixed-step salary increases.

A new commuter parking lot "use fee of $15 per year or 10¢ per exit; a resident parking lot use fee of $5 per term, and an additional reserved parking fee of $10 per year effective fall term 1972," were also approved by the Board at its regular meeting.

Also approved were new student employee rates, increasing rates from $1.70, $1.85 and $2.20, to $1.80, $1.95 and $2.35, per hour.

Reports received by the Board included a unique cooperation between Calvin College and GVSC in professional course work. Next fall, the first of 15 junior year Calvin College students will enter coursework at GVSC's Educational Studies Institute, enabling them to receive recommendation for approval as teachers in special education. Tuition and fees will be paid to Grand Valley for the required 68 hours of credit for the students, who will earn regular teacher certification and the B.A. degree from their own institution.

A similar arrangement has been made for qualified Calvin College junior year students to enter the professional coursework of GVSC's degree program in nursing.

Affiliation between GVSC and the Western Michigan Opera Association, a non-profit organization, was also reported to the Board. One production per year of the Association's performances will be scheduled at GVSC, including a planned spring 1973 presentation of the "Barber of Seville."

In other actions by the GVSC Board of Control, approval was granted a new employment option for faculty and professional staff, based on "Annually Renewable Long-Term Appointments" for a maximum of five years.

Reports to the Board also included a progress summation of GVSC's new educational television station, WGVC-TV, which will begin broadcasting later this fall. Construction of the station's transmitter building is nearing completion southwest of the campus; tower and antenna work will begin in the near future.

ALLENDALE -- Grand Valley State College President, Arend D. Lubbers, speaking at GVSC's sixth spring Commencement Saturday, June 10, urged graduates to look to themselves and their own communities for solutions to existing problems, and to create their place in society.

"The problems that keep people from building community, and those of existing communities," Lubbers stated, "are not first solved in Washington or Lansing. If we look beyond the place where we live for their solution, we are doomed to failure. Help may be necessary on the national and state levels, but the solution begins at home in the way people live together."

President Lubbers spoke at ceremonies honoring 598 GVSC graduates of fall, winter, and spring terms, as well as candidates for graduation at the end of summer term. He, and graduating senior, John C. Struthers, had been chosen by vote of the graduates as speakers for the event rather than outside speakers.

The ceremony, which was attended by over 2,500 family and friends of the graduates, also featured the Grand Valley State College Band, under the direction of Daniel Kovats; Invocation and Benediction, presented by The Reverend Adrian Wade, O.P., of GVSC's Cooperative Campus Ministry Council; and, the presentation of candidates for degree by Arthur C. Hills, vice president for administration.

Two honorary degrees were conferred during the ceremony to outstanding Grand Rapids leaders. The honorary Doctor of Humane Letters was conferred upon Paul I. Phillips, executive director of the Grand Rapids Urban League; and, the honorary Doctor of Laws was conferred upon William Spoelhof, Ph.D., president of Calvin College.

Outstanding graduating senior, John Struthers, stated in his talk to the graduates and audience, "Insight into an era can often be found in an examination of the words of that era." Citing some of the current generation's use of words, which in other eras had different meanings, Struthers found optimism, "When all hang-ups are hung-up, people are no longer up-tight." Hope precedes frustration, he stated, and "as we reflect on our hopes, let us make frustration work for us toward a generous future."

ALLENDALE -- Dr. Rodney Boyer, assistant professor of chemistry at the College of Arts and Sciences of Grand Valley State Colleges, has been awarded an $11,000, two-year, Petroleum Research Fund grant, administered by the American Chemical Society.

Designed to stimulate student interest in chemical research and encourage students to pursue graduate studies in chemistry, undergraduate scholars or assistants at GVSC will participate in Dr. Boyer's proposed research, "Singlet Oxygen Hydroxylation," and receive stipends from the grant for their work.

Objective of Dr. Boyer's research will involve design of chemical systems which can be used as models for enzymes. "Studies will assist biochemists in elucidating the manner in which organisms use oxygen to metabolize drugs, pesticides, and other foreign substances," Dr. Boyer explains.

Dr. Boyer, principal investigator of the project, has been affiliated with the CAS chemistry department at Grand Valley since September, 1972. Prior to his appointment to GVSC, he was an assistant research biochemist in the department of biological chemistry at the University of Michigan Medical School. A resident of Allendale, Dr. Boyer teaches courses in organic and biochemistry at GVSC.

SPECIAL TO: GLORY MAGAZINE

"Outreach," Grand Valley State College's new program in adult education will commence this fall, based on the "premise that education is a life-long process," and offering "an opportunity for people in the community to enroll in undergraduate courses offered by the various colleges of GVSC."

Unique features of the new program will include: 1) participants, although enrolled on a non-degree basis, will attend classes with regular undergraduates; 2) participants will be permitted a two-week "grace period" in which to decide whether to officially enroll in a given course or not; and, 3) participants will be assigned a faculty or staff "advisor" who will assist with academic concerns and decision making.

For the first two weeks of each term, commencing September 1972, "Outreach" participants will attend one or two classes of their choice.

By the 9th day of classes, each will decide whether to enroll or not.

The brief exposure and assistance from an assigned advisor, are designed to assist individuals "who have been removed from an academic setting for a period of time in realizing that re-entry into an academic community is not necessarily difficult."

June 19, 1972

Further information concerning "Outreach" may be secured from the program's office at GVSC by letter (Outreach, Grand Valley State College, Allendale, Mich. 49401), or by telephone 895-6611.

Other offerings at Grand Valley which offer opportunities to fit course credit work into busy schedules of employment or family responsibilities, exist within a growing evening degree program at GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, and within the independent, contract, and field studies of Thomas Jefferson College.

GVSC's new "Day-Care Center" planned for fall 1972, will enable those with children to take part in regular daytime course work. Such courses may include those of the College of Arts and Sciences, offering traditional studies with modern innovation, in a wide range of subjects from anthropology to music; from art to ecology; from nursing and medical technology within CAS's School of Health Sciences; or, business with the School of Business and Economics; to, municipal internship within the CAS School of Public Service. Extensive seminar studies within GVSC's experimenting Thomas Jefferson College, or within Grand Valley's career-oriented William James College are also available for all those entering degree programs.

Further information about all programs of the college, which also include opportunities within such offerings as those of the Educational Studies Institute for teachers and potential teachers, the International Studies Program, and the Environmental Studies Program, may be secured from GVSC's Admissions Office, telephone 895-6611, ext. 344.

ALLENDALE -- The Alexander Calder Honor Scholarship, presented annually by the Grand Valley State College Friends of the Arts, has been awarded an outstanding music student for 1972-73. Joseph A. Moore of Route #1, Williamsburg, Michigan, a GVSC junior majoring in music, has been named recipient of the full tuition scholarship, named in honor of the well-known artist and sculptor, creator of Grand Rapids' "La Grand Vitesse."

Also recently announced by Mrs. Levant Mulnix III, chairman of the Friends of the Arts Advisory Board, was presentation of the group's Annual Award of $50 honoring excellence in one of the arts, to Robin E. Prawdzik of 7383 Hessler, NE, Rockford, a GVSC junior majoring in art.

"The awards," Mrs. Mulnix states, "are tangible examples of support afforded through public sale of generously donated lithographs by Alexander Calder and artist, Adja Yunkers, as well as college and community memberships in GVSC's Friends of the Arts."

Recipient of the $480 scholarship, Joseph A. Moore is a graduate of Traverse City High School, and is according to his College of Arts and Sciences faculty advisor, Daniel Kovats, "An accomplished musician on violin and viola, as well as being outstanding in all musicianship." Moore, the son of Mrs. Clara M. Cox of Williamsburg, is also a member of the Grand Rapids Youth Symphony.

ALLENDALE -- Recent appointment changes and promotions, approved by the Board of Control at Grand Valley State College, involved a number of west-central Michigan residents, including:

Caledonia residents:

Mary Seeger, promoted from assistant professor to associate professor of German within the foreign language department of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, effective September 1972. Holding the B.A. degree from the Un. of Minnesota, Dr. Seeger received the Ph.D. degree in Germanic philology from the Un. of Wisconsin. In 1961, she received a Woodrow Wilson Fellowship. Prior to joining Grand Valley, first as part-time lecturer in German in the fall of 1965, Dr. Seeger held a teaching fellowship at the Un. of Wisconsin.

William Seeger, promoted from assistant professor to associate professor of German within the foreign language department of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, effective September 1972. Dr. Seeger, whose studies during 1960-61 were at the Un. of Bonn, Germany, holds the B.A. and M.A. degrees in German language and literature, and the Ph.D. degree in Germanic philology from the Un. of Wisconsin. Prior to joining GVSC as assistant professor of German in Sept. 1965, he was a teaching assistant at Wisconsin.

The Seegers reside at 6977 Alaska Ave., SE, Caledonia.

June 21, 1972

Hudsonville residents:

Richard Atkinson, promoted from assistant professor to associate professor of chemistry within the College of Arts and Sciences, effective September 1972. Dr. Atkinson holds the B.S., M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Harvard Un. Prior to joining GVSC in Sept. 1966, he served as research assistant, Un. of Chicago; on the research staff in private industry; and, as part-time teaching fellow at Harvard. ALLENDALE -- Studies in Tours, France and Klagenfurt, Austria begin this summer for thirty-four participants in Grand Valley State College International Studies Programs, as two groups board chartered jet flights from New York City during June and July.

One week of independent travel from Paris will precede the two month academic sessions of GVSC's French Summer School in Tours, France. Ten students from Grand Valley, one from Calvin College, and one Michigan teacher boarded their flight on June 24. Their two months of intensive study at the Institut d'Etudes Francaises de Touraine, taught by GVSC resident director, Pierre E. Robert, Ph.D., and faculty of the Institut, combined with numerous visits to Paris, to ancient castles on the Loire River, to sea resorts, as well as the experience of living with French families or in private university housing within the historic city of 150,000 inhabitants, offers a unique learning environment for the students of GVSC's French Summer School during its third year in Tours.

Five teachers from Michigan and Illinois, as well as fourteen students from California State College, Eastern Michigan University, Aquinas College and GVSC, will leave New York City on July 3 with Grand Valley faculty, Mary and William Seeger, Ph.D.'s, and director, Ezra F. Gearhart, Ph.D., for Grand Valley's German Summer School in Klagenfurt, capital of the mountainous province of Carinthia, Austria.

June 26, 1972

Dr. Gearhart states the group will travel by chartered bus from Paris to Vienna for a 3-1/2 day stay in student housing, guided tour of Vienna, and independent exploration of Austria's capital city, prior to embarking for Klagenfurt.

During the second summer offering the six week school near picturesque Lake Worth, mornings will be spent in classrooms with Austrian and GVSC teachers, while afternoons will be free for study and exploration.

Dr. Gearhart also indicates that weekly excursions to sites of educational, cultural, and historical interest will be taken by the group.

He explained, "Young Austrian teachers and university students reside with the American students and act as conversational partners for them. Everyone will have one thing in common, however: All activities are centered around use of the language, combining classroom content with outside activities. The city and surrounding towns and villages serve as a learning laboratory from which the students learn not only the language, but also the customs and history of the people."

Charter return flights are scheduled for the group August 24, and September 3 and 11, allowing individuals to schedule further independent travel if desired.

Participants in the GVSC French Summer School are:

- ✓ East Lansing resident: Linda Wilke, GVSC student.
- ✓ Holland residents: Wanda Driy, GVSC student; and, Dr. Pierre-Edmond Robert, resident director, GVSC assistant professor of French.

ALLENDALE -- Grand Valley State College has been awarded the first $70,411 of a five-year $420,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare, to be used in further development of the college's expanding medical technology program. The program, an offering of GVSC's School of Health Sciences within the College of Arts and Sciences, began in 1967 with three students, and is expected to grow to over 130 students by fall 1972.

Dr. Marcia Boyles, director of the School of Health Sciences, stated that monies from the recently awarded H.E.W. grant will be "used for basic equipment for enlarged sections of presently offered courses on campus, as well as both equipment and faculty salaries for a number of new advanced medical technology courses, such as mycology, parasitology, and medical electronics."

Students in Grand Valley's program complete course studies during their first three years on campus, and during the fourth year "have clinical laboratory studies in one of the eleven Michigan affiliate hospital schools of medical technology," Dr. Boyles explained. "Upon successful completion of the program, they receive the Bachelor of Science degree in medical technology, and are eligible for American Society of Clinical Pathologists' registry certification."

July 8, 1972

"We would hope," Dr. Boyles stated, "that in addition to being taken by students in our program, that the GVSC courses, particularly our now expanded offerings, would be appropriate for medical technologists working in the area."

Other offerings of GVSC's rapidly growing School of Health Sciences, besides medical technology, include, nursing, biopsychology, medical A-V technology, pre-professional (i.e., pre-medical, pre-dental), and health sciences.

ALLENDALE -- Two new deans joined Grand Valley State College early in July, as Dr. Adriann Tinsley, GVSC's first woman dean, and Dr. Robert J. Toft, began their respective responsibilities as Dean of William James College and Dean of College IV on July 1.

Dr. Tinsley joined Grand Valley from the faculty of the University of Maryland's English Department. She holds the A.B. degree, magna cum laude, from Bryn Mawr College; the M.A. from the Un. of Washington; and, the Ph.D. from Cornell Un. For one year, she also studied at the Un. of Bristol, England, on a Fulbright Fellowship.

Her career has included teaching assistantships at the Un. of Washington and Cornell, as well as service as part-time instructor, admissions interviewer, and faculty resident and director of the residential program at Cornell.

Holding the B.A. degree, cum laude, from Beloit College, Wisconsin, Dr. Toft received the M.A. and Ph.D. degrees from Rice Institute, Houston, Texas. His career has included research positions at Rice; faculty appointments at Bowdoin College, Maine, and Cornell College, Iowa; and, assistant physiologist, Bio Med Division, Argonne National Laboratory.

ALLENDALE -- A new program in adult education, entitled ACCESS, and based on the premise that learning is a life-long process, will be initiated at Grand Valley State College this fall. Further information about the broad enrichment possibilities offered in the program may be secured from The ACCESS Office, GVSC, Allendale, Michigan 49401.

ACCESS director, Glenda Belote, states that the program will be unique in three of its features. "First," she explained, "although participants will be enrolled on a non-degree basis, they will attend regular undergraduate courses of their choice. Second, program participants will have a two-week 'grace period' in which to attend a course prior to officially enrolling. And, third, program participants will be assigned faculty 'advisors' who will assist with academic concerns and planning."

Offering great flexibility for ACCESS participants in the extent of their commitment, the program also affords a wide choice of courses within GVSC's distinctive colleges, The College of Arts and Sciences, Thomas Jefferson College, and William James College, as well as academic opportunities within Grand Valley's institutes, schools, and programs "in such diverse areas as business, public service, urban studies, and environmental studies."

- more -

July 11, 1972

Options of enrolling on a non-degree (audit) basis or for undergraduate credit are available to all participants in the ACCESS program from the beginning. Non-degree participants also hold the option of latter application for course credit for degree requirements.

Admission to the program, Miss Belote states, "has been made purposefully uncomplicated. Applicants may complete the necessary form in the ACCESS office on campus, or by mail, pay a $15 processing fee, and be ready to initiate enrollment procedures." Regular tuition and fees for the academic year are $80 for 1-6 credits and $128 for 7-11 credits. ACCESS participants may enroll in a maximum of two courses each term. Classes for fall term 1972 will begin September 28.

Originally entitled "Outreach," GVSC's new program's name was recently changed to avoid confusion with a local enterprise.

Further information and application to the program may be obtained from Grand Valley's ACCESS office, or by telephone, 895-6611.

ALLENDALE -- A "Five-State Migrant Education Conference," sponsored by the Migrant Program of Michigan's Department of Education, will be held at Grand Valley State College, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, July 19, 20, and 21. Involving over 200 invited resource people from migrant programs in Michigan, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, and Wisconsin, goal of the "working conference" according to Jesse M. Sariano, coordinator of Michigan's program, will be one in which "local practitioners learn new skills, reinforce proven practices, and solve problems."

Registration will begin at 3 p.m., July 19 in The Commons, with an 8:15 p.m. keynote address by Vidal Rivera, chief of the Michigan education branch, U.S. Dept. of Education, scheduled that evening in room 132, Lake Huron Hall.

During Thursday morning and afternoon, participants will be involved in "Interest Area Workshops," discussing such subjects as "parent-community-school involvement," "cultural heritage," "individualized instruction," among others. Also on tap Friday morning will be small group sessions reacting to recommendations made earlier at the National Migrant Conference in Chicago, including such areas as teacher education and curriculum.

On-campus lodging and food service for participants will be covered during the three-day conference at GVSC by the Migrant Education Unit of the Michigan Dept. of Education.

ALLENDALE -- Summer internships, combining paid employment and college study within Grand Valley State College's public service offerings, have grown in three years from five interns placed in one area in 1970, to eighteen interns in the summer of 1972, placed in ten areas of Michigan.

As a part of the summer "Public Administration" course, offered through GVSC's new School of Public Service, student interns are involved this year in such working experiences as police and sheriff's offices, departments of social services, state reformatory offices, a community action program, city and college administrative offices, and a law office.

On-campus seminars and required research studies, according to director of School, Dr. Samir T. IsHak, have been developed with community cooperation to add to students' understanding and working knowledge, both in the broad field of public service and within their chosen areas of concentration in public and police administration, criminal justice, municipal government or urban affairs.

IsHak adds, "Students' perspective of the field is further enhanced each Wednesday at the start of 6 p.m. seminars as each student shares his or her internship experiences in the field."

ALLENDALE -- Some indication of the size of Grand Valley State College's new Student Center is apparent as construction crews break ground and pour first footings for the $2.7 million structure on campus. The 71,818 square foot building will be second in size only to the 104,446 square feet of GVSC's Field House.

Herman "Bill" Wheelock, superintendent with Omega Construction Co. of Grandville, general building trades contractor, states that construction is moving rapidly, with work already progressing on foundation walls.

