Appendix 1: Biographical Timeline

NOTE:

The following timeline, detailing the main biographical events of Mackenzie's life, has been constructed from the composer's autobiography, A Musician's Narrative, and various interviews published during his lifetime. It has been verified with reference to information found in The Musical Times and other similar sources. Although not fully comprehensive, the timeline should provide the reader with a useful chronological survey of Mackenzie's career as a musician and composer.

1847 Born 22 August, 22 Nelson Street, Edinburgh.

1856 ACM travels to London with his father and the orchestra of the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, and visits the Crystal Palace and the Thames Tunnel.

1857 Alexander Mackenzie admits to ill health and plans for ACM's education (July). ACM and his father travel to Germany in August: Edinburgh to Hamburg (by boat), then to Hildesheim (by rail) and Schwarzburg-Sondershausen (by Schnellpost).

His father visits Alexis Bad for a few weeks to receive medical treatment.

ACM lodges with the Bartel family in Sondershausen.

Alexander Mackenzie dies within a fortnight of his return to Edinburgh (7/10? October 1857) and his death is reported in The Scotsman on 12 October.

August Bartel becomes ACM's mentor in Germany; Oberlehrer Haesler is the schoolmaster to the ducal orchestra; Konzertmeister Wilhelm Uhrich is ACM's master at the court orchestra; the Kappellmeister is Eduard Stein.

1859 ACM takes a trip to Hamburg en route to a month at home in Edinburgh during the summer. He returns through Holland (Rotterdam).

- 1860 ACM meets a friend and his aunt in Brussels. He suffers from gastric 'flu on his return to Sondershausen.
- 1861 ACM attends performances of Tannhäuser and Faust. Liszt visits Sondershausen from Weimar to hear Mazeppa.
- 1862 Performances are given in Sondershausen of Offenbach's Orphée, Lohengrin, Liszt's Faust Symphony (the last piece which ACM performs there) and the Prelude to Tristan. ACM's Festmarsch is scored by Stein and performed by the orchestra before he leaves Germany.
- ACM returns to London. He visits Manns at the Crystal Palace, then approaches Sinton for violin lessons and enrolls at the RAM on his advice. He is taught by Charles Lucas and Sinton, lodging initially at Walworth with family friends. He wins the King's Scholarship on 23 December (Agnes Zimmermann is elected to the scholarship at the same time).
- 1864 ACM is engaged to play in the orchestra at the Birmingham Festival under Costa. His early choral work, A fragment from Moore's Lalla Rookh, is performed at RAM concert (17 December, according to interview in MT, 1898).
- 1865 ACM leaves the RAM in London and moves back to family home at 41 Heriot Row, Edinburgh.
- He is engaged as a violinist for the Triennial Handel Festival at the Crystal Palace under Costa.
- During his time in Edinburgh, ACM establishes and performs in the Classical Chamber Concerts with William Adlington (Paterson & Sons); he conducts The Scottish Vocal Association and a large Tonic Sol-fa Society; he teaches at The Ladies' College (one of the Merchants' schools) and the Church of Scotland Normal School Training College.
- 1867 ACM is engaged as a violinist for the Birmingham Festival under Costa.
- 1870 On 1 October, ACM is appointed Precentor of St George's Church, Charlotte Square.
- ACM is again engaged for the Birmingham Festival.
- 1873 November, ACM is elected conductor of the Scottish Vocal Association.
- ACM is again engaged for the Birmingham Festival.