Designed by project architects, Wold, Bowers, DeShane & Covert of Grand Rapids, extensive use of brick will highlight the building, not only on exterior and interior walls, but throughout numerous curving archways. The exterior of three exposed eastern levels, facing the James H. Zumberge Library, will be almost entirely glass, offering broad views of the GVSC campus and surroundings.

ALLENDALE -- Four Grand Valley State College students are attending the University of the Americas this summer in Puebla, Mexico. Located in the fourth largest city of Mexico, the University offers a wide range of courses, as well as proximity to the historical, cultural, and recreational sites of Mexico City and Acapulco.

Arranged through Grand Valley's International Studies Institute, GVSC students are participating at the University in a program offered by the American Association of State Colleges and Universities, and Adams State College of Colorado at Pueblo.

Taking part from June 18 to August 18 are Annette Gooder of northeast Grand Rapids; Lori Middleton of Middleville; William Mondun of Niles; and, Mrs. Carla Hamilton of Grandville. Mondun and Misses Gooder and Middleton were recipients of scholarships from the Herman Foundation Scholarship Fund, Detroit, for their summer studies in Mexico.

ALLENDALE -- Learning the intricacies of problem-solving via a computer is often limited to those enrolled in specifically-designed major programs at an educational institution. Not so at Grand Valley State College's Computer Center.

Director Gordon Stegink of Grand Haven states, "Free use of the college's IBM 1130 computer is available to all GVSC students, regardless of their major or previous experience. Of course," he explained, "we don't just say 'figure it out for yourself' to the new user. We hold convenient, informal classes in FORTRAN and COBOL, computer languages, and in use of such gear as key punches and card sorter. We also explain the wide variety of computer applications, and develop with students individually, the best ways to implement graphs, or establish correlations for his or her class project.

"Then too," Stegink continued, "we offer regular credit courses in computer science within degree programs, which prepare students for careers in data processing, computer programming, and systems analysis."

The Center's services are also available to all GVSC faculty and staff, and are used by administrative offices at the college.

This summer marks the second anniversary of the opening of Grand Valley's Computer Center in Manitou Hall. The facility's usage has more than tripled this year, to the point where the Center remains open over fourteen hours a day during the academic year.

ALLENDALE -- A $7,000 equipment grant has been received from the U. S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare by Grand Valley State College for expansion of the college's closed-circuit television services. College funds will be used to match the Title VI, Section II grant for an available total of $14,000, Dr. Harold Kolenbrander, assistant to the president at GVSC, explained in announcing the award this week.

The combined monies have made possible purchase of color television camera and color videotape machine for closed-circuit use at GVSC's Audio-Video Multi-Media Center in Manitou Hall. Purchase of other assorted A-V materials for Educational Studies Institute programs at the Center are also planned through funding from the new grant.

ALLENDALE -- The Housing Office of Grand Valley State College announced today that GVSC on-campus residence halls are completely filled for fall term 1972. The halls, Copeland, Robinson, and Kistler House, have a combined capacity of 900 students.

In making the announcement, David Lorenz, associate dean of student life and director of housing, stated, "All students applying to Grand Valley after July 31, and those admitted earlier who need housing, should plan to make arrangements to reside off campus or commute from home." The July 31 cut-off date for on-campus housing is considerably earlier than last year's similar announcement on August 17, 1971.

Lorenz explained today that special permission to live off campus will be given freshmen who cannot be accommodated in the residence halls. As a service to students and local householders, the Housing Office has prepared lists of available off-campus housing. Negotiations are arranged directly between students and householders, and in no way involve the college itself.

"The Housing Office remains confident that ample off-campus housing will be available for fall term, 1972," Lorenz stated, "however, if you (the student) are admitted late to the college, you probably will not be able to locate accommodations of your first choice."

ALLENDALE -- Study and investigation of life zones from coral reef to the snowline, of customs older than the Mayan empire, and of interactions of man and biology in modern industrial and pre-hispanic cultures, will comprise field work and research within Grand Valley State College's first offering of an interdisciplinary travel program in Mexico and Guatemala during the forthcoming academic year.

Dr. Howard Wright of GVSC's biological and environmental sciences department, states that over 7,500 miles will be traveled by automobile during the new winter term offering. Dr. Wright, whose studies have taken him on numerous Latin American auto trips, returns this summer to map the route.

"Our new offering within the College of Arts and Sciences will not be a sightseeing tour," he states. "Much of our work will entail extensive field studies, independent research, and interviews. Physically the trip will be rigorous as we travel from tropical shoreline to high mountains.

"Within the two CAS courses offered in the program, 'Tropical Zoology' and 'Human Ecology in Mesoamerica,' as well as in individual studies, we will involve such disciplines as biology, ecology, geology, history, sociology, anthropology, and other," he explained. Significant original research, readings, photography, and lectures are planned throughout the 10-week tour leaving Michigan, January 4, 1973. "In other words," he states, "students will find definite challenge." - more -

Acceptance into the junior-senior level program, open to all area college students, will require an interview with Dr. Wright. Due to the limitation of size in this first group, contact with him at GVSC, 895-6611, ext. 316, or in Grand Haven, 846-4846, should be made as soon as possible. GVSC enrollment information may also be secured at the college through the Admissions Office.

ALLENDALE -- Seventy-one student teachers in Grand Valley State College's Educational Studies Institute program are completing requirements for various levels of State of Michigan certification this summer.

Twenty-one student teachers from GVSC are taking part in special education summer school programs at Coopersville Elementary School and Marquette School, Muskegon. The students have been working in the Coopersville program, offered by Coopersville Public Schools and Ottawa Intermediate Schools, in two sessions June 7 to July 7, and July 10 to August 11, for Type A and Type B, educable and trainable mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed youngsters, and children with learning difficulties.

Sessions at Marquette Elementary, presented by Muskegon Public Schools for Type A and Type B, educable and trainable mentally retarded, emotionally disturbed, and deaf and hard of hearing youngsters, have been in session June 19 to July 21, and July 24 to August 25.

Student teachers at Coopersville Elementary, working under the direction of Allan TenEyck, former principal and director of special education at Coopersville Public Schools, and currently assistant professor with Grand Valley's Educational Studies Institute, are:

Bear Lake resident: Bernard Ware of Rt. #2.

Grand Haven resident: Janice Boon, 825 Sheldon Rd.

ALLENDALE -- Roy S. Lumsden, Grand Valley State College vice president for college relations, commenting on Governor William G. Milliken's veto August 9 of a section of the state higher education bill which would have allocated supportive monies for new law schools at three state institutions, including GVSC, stated, "It is our opinion that need still exists for additional legal education in Michigan and that the region served by Grand Valley State is a logical one in which to locate a new law school."

He continued, "Presently, there are no law schools in Michigan west of Ann Arbor. Over a million residents live within fifty miles of the GVSC campus, making this a prime location for legal education."

Lumsden stated that the college's administration would counsel in the near future with members of the GVSC Board of Control and the local citizens committee for the law school. He stated, "It is hoped that the idea for legal education in this area will be kept alive and that future plans will be developed."

Other institutional law school plans affected by the veto were those at Michigan State University and Western Michigan University.

GVSC Trio to Ask FCC Ease Ban on Their Voting on ETV

By PAUL CHAFFEE

Told of a Federal Communications Commission "change of mood," Grand Valley State College trustees will file a formal request soon for removal or modification of "unique" restrictions preventing three members from voting on matters concerning the college's new educational television station.

The FCC ruled when WGVC-TV applied for its construction license in October, 1970, that trustees Henry M. Hogan Jr., L. William Seidman and Paul A. Johnson could have no say in the station's affairs because of possible conflicts of interest.

Lend Expertise

Hogan is president of Synercom Communications Corp., the Birmingham firm that owns WZZM-TV here, Seidman is chairman of the board and Johnson owns stock in the company.

Grand Valley's Washington FCC lawyer, Martin Gaynes, said the legal paperwork for the request will be submitted in about two weeks.

"In all other parts of the country, men who hold positions on commercial broadcasting stations are lending their communications expertise to local educational television," Gaynes said.

"The conditions imposed on the Grand Valley Board of Control are imposed on no other station in the United States. This is truly a unique situation," he added.

To satisfy requirements of the ruling, the trustees set up a special committee of four of the seven members of the board who have no financial interests in WZZM or other stations. They usually take action on station matters in separate sessions after regular board meetings.

The FCC has a monopoly rule that no man can sit on the board of more than one broadcasting company in the same community, but educational television stations, in a footnote to the regulation, are exempted.

Grand Valley's application, however, reached the commission at a time when its staff was especially sensitive to conflict-of-interest situations and the condition was "dreamed up" and adopted, the lawyer commented.

The heavy concentration of members affiliated with WZZM on the school's board also may have influenced the commission, he also stated.

Feared Program Advantages

The commission apparently feared that the make-up of the board made possible changes in ETV programming for the benefit of the commercial station.

But board members maintain that as directors of WGVC they would not be confronted with program determinations, only general policy. Furthermore, they say, the three were instrumental in bringing the educational station to the Allendale campus, an action they would have fought had they been concerned about the competition.

"If anyone is open to conflict-of-interest suspicions, it's me," said Hogan. "WZZM now runs Electric Company and Sesame Street (Public Broadcast Corp. programs) in the morning, but we will lose then to WGVC when it goes on the air."

WZZM sells no commercial time during the programs but benefits in that they have high ratings, and once drawn to a station, the tendency of viewers is to remain tuned to that channel, analysts say. Seidman said he and Johnson are not in on programming decisions at the station.

Since the condition was written into WGVC's construction license, the FCC has permitted other stations, most recently in June, to name commercial station officials to their boards. Gaynes believes commissioners can be convinced to rethink their stand on the Grand Rapids case.

"It's a difficult, sensitive problem. Like other public boards, the commission has a tendency not to want to change their minds. But it is a new commission and there is about a 50-50 chance they will be willing to issue a new ruling," Gaynes said.

May Ask Modifying

If the FCC won't go along with a complete lifting of the ban, GVSC lawyers will seek a modification of the rule to allow Hogan, Seidman and Johnson to vote in cases where there is no specific conflict of interest.

Gaynes, a member of law firm of Cohn and Marks, FCC specialists, says he has never heard of a conflict-of-interest case's actually coming up.

GVSC Asks State For Record Total

By PAUL CHAFFEE

GLEN LAKE — Grand Valley State College will ask the Legislature to deal it a record $8,976,000 from the state treasury for 1973-74 operations and another $4,290,000 for new buildings.

The school's Board of Control Friday laughed off a proposal for a $3 million swimming pool complex and scratched out a $100,000 item that might have gone for a new law school.

The board met at the Glen Lake summer home of member Arnold C. Ott.

When Lansing officials receive the request, probably next week, they will read that the board feels it ought to have $2,334,000 more than the appropriation for the upcoming 1972-73 term to run the college for 800 more students at expected inflated 1973-74 rates.

Grand Valley schoolmen doubt they'll get all they ask.

Seek Bigger State Share

About this time last year, the plea was for $7 million. En route through the governor's mansion and Capitol building to the Allendale college's bank account, $500,000 was denied.

The school's trustees hope 74 per cent of the projected 1973-74 budget of $12,028,000 will come from the state, a 4 per cent boost. The remainder will come from tuition, fees and other sources.

Of the operating fund increase of $2,637,000 for the entire budget, $1,887,000 will be expended for salaries and wages; $617,500 for services and supplies; $88,240 for equipment, and $30,000 for student center fee increases. The board is asking the state to pay all but $303,000 of the projected increase. It expects 5,800 students in the 1973-74 year.

GVSC appears certain to get $3 million of its petition for building funds, according to physical plant Director Robert Romkema. The higher education bill signed Wednesday by Gov. William G. Milliken gives GVSC $100,000 to plan for and begin construction of a $4,200,000 science laboratory building. The money to complete the project is to follow in 1975.

Lists Other Projects

If the board gets its way, a new classroom structure will rise near a ravine at the east end of the campus at about the same time. Refused funds the last time around for a 103,000-square-foot building, the board will try again for a 20,000-square-foot, two-story, $750,000 building with classrooms, faculty offices and a computer center.

It will take another $200,000 to extend roads and utilities to that part of the campus, Romkema said. The school also asked for a $100,000 addition to its year-old Calder Fine Arts Center and $230,000 to finish work on the one-quarter of the athletics building that was sealed off and stands idle due to lack of funds.

"They might not give us anything if we ask for a $3 million pool," board President L. William Seidman said before the board drastically reduced to $750,000 an administration proposal that would have spread the request over three years, beginning in 1974.

Despite Milliken's veto Wednesday of authorization for planning funds for a GVSC law school, the board stuck to part of its request for legal education money, enough to hire a dean. The specific sum will be listed when the college submits a more detailed request in October.

Joins Athletic Conference

The board also:

—Named Ann Arbor Trust Co. its agent in arranging bond financing of a $1.75 million, 100-apartment cluster of seven two-story townhouse structures and a commons building. Construction may begin as soon as next year.

—Learned that late delivery of a $236,000 General Electric transmitter probably will postpone the first WGVC-TV signals until well beyond the planned October air date.

—Voted the college into the newly-formed Great Lakes Intercollegiate Athletic Association with Lake Superior State College, Ferris State College, Northwood Institute, Saginaw Valley State College and possibly Oakland University. Women will be allowed to compete in varsity athletics, and there will be more sports and teams for women than in most athletic conferences.

—Authorized establishment of a campus chapter of Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM), a statewide student consumer research and action organization that has plans to hire a team of professional investigators to help collegians in buyer protection projects.

GVSC Grants Pacts for Student Center

By PAUL CHAFFEE

Bulldozers and mechanical diggers were poised and ready Friday when the Grand Valley State College Board of Control formally awarded contracts for the school's $2.7 million student center.

The equipment was moved to the site, the open field across the pond from Zumberge Library and northwest of the Alexander Calder Fine Arts Center, just a few hours earlier and the first earth will be scooped out Monday.

The jobs were awarded low bidders Omega Construction Co. of Grandville, $1,469,553 general contract; Holwerda-Huizenga Co. of Grand Rapids, $379,100 mechanical; Nieboer Electric Co. of Fremont, $159,400 electrical, and Foremost-McKesson Systems of Birmingham, $78,453 food service equipment.

Technically, concurrence on the contract decision is needed from the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which has given GVSC a financing grant. The college, however, has been given an oral go-ahead from a HUD "monitor," here last week for the opening of bids, according to Physical Plant Manager Robert Romkema. Official word is due in a week, he said.

Bids on the project were $278,000 less than estimated, Romkema said, because area contractors were "hungrier" than predicted and because some workers will be paid at Ottawa County rates, about $1 per hour less than in Kent County.

The board also approved a short-term $2,750,000 loan from Old Kent Bank & Trust Co. at 4.5 per cent to finance the project. GVSC Business Manager Ronald VanSteeland said the college will issue long-term bonds in September, 1973, to repay the loan.

Fee Hike Unlikely

The bonds will be retired with money from student pockets; each pays a $45 per-year student center fee.

Van Steeland said it hasn't been determined if the fee will be raised, but if enrollment reaches 5,800 by fall of 1973 and continues to rise according to the college calculations, a hike is not likely.

HUD will pay all but 3 per cent of the market interest, now at about 6.5 per cent, and will have final approval of plans and contracts and the right to inspect the structure for flaws when it is finished.

Grand Valley authorities predict completion in time for the fall, 1973 term.

The center will house conference rooms with a capacity of 900 persons, dining areas, snack bars, lounges, offices for the student newspaper, campus government and a radio station and the college bookstore. Also included is an "impromptu" theater with seating for 250.

In other action, the trustees agreed to collaborate with Calvin College in a special education teacher-training program in which the private school's students would take 68 credits of work on the Allendale Campus.

The program will begin next fall, with 15 teachers from Calvin participating. Tuition paid by the group will enable GVSC to support an additional special education faculty member in its Educational Studies Institute.

Arthur Hills, GVSC administrative vice president, said the program is unique among private-public college cooperative programs, so much so that it has attracted the attention of the Kellogg Foundation of Kalamazoo, which may award GVSC a $140,000 grant.

The panel also sanctioned plans for construction this summer of a $150,000 375-car commuter parking lot west of the Alexander Calder Fine Arts Center at the south end of the campus. Cost of the lot and maintenance will be spread over years and borne by drivers using the facility.

Student Boom Swells GVSC Budget Balloon

By PAUL CHAFFEE

The cost of operating Grand Valley State College will leap by more than 36 per cent next school year and the students will help pay the bill.

The college Board of Control Friday approved a budget increasing expenditures $2.5 million—from this year's $6,870,000 to $9,414,000 for 1972-73.

The increase is tied closely to a projected 20 per cent hike in the number of students expected next fall.

A $1,842,000 rise in salaries and wages accounts for the largest chunk; $576,000 in additional administrative expenses and $60,000 in new equipment also will raise the needed sum.

Almost in the same breath, the board voted a 4 per cent pay raise, effective July 1, for administrators, instructors and some office workers, and formally ratified a three-year contract with the maintenance and custodial workers.

That agreement conceded to them a 26-cent hourly wage hike, a cost-of-living clause allotting an additional 1 cent per hour for each half-point rise (up to 8 cents per year) in the Bureau of Labor Statistic's Consumer Price Index, and education benefits.

The terms are retroactive to Nov. 14 and have been cleared with the Internal Revenue Service, according to Business Manager Donald F. VanSteeland.

Nearly all of the board members expressed pleasure with the new arrangement. They wanted a three-year document and the college was able to retain a strong position in hiring, firing, demoting and promoting employees.

The increase from 4,056 collegians now studying at GVSC to 5,007 projected for fall will bring with it, the college expects, $2 million more in funds appropriated by the Legislature.

Governor William G. Milliken has asked legislators to set aside $6.9 million for the school when they consider state college appropriations in June.

The board unanimously voted to hit students with an $8 a term tuition increase to raise an additional $130,000. Over-all tuition and fees should garner $2.5 million.

Next fall, students who are Michigan residents will pay $160 a term and $480 for the three-session school year. Out-of-state students will be billed $408 a term, $1,224 per year.

Grand Valley administrators predict, however, that school's tuition will remain among the three lowest of the 13 four-year colleges in the Michigan system.

To some students paying nonresident fees the blow was eased by a board action that chipped away part of the "once a nonresident, always a nonresident" school tuition policy.

The board set up an appeal process and loosened rules binding the resident status of a woman student to that of her husband.

ALLENDALE -- The Board of Control of Grand Valley State College, meeting Friday, August 11 at Glen Lake, Michigan, approved a $12,027,596 operating fund budget request, including $8,976,030 state appropriations, for 1973-74, to be submitted to the Bureau of Programs and Budgets. The request, according to GVSC business manager, Ronald F. VanSteeland, reflects a projected enrollment increase to 5,800 students in the fall of 1973.

The Board also approved a revised operating budget for 1972-73 of $9,391,000, including state appropriations of $6,642,000, and based on a projected enrollment of 5,007 students this September.

In other financial matters, the Board approved a state capital outlay request for 1973-74 of $4,290,000. Included within the request, among other projects, is $3,000,000 for start of construction of a new science laboratory building, and $750,000 for construction of an internally modular classroom facility.

Two resolutions were also approved by the Board at its August 11 meeting: One authorized the GVSC administration to cooperate in establishment of the Great Lakes Intercollegiate/Athletic Conference; the other, reaffirmed the Board's position that GVSC should provide support to a law college in this area, and will "continue to seek support from the legislative and executive branches of the Michigan state government for that purpose."

In other action, the GVSC Board of Control gave its approval to the concept of the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM), a state-wide student advocacy group represented at Grand Valley, and will permit addition of a card in the college's term registration packets "allowing each student voluntarily to pay $1.00 or any higher amount to PIRGIM effective winter term, 1973."

The Board also moved to obtain counsel for filing a request with the Federal Communications Commission for removal of WGVC-TV construction permit conditions limiting actions by the Board to those who hold no interest in a commercial television station.

Further, the Board of Control authorized its Living Unit IV subcommittee, consisting of Messrs. Deane Baker, Paul A. Johnson, and L. William Seidman, to work with college administrators and architect, Tarapata, MacMahon, Paulson Corp. of Bloomfield Hills, in preparing specifications for the new on-campus apartment complex, and to receive bids for its construction. The Board's subcommittee will also award construction contracts for the new $1.7 million project to be built northwest of GVSC's Field House.

ALLENDALE -- "Tourist" might be the first word used to describe the two standing in front of the Roman inscription near Klagenfurt, Austria. In talking to them, however, it would soon become apparent that Eastern Michigan Un. student, Linda Doering (right) of Orchard Lake, and Grand Valley State College student, Kimberly Rowe of Midland, were in fact among nineteen participants in studies and excursions offered annually at GVSC's German Summer School in Klagenfurt.

Located high in the mountains of southeastern Austria, the six-week GVSC International Studies Program offering, which concludes August 18, features the German language exclusively for participants from Michigan and California colleges, as well as teachers from Illinois and Michigan this summer. Besides language studies, the group has toured extensively through Vienna, and the Austrian villages and mountains of the State of Corinthia.

On such a tour, the Misses Doering and Rowe viewed the Roman stone inscription moved from a nearby Roman settlement to the Church of Maria Saal, founded in 767 A.D.

ALLENDALE -- The college student in front of the 1,200 year old Church of Maria Saal in southeastern Austria might be mistaken for a tourist. In talking to him, however, it would soon become apparent that Kenneth Skalitzky of 3818 Nine Mile Road, Remus, was in fact among nineteen participants on a weekly excursion offered through Grand Valley State College's annual German Summer School in Klagenfurt, Austria.

The six-week program, concluding August 18, features the German language exclusively, for as Dr. E. F. Gearhart, director of the school and of GVSC's international program states, "What better way to become totally immersed in a language than to use it every day, not only in classes, but in the cities and mountain villages of the country."

GVSC junior Skalitzky and the other eighteen college students from Michigan and California, and teachers from Illinois and Michigan, have often been interviewed this summer about their impressions and experiences by Austrian press and radio.

ALLENDALE -- Nancy Carleski of 4450 S. Custer Rd., Monroe (center), a junior at Grand Valley State College, was among twelve GVSC undergraduate and University of Michigan graduate students sailing aboard the 60-foot R/V ANGUS this summer studying aquatic fresh water ecology in Lake Michigan and surrounding waters.

In her laboratory work on board Grand Valley's research vessel, Miss Carleski assisted in developing oxygen and temperature profiles on an oxygen analyzer, as pictured, as well as taking part in other extensive ecological studies on the Grand River, Spring Lake, and along the shores of Lake Michigan.

On campus earlier this summer, she and the class met for lectures and laboratory work on data and samples collected from the waters.

The joint GVSC - U. of M. "Oceanography" course offering through Grand Valley's College of Arts and Sciences, was under the direction of Dr. Steven Clark, assistant professor of biology.

ALLENDALE -- Rita Gentile, director of instructional television at WGVC-TV, west-central Michigan's new public broadcasting station, has been appointed to serve on the Instructional Television Committee of the Central Educational Network.

The seven-member committee, which is appointed yearly, serves in an advisory capacity to CEN members from over 30 public broadcasting stations in a 12-state area of the mid-west. The committee will be chaired this year by John Montgomery, executive director of the Iowa Educational Broadcasting Network.

Miss Gentile joined the local station, which will begin broadcasting from the Grand Valley State College campus later this year on UHF channel 35, from WVPT-TV, Harrisonburg, Va., in early 1972. Word of her recent appointment was received by WGVC-TV station manager, Gordon Lawrence, from Charles Vaughn, station manager of WCET-TV, Cincinnati, Ohio, and president of the Central Educational Network.

"Hallo Kärnten - hier ist Amerika!" was the welcoming bannerline of the Austrian press as Grand Valley State College's German Summer School began its third season this year in Klagenfurt, Austria.

The nineteen participants, including college students from California and Michigan, as well as teachers from this state and Illinois, have been involved in the six-week program which features the German language exclusively. As Dr. E. F. Gearhart, director of the school and of GVSC's international studies program, states, "What better way to become totally immersed in a language than to use it every day, not only for classes, but in the cities and mountain villages of the country."

Each week Dr. Gearhart has planned tours through the countryside of Austria, from the Yugoslavian border to Vienna, from the industries of Klagenfurt (Kärnten) to the farms of the Hollenburg estate.

Contacts have also been features of this year's summer session between GVSC's school in Austria and the college's summer school in Tours, France.

Mornings in Klagenfurt, capital city of the State of Carinthia high in the mountains of southeastern Austria, have been spent in classes led by GVSC and Austrian faculty, as well as assisted by Austrian university students who serve as tutors. Afternoons have been free for travel and exploration.

Interviews in both the Austrian press and on radio have indicated, Dr. Gearhart reports, the pleasure with which the American group was welcomed this year. In turn, the printed comments of GVSC German Summer School participants has reflected the deep satisfaction the group has found in their experiences and contacts with the people of Austria.

Southeast Grand Rapids residents, Mr. and Mrs. David Korhorn, paused recently in front of a picturesque 17th century Austrian farmhouse in the State of Carinthian. Their visit was a part of one of numerous weekly tours to cultural and historical points of interest offered in conjunction with Grand Valley State College's German Summer School in Klagenfurt, Austria.

Korhorn, a teacher at Covenant Christian High School, was one of nineteen participants this summer at the school high in the mountains of Austria. Others in the six-week program, which concluded last week, included college students from Michigan and California, and teachers from Illinois and this state.

German was the only language used by the U.S. group in their studies, their contacts, and during tours from Vienna to the Yugoslavian border. Korhorn stated that he and his wife were particularly impressed with the hospitality of the people and the delicious food of southeastern Austria.

ALLENDALE -- Participants in Grand Valley State College's French Summer School in Tours, France, gathered between classes this month on the 18th century town house steps of the Institut de Touraine. The Institute, located in the heart of the ancient provincial city two hours from Paris, has specialized in the teaching of French to foreigners since the turn of the century.

Through GVSC's International Studies Program of the College of Arts and Sciences, summer school students at Tours have been involved each Monday through Friday, July-August in classes in dictation, grammar, reading, compositions, conversation, and phonetics. Besides their classroom work, Dr. Pierre E. Robert, resident director of the summer school and GVSC assistant professor of French states, the students have taken numerous excursions to the many historical castles surrounding Tours, and to the French cities of Chartes, Orleans, Paris, Strasbourg, and others.

Members of the group will return to the United States in early September.

Pictured, l. to r., are all GVSC students except where indicated:

ALLENDALE.-- Twelve junior and senior level high school students from Grand Rapids have been studying and working this summer at Grand Valley State College through cooperation of the Neighborhood Youth Corps and GVSC.

Each morning, the twelve have scattered throughout the campus for such experiences as office and library assistance, or camera work for the college's closed-circuit television productions.

During afternoons, the bright young members of the group have met with teaching fellow Laurel Auer, of GVSC's Urban Studies Institute, for a college-level freshman English class. Upon successful completion of the course, as in other GVSC high school enrichment programs, college credit will be available to the students after graduation from high school and entrance into college. And eleven of the twelve have indicated they will continue their education beyond high school.

Those taking part in the program, which concluded Friday, August 18, were: Betty Edwards, Marla Freeman, Mish Gildon, Brenda Hamilton, Karen Johnson, Sue Manne, Gabrielle McClain, Janey McCoy, Lawrence McFall, Jr., Linda Pringle, Laurel Proctor, and Sharon Yancy.

ALLENDALE -- Gordon Lawrence, station manager of WGVC-TV, western Michigan's new public television facility, due to begin broadcasting later this fall, will be featured speaker at the South Haven Rotary Club's 6:30 p.m. meeting Tuesday, August 29 at the Red Carpet Inn, South Haven.

Lawrence's topic, "Public Television ... Who Needs It?" will explore the realm of public broadcasting, particularly noting potential programming advantages not only for general audiences, but also special interest groups, including those in business, schools, and civic affairs.

Prior to joining WGVC-TV at Grand Valley State College in October, 1971, Lawrence was public television program director at WOUB-TV, Athens, Ohio.

ALLENDALE -- A recent informal survey of Grand Valley State College's 2,130 graduates, from 1967 through spring, 1972, has indicated that over 26% of the 1,733 alumni answering questionnaires from the College Relations Division, have continued their education following receipt of their GVSC degree.

Eighty-four of the group have received masters degrees, with 61 completing their masters programs at the University of Michigan, Michigan State, Western Michigan, or Central Michigan University.

Seven have continued and completed the Ph.D. or other advanced degrees, including two M.D.'s, while 14 others are currently enrolled in doctorate-level programs.

Two hundred-one GVSC graduates are presently enrolled in masters degree programs, or will enter such programs this fall, with 169 of them attending graduate schools in Michigan. Others are scattered in programs from the Un. of Hawaii to Boston Un. of Theology, from Texas Un. to the Illinois College of Optometry, from Notre Dame to Yale Law School.

Of the 463 involved, the remaining 147 graduates of GVSC have been, or are, taking part in some form of post-graduate study at colleges and universities throughout the country.

NEW THIS FALL -- August 30, 1972

ALLENDALE -- [Two appointments to assist and recruit Latin American and American Indian students, funded by a U. S. Office of Education grant, have been jointly announced ^{separately} this-week by Davenport and Grand ^{GVSC} Valley State Colleges. D. A. Walter Acevedo and Mary Pine Simonait have been appointed to serve both institutions as full-time Latin American recruiter-counselor and American Indian recruiter-counselor, respectively.

Their work this year with Latino and Indian students in area high schools will entail counseling of students to remain in school, as well as recruitment for both colleges. On-campus the two will work with Chicano and Indian students already enrolled at Davenport and Grand Valley, as well as assist both college communities to become more aware of the history and culture of the Latin American and American Indian.

The new positions have been made possible through a $75,000 federal grant to a consortium of Michigan colleges which also included Lansing Community, Saginaw Valley, and Delta Colleges. Davenport and GVSC on the west side of the state anticipate a share of slightly more than $25,000 of the grant.]

B. A. Walter Acevedo brings his Latin American expertise to both institutions through his appointment in GVSC's Urban Studies Institute, commencing August 1 of this year. Acevedo holds the B.S. degree in education from Southwest Texas State Un., and has pursued graduate work at Texas A. & I. His career has included residential counseling for the Gary Job Corps and migrant interviewing at Michigan State Un., as well as teaching positions. For two years prior to his present appointment, he served as social studies teacher in the Corpus Christi School District, Texas.

Mary Pine Simonait, whose father was born at the L'Anse Chippewa Reservation in the upper peninsula, is herself a native of west-central Michigan. In her appointment at Davenport College commencing September 1, Ms. Simonait's background is particularly suited to her role as community-specialist. Following receipt of the Bachelor of Arts degree in English from Aquinas College, she taught within Grand Rapids' inner-city schools from 1967-71. Last year she was associated as teacher with the American Indian Center in Chicago, developing a new pre-school program and teaching high school English.

ALLENDALE -- Paul K. Johnson, Grand Valley State College junior from Hart has been re-appointed editor for 1972-73 of The Lanthorn, GVSC's student newspaper. A student himself at Grand Valley's Thomas Jefferson College, Johnson's re-appointment to the post he has held since January 1972, was announced by the GVSC Newspaper Board.

Prior to assuming editorship last winter, Johnson had served as staff member of the newspaper during 1970-71, and as assistant editor in fall term, 1971. During the GVSC academic year, The Lanthorn is a bi-weekly publication. This summer Johnson was responsible for initiating the first four editions published to serve summer term and orientation students.

Also re-appointed by the Newspaper Board, whose membership represents GVSC students, faculty, and staff, was Barbara J. Cullinane of north-west Grand Rapids, a senior English major at Grand Valley's College of Arts and Sciences.

Raymond J. Stitt of Holland, a senior economics and psychology major at GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, was appointed by the Board as business manager of The Lanthorn for 1972-73. Stitt, an Air Force veteran and father of three children, replaces John Struthers who graduated in June.

ALLENDALE, Mich. -- Fremont, California resident, Johnny L. Asnicar, listens intently as a craftsman explains the action of a handmade sporting gun at one of 18 small hunting gun firms of the Austrian village of Ferlach. Asnicar's visit was part of the summer study program, which concluded in late August, at Grand Valley State College's German Summer School in nearby Klagenfurt, Austria. His studies not only concentrated exclusively on the German language, but also included extensive study tours throughout the mountainous region of southeastern Austria, from the Yugoslavian border to Vienna, from the industries of Klagnfurt, to high mountain farm estates.

Asnicar was one of nineteen college students and high school teachers taking part in the west-central Michigan college's summer offering. He has recently returned to the U.S. to continue his studies at California State College.

ALLENDALE -- "Tourist" might be the first word used to describe the three standing in the original market square of Klagenfurt, Austria. In talking to them, however, it would soon become apparent that Mary Zandee (l.) of Zeeland, teacher at Hamady High School, Flint; Carol Sheer (c.) of St. Joseph, a student at Aquinas College, Grand Rapids; and, Elizabeth Fowler, teacher at St. Francis High School, Wheaton, Ill., were in fact among nineteen participants in studies and excursions offered each summer at Grand Valley State College's German Summer School in Klagenfurt.

Located high in the mountains of southeastern Austria, the six-week GVSC International Studies Program offering, which concluded this year in late August, featured the German language exclusively for participants from Michigan and California colleges, as well as teachers from Illinois and Michigan. Besides language studies, the group toured extensively throughout the mountainous region and Austria in general, from the Yugoslavian border to Vienna, from the industries of Klagenfurt, to mountain farm estates.

Rising behind Misses Zandee, Sheer, and Fowler, is the 16th century State of Carinthia capital building in Klagenfurt.

ALLENDALE -- Advanced organic chemistry, emphasizing working problems taken from recent chemical literature, will be offered evenings at Grand Valley State College this fall by the College of Arts and Sciences chemistry department. Dr. Gary Richmond of the department states, "We are pleased to repeat this 3-hour credit course, which proved popular with area residents in the fields of chemistry last year. Pre-requisite for the course is a knowledge of material normally presented in one-year introductory organic chemistry courses."

Lectures will be held Mon. and Wed. evenings, Sept. 27 through Dec. 6 in room 213, Mackinac Hall. Dr. Richmond adds, "The scheduled times of 7 to 8:30 p.m. can be adjusted if necessary to accomodate those requiring longer travel time."

Questions concerning the Chemistry 412 course should be directed to Dr. Richmond, telephone 895-6611, ext. 159. Further information about GVSC registration, tuition, etc., may be secured through the Registrar's office at Grand Valley State, 895-6611.

ALLENDALE -- Calvin and Grand Valley State Colleges enter a new phase of growing cooperation between private and public institutions in western Michigan, as 18 junior-year Calvin students enter GVSC's Educational Studies Institute program in special education for the first time this fall.

"The cooperation," according to Dr. Dale Olsen, director of GVSC's institute, "will allow Calvin students to complete special education requirements leading to State certification, which are not currently available at Calvin." Students in the program will complete and receive their baccalaureate degrees from Calvin College, while receiving recommendation for certification from GVSC after successful completion of the program at Grand Valley.

Dual areas of concentration characterize Grand Valley's offerings in special education, combining more than one disability area, including educable mental retardation, emotional disability, and deaf education. Internships under the direction of master teachers in area special education classrooms, as well as on-campus courses and seminars, are elements of the broad year-round program.

Eighteen junior-year students from Calvin College will be accepted each year in GVSC's junior and senior level program, so that commencing fall 1973, 36 Calvin students will be participants each year. An annual evaluation of the cooperation will be made by both colleges each spring.

ALLENDALE -- Acting and singing auditions for roles in Grand Valley State College's fall production of the musical adaptation of Geoffrey Chaucer's immortal "Canterbury Tales," will be held in early October at GVSC's Louis Armstrong Theatre, Calder Fine Arts Center. Dr. William Z. Iron, director and chairman of the College of Arts and Sciences theatre department, reports that roles are open to all community residents. Tryouts will be held Wednesday, October 4 from 3-5 p.m.; Thursday, October 5 from 3-5 p.m., and from 7:30-9:30 p.m.; and, Friday, October 6 from 3-5 p.m.