- 1874 On 28 July ACM marries Mary Malina Burnside. They settle at 2 Darnaway Street, almost opposite the Mackenzie family home in Heriot Row.
- 1875 ACM travels to Sondershausen with a group of Düsseldorfers and Friedrich Niecks. On the return journey he hears Die Meistersinger at Munich. Bülow visits Edinburgh. He seeks out ACM, having seen the proofs of his Piano Quartet at the offices of the publisher C. F. Kahnt in Leipzig. The Piano Quartet is performed at St George's Hall, London, by William Coenen (4 March).
- 1876 ACM's orchestral Overture to a Comedy is performed in Dusseldorf by Tausch.
- 1877 Bülow is engaged as the conductor of the Glasgow Choral Union Concerts, of which the orchestra visits Edinburgh each week. The orchestra performs ACM's orchestral work, Cervantes. Bülow persuades ACM to conduct for the first time and in order to do so he borrows a dress suit from the Glasgow critic, Stillie.
- 1878 On 25 January Bülow performs ACM's Piano Quartet in Hanover. ACM's Scherzo for orchestra is produced at the Crystal Palace on 18 October, under Tausch in Glasgow on 20 November¹ and under Mackenzie in Edinburgh on 2 December.
- 1879 ACM [probably] meets Clara Schumann in Edinburgh. ACM is advised by doctors to take a rest-cure abroad. He has to choose between Italy and Australia. ACM and his family leave for Italy (on Bülow's advice) for eight months to recuperate from illness and rest from public engagements. He is recommended to the care of Bülow's pupils, Buonamici and George F. Hatton, in Florence. At first they rent an apartment near to the Teatro dell Pergola and soon move to the mezzanino beneath the Hillebrands (Bülow's friends) on the Via de Tornabuoni at the end of the Lung'Arno Nuovo.
- 1880 The Rhapsodie Écossaise is performed under Manns in Edinburgh on 5 January. ACM works on 'Burns': Second Scottish Rhapsodie in Florence and finishes the score on 26 September. The initial finale of the work is returned by Manns as 'much too wild' and ACM supplies another movement.

- ACM spends a month at Innsbruck, Austria, where he completes The Bride and offers it for publication to Novello & Co.
- 1881 'Burns': Second Scottish Rhapsodie is premiered by Manns in Glasgow (January) and at the Crystal Palace (March).
- ACM decides to move to Florence on a permanent basis. He returns to Scotland in order to make suitable arrangements in his business affairs.
- The Bride* is performed at the Worcester Festival under ACM. Edward Elgar is in the orchestra.
- 1882 Jason is performed at Bristol under Hallé (19 October). The orchestra and chorus are seriously under-rehearsed. ACM stays with the Littleton family in Sydenham.
- 1883 Colomba is premiered at Drury Lane Theatre (9 April) and taken on a tour of Great Britain and Ireland by the Carl Rosa Opera Company.
- The orchestral ballad La belle dame sans merci is written at the request of the Philharmonic Society during ACM's stay with the Littletons. The work is performed by the Philharmonic under ACM on 9 May before he leaves London.
- ACM is approached by C. L. Dodgson (Lewis Carroll) to collaborate on an opera based on the popular Alice stories. The project is abandoned because Dodgson failed to write the libretto.
- ACM visits Paris with Alfred Littleton and Carl Rosa and attends a performance of Lakmé.
- ACM is elected a Fellow of the Royal Academy of Music.
- 1884 ACM meets Emma Nevada in Paris on the way to London and asks her to sing extracts from the part of the Sulamite in The Rose of Sharon.
- The Rose of Sharon* is premiered at the Norwich Festival (16 October) to huge success. A subsequent performance takes place in London (22 November).
- ACM visits Davison (music critic) at Margate after the Norwich Festival.
- Following a performance of Colomba at the Court Theatre (29 April), ACM is awarded the Gold Medal for Art and Science, Hesse-Darmstadt.
- 1885 ACM meets Liszt at a dinner party given by the Hillebrands in Florence on 24 January.
- There is an outbreak of cholera in Italy during the summer months. ACM and his family spend the summer at the castle in Borgo alla Collina, near Florence.