Performances of Chaucer's boisterous celebration of life will take place at the college November 9, 10 and 11, and November 16 and 17. Dr. Iron suggests that all those auditioning come prepared to read from materials furnished, and if a singing role is desired, to bring an audition number in the musical comedy tradition.

ALLENDALE -- A video program produced by the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, and intended as an update on trends and developments in the Federal Occupational Safety and Health Act, will highlight the final session of the Grand Valley Occupational Safety Seminars, Wednesday, September 20, 8:30-11:30 a.m., at Grand Valley State College's Lake Huron Hall.

Co-sponsored by GVSC, West Michigan Chapter of the American Society of Safety Engineers, and the Greater Grand Rapids Chamber of Commerce, registration at the door is $5.

Such items as pros and cons of joint safety committees in non-union shops, and the O.S.H.A. and union contracts, are discussed in the Chamber's video presentation by directors of the Office of Compliance, the Office of Standards, and the Office of Research and Standards, as well as attorneys representing the federal government, the U. S. Chamber, and private enterprise.

"The final hour of the seminar," according to Jack Payne of GVSC's School of Business and Economics, "will consist, as has been the format in nine previous programs, of a free-wheeling discussion by a panel of members representing the sponsoring organizations and including a Federal Compliance Officer." Additional information concerning the program may be secured from Payne at (616) 895-6611, ext. 343.

ALLENDALE -- "Opening Convocation" at Grand Valley State College for all faculty of GVSC's colleges and institutes, as well as members of the executive, administrative, and professional staffs, will be held Monday, September 18, 9:30 a.m., in the Louis Armstrong Theatre, Alexander Calder Fine Arts Center.

This year's convocation marks the tenth year faculty members have been welcomed at the four-year western Michigan college. The more than 236 faculty involved in Monday's event, including 68 new members this fall, are indicative of the growth which Grand Valley has sustained during its development. Fifteen faculty members marched formally in a not-quite-completed Lake Michigan Hall at GVSC's first convocation in September, 1963.

At the college's tenth convocation, Fred Harclerod, president of the American College Testing Program, will be featured speaker at 11 a.m., discussing "New Trends in Higher Education." Earlier, Arthur C. Hills, chairman of the event, and vice-president for administration, will present an introduction, followed by comments from Arend D. Lubbers, president of GVSC; Dr. Glenn Niemeyer, dean, College of Arts and Sciences; Dr. T. Dan Gilmore, dean, Thomas Jefferson College; Dr. Adrian Tinsley, dean, William James College; and, Dr. Robert Toft, dean, College IV.

ALLENDALE -- "Returning to college, or applying for the first time after a number of years away from 'the books' can be a traumatic experience," Glenda Belote, director of Grand Valley State College's new ACCESS program stated recently. "What we're trying to do through the new offering, is make that transition as comfortable as possible. We're not really innovating in our counseling and assistance to adults, but rather we're 'rennovating,' taking existing programs and making them work for people in a new way."

ACCESS, which begins this fall, offers all area adults options to entering or re-entering academic studies. The pressures of pass-fail are removed in the program's non-degree basis, although participants may chose later to apply for review for degree course credit. The return to regular classroom experience is eased through a two-week "grace period" in which participants can attend classes in any of GVSC's colleges or institutes, without official enrollment. And, counseling with assigned faculty members lends constant assistance to the program's adult returnees in all areas of GVSC offerings, day or evening.

"ACCESS participants," Miss Belote states, "have the opportunity to simply sample many of the enrichment possibilities of courses, seminars, programs, and special studies of all three Grand Valley State collegiate units, and its institutes. Or, they may chose after a term experience, to fully enter a degree program.

September 14, 1972

"Their choice can be a bit at a time for as long as they desire, or a fairly rapid re-entry full-time. Their only limitations will be their own desire, and ACCESS' guidelines which allow participation in only two courses per term."

Further information about the program may be secured from Glenda Belote, ACCESS Director, Lake Huron Hall, GVSC, Allendale, Michigan 49401, or by telephone, 895-6611, ext. 269.

ALLENDALE -- Musical variety in jazz by Stan Kenton, blues by Muddy Waters, and the folk of The Sinful Street Two, will fill Grand Valley State College's Field House Friday, September 29 as the season's first GVSC Campus Activities concert commences at 8 p.m.

Advance tickets at $3 are available at the GVSC Bookstore; in Grand Rapids at Chess King (North Kent Mall), Dodds Record Shop, Flaming Rat, Indian Ocean Trading Co., New Image, Record and Tape Center (Woodland), Record Hut, and Sound Room (Eastbrook); and, in Kalamazoo at Boogie Records. Tickets at the door will be $3.50.

Kenton and his orchestras, which have won almost every jazz award available since 1947, present music as relevant today as it has been to audiences for two decades. Kenton's philosophy of contemporary change, has been a contributing force behind his popularity through the "Big Band" era to his current concert tours and work with high schools, colleges, and universities throughout the country.

Born in Rolling Rock, Mississippi, Muddy Waters, has since his first early recordings in 1941, been recognized as a master of the "fierce, declamatory Delta blues" tradition. He is probably one of the most imitated blues artists of all times, with performers and groups attempting to repeat his unique delivery, as in such records as "Long Distance Call," "Baby, Please Don't Go," "Honey Bee," and others.

ALLENDALE -- More than 50 intaglio prints on loan from the permanent collection of the University of Iowa, will highlight the 1972-73 season opening of Grand Valley State College's Manitou Hall Art Gallery. The works by former graduate students of Mauricio Lasansky, who in 1946 established one of the most famous printmaking departments in the United States at the U. of I., will be on display Wednesday, September 27 through Friday, October 20. Located, for this show, in the first floor gallery of Manitou Hall, exhibition hours are 8:30 a.m.-10 p.m., Mon.-Thurs.; 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Fri.; and, 1-5 p.m., Sat. and Sun.

Lasansky's own international prize winning print, "Bleeding Heart," which has been purchased by the Vatican, will be included within the exhibition. Other outstanding prints include John Paul Jones' "Yellow" and "Still Life," as well as "Sunflower II" by Takeshi Takahara of GVSC's art department, College of Arts and Sciences. Takahara explained recently that the word "intaglio" which described all works of the exhibition at GVSC, is a technical term for the design process of printing from metal.

Grand Valley's CAS art department has organized a traveling exhibition throughout Michigan for the Un. of Iowa prints following their display at GVSC. After Oct. 20, the exhibition will travel first to Hope College, and then to Saginaw Valley College, Interlochen Arts Academy, Western Michigan Un., Northern Michigan Un., Lake Superior State College, and Henry Ford Community College.

ALLENDALE -- Paul I. Phillips, executive director of the Grand Rapids Urban League will teach one of Grand Valley State College's new off-campus evening offerings this fall at Baxter Community Center in Grand Rapids. Phillips' course, entitled, "Minority and Ethnic Relations," is offered through GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences as a 5-credit Sociology 382 examination of "Majority-minority relations in contemporary society, with attention to special ethnic, religious, and racial minorities." The 6:30-10:30 p.m. offering will commence Monday, October 2 and continue each Monday evening throughout GVSC's ten-week fall term.

Phillips' expertise for his new teaching assignment is reflected in his service to the Grand Rapids community. Besides his present position, he has served as member and treasurer of the Board of Education, and member of such advisory boards as the Dept. of Public Recreation, Family Life Council, Kent County Dept. of Social Welfare, and the Grand Rapids-Kent County Council on Alcoholism. He is a graduate of Marquette Un., and holds the masters degree from Fisk Un.

Further information concerning enrollment at Baxter Community Center for degree seeking students may be secured from GVSC's admissions office, 895-6611. Students not seeking a degree, may enroll as "Special Evening Students" the first night of class. Later review for degree course credit will be available to these students. ALLENDALE -- The Opera Association of Western Michigan and Grand Valley State College have joined in a new cooperation which will be initiated in 1973 as the two groups present Rossini's ever-popular "Barber of Seville" in the early spring at GVSC.

Try-outs for the production have already been held among professionals from throughout the nation, and further cooperative work on the production continues. Shown at one of the recent planning sessions are, front row, l. to r., Mrs. Hudson (Joan) White, Jr., general manager of the Opera Association, and Mr. John F. Gilmore, vice-president; top row, l. to r., Wayne Dunlap, GVSC music department chairman, College of Arts and Sciences, and Mrs. Earl W. (Muriel) Burger, Jr., Association production manager.

"Barber of Seville" will be presented through the efforts of the Association, professional performers, faculty, and students at Grand Valley on March 30 and 31, and April 6 and 8. It is planned as only the first of many such future cooperative presentations for the public at GVSC.

Others involved in the new on-going cooperative effort have included Association officers: Austen Wood, president, 1972-73; Mrs. Robert (Nella) Burton, secretary; R. Edwin Owen, president, 1971-72; Robert Hooker, president, 1969-70; and, from GVSC, William Z. Iron, chairman, CAS theatre department, and Arend D. Lubbers, president.

ALLENDALE -- Three poems by Robert Vas Dias, poet-in-residence and tutor at Thomas Jefferson College of Grand Valley State College, appeared recently in the summer, 1972 issue of Partisan Review, the highly regarded national literary magazine.

The pieces included "Text for the Fall Appearance Opera," which Vas Dias wrote for a special TJC fall production last year featuring original musical score by Robert Shechtman and choreography by Christine Loizeaux, both artists-tutors at Thomas Jefferson.

An editor as well as a poet, Vas Dias is currently assembling work by contemporary American and Canadian poets for an anthology of Earth-poetry, reflecting "ecological awareness."

His own latest book of poems, SPEECH ACTS & HAPPENINGS, was published during the past spring by Bobbs-Merrill, New York City.

Vas Dias and his family reside at 1706 Gladys Avenue, Grand Haven.

ALLENDALE -- The Board of Nursing of Michigan's Department of Licensing and Regulation, voted unanimous approval September 21 for initiation of Grand Valley State College's new baccalaureate degree program in nursing commencing January 1973.

"We are extremely pleased by the Board's action," Dr. Vera Brand, director of GVSC's School of Health Sciences' nursing education program, stated. "Our program, as outlined to the Board, has as its major objective, 'to prepare a nurse who is competent in providing sensitive and skilled health care for patients and their families in any setting.' We now look forward to implementing that goal through our first clinical courses for approximately twenty nursing students in January."

Offering an integrated curriculum within the College of Arts and Sciences, GVSC's new, fully approved program will lead to the Bachelor of Science degree in nursing. Earlier approval of the program was granted by the State of Michigan Board of Education, in September, 1971. Further details for both entering students and transfers may be secured from the Director of Nursing Education, GVSC, Allendale, Michigan 49401, or by telephone, 895-6611, ext. 319.

Dr. Brand joined Grand Valley as director earlier this year from her position as chairman of the master's program in medical-surgical nursing at the Un. of Utah. She has been joined this month by three new faculty members at the School of Health Sciences' nursing education program:

Donna Larson, former nurse researcher at Children's Hospital of Los Angeles, prior to coming to the GVSC program, holds the B.S. degree in nursing from California State College, Los Angeles, and the M.S. in pediatric nursing from the Un. of California, Los Angeles. Mrs. Larson's career at Children's Hospital also included in-service education instructor and nursing coordinator. She has also served as assistant professor of nursing at California State College. She and her family are residents of Jenison.

Suzanne Perkins joins GVSC from an extensive career as staff nurse in medicine, surgery, and psychiatry within hospitals in the Cleveland, Ohio area. Holding the B.S.N. degree from Saint John College, Cleveland, and the M.S.N. in psychiatric-mental health nursing from Catholic Un. of America, Washington, D.C., Miss Perkins has also taken course work at the Gestalt Institute of Cleveland. She has served as faculty advisor at St. John College, and this year was chairman of the psychiatric-mental health nursing practice division of the Ohio Nurses Association, Greater Cleveland District. Miss Perkins is living in Allendale.

Colleen Anderson Martin was clinical specialist, intensive care units, at Holy Cross Hospital, Salt Lake City, Utah, prior to joining Grand Valley's nursing faculty this month. Her career as instructor in nursing has included association with Brigham Young Un., the Un. of Pittsburgh, and the graduate medical-surgical nursing program, Un. of Utah. She has also served as clinical specialist at the Rehabilitation Center, University Hospital, Salt Lake City. Mrs. Martin holds the B.S. N.E. from St. Mary-of-the-Wasatch College, Utah, and the M.S. from the Un. of Utah, Salt Lake City. She and her family reside in Grand Haven.

ALLENDALE -- A new department of environmental science has joined the College of Arts and Sciences at Grand Valley State College this fall. Headed by new department chairman, Dr. William Yerkes, course offerings, leading to the Bachelor of Science degree in environmental science, have been designed to meet the nation's growing need for professional personnel in the field, within industry and agencies of federal, state, and local governments. According to Dr. Yerkes, students majoring in environmental science at GVSC are well prepared for careers in such growth areas as urban and land use planning, environmental monitoring, nature interpretation, and ecosystem analysis, to name just a few.

Dr. Yerkes joined Grand Valley this fall as professor, following distinguished research into environmental problems for twelve years with Kimberly-Clark Corporation. His previous teaching assignments included Washington State Un., and through the Rockefeller Foundation, research and teaching at the National Agricultural College of Mexico. A member of such organizations as the Ecological Society of America and the American Institute of Biological Sciences, Dr. Yerkes received the B.S. degree in botany and the Ph.D. in mycology-plant pathology from Washington State Un. He and his family are residents of 3679 Blackfoot Ct., Grandville.

Other faculty of GVSC's new environmental science department are Frederick Bevis, associate professor, and Dr. Melvin L. Northup, assistant professor.

Professor Devis joined GVSC's biology department in 1964 following association as research forester, associate professor of forestry, and curator of the herbarium at Michigan Technological Un.'s Ford Forestry Center. Holding the B.S. in forestry and wildlife management, and the M.S. in botany from the Un. of Michigan, Bevis is currently a candidate for the Ph.D. in botany at the U. of M. He and his wife are residents of 11628 104th, West Olive.

Dr. Northup joins the new department following service as chemist with Norwich Pharmacal Co. and post-doctorate work at the Un. of Wisconsin. A graduate of Parsons College, Dr. Northup holds the M.S. degree in analytical chemistry from Purdue Un., and the Ph.D. in soil science from the Un. of Missouri. He and his wife have settled in the north-west Grand Rapids area at 425 Oakleigh.

ALLENDALE -- The guitar and musical artistry of the Charlie Byrd Quintet is due at Grand Valley State College's Louis Armstrong Theatre at 8:15 p.m., Thursday, October 12. Tickets to the event, bridging the worlds of classical, jazz, and the music of today, are available in advance at $1 in the GVSC Bookstore, and will be on sale at the same price at the Calder Fine Arts Center theatre box office. Due to limited seating capacity, early ticket purchases are recommended.

Reviewer Willis Conover has stated, "Charlie Byrd's versatility in the literature of the guitar surpasses that of anyone else. He is a masterful jack-of all guitar trades." A student of such immortals as Sophocles Papas, Andres Segovia, and Ravi Shanker, Byrd has this year alone completed a two-week tour of Australia and New Zealand, performing in 10 major cities; performed with Arthur Fiedler and the Boston Symphony Orchestra; and, continued his concerts throughout the United States at civic functions, nightclubs, colleges and universities.

Byrd and his quintet are sponsored at Grand Valley by the GVSC Campus Activities Office.

ALLENDALE -- Three commissioned musical compositions by Robert E. Shechtman, composer-in-residence and tutor at Thomas Jefferson College of Grand Valley State College will be premiered and performed this fall and winter by artists in Spokane, Washington; Urbana, Illinois; and New York City.

Premiering in Spokane in late October, Shechtman's "Theophany" for horn was commissioned this summer by Verne Windham, principal hornist with the Spokane Symphony. Windham's own chamber ensemble plans continuing performances of the work in their concert series throughout the northwest.

Shechtman's "Three Dithyramboi" for percussion sextet will be performed in December at the University of Illinois at Urbana by the Illinois Percussion Ensemble, Tom Siwe, conductor. Commissioned in 1969 by the Manhattan Percussion Ensemble, the piece premiered at New York City's Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts, and subsequently has been performed by such groups as the Eastman Percussion Ensemble, the Pottsdam Percussion Ensemble, and on NET broadcasts in N.Y.C.

This winter, Shechtman's composition, "Spectra for Oboe and Piano" will be premiered in N.Y.C. by Steven Berkelhammer, oboist, one of the Philadelphia Chamber Soloists. The chamber group has also commissioned Shechtman for a piece for complete ensemble, flute, oboe, cello, and harpsichord/piano.

ALLENDALE -- A new autonomous unit of Thomas Jefferson College at Grand Valley State College has been formed this fall, composed entirely of new faculty and freshmen students. "Members of the unit," Dr. T. Dan Gilmore, dean of Thomas Jefferson states, "have been charged collectively with development of fresh, new ideas and approaches to education within the framework of TJC's experimenting philosophy and high academic goals." Approximately 200 freshmen and seven new faculty, called tutors, launched this fall into the creative proceedings of developing their own framework of academic studies for the 1972-73 year.

"It's a challenge we're all enjoying," Gloria Aranoff, new tutor reports. "The process of academic and personal exploration has set us all on the path of intensive evaluation."

Initial, or direct, experience has already been chosen as one of the major endeavors of TJC's young unit. "As examples," Dr. Gilmore explained, "if urban affairs are to be studied, then each unit group involved will move to the city for a period of time before returning to campus for in-depth study; if art is a unit group concentration, then extensive art tours in New York City and elsewhere will proceed full in-depth study on campus. In other words, field experience will be the base, with studies built from there, often involving all four years of student and faculty association in TJC's unit-within-a-unit."

The seven new tutors of Thomas Jefferson College at GVSC possess backgrounds as dynamic in review as their present undertaking is for the future of TJC.

Gloria Murphy Aranoff joined Thomas Jefferson as tutor-associate professor from her position as teacher trainer/primary level facilitator at St. Joseph Community School, Roxbury, Mass. During 1964-66, Mrs. Aranoff helped establish, taught, and was teacher-in-charge of the First Street School in New York City's Lower East Side. The alternative community school was basis for George Dennison's book, THE LIVES OF CHILDREN, published by Random House in 1969. A graduate of Michigan State Un., Mrs. Aranoff holds the M.S. degree in education-early childhood from Bank Street College of Education, N.Y.C., and is currently a candidate for the Ed.D. degree in curriculum and supervision - childhood education, at Harvard Graduate School of Education. She holds a Training Teachers of Teachers Fellowship in her work at Harvard. She has served as consultant to numerous day care, Head Start, Montessori, and children's community school programs. She and her family are residents of south-east Grand Rapids.

Eugene Cash, Jr., joined TJC's new unit as tutor-associate professor from positions as director-recruitment, counseling coordinator, and assistant professor of psychology, at the Un. of Cincinnati. Dr. Cash is a graduate of Howard Un., and holds the M.Ed. and Ed.D. degrees in psychology from Temple Un. He has also completed one year post-graduate work in clinical psychology and internship at Purdue Un. His career has included service as school psychologist, Cincinnati Board of Education; personnel technician, City of Philadelphia; and, supervisor, vocational testing section, Veterans Administration, Philadelphia. Dr. Cash and his family are residents of southeast Grand Rapids.

Barbara A. Gibson, who joined the new TJC unit this fall as tutor-assistant professor, is a graduate of the Un. of Iowa with the B.A. degree in European literature and thought, and holds the M.A. degree in humanities from Wayne State Un. She has served as lecturer in English and creative writing at the Un. of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, and is author of three published books of poetry. She and her family are Hudsonville residents.

William M. Harrison joined TJC as tutor-associate professor from his post as assistant professor of anthropology at the Un. of Massachusetts. His career has also included research appointments at the Un. of California at Santa Barbara and the Un. of Arizona. He has served as assistant professor in cultural anthropology at American Un., and visiting lecturer in physical anthropology at Howard Un. Dr. Harrison is a graduate of the U. of C. at Santa Barbara and received the Ph.D. degree in anthropology from the Un. of Arizona. His current research and field work, which will be continued with GVSC students, have centered on the Chaco culture, a branch of the Anasazi in New Mexico, perhaps the highest cultural development in pre-history in the United States. Dr. Harrison and his family are residents of Spring Lake.

Dasil H. King, who joined TJC's new unit this fall as tutor-assistant professor, has served as instructor in painting, drawing, art history, and design at such institutions as The Cooper Union, New York Un., and just prior to his present appointment, at Fordham Un. King holds the

B.F.A. degree from Black Mountain College, North Carolina, and has studied at the Archie Bray Foundation, Helena, Montana, and at the Society of Arts & Crafts, Detroit. His cover designs, drawings, and photographs have appeared with and in numerous books and publications of national distribution. His paintings and drawings have been featured in group, two- and one-man exhibitions, particularly in the N.Y.C. area. King's works are also in such permanent collections as the Yale Art Museum and the Hartford Atheneum Museum, Hartford, Conn. He and his family live in Grand Haven.

Shane H. Mage joined TJC as tutor-associate professor from his position as assistant professor of economics at the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn. He holds two A.B. degrees, one from the Un. of Chicago, and the other in economics from City College of New York. He received the Ph.D. degree in economics from Columbia Un., where he held the Columbia University President's Fellowship. Dr. Mage is author of numerous articles concerning economics, including "The 'Neutrality' of the Wage-Price Guidelines" in THE GREAT SOCIETY READER, and "Is Inflation Bad?" in ECONOMICS: MAINSTREAM READINGS AND RADICAL CRITIQUES, both books published by Random House, N.Y. Mage is also a resident of Grand Haven.

John S. Warren served as assistant professor of geology at the Un. of Cincinnati prior to joining GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College this fall as tutor-associate professor. A graduate of Cornell Un., Dr. Warren received the Ph.D. degree in geology from Stanford Un. During the summer of 1967, he served as visiting investigator at Woods Hole Oceanography Institute. Dr. Warren and his family are residents of southeast Grand Rapids.

ALLENDALE -- Austria's capital city, Vienna, historical center of culture and now an important link between East and West, becomes the focus of Grand Valley State College's newest addition to its expanding programs in international study. To be located in the more than 250-year-old Palais Kinsky, GVSC's new Summer School in Vienna will offer its first courses during July 2 - August 11, 1973.

"All humanities courses, including Austrian art, history, and literature, as well as music history, will be taught by American and Austrian professors in English," Dr. Ezra F. Gearhart, director of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences' International Studies Program explained in announcing the new overseas offering this week. "Elementary German will also be featured," he stated.

"Students will be provided cross-cultural contact," Dr. Gearhart said, "through residencies with Austrian families. Students will eat their main noon meal at the Palais Kinsky, which remains a landmark in Viennese architecture. Housing the Institute of European Studies, which is GVSC's cooperating unit in Vienna, the Kinsky not only contains the cafeteria, but also classrooms and offices, as well as a library in the Wintergarten on the second floor.

ALLENDALE -- Allen Ginsberg, internationally renowned American poet, will present a reading from his new work at Grand Valley State College, Friday, October 20 at 8:30 p.m., in the Louis Armstrong Theatre, Calder Fine Arts Center. A portion of the reading will be accompanied by the blues guitar music of Patrick Brennan, student at GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College. Sponsored by Grand Valley's All-Campus Events Coordinating Committee, advance general admission tickets at $1 are available at the LATheatre box office, the GVSC Bookstore, and in Grand Rapids at Flaming Rat and Indian Ocean Trading Company. Due to the size of the theatre, advance ticket purchases are highly recommended. GVSC community members may secure advance tickets at the above locations free of charge with proper I.D.

Ginsberg burst on the American literary scene over fifteen years ago with publication of HOWL AND OTHER POEMS, and at first was identified with the so-called "beat generation" poets of San Francisco. In recent years many critics have written that his steady stream of work has permanently affected the course of American literature.

Ginsberg's other published books of poems include, EMPTY MIRROR, KADDISH & OTHER POEMS, PLANET NEWS, REALITY SANDWICHES, AIRPLANE DREAMS, and INDIAN JOURNALS. A new book of poems written between 1965 and 1971, is to be published later this year.

October 13, 1972

The poet himself was subject of Jane Kramer's book, ALLEN GINSBERG IN AMERICA, an account of his life and influence among the "flower children" and counterculture youth of the 'sixties.

Ginsberg is one of today's poets most in demand as a reader and performer, and has read from his works before audiences in England, Europe, and Asia, as well as at colleges and universities throughout the United States and Canada.

ALLENDALE -- "Grand Valley State College's programs in international studies now span four continents," Dr. Ezra F. Gearhart, director of GVSC's International Studies Program stated recently at the college as he noted the opening of International Week in Michigan, Monday, October 23. "We now have offerings in Asia, North and South America, and Europe, and are currently negotiating to begin new cooperative offerings in Africa. GVSC continues expansion of centers of international study in continents already represented, particularly in the area of directed teaching, and is currently exploring new possibilities in Europe and South America, as well as being on a waiting list for study openings in China."

"An increasing number of students are taking part in Grand Valley's international offerings, studying, traveling, living with local families, and, most important," Dr. Gearhart states, "learning an appreciation of others and gaining a better understanding of themselves."

Some offerings of Grand Valley State College's International Studies Program are maintained by the college itself, while others are offered through consortia. To date they include:

Austria: GVSC German Summer School in Klagenfurt and GVSC Summer School in Vienna.

ALLENDALE -- New appointments were recently announced by the Student Affairs Division of Grand Valley State College.

Mrs. John (Nellie) McGee has joined the division as Student Life Assistant, with responsibilities in the areas of volunteer programs and campus judiciaries, as well as involvement with minority concerns and handicapped students. A recent graduate of Western Michigan Un., where she is currently a candidate for the M.A. degree in counseling and personnel, Mrs. McGee also attended Davenport College and Muskegon Community College. For several years she served as legal secretary with Dunn & Dunn, Grand Rapids, and is presently minister of music for the Second Baptist Church, Kalamazoo. Mrs. McGee, her husband, and three children reside at 635 School Street, Muskegon.

Two head resident advisors have also been appointed in the division, with responsibilities at GVSC's James M. Copeland House and Grace O. Kistler House, student residencies in Allendale.

New head resident advisor at Copeland House is Mrs. Jerry (Carol) Diller, who holds the A.A. degree from Kendall Jr. College. Mrs. Diller also attended the Un. of Colorado, where she served as resident advisor, and plans to complete her bachelor's degree this year at GVSC. A teacher aide in the Grand Rapids public school system during the past year, Mrs. Diller's husband, Jerry, is a member of faculty of GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College.

ALLENDALE. -- A total enrollment of 5,218 students for fall term, 1972, has been announced at Grand Valley State College, constituting the largest student body recorded at GVSC since the four-year college first opened its doors in western Michigan to an initial class of 226 students ten years ago.

The addition this fall of 1,044 students over 4,174 enrolling in fall term 1971, marks a 25% increase in the size of GVSC's student body. Enrollment figures released this week are well above the college's projection of 5,007 students for the term.

Increases were recorded by all Grand Valley units, including the College of Arts and Sciences, Thomas Jefferson College, and William James College, as well as within the colleges' expanded evening course offerings, extension classes, and within GVSC's new continuing education program, ACCESS.

Over 60 new faculty members also joined GVSC this fall to meet needs of the expanding student population.

ALLENDALE -- Journalist Gerald A. Elliott of the Grand Rapids Press will be honored for his many years of public service in western Michigan at a recital featuring noted pianist William Doppmann, Sunday, October 22 at Grand Valley State College. The 3 p.m. event, sponsored by GVSC in the Louis Armstrong Theatre, Calder Fine Arts Center, is open to the public free of charge. A reception will follow the recital.

Elliott, a native of Grand Rapids, joined the Grand Rapids Press in 1941, and with the exception of three years in the U.S. Army during World War II, has served as chief editorial writer, music critic and feature writer. A graduate of Union High School, Elliott attended Grand Rapids Junior College and Davenport College of Business, and prior to joining the Press, pursued a varied career in advertising, social work, and as a professional musician. Active in professional and civic organizations, he has received several special awards for publications in the field of mental health. Retiring from the Press within a month, Elliott was asked by pianist Doppmann to select the program for the GVSC recital on the 22nd.

Elliott's selections, and Doppmann's performance on Sunday, will include: "Three Sonatas in D," by Scarlatti; "Sonata in F, K.332," by Mozart; "Kriesleriana," R. Schumann; "Five Etudes," by Doppmann; and, "Fourth Sonata," by Scriabin.

Changes have marked Blood, Sweat & Tears' development recently, and as Bobby Colomby, co-producer, stated, "When we play jazz, we play more jazz. When we play rock, we play more rock. There's so much capability now. We don't just talk about it. We use it."

The ten-member group "has always combined various musical traditions, and periodic personnel changes only serve to underscore the versatility of the total band." New members of the group are Jerry Fisher, lead vocalist; Georg Wadenius, guitar; Lou Marini, Jr., saxophone; Larry Willis, keyboard, joining veterans, Colomby, drums; Steve Katz, guitar and harmonica; Dave Bargeron, trombone; Jim Fielder, electric bass; Lew Soloff and Chuck Winfield, trumpet and flugelhorn.

ALLENDALE -- "It's quite a tribute to both our graduates and to our program," Dr. Marcia Boyles stated recently when informed that five out of six Grand Valley State College June 1972 graduates in pre-professional studies had already been accepted by medical schools. Dr. Boyles, director of GVSC's School of Health Sciences, College of Arts and Sciences, stated further, "It's rather unusual in such a young program to have this success."

Grand Valley's health sciences offering in pre-professional studies, leading to the Bachelor of Science degree, began just a year and a half ago. First June graduates of the program who have been accepted at medical schools this fall, are: Nick Kokx of Hart, entering Michigan State Un. medical school; Michael Carey and Lawrence Pawl of northeast Grand Rapids, and Timothy Geerlings of Holland, all accepted in the medical school programs of Wayne State Un., and, Charlotte Worpel of Marne, accepted at Kansas City College of Osteopathy.

Woodrow Wilson of northwest Grand Rapids, the sixth June graduate of GVSC's pre-professional program, is currently on the alternate list of Wayne State Un. medical school.

This fall, Grand Valley's young program has grown to over 140 students at all levels of pre-professional studies. During the first two years of study, students take part in School of Health Sciences' common core courses, and then specialize at the junior and senior levels. Dr. Boyles explained, "It's a rigorous program of mathematics, chemistry, biology, and others. At the end of the sophomore year, it becomes quite selective, with only those with 3.00 or better averages accepted into the upper levels of pre-professional study."

This year, the program's development at GVSC is guided by College of Arts and Sciences faculty, Dr. John Gracki, chemistry department; and, Drs. Lois Toevs and Donald Frisch, health sciences. Dr. Frisch, who joined Grand Valley in September, is former assistant professor and member of the admissions committee of Northwestern Un.'s medical school.

Dr. Boyles also explained, "Prior to development of Grand Valley's pre-professional studies program, a number of our students entered medical schools with majors in other fields, such as chemistry, medical technology, or biology. Two GVSC graduates, Drs. Peter J. Wiebenga and David A. VanderWall, both of southeast Grand Rapids, received M.D. degrees from Michigan State Un. in 1972, and are currently interning at Blodgett Memorial and Butterworth Hospitals, Grand Rapids, respectively. Other graduates of the college currently in medical schools include, Daniel Cole of northwest Grand Rapids at the Un. of Michigan Dental School, and Larry Stalsonburg of southeast Grand Rapids, at Kirksville College of Osteopathy."

ALLENDALE -- Schedule changes have been made within Grand Valley State College's calendar for the remainder of October.

The Tuesday, October 24, 8 p.m. concert by GVSC's String Quartet has been postponed, allowing more rehearsal time for the recently re-organized group at the college. A later concert date in November, at Grand Valley's Louis Armstrong Theatre, will be announced in the near future.

The Saturday, October 28, 8 p.m. recital by Leonard Rose, cellist, has been cancelled. Mr. Rose's busy schedule during his stay in western Michigan has caused cancellation of the event. The famed musician will appear Friday, October 27 with the Grand Rapids Symphony in concert.

ALLENDALE -- The outstanding musicians of the Dusha Quartet from Interlochen will perform at Grand Valley State College's Louis Armstrong Theatre Friday, November 3, at 8:15 p.m. Sponsored by GVSC's All-Campus Events Coordinating Committee, the program in Calder Fine Arts Center, is open to the public free of charge.

Composed of Brian Hanly, violin; Frederick Miller, cello; Fred Ormand, clarinet; and Gary Kirkpatrick, piano, the chamber ensemble plans a unique program of music on Friday. First performing Ludwig van Beethoven's immortal "Trio for Piano, Clarinet, and Cello, op. 11," the group will then present Olivier Messiaen's "Quatuor Pour La Fin Du Temps (Quartet for the End of Time)." Written while a prisoner in a German prison camp during World War II, Messiaen's quartet was scored for the only instruments available, clarinet, cello, violin, and piano. Based on a passage from the Revelation of St. John, which tells of the coming of the Angel who announces the end of time (Ch. x, vv. 1-7), the work was first performed in the German prison on January 15, 1941.

While at GVSC, members of the Dusha Quartet will also present a series of workshops for area high school musicians, in violin, cello, and clarinet. High school music students have been invited to take part, without charge, in workshops at Grand Valley's Calder Fine Arts Center from 9:30-11:30 a.m., on Saturday, November 4.

ALLENDALE -- Anaco, Valencia, and Caracas, Venezuela, are the unusual school district locations for fourteen student teachers this fall, as they take part in directed teaching programs of Grand Valley State College's Educational Studies Institute. Dr. Dale Olsen, director of the Institute, states that ten of the group are from GVSC, three from Calvin College, and one from Western Michigan University.

"The senior-level offering for student teachers, now in its second year of cooperation with English-speaking school systems in Venezuela, is developing rapidly," Dr. Olsen explained. "Locally, Aquinas and Hope Colleges have expressed a desire to become involved in our consortium program during winter term, while six more school systems in Venezuela have indicated interest in working with our students. We expect fifteen students to be scheduled for assignment in Venezuela during winter term, 1973, with the number increasing as further arrangements are finalized," he stated.

Each term of the program, a representative of Grand Valley's Educational Studies Institute travels to the South American country to work closely with local school personnel and the student teachers during their directed teaching phase. This fall, Ed.S.I. professors, Ross DeHaan and Allen TenEyck, as well as Ed.S.I. assistant director, Weston Wochholz, are alternating weeks of assistance to students in their Venezuelan classroom assignments.

ALLENDALE -- Growth in present student enrollment, future projections, and an increasing need for student housing, were discussed by members of the Grand Valley State College Board of Control, meeting on-campus, Friday, October 27.

The GVSC Board received a report from the Office of the Registrar which stated, total fall term enrollment at the college to be 5,218, including 5,083 Michigan residents, of which 3,370 were from the three-county area of Kent, Muskegon, and Ottawa Counties. GVSC's fall term enrollment is up 25% from its fall, 1972 enrollment of 4,174. "Enrollment projections at the college," Dr. Harold Kolenbrander, dean of academic planning, stated, "indicate a substantial increase in projected numbers of students in the fall of 1973, to 5,800, with an increase of an additional 800 students each fall anticipated through fall, 1977."

Based on earlier on-campus housing projection needs for living units for 350 students by fall, 1973, construction on GVSC's new Living Unit IV, financed with assistance of a U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development interest subsidy grant, will begin immediately. Grand Valley's Board of Control awarded the $1,483,326 construction contract for the townhouse-type apartments to be located north of the college's Field House, to J. C. Carlson Construction Co., 1242 Millbrook, SE, Grand Rapids, low bidder. The contract is subject to HUD approval and concurrence.