- Sarasate premieres the Violin Concerto at the Birmingham Festival (26 August).
ACM is made the conductor of the reinstated Novello Oratorio Concerts (1869–75) and moves to Sydenham.
- He is made an Honorary Member of the Glasgow Society of Musicians.
- 1886 Liszt visits London (3 April) for a fortnight and stays with the Littletons at Westwood House in Sydenham. St Elizabeth is produced at St James's Hall (5 April) and at the Crystal Palace (17 April).
The Troubadour is premiered at Drury Lane Theatre (8 June) and is given two performances. The Austrian music critic, Eduard Hanslick, visits London and attends performance of The Troubadour as well as other concerts.
ACM is awarded an honorary MusD by the University of St Andrew's and dedicates The Story of Sayid to the University Senate.
The Story of Sayid is produced at the Leeds Festival (13 October).
- 1887 A Jubilee Ode is commissioned by the Crystal Palace and performed there under Manns and around the Empire on 22 June.
Randegger takes over from ACM as conductor of the Novello Choir. ACM and his family return to Florence.
The summer months are passed in Ver sur Mer in Calvados, France.
Sir George Macfarren dies on 31 October. Before a new Principal of the RAM is elected the duties are shared between Walter Macfarren, Prosper Sainton and Charles Steggall.
- 1888 ACM is elected Principal of the Royal Academy of Music on 22 February. The other candidates were Joseph Barnby and Walter Macfarren. On the day of the election ACM conducts the Novello Choir in a performance of Sullivan's Golden Legend.
The Mackenzies move to Dunedin House, Sydenham, near Grove, the Littletons and Charles Ainsley Barry ('C. A. B.'). More permanent accommodation is soon found at 15 Regent's Park Road, NW.
Ode: The New Covenant to words by Buchanan is performed at the Glasgow International Exhibition (8 May).
Overture to Shakespeare's Comedy, Twelfth Night is performed by Richter (4 June).

- Three of the Six Violin Pieces, Op. 37, are played by Lady Hallé at the Pops (12 November). ACM arranges the Benedictus for small orchestra over the summer. ACM is awarded an honorary MusD degree by Cambridge University. Stanford is granted the same degree at the ceremony.
- ACM conducts Parry's Judith with the Novello Choir at St James's Hall and the Crystal Palace (6 and 15 December).
- 1889 The Dream of Jubal is performed at the Liverpool Philharmonic Society's Jubilee Concert (5 February), with Charles Fry as the reciter.
- ACM, Grove and Parry found the Associated Board of the Royal Schools of Music despite opposition from professors at both the RAM and the RCM.
- A month before his death in Paris, Carl Rosa suggests that ACM should rewrite the finale of Act III of Colomba with a view to an immediate revival of the opera which never took place.
- The Pibroch*, suite for violin and orchestra, is performed by Sarasate at the Leeds Festival (10 October).
- The Cotter's Saturday Night* is produced by the Edinburgh Choral Union (?16 December).
- ACM publishes and edits his father's The National Dance Music of Scotland.
- ACM becomes the first President and founder member of the RAM Club.
- 1890 ACM appoints Frederick Corder as Curator of the RAM. This move is attacked in the press. (ACM's other reforms of the RAM are carried through with the support of the younger professors, including Corder, Oscar Beringer, Tobias Matthay, Emile Sauret and Hans Wessley.)
- ACM's music to Ravenswood accompanies Irving's production of the Merivale play at the Lyceum (September 1890). The music is performed as a suite at the Norwich Festival (15 September).
- ACM is awarded an honorary Mus. Doc. degree by Edinburgh University.
- 1891 ACM's music to Marmion accompanies a production at the Theatre Royal, Glasgow (April).
- The cantata Veni, Creator Spiritus is performed at the Birmingham Festival (6 October).

- 1892 ACM is offered and accepts the conductorship of the Philharmonic Society. He holds the post for seven consecutive seasons till 1899.
- 1893 The first Philharmonic Concert under ACM takes place on 9 March.
ACM meets Tchaikovsky and performs his Symphony No. 4 at the Philharmonic.
ACM attends the Cambridge Jubilee celebrating the 50th anniversary of the CUMS. Honorary degrees are given to Boïto, Saint-Saëns, Bruch, and Tchaikovsky. At a celebratory dinner in King's College, ACM gives a speech on behalf of the absent Sullivan.
ACM is created a Member of the Order of Art and Sciences, Saxe-Coburg and Gotha and 'Pencerdd Alban' in Wales.
- 1894 Bülow dies in Cairo (January).
ACM gives the British premiere of Tchaikovsky's Pathétique at the Philharmonic on 28 February; this is repeated on 14 March.
The oratorio Bethlehem is performed at the Albert Hall by the Royal Choral Society (12 April).
The 70th anniversary of the RAM celebrated (2 years late); the overture, Britannia, is performed at the Commemoration Concert (?17 May).
- 1895 ACM is created a Knight Bachelor of Great Britain.
From the North: Three Scottish Pieces for Orchestra are performed by the Philharmonic Society (3 April).
Hallé dies; ACM takes over his last concerts in Manchester, Leeds and Liverpool.
- 1896 ACM is attacked in the press, principally by The London Figaro (16 January). An apology appears in The Times on 6 February, but ACM sues the papers before the Lord Chief Justice and a special jury on 30 July, winning damages. The incident affects ACM's health adversely.
Barnby dies within four months of Hallé. ACM is asked to take over his duties at the Royal Albert Hall for the rest of the season and initially refuses until a concert is respectfully moved from the day of Barnby's funeral. Frederick Bridge is subsequently appointed permanent conductor.
At Richter's suggestion, ACM persuades the Philharmonic Directors to adopt the lower pitch for tuning already in general use on the Continent.