October 27, 1972

"Our earlier housing projections," GVSC physical plant manager, Robert Romkema, stated at the meeting, "indicated a need for on-campus housing for 400 more students by the fall of 1974, and our recent enrollment experience reinforces that need." With this in mind, the Board appointed a subcommittee of Board members, L. William Seidman, Paul Johnson, and William Kirkpatrick, to work with college administrators in reviewing a program statement for Apartment Unit II, a self-liquidating project, and to submit application to the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development for loan or grant assistance.

In Friday's meeting, the GVSC Board of Control also received a report from Vice President for Administration, Arthur C. Hills, that WGVC-TV, Grand Valley's new public broadcasting station is anticipated to begin broadcasting in western Michigan on December 10, 1972.

Within a placement report dealing with 580 spring, 1972 graduates of GVSC, the Board was informed that 229 of those replying to an early summer questionnaire, were employed in business and industry, teaching and government, with a high majority involved in careers within the Kent, Ottawa and Muskegon area.

ALLENDALE -- With the aim of increasing rapport and better communications among contemporary groups, administrators, professionals, the business community, and others, Dr. Jitendra M. Sharma of Grand Valley State College's School of Business and Economics, has compiled a new "Dictionary of Terms & Expressions -- Present Day American Youth."

Sharma, recipient of the Outstanding Educators of America Award in 1971, joined GVSC this fall as associate professor of business. He states of his most recent project, "The traumatic '60's left us all short of breath. In the following period of reflection, we began to hear and talk of all kinds of gaps: communication gaps, language gaps, class gaps, generation gaps, cultural gaps, expectation gaps, etc. Communications breakdown between cultures, between generations, and so forth, have been studied, with a listing of difficulties, such as those between the business community and students in attitudes concerning social issues and organizational policies, have been compiled within the dictionary. Also compiled are the innumerable variations in present-day language usage. For example, the word "clipping" in the drug culture means something quite different than it does to the driver of an automobile.

"Language is a system of speech: sounds that are used to transmit the culture of one community to its members. The new dictionary compiles these variations within such groups as Vietnam veterans, environmentalists, Black Americans, business, the drug culture, etc.

"The need for better understanding of the jargon (terms and expressions) used today," Dr. Sharma states, "is apparent if we are to bridge the gaps and eliminate the polarization currently prevailing in this country."

Dr. Sharma is available to the public as a resource person for answers to questions concerning current language usage. He may be reached at GVSC, telephone 895-6611, ext. 135 or 136. Publication of his new "Dictionary of Terms and Expressions" is planned within the near future. A part of the dictionary has all ready been chosen for presentation in paper form at the fall meeting of the Midwest American Dialect Society's annual conference in St. Louis.

A native of New Delhi, India, Dr. Sharma holds three master degrees, from Howard Un., Western Michigan and Northern Michigan Universities, as well as the Ph.D. in business administration from Lucknow Un., India. His fellowships have included the Royal Society of Arts, and Case Western Reserve Economics-In-Action Institute. His consulting experience in management has included a number of national groups, including the U.S. Dept. of Labor Project CAUSE, and the U.S. Health, Education and Welfare training program for Academic Administrators in Higher Education. Besides his active teaching career at Texas Tech., Howard Un., and Northern Michigan Un., his research experience has included work with the U.S. Air Force and a Ford Foundation Research Project.

Apartments Pact Wins GVSC Nod

The Grand Valley State College Board of Control Friday awarded J. C. Carlson Construction Co. of Grand Rapids the building contract for a $1.75 million complex of student apartments.

The board also ordered the start of planning for a second housing project similar to the 100-unit townhouse complex Carlson will build.

Missing Figure

Carlson's bid at $1,483,326 was the lowest of six complete bids submitted. The bid of Triangle Associates, Inc., also of Grand Rapids was $11,876 lower but was disqualified, according to Physical Plant Director Robert Romkema, because the company failed to include aluminum screen doors in its breakdown on special items.

U.S. Rule Quoted

Romkema said the missing figure violated rules set by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, which is subsidizing part of the finance charges of the project.

"A representative of the company called after the bids were opened and claimed he had made a mistake," Romkema said. "But 'no bid' (on that item) was written on his bid and HUD says there must be a quote on all of the mandatory items."

Other expenses, not included in the contract were estimated at $266,000, with the largest item being $109,000 for architectural and engineering fees.

The board voted to borrow the money needed to build the complex from Old Kent Bank & Trust Co. at 4.25 per cent interest. The bank will be repaid in one year when 30-year bonds are sold through Ann Arbor Trust Co. of Ann Arbor.

Work Starts Soon

Construction will begin next week, Romkema predicted.

In other action, the board lifted residency requirements for in-state tuition for the children of migrant workers.

Board member Henry M. Hogan Jr. cast the only dissenting vote. He contended the move could hurt the college when the residency controversy brewing in the courts and elsewhere since Michigan lowered its age of majority to 18 years, comes to a head.

ALLENDALE -- "Canterbury Tales," Geoffrey Chaucer's 14th century stories of the comic relationships of man and woman, translated and set to music, will be presented at Grand Valley State College, Thursday, Friday, and Saturday, November 9, 10, 11 at 8:15 p.m.; Thursday and Friday, November 16 and 17, also at 8:15 p.m.; and, Sunday, November 12 at 3 p.m.

Presented by GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences theatre department, admission at the door will be by purchased advance theatre tickets, or $2 general admission.

"Canterbury Tales" was the last great work of Chaucer just prior to his death in the late 1400's. Co-authors Nevill Coghill and Martin Starkie, state of their adaptation, which will be presented at Grand Valley, "We have chosen for inclusion...a group of tales that have love, lust and marriage for their theme; together they form a debate on the comedy of the relations between the sexes, and the question of who should be boss in marriage - the man or the woman."

Produced first in Britain, the co-authors continued, "The technique of having a narrator to start each story is a modern development of a popular medieval practice." Phillip F. Bowman, GVSC's Louis Armstrong Theatre Auditorium Manager, will portray Chaucer, the narrator, in the college's November presentations.

ALLENDALE -- Anthony Burgess, author of A CLOCKWORK ORANGE, will discuss the meaning of his controversial book, at Grand Valley State College on Wednesday, November 15, 8:15 p.m. in the Louis Armstrong Theatre, Calder Fine Arts Center. The event is open to the public free of charge, and is sponsored by GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, Thomas Jefferson College, William James College, Campus Activities, and All-Campus Events Coordinating Committee.

While at GVSC, Burgess will also take part in an informal talk at 3 p.m. on the 15th, in Louis Armstrong Theatre, discussing with all those interested, "the whole problem of fiction writing as it appears to one practitioner."

As a film production by Stanley Kubrick, Burgess' A CLOCKWORK ORANGE has received world-wide attention. The book is one of sixteen novels and eight works of non-fiction produced by the prolific author during the past sixteen years, to critics' acclaim. Latest in the author's extensive writings published in the U. S., is ONE HAND CLAPPING.

A teacher, former education officer in the British Colonial Service, composer, pianist, translator, lecturer, reviewer of books, music, television, and records for British magazines and newspapers, the versatile Burgess is active in the theatre world, currently serving ALLENDALE -- A new internship program in psychology, combining on-campus study at Grand Valley State College, and clinical experience in the community, has been initiated this fall within GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences psychology department. Entitled, "Applied Psychology Training," the new senior level course currently involves five Grand Valley students at community mental health centers.

Internships, developed in conjunction with Ottawa County Community Mental Health Center, Holland; St. John's Home and Kent Oaks Hospital, Grand Rapids; and, Muskegon Regional Mental Retardation Center, are under the direction of Dr. Robert W. Collins, CAS assistant professor of psychology.

Dr. Collins states, "The course offers a continuity for our students between academia and career. Its format is strenuous, combining thirty hours per week at the field assignment center, with other elements such as group seminars, daily logs, and a final paper drawn from their experiences and regularly assigned readings from scientific journals.

"Students' duties vary with placement," Dr. Collins continued, "but, generally their work includes participation in behavior modification programs for severely disturbed children and reintegration programs for former patients."

Dr. Collins noted, "Generally clinical experiences are found only at the graduate level in psychology. The present course offers students a 'career ladder,' enabling them to become aware of employment opportunities within the field of psychology at the undergraduate level."

GVSC seniors presently interning at area mental health centers are: Steven VanDyke of Kentwood, assigned to St. John's Home; Roberta Califf of Byron Center, assigned to Ottawa Community Mental Health Center; John O'Connor of southeast Grand Rapids, assigned to St. John's Home; David Hafenbrack of Muskegon, interning at the Muskegon Regional Mental Retardation Center; and, Theresa Johnson of Nunica, assigned to Kent Oaks Hospital.

ALLENDALE -- A "Psychedelic Poster Show," featuring forty-one posters of the 1960's from The Museum of Modern Art, New York City, will highlight Grand Valley State College's Manitou Hall Art Gallery, Wednesday, November 15 to Thursday, December 7. The exhibition is open to the public without charge. Gallery hours on the second floor of Manitou Hall, are, 8:30 a.m.-10 p.m., Mon-Thurs.; 8:30 a.m.-5 p.m., Fri.; and, 1-5 p.m., Sat. and Sun.

Organized by John Garrigan, The Museum of Modern Art's assistant curator of graphic design, the exhibition "illustrates the new styles and methods of design that were introduced into poster art in the 1960's, adding impetus to the revival of poster collection and production." Many of the brilliantly colorful posters originated as advertising for dance concert-light shows at the Avalon Ballroom and the Fillmore Auditorium in San Francisco.

Two offset lithographs by Peter Max are included in the exhibition, as well as the works of Bill Henry, C. H. Johansen, Robert Fried, Kelly/Mouse Studios, Victor Moscoso, Stanley Mouse, and Wess Wilson.

ALLENDALE -- The widely acclaimed National Shakespeare Company will perform two productions at Grand Valley State College on Sunday, November 19. At 2 p.m., the professional touring company will present Shakespeare's light-hearted "A Midsummers' Night Dream," and at 8:15 p.m., the group will perform Sophocles' "Antigone" in contemporary style.

Sponsored by GVSC's All-Campus Events Coordinating Committee, reserved tickets will be necessary for both performances in Grand Valley's Louis Armstrong Theatre, Calder Fine Arts Center. Tickets, at $2 general admission, may be purchased at the GVSC Bookstore, or reserved at the theatre box office, telephone 895-6611, ext. 696, from 9-12 a.m., and 1-4 p.m., Monday-Friday. Reserved tickets must be picked up at the box office by 4 p.m., Friday, November 17. Reserved tickets for Grand Valley community members are free of charge with proper I.D. at the Bookstore or theatre box office, up to 4 p.m., Nov. 17.

Founded in 1963 by Philip Meister and his wife, Elaine Sulka, The National Shakespeare Company has since performed "before audiences of 250,000 each season at colleges, universities, and an occasional high school across the country."

- more -

As a part of their current nine month tour, the NSC productions at Grand Valley, reflect the versatility of the outstanding professional group.

Shakespeare's "A Midsummer's Night Dream," to be presented at 3 p.m. on Nov. 19, "is a medley of poetry, song and dance," surrounding "the whimsical and irresponsible aspects of love and the midsummer madness that has no explanation except the whims of men and women."

Sophocles' "Antigone," to be presented at 8:15 p.m., will be performed in the original translation by Dudley Fitts and Robert Fitzgerald. Although first performed in 441 B.C., Louis Criss, NSC director, "sees 'Antigone' as a very contemporary play, particularly relevant to today's world and the theme of young people in revolt against the injustices of the political Establishment." This viewpoint is visualized in NSC's production through sets, costumes, and actors' approach to their roles.

ALLENDALE -- What are the views of participants in a year-abroad program -- when the "overseas" country happens to be the United States?

Marie Helene Seteyaert of Paris, France; Karin Hebler of Graz, Austria; and, Emir Novelo of Belize, British Honduras, are currently working at Grand Valley State College as native assistants in GVSC's foreign language department of the College of Arts and Sciences. Besides their assistance in such language activities as tutoring, audio tape review, and classroom help in French, German, and Spanish, the three young women, who live at GVSC's residence halls, are also enrolled in course study at the college.

Their comments during the first months of their academic year in the U.S. include the unanimous observation that they have found their new America acquaintances "extremely outgoing and friendly."

Among their other comments, Miss Novelo, whose native city of Belize maintains year-round temperatures of over 65-70 degrees, states that she anticipates a very new experience in "the terrible winter everyone forecasts!"

Miss Hebler's primary concern in adjusting to the U.S. has been "the very long distances, big cities and area of this country." A teacher in her native Austria, she comments that living in a residence hall

"is a new situation filled with opportunities to meet new friends and listen to their opinions." She states further, "I am quite sure that it will be hard for me to leave this country again after one year."

Miss Seteyaert, a graduate of The Sorbonne and present candidate for the Master of Arts degree, sometimes finds her role as teacher and student at GVSC confusing. However, she states that her most comfortable experiences have been numerous occasions at the college when she has talked to new student friends about Paris and France.

The pilot program of native assistants at Grand Valley began in 1971 under the direction of Dr. Ezra F. Gearhart, chairman of the foreign language department. He states, "The opportunity to have native assistants again this year is hoped to instigate further assistantships and their mutual benefit for GVSC students and the aides."

"It has been gratifying to find that ACCESS serves such a broad purpose in counseling and advising area adults," Glenda Belote, ACCESS director, stated recently in reviewing the first term offering of Grand Valley State College's new program in continuing education. "It was also a surprise to find how many of the seventy-one men and women interviewed this fall had the thought of initiating or completing degree studies in the backs of their minds for some time before calling."

GVSC's program, which eases the pressures of pass-fail via a non-degree basis for as long as participants chose to remain with ACCESS, also offers later review for degree course credit. "One of the fascinating aspects of our interview sessions," Miss Belote stated, "has been the chance to explain Grand Valley's unique cluster college concept. Three colleges offering various avenues of study leading to degrees, and institutes which also offer courses for credit within the colleges, can be a bit confusing to those whose last impression of college was the traditional departmental approach to higher education.

"Many of the men and women interviewed found through ACCESS counseling that they could quite readily fit immediately into GVSC's wide range of evening degree programs," she said.

November 13, 1972

"Of those who chose the option of ACCESS as their route to re-entry into the mainstream of college study," Miss Belote continued, "we have had a high rate of success in counseling individuals to courses they have found most satisfying. Of 21 who began with the ACCESS Program this fall, only two have left for personal reasons. The rest have indicated that they are completely enthused about what they are doing."

Enthusiasm also greeted another development at the GVSC campus this fall: enthusiasm from both Grand Valley's student parents and from their children, as GVSC's new Day-Care Center opened in September. With over 31 children enrolled in hours which coincide with their parents' schedule of classes on campus, Director Margaret Bilsky has developed a creative pre-school program at the college.

A former teacher in the Grand Rapids' area, Mrs. Bilsky states, "The Day-Care Center at Grand Valley caters to the interests and emotions of the 2-1/2 to 5 year old child. Children are actively involved in working in various creative media to help develop their small motor skills. Singing games and creative play help develop the large muscles. And, ample time is given for child-to-child communication, as well as adult-to-child reaction.

"The Center is assisted by college students," Mrs. Bilsky continued, "working along with me on a credit or volunteer basis. A happy, casual atmosphere prevails throughout the day, and the children appear eager to attend. Many parents would find it impossible to continue their studies without the care the Center provides."

ALLENDALE -- A book memorial to the late internationally known educator and author, Dr. Chris A. De Young, has been acquired by Grand Valley State College's James H. Zumberge Library, through a recent contribution by members of Region 9 of the Michigan Education Association.

"The Journal of Reading," GVSC President Arend D. Lubbers stated, "will be housed in the Journal section of the fourth floor of the library, bookplated to show its acquisition came about because of the MEA contribution in memory of Dr. De Young. The Journal of Reading makes a fine addition to the Grand Valley collection and should prove to be very useful to our students."

Dr. De Young, who passed away November 24, 1971, was GVSC's first official, serving for one year in 1960 as assistant to the chairman of the Board of Control on a voluntary basis.

A native of Zeeland and graduate of Hope College, Dr. De Young's distinguished career included service locally as superintendent of Zeeland and Hudsonville school districts. For twenty-five years he served as chairman of the educational and psychology departments, and as first dean of undergraduate and graduate schools at Illinois State Un., Normal, Illinois.

ALLENDALE -- Dr. Ursula Franklin, assistant professor of French at Grand Valley State College, has been informed that her article, entitled, "Poet and People: Mallarme's 'Conflict' and the thirteen prose poems of Divagations," has been accepted for publication by the French Review. Jacques Hardre, editor-in-chief of the American Association of Teachers of French publication, stated recently that Dr. Franklin's article would appear in a special poetry issue of the Review, to appear early in 1973.

Dr. Franklin, a member of the foreign language faculty at GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, is a resident of the Campus View Apartments in Allendale, and of 4118 Arlene Dr., Lansing.

ALLENDALE -- The old adage, "ivory tower," finds little relevance these days at collegiate centers across the country. Perhaps one of the most striking examples of growing community-college cooperative effort can be found in the large range of volunteer service offered directly by college students to meet area needs in towns and cities.

Far from the "ivory tower" this fall, over 200 Grand Valley State College students are aiding western Michigan organizations as volunteers in a variety of programs.

GVSC's new "Project Read-On" program, developed through the College of Arts and Sciences English department, has taken more than twenty-five volunteer tutors into schools within the heart of Grand Rapids. Combining classroom study in a "Teaching of Reading" course, with tutoring assistance on a voluntary basis at West Middle, South Middle, Sigsby, Henry, and Central Schools, the program has grown beyond the initial course involvement, and now includes not only English class students, but others from the campus, as well as from the community.

Anne Troy, GVSC assistant professor of English and coordinator of the program, states, "We have more children referred to 'Project Read-On' through Baxter Community Center, than we have volunteers at the moment, and are constantly interested in recruiting others to fill the need."

- more -

"Besides the 'Project Read-On' participants in Grand Rapids," Miss Troy explained, "more than fifteen other students from our English reading course are currently volunteer tutors in school programs at Muskegon, Holland, Grand Haven, and Rockford."

In other programs of volunteer service to the western Michigan area, coordinated by GVSC's Student Affairs Division, more than 120 Grand Valley students are presently involved in a variety of volunteer assistance. Their activities this fall include tutoring in Grand Rapids' One-to-One Tutoring Program and at The Climbing Tree school in Comstock Park. Others assist at meetings and in activities of the Boy Scouts of America and the Girl Scout Council of Michigan Trails, Grand Rapids; serve as aides in projects and social activities of the Adult Retardation program at Fountain St. Church, Grand Rapids; assist Life-Line Youth Guidance, also in Grand Rapids; and, serve in a wide variety of volunteer capacities at the Volunteer Action Center in Holland.

ALLENDALE -- As Grand Valley State College's School of Public Service enters its sixth month of formal organization within GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, the first meeting of its representative advisory board has been planned for Tuesday, November 28.

Distinguished members of the new School of Public Service Advisory Board expected at the meeting are: William Bopf, city manager, Holland; Herman J. Bordewyk, executive secretary, Michigan Law Enforcement Educators Association, Alpena; Joseph Grassie, city manager, Grand Rapids; Sheriff Bernard Grysen, Ottawa County Sheriff Dept., Grand Haven;

Lt. James Hendricks, commanding officer of research and planning, Grand Rapids Police Dept.; Larry Hildore, director, Dept. of Social Services, Ottawa County, Holland; Chief William Johnson, campus police chief, GVSC, and former superintendent, Grand Rapids Police Dept.; Chief Charles Lindstrom, chief of police, Holland;

Harold Oliver, Manpower coordinator, Grand Rapids; Al Riepstra, vice president, Old Kent Bank, and former city manager of Grand Rapids; Al Stremmer, assistant superintendent, Kent County Juvenile Court Center, Grand Rapids; Chief James Taylor, chief of police, Wyoming; Frederick Tholen, city manager, East Grand Rapids;

Leslie Van Beverin, executive director of Michigan Police Officers Training Council, Lansing; Judge Woodrow Yared, 61st District Court and Presiding Judge, Grand Rapids; and, Marvin Zwiers, director, Law Enforcement Planning Council, Region 8, Grand Rapids.

Special guest and speaker at the noon luncheon Tuesday will be Robert Watkins, chairman of the GVSC Citizens Council, and president of Watkins, Ross, Waterfield and Baines, Inc., Grand Rapids.

Under the direction of Dr. Samir T. IsHak, Grand Valley's School of Public Service has developed rapidly from status as a College of Arts and Sciences "program" in 1970, to its expanded form, approved by GVSC's Board of Control in June, 1972. Combining college and community programs of study and internship, the School's development has been guided by Dr. IsHak and members of the now formally organized School of Public Service Advisory Board.

Following luncheon on the 28th in room 223 The Commons, members of the Board will review and continue input from their respective agencies into offerings of the School, which lead to the Bachelor of Science degree in public service, and include emphasis in three areas: Public Administration and Municipal Government; Police Administration and Criminal Justice; and, Urban Affairs.

Other agenda items of the meeting include election of a chairman and secretary; as well as, discussion of such matters as curriculum development; the School's extensive internship program, which has grown from placement of 5 interns in 1970 to 170 placed during fall term, 1972; and questions of future graduate programs.

ALLENDALE -- "The Orange Rymd," Grand Valley State College's new literary magazine might attract readers simply with its title, but student editor, Martin J. Bialecki, hopes for more than just semantic success. Bialecki, a GVSC senior from 943 Brookwood, Temperance, states, "Our aim will be for diversity in publishing students' literary contributions, as well as offering an integrated program of informal meetings and student readings on campus throughout the winter and spring."

Funded through the English Department of Grand Valley's College of Arts and Sciences, "The Orange Rymd" will first appear at the GVSC Bookstore and other area bookstores during the up-coming winter term 1973.

Working closely with Bialecki in development of the new publication for '73 is assistant editor David Olsen of 333 W. Evergreen, Plymouth. Other staff members include GVSC students Martha E. Ayres, 10445 East D Avenue, Richland, and James D. Quackenbush of 216 Henry, NE, Grand Rapids, as well as area resident, Linda Bush of 2052 Englewood SE, Grand Rapids.

ALLENDALE -- The first concert of Grand Valley State College's new 21-member "Little Symphony," under the direction of Wayne Dunlap, will be held at the Louis Armstrong Theatre, Calder Fine Arts Center on Sunday, December 3 at 3 p.m. Sponsored by the GVSC College of Arts and Sciences music department, the event is open to the public free of charge.

Highlight of the concert will be a featured solo by clarinetist Paul Grischke of GVSC's music faculty and member of the Grand Rapids Symphony, in Mozart's "Concerto for Clarinet and Orchestra in A Major, K. 622." Other program pieces will be, "Deux marches et un intermede," by Poulenc; "Symphony No. 5 in B-Flat Major," by Schubert; and, "Soirees Musicales," by Rossini-Britten.

Conductor Dunlap explains that the December 3 Little Symphony concert will be the first performance of combined artists-in-residence groups at Grand Valley State. The Grand Valley String Quartet, first formed last year, includes this fall, musicians of the Grand Rapids Symphony, Betty Monahan, 2nd violin, Dan Kovats, viola, and John Smith, cello. Paula Knoblock, 1st violin, a senior music major at Michigan State Un., and summer concertmaster of the Saginaw Symphony, is the fourth member of the group in 1972-73.

Also performing with the Little Symphony are members of the new Grand Valley Woodwind Quintet, which formed this fall, and include, Alice Dearden, flute; Judy Allman, oboe; Grischke, clarinet; Brenda Holly, bassoon; and, Thomas Working, French horn.

Dunlap, who is chairman of the GVSC music department, states that five other members of the Grand Rapids Symphony, as well as advanced Grand Valley music students, will augment the Little Symphony's performance on December 3.

He stated further, "The formation of the Grand Valley Quartet and Quintet, which combine both performances and teaching at the college, were the first steps to our development of the Little Symphony. We are planning that the larger group will offer service both to Grand Valley and to the community in presenting concert fare on a professional level which is not currently available in this area.

"As it will be a smaller group, the GVSC Little Symphony will be quite mobile, and will perform not only at the college in concert and with such offerings as the two operas planned here for the spring, but also in the area."

"Its repertoire," he continued, "will consist of many of the classics, but we will also experiment with many pieces not often heard, as well as with new works."

ALLENDALE -- A specially commissioned jazz composition honoring the memory of Louis Armstrong, will premiere Monday, December 4, appropriately at Grand Valley State College's Louis Armstrong Theatre of the Calder Fine Arts Center.

Written by David Baker, composer, jazz cellist, and former jazz trombonist, the work was commissioned this year by The National Endowment for the Arts. Baker, who heads the jazz department of Indiana University's School of Music, will conduct his award-winning Indiana University Jazz Ensemble in performance of the work at GVSC, as well as a full program of other jazz compositions from "dixieland" to "swing" to "soul," commencing at 8:15 p.m.

The December 4 appearance of the Indiana University Jazz Ensemble at Grand Valley is sponsored by GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College and The National Endowment for the Arts. The evening event is open to the public free of charge.

From 10-12 a.m. on ^{Tues.} ~~Monday~~, members of the Ensemble will conduct an on-campus workshop at the Calder Fine Arts Center for area music teachers, as well as Grand Valley students and faculty.

November 27, 1972

David Baker joined the famed department of jazz at Indiana Un. in 1966 as chairman and currently also serves as associate director of the university's Black Music Center. Winner of numerous jazz polls and citations, including the International Jazz Critics award, Baker is a prolific composer and writer, as well as accomplished instrumentalist. Following a long career as trombonist and arranger with such bands as Stan Kenton, Lionel Hampton, and Buddy Johnson, he was forced to quit the trombone after a long battle with effects of a 1952 automobile accident. He then switched to cello.

Baker is a proponent of the "third stream of jazz," believing that "experimentation is of some consequence to the progression of jazz." He explains, "With improvisation being the motivation, the new third stream in jazz is a marriage between classical form, composition, and pure jazz."

Baker and the Indiana University Jazz Ensemble have twice won first place at the Notre Dame Collegiate Jazz Festival, and have appeared in concert "from Athens to Bombay."

ALLENDALE -- A "conflict of interest" clause in the Grand Valley State College Board of Control license for public broadcasting station, WGVC-TV, has been removed by the Federal Communications Commission.

The seven-member FCC unit in Washington, D.C., voted, with one dissension, to grant deletion of a clause prohibiting participation of GVSC Board of Control members who were "officer, director or stockholder of the corporation which owns television station WZZM-TV," Grand Rapids. The clause affected three members of the GVSC eight-member Board.

The Commission "said it granted the deletion on the basis of the representations by Grand Valley that its members will not participate in any activities which involve any conflict of interest between either station."

WGVC-TV is anticipated to begin broadcasting on UHF Channel 35 in the near future.

ALLENDALE -- "WGVC-TV has entered a 'holding pattern' as normal testing procedures required by the Federal Communications Commission continue," Gordon Lawrence, station manager of the new public broadcasting facility stated today at Grand Valley State College.

"Some equipment delays will, however, cause an extension of our originally anticipated December 10 on-the-air date," he said.

"Regardless of any delay, we do plan on Tuesday and Thursday, December 12 and 14 to be testing the transmitter on-air with a test signal from 12 to 4 p.m."

Lawrence further explained, "After all final equipment and signal checks are completed, the information will be taken to the FCC in Washington, D.C. for final review, prior to the Commission issuing program test authority. When this approval occurs, generally ten days after receipt of test results, the station will begin on-air broadcasting. One step will lead to the next step, and right now we are 'on hold' as testing continues."

WGVC-TV will broadcast in full color on UHF Channel 35. Lawrence indicated in his statement today that announcement of an exact on-air date would be made as rapidly as possible following FCC approval. "The current efforts and future advantages involved, we feel will be well worth the slight delay," he said.

ALLENDALE -- Internationally praised classical guitarist, Guillermo Fierens, will conduct a four-week non-credit workshop at Thomas Jefferson College of Grand Valley State College this winter. Fierens, a protege of Andre Segovia, will be in residence at the college from approximately January 15 through February 15.

The talented musician first appeared in this area in a February 1972 recital at St. Cecilia Auditorium, Grand Rapids. During his upcoming visit to west-central Michigan, he is also scheduled to perform in a limited number of local appearances, including a private recital at Stage 3 in Grand Rapids.

Fierens' workshop at Thomas Jefferson College will be open to a limited number of auditors from the community. Those interested in taking part are invited to write for further information to Mary TePastte, Thomas Jefferson College, GVSC, Allendale, Michigan 49401, or to telephone 895-6611, ext. 357.

ALLENDALE -- From "The Chicano in American Society," to "The Politics of Oil in Alaska Today," to "Radical Feminism," Grand Valley State College's new 1972-73 "Speakers Panel," offers a wide range of topical programs for area groups and organizations.

Over 105 GVSC faculty and staff have listed their more than 350 areas of expertise in the new listing of available speaking engagements. According to the "Speakers Panel" introduction, staff members will speak to all groups about the college without charge. "In other cases, involving faculty members with special skills and knowledge," some financial consideration may be requested. "Organizations arranging for speakers should inquire what, if any, fees or expenses the speakers accepting their invitations might expect."

Copies of the new 1972-73 "Speakers Panel" are available free of charge by writing: Public Relations Office, GVSC, Allendale, Michigan 49401, or by telephone, 895-6611, ext. 222.

ALLENDALE -- The Michigan Criminal Justice Education Association will hold its bi-monthly meeting Friday, December 8 at Grand Valley State College. Involving representatives from Wayne and Michigan State Universities, Ferris State College, and GVSC, and more than 20 junior and community colleges, as well as associate members from law enforcement agencies, the group will meet for luncheon and business in Grand Valley's Commons building.

According to Herman J. Bordewyk, Association executive secretary and director of law enforcement at Alpena Community College, Friday's meeting will involve among other items, a report of M.S.U.'s study assessing law enforcement manpower needs in Michigan as related to the education program throughout the state; review of GVSC's public service option in its new School of Public Service; and, discussion of the feasibility of a student program of volunteer service in probation and rehabilitation through Michigan's correction facilities.

Hosts of the December 8 meeting will be Dr. Samir T. IsHak, director of Grand Valley's School of Public Service, and Ricardo Meana, Grand Rapids attorney and visiting associate professor of public service at GVSC.

ALLENDALE -- As winter's snow touches west-central Michigan, pleasant memories of "a summer on Beaver Island" return to tourists who retreated to cities and suburbs. For 250 permanent residents of the Lake Michigan island, however, memories are not packed with memorabilia and souvenirs.

"Winters on the Island are a time of slow-paced living and close family relationships," Phyllis Gregg Moore, a Grand Valley State College junior, and six-year resident of Beaver Island, recently stated. "Many of the children have never been to a theatre or shopping mall, and couldn't match city children for sophistication," she said. "But, I feel just because of their closeness in the Island's isolation, that they are more cooperative and imaginative."

Mrs. Moore graduated in 1967 from the Beaver Island Community School. Her classes there of five students in three grade divisions had little in common with today's larger school cries for more "needed individualized attention in the classroom."

Warmer months, Mrs. Moore reflected, offer both Island residents and tourists the attractions of Indian burial grounds, artifacts of the Mormon island "kingdom," and abundant hunting and fishing areas.

Winter is a different story though, with snow blanketing docks and fences with over five foot drifts. Mrs. Moore has memories of her families' first winter on the Island when warmth on winter mornings came from the old wood stove and drifts of snow covered the beds. "Now that snowmobiles are so popular," she said, "often everything closes for safaris."

Despite minimal medical care, transportation inconveniences, and winter's demand that residents buy staples by the case or wait for the plane "that comes in on the good days," Mrs. Moore feels that life on the Island offers many pleasant alternatives. She cites its beauty, close family relationships, and particularly the pace of year-round life on the Island as examples. "My father says if life there were any slower, he'd be going backwards," she explained. "It just cannot be compared to anything here."

Mrs. Moore and her husband, Joe, are apartment supervisors this year at Grand Valley Apartments, just beyond GVSC's campus where they both attend classes. A music major, Moore is violist with the Grand Rapids Symphony, and as an avid outdoorsman, shares his wife's love of Beaver Island. Much as they would both like to join the 250 residents of the Island year-round, however, they both recognize that there would be limited opportunities for their planned careers in teaching and music. So for the time-being, the young couple join the fall exodus with their own very special memories of Beaver Island.

December 1972 marked the beginning of on-air broadcasting from WGVC-TV, first public broadcasting station to serve the more than 1 million residents of west-central Michigan. FCC license for the full-color operation, broadcasting on UHF Channel 35, is held by the Grand Valley State College Board of Control.

Services of the new station include instructional in-school television, general audience Public Broadcasting System (PBS) programs, and planned expansion in locally-originated programming. Station manager at WGVC-TV is Gordon Lawrence, former public television program director at Ohio University's WOUB-TV.

WGVC-TV, with studios, transmitter, and antenna tower located at GVSC's campus in Allendale (Grand Rapids) was made possible through the financial support of west Michigan private funding, matching a $465,000 grant for equipment and installation from the U.S. Office of Health, Education and Welfare.

ALLENDALE -- A new "Interest Inventory," one of the few survey research tools available into the interests of the "betwixt and between" ages of nine to thirteen, has been developed by Dr. Greta DeLong, professor at Grand Valley State College's Educational Studies Institute. The verbally-administered series of 83 statements relating to pre-adolescent interests has already been administered to over 10,000 children in fifty-seven public schools of the Grand Rapids, Michigan area.

"Little data has ever been available relative to this age, which is perhaps the most baffling and least understood," Dr. DeLong states. "In 1971 we began to gain broader understanding as the Inventory was administered by GVSC aides and student teachers as part of their experience in schools. Funding was made available to the project through GVSC's Urban Studies Institute and Faculty Research Fund."

Since then, some general observations, supported by analysis of the data accumulated through machine scoring, has indicated that: "Pre-adolescents generally like their school work although popularity tends to decrease with age. They consider it neither too hard nor too easy and all of their subjects are popular with at least a quarter of the boys and girls. Most popular of all school activities are art work, athletics, working with other boys and girls, and learning how to spend money wisely."

Differences have also appeared, including: "In the Grand Rapids area, urban and inner-city boys and girls checked more interest items positively than did rural and suburban boys and girls" and "Significant differences on inventory items were most frequent at age ten for both boys and girls and least frequent at age thirteen."

Other data summaries indicate a wide range of interest guideposts for curriculum planners and group leaders, from the indication that "more than half of all groups of boys and girls indicate interest in learning from adults more about sex, liquor, tobacco and drugs," to "almost all pre-adolescents would like to do more work," to "non-school interests shared by 75% or more of both boys and girls include popular music, pets, travel, outdoor games and activities such as hunting, fishing and camping."

Data of the Interest Inventory is related to the pre-adolescent by age, sex, attendance at a rural, suburban, urban, or inner-city school. Major characteristics of the Inventory, Dr. DeLong states, are, "1) Items are psychologically non-threatening; 2) Responses do not require either reading or writing ability, hence interest scores are not confused with the measurement of ability; 3) Individuals remain anonymous; 4) The Inventory can be administered to either groups or individuals in approximately 20 minutes; 5) Responses are machine scored; 6) The 83 items included are representative of interests believed to be common among pre-adolescents; and, 7) Some items refer to activities that are school-related; other items, those that are non-school related."

Dr. DeLong has also prepared a supplement to the Grand Rapids study, through administering of the Inventory to approximately 1,800 pre-adolescents in Trinidad and 1,000 living in Ketchikan or Fairbanks, Alaska. "Statistically significant differences without regard to sex or age are found on almost all items when the children in Trinidad are compared with those in Grand Rapids," she states, "while boys and girls living in Alaska differed significantly on only a third of all items. Children in Trinidad indicate many more interests than do those in either Alaska or Grand Rapids."

She continued, "In cooperation with the Greek government, the Interest Inventory is presently being administered to several thousand pre-adolescents living in the Athens area.

"Selection of such data as this is a first step toward obtaining better understanding of children in this baffling pre-adolescent age group," Dr. DeLong states. "Future projects should involve more complete interpretation of data by psychologists, sociologists, and educators, collection of similar data from a greater number and variety of communities, and the utilization of the technique of the Interest Inventory to obtain differences and more comprehensive information relative to interests of boys and girls."

With this broadening of interpretative results and increased understanding in mind, Dr. DeLong indicates that others interested in giving the Interest Inventory within schools, urban- and civic-sponsored groups, and others, may contact the GVSC Educational Studies Institute for further information. Copies of the Inventory and guidance in administering the data are available at minimal cost. Letters of inquiry should be addressed to Dr. DeLong, Educational Studies Institute, GVSC, Alledale, Mich. 49401; telephone 895-6611, ext. 391. END

ALLENDALE -- Victoria and Wolfgang Spendel have combined their dedication to science with employment this year at Grand Valley State College. While completing courses in their chemistry majors, the young couple has also been working as chemistry laboratory assistants, setting up labs, repairing equipment, and making reagents for GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences chemistry department.

Both are junior year transfer students from West Chester State College in Pennsylvania, and both anticipate continuing on in graduate work. Mrs. Spendel plans to develop a career in the organic field of chemistry, while Spendel states, "My interest is in the whole broad field of the sciences, but I favor a career as physical organic chemist."

Spendel, a native of Stuttgart, Germany, and his wife, a former resident of Devon, Pennsylvania, are presently living at 0-5514 Lake Michigan Drive, Allendale.

ALLENDALE -- Guidance into alternative job possibilities is often available to college students within their campus placement offices, and to a growing extent, within college courses themselves. An example this year at Grand Valley State College has been the initiation of a unique seminar for music education majors. Initiated by GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences music department, the 10-week seminar, designed for junior year teacher aides, has included field trips to area schools to examine choir and band facilities, interviews with personnel in music repair and selling houses, as well as other possibilities, including suggestions in an interview with Don Cummings, manager of the Grand Rapids Symphony.

Recently, as a part of the music seminar, Professor Mary Scovel, held a briefing session at her home which introduced students to Dale R. Newhouse, a Wyoming resident and piano technician.

Newhouse, who demonstrated piano tuning techniques to the group, has worked independently for over 10 years as a Master Craftsman, member of the Piano Technicians Guild, Inc. He told the students that there is much room within his field for new recruits, explaining, "Years ago piano tuning, as well as other service work, was learned in factories where the instruments were made. Now someone interested in the field would learn through dealers.

- more -

"There is much more involved than simply technique: public relations plays a big role in building up clientele," he continued.

While setting a correct octave, Newhouse explained, "The first thing to look for in tuning is the sounding board. Cracks can develop, particularly in Michigan's humidity. As moisture evaporates, the sounding board shrinks, causing it to crack. A piano in this area should be tuned twice a year in order to be in good condition and to hold pitch."

Greeted with some skepticism about the abundance of available work, Newhouse told the group of his own experiences and of that of a friend who tuned four to six pianos each morning before beginning his daily routine of work.

Seminars featuring inclusion of alternative job opportunities, such as this offering^{of} the college's music department, are continuing emphases of Grand Valley State's endeavors to match available career possibilities with students' plans for the future.

ALLENDALE -- The Federal Communications Commission has granted program test authority approval to WGVC-TV, public broadcasting station in west-central Michigan. FCC approval grants the station, with studios, transmitter and antenna tower at Grand Valley State College, the go-ahead for broadcasting on-air, which will commence in full-color on UHF Channel 35 at 6:45 p.m., Sunday, December 17.

Station manager, Gordon Lawrence, states, "We are now looking forward to a continuing progression of fine color programming to this area of Michigan. Support from citizens of the area made the station a reality, and we will look forward to many years of further cooperative efforts in meeting the needs of west-central Michigan residents."

Broadcast hours of WGVC-TV will be 7-11 p.m., Sunday through Friday of each week, for general audience programming. Instructional television will commence Tuesday, January 2, from 8 a.m. to approximately 3 p.m., Monday through Friday, with additional in-service programs for teachers to be broadcast 3-4 p.m. on Mondays and Thursdays.

ALLENDALE -- The Grand Valley State College Board of Control, meeting on-campus Friday, December 14, approved establishment of GVSC's fourth college, presently entitled, "College IV." Developing under the guidance of Dean Robert Toft, Ph.D., the new unit will open in September 1973. Its planned offerings will be self-paced, relying heavily on self-contained learning modules to be studied on-campus and off. Undergraduate degree programs will be offered within the new collegiate unit, as well as extensive continuing education programs.

The GVSC Board of Control "accepted with regret" the resignation of Deane Baker, member of the Board since 1969. Baker was elected in November to serve as member of the University of Michigan Board of Trustees. A plaque indicating appreciation for assistance and service at Grand Valley State was presented to Baker by GVSC President Arend D. Lubbers.

In other action, the Board of Control approved selection of Alden E. Dow, Incorporated of Midland as architects for a planned Apartment Unit II on-campus.

The Board received a report from Robert Romkema, physical plant manager, concerning location at the south end of campus of the new apartment complex which is anticipated to house 400 students.

December 15, 1972

Romkema also reported that Grand Valley's Campus Stores Building and Apartment Unit I, both located just off Campus Drive from M-45, are well into preliminary construction stages, while GVSC's new Student Center west of the James H. Zumberge Library, has reached the third floor level of construction.

College Study 'At Own Pace'

Grand Valley State College will make room for prospective students unable to coordinate their daily schedule with the traditional course program.

The GVSC Board of Control authorized the September opening of a fourth college, geared toward undergraduate and continuing education programs that can be pursued on and off campus, day or night.

The new unit will operate under Dean Robert Toft, Ph.D, and will enable persons to work at their own pace, both at home or on campus. It's primarily for collegians who can't get to the campus and pursue a conventional program.

It also will feature in-service courses for industrial and public agency employes and individuals wanting to update their specialty. The college will begin by offering courses in mathematics, biology, English, psychology, physics and economics.

Board member Deane Baker has resigned to serve on the University of Michigan Board of Regents, to which he was elected in November. Gov. William G. Milliken will appoint his replacement.

The firm of Alden B. Dow, Inc., of Midland, was selected as architect for a new apartment complex on the south end of the campus for an anticipated 400 students.

ALLENDALE -- A two-day workshop on basic working knowledge of measurement of metallic pollutants in water, designed for industrial and municipality representatives, will be held at Grand Valley State College Tuesday and Wednesday, December 19 and 20. The workshop on atomic absorption spectrophotometry, sponsored by GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences chemistry department, is open to all those interested in this timely environmental program. Registration at $10 may be made the first workshop day between 9:30-10:30 a.m. in room 102 Manitou Hall. Further information may be secured from Dr. C. P. Knop, telephone 895-6611, ext. 193 or 317.

Highlights of the two-day program will include a 10:45 a.m. talk on Tuesday in room 102 Manitou by Dr. Knop, consultant to the Grand Rapids water treatment plant and member of GVSC's chemistry department, entitled, "Basic Principles of Atomic Absorption Spectrophotometry." At 1 p.m., Tuesday, in rooms 307-312 Loutit Hall, representatives of Perkin-Elmer, Jarrell-Ash, and Beckman companies will present atomic absorption instrument demonstrations. Wednesday's workshops will include experiments by participants and practical analyses if desired.

Since 1955 atomic absorption spectrophotometry has been used as analysis systems for measuring levels of metallic pollutants in water by industry and city governments to establish content of metallic discharge into sewer systems.

ALLENDALE -- Grand Valley State College units were the subject of a recent report from the State Auditor's office in Lansing. Portions of the report were critical of GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College, particularly in areas of credit given for studies undertaken.

Dean of Thomas Jefferson, Dr. T. Dan Gilmore, stated Tuesday at the west-central Michigan college, "It is a function of auditors to find areas for criticism. In so doing they serve not only the state, but also the colleges they are auditing. In stressing problem areas however, there is little room for enumeration of the positive aspects of colleges.

"TJC has become one of the most successful independent, experimenting collegiate units in the country. As a deliberately experimenting college we know that we cannot avoid making mistakes, since we know that a few failures are the price of trying anything new. We know also that traditional education has failures, but since they are built into the system (the dropout, the "F," the unexciting course) most of us have come to expect them and do not pay them much attention. Some of the courses and special studies undertaken at TJC have not worked out, of course. The studies criticized in the auditor's report have, for the most part, worked out, and, admittedly, some have failed.

"In an unstructured college," Dr. Gilmore continued, "with not one academic program, but perhaps 500 such programs, worked out carefully by individual students with faculty advisors for all four-years, one of these studies isolated from the entire perspective, may appear strangely inconsistent."

Gilmore further noted, "In spite of the fact that a high percentage of students graduating from traditional institutions have difficulty finding employment, most TJC graduates - well over 90 percent - are employed or are in graduate school presently. Employment includes such fields as Securities Officer with Western American Securities, Inc. and work with the Allaire, N.J. Head-Start Community Relations. Thirty-five percent of TJC students are enrolled in graduate schools such as Yale School of Law, Harvard Law School, Un. of Michigan, University of Illinois, and many others.

"Entrance into Thomas Jefferson College is highly selective, it's program is intense, and its graduates, active, creative people capable of establishing themselves within the main stream of contemporary living. By our very nature of being experimenting, Thomas Jefferson College is capable of flexibility and change."

ALLENDALE -- Since 1970 the number of transfer students from Michigan public junior and community colleges entering the College of Arts and Sciences at Grand Valley State College has shown an increase of 91%. Such transfer students entering CAS for the first time in 1970 numbered 243, while during the past fall, 445 initially enrolled at the four-year collegiate unit. Total numbers of transfer students at CAS from all institutions of higher education have increased correspondingly, from 486 in 1970 to over 1,088 in 1972.

Leading to the dramatic increase was action by the GVSC Board of Control in spring 1970, which granted approval of acceptance, following review, of associate of arts and associate of science degrees from Michigan public junior and community colleges, as fulfillment of general education (first two-year) requirements at Grand Valley's College of Arts and Sciences.

Students currently enrolled at CAS following associate degree studies are representative of many of the state's public junior and community colleges, including: Flint Community College, 4 students; Grand Rapids Junior College, 690 students; Kalamazoo Community College, 10 students; Kirtland Community College, 4 students; Kellogg Community College, 15 students; Lansing Community College, 12 students; Macomb Community College, 13 students; Monroe Community College, 5 students;

ALLENDALE -- Kenneth J. Schepers of Hudsonville has been appointed by the Grand Valley State College Newspaper Board as editor of GVSC's student newspaper, The Lanthorn, for winter and spring terms, 1973. Schepers succeeds Paul Johnston of Hart, who resigned this month for academic reasons after guiding the bi-weekly paper for over a year.

Schepers, a senior at GVSC's Thomas Jefferson College, has worked with the newspaper during most of his collegiate career. His freelance work, both in writing and photography, has also appeared in a number of western Michigan newspapers. Following graduation in June, Schepers plans to enter graduate school study in the field of communications.

GVSC's Newspaper Board, consisting of representatives of the college's faculty, students and staff, acts as an advisory board throughout the year to The Lanthorn.

ALLENDALE -- Add the 19th letter of the alphabet to a four-year institution's name and the result is a bright future in a whole new image.

"Grand Valley State College is awaiting the Governor's signature for the change of its name to Grand Valley State Colleges," GVSC President Arend D. Lubbers stated Thursday. "That addition of the letter 's' creates a whole new perspective of understanding of the goals and aspirations of this institution. As a monolithic 'college' we were looked upon as having a singular approach. As 'colleges' we enter a new era of multiplicity of interactions, not only among our students and faculty, but among the various cluster colleges.

"This interaction will also be enlarged to include the surrounding community," President Lubbers states. "For example, to name only a few, an increasing number of citizens will take part in special seminar offerings, and internships in businesses, city, county and state offices, hospitals and schools will be increased. There will be continually growing interactions with the community through WGVC-TV programming. Added cooperation with civic and governmental units in exploring new ways of problem solving will be stressed. Added cultural events are planned, both for enjoyment and participation of all community residents, both at the college and in the area.

- more -

"It is an exciting time as we progress in the tenth year of GVSC service in west-central Michigan," President Lubbers continued. "The change from college to colleges, with its implied diversity of services, furthers understanding of our intended purpose of being a community resource."

GVSC's name change has already been approved by members of the Michigan Legislature, and awaits only Governor Milliken's signature to become effective.

Indicating the background of the change which has occurred this year, President Lubbers traced some of the developmental history of the institution.

"When GVSC first opened its doors to students in 1963, it consisted of one unit, offering the best in liberal education. As I'm sure most citizens recognize, however, all students do not progress through degree studies with the same interests, nor at the same pace. So what became known as The Grand Valley Plan was instituted, offering options of study to all. The original college developed into the large GVSC College of Arts and Sciences, synthesizing liberal studies in such fields as the humanities, sciences, and fine arts, with the specialization of professional programs within three schools, the School of Business and Economics, School of Health Sciences, and School of Public Service.

"In 1968, the smaller experimenting unit, entitled, the School of General Studies opened, soon to be renamed, Thomas Jefferson College. In the fall of 1971, the career-oriented William James College first opened its doors to students, and in the fall of 1973, the self-paced College IV will enroll its first students."

"Our development of options available to those seeking a college degree continues," President Lubbers stated. "As Grand Valley State Colleges, that increase is readily apparent, as is the implied change of image in our growing thrust of cooperation and interaction with the citizens of this area and throughout Michigan."

ALLENDALE -- In-school television programming via WGVC-TV, western Michigan's new public broadcasting station, commences on UHF Channel 35, Tuesday, January 2. Rita Gentile, director of WGVC-TV instructional television at Grand Valley State College, states that the new service will be on-the-air from 8 a.m. to approximately 3 p.m. Monday through Friday. Initial programming, she reports, includes 24 teleprograms designed specifically for area member school districts drawn from more than 500 on-going programs developed at over 230 educational TV stations across the country, as well as innumerable other educational sources. In-service programs for teachers will commence on Channel 35 from 3-4 p.m. on January 3, continuing each Monday and Thursday, Miss Gentile also states.

Early in 1972, an extensive "instructional television survey" was conducted by WGVC-TV to ascertain instructional needs as viewed by administrators and teachers throughout the area. Highest priority gleaned from the report placed programming in science at the top of the list of needs, followed by social studies, reading, and others. From this data, representatives of school districts and Miss Gentile reviewed programs available, relative to content, and chose such offerings as those to be aired January 2, as the first five telecourses in science are presented.

Instructional programs from WGVC-TV, which are available both in more than 140 schools in western Michigan as well as on home sets, offer an added dimension, however, to member schools. Each school district which has chosen to assess 50¢ per pupil, receives a printed "Teacher's Guide" for preparation and follow-through in the classroom for each telecourse, as well as a full "Instructional Television Broadcast Schedule" for the year, including suggested grade level use. For example, on January 2, the program "Animals and Such," winner of an International Film and TV Festival award in New York City, is suggested for grades 4-6; while "Community of Living Things," award-winning $60,000 production, is suggested for the junior high school level.

Other up-coming instructional programming will include, among many other areas of emphasis, those related to consumer economics, such as "Dollar Data," and to future planning, such as the "Career Guidance" series, both recommended for secondary-level students. Others, such as "Unconscious Cultural Clashes," particularly relating to understanding the Mexican-American culture, and a variety of language arts programs are also included in WGVC-TV's new schedule of instructional television for schools. As is the perennial favorite, "Sesame Street" for pre-school and primary levels.

Member schools are also offered on-going workshops by WGVC-TV personnel in the use and evaluation of instructional television within their school classrooms.

Besides these services, member school districts are represented on an active Program Advisory Committee, which, Miss Gentile states, "works closely with the station in matters of program selection, scheduling, and evaluation. WGVC-TV will offer the best available instructional programs to the community," she continued, "and the Advisory Committee will serve to continue efforts to search and up-grade in-school programming as we progress."

Member school districts thus far include: Allendale; Byron Center; Comstock Park; East Grand Rapids; Father Marquette, Muskegon; Fremont; Grand Haven; Grand Haven Christian; Grand Rapids; Grant Christian, Newaygo; Jenison Christian; Kelloggsville; Kentwood; St. John Vianney and St. Paul Apostle, Grand Rapids; Saugatuck; Spring Lake; and, Wyoming.

Future plans, Miss Gentile reports, include local productions to be produced in the WGVC-TV studios at Grand Valley State College, as well as proposed up-coming college courses on television.

ALLENDALE -- Grand Valley State College's School of Public Service, in cooperation with Muskegon Community College's Coordinated Higher Education Placement Center, presents two timely courses for the first time in Muskegon commencing January 8 and 9, 1973.

"Law and Civil Disobedience," a survey of law, liberty and dissent, will be offered each Monday of the 10-week winter term, from 6-10 p.m., beginning January 8. "Developmental and Comparative Administration," including developmental theory and case studies from the U.S., Middle East and Latin America, will meet each Tuesday, from 6-10 p.m., commencing January 9. Professors from the School of Public Service of GVSC's College of Arts and Sciences, teaching the courses indicated, respectively, will be, Ricardo Meana of Arsulowicz and Meana, Grand Rapids' attorneys-at-law, and visiting associate professor of public service at Grand Valley; and, Dr. Samir T. IsHak, GVSC associate professor and director of the School of Public Service.

"Courses are open to all community residents and students for degree credit or on an audit basis. All applications will be accepted and ensured a place in the classes," Dr. IsHak states. Successful completion of each course accrues 5-credit hours for those seeking the Bachelor of Science degree in public service. Cost of each course, taken for credit or audited on a special evening student basis is $80 for Michigan residents.