- 1897 Paderewski premieres the Scottish Concerto at a Philharmonic Concert.
ACM's music accompanies a production of Barrie's The Little Minister at the Haymarket Theatre (6 November); ACM's daughter, Mary, plays Jean in this production.
ACM's comic opera, His Majesty, or the Court of Vingolia, is produced at the Savoy Theatre (20 February). The music from the opera was performed at a RAM concert (24 March).
- 1898 ACM writes music for Irving's projected production of Manfred.
ACM is made a Member of the Royal Swedish Academy.
- 1899 Richard Strauss appears at a Philharmonic Concert to conduct Death and Transfiguration.
ACM retires as the conductor of the Philharmonic Society and is succeeded by Frederic Cowen.
The Manfred music is first performed (nos. 2 & 3) as part of the London Musical Festival (12 May).
- 1900 Sir Arthur Sullivan dies.
- 1901 ACM presents a series of lectures at the Royal Institution on the music of Sullivan.

- 1909 The Third Congress of the Internationale Musik-Gesellschaft (International Music Society, IMS) is held in Vienna (May) as a celebration of Haydn's death and Mendelssohn's birth. Having recently been elected President of the IMS, ACM acted as president of the congress. Colomba is given a concert performance by students of the RAM (December).
- 1910 A ceremony is held for the laying of the foundation stone by Lord Strathcona of the new RAM buildings at Marylebone; ACM's partsong, My soul would drink those echoes, is first performed. ACM attends the Bournemouth Centenary Fêtes (6–16 July). The Sun-god's Return is produced at the Cardiff Festival (21 September). The revised version of The Rose of Sharon is performed at the Alexandra Palace (5 November).
- 1911 The Sun-god's Return receives its Continental premiere in a German translation at the Vienna Singakademie (16 January), organised with the help of Eisner von Eisenhof. The Invocation for orchestra commissioned and performed by the Philharmonic Society for their centenary celebrations (21 March). La savannah, air de ballet for orchestra is performed at Bournemouth (6 April).

The Fourth Congress of the Internationale Musik-Gesellschaft is held at the University of London. British music and performers are promoted during the congress; ACM's Tam o' Shanter: Third Scottish Rhapsody is performed complete with bagpipe chanter.

The Coronation of King George V takes place on 22 June. ACM's An English Joy-Peal is performed before the ceremony in Westminster Abbey.

- 1912 Having been delayed by the completion of the Duke's Hall, the postponed official opening of the RAM's new buildings takes place. HRH Prince Arthur presides in the absence of the RAM's President of 25 years, HRH Duke of Connaught and Strathearn.

A revised, three-act version of Colomba by ACM and Claude Aveling is produced by the RCM Opera Class at His Majesty's Theatre under Stanford.

- 1913 ACM gives a spoken tribute to Saint-Saëns at the Queen's Hall (2 June).

ACM is made an Honorary Member of the Academia di S. Cecilia, Rome.

- 1914 Outbreak of War. The RAM loses most of its male students and younger professors to the armed forces.

The Cricket on the Hearth is premiered in a student production at the RAM for six performances (6 June).

- 1917 Maimie (Mary) Mackenzie marries Marcel Mitzakis.

- 1918 Hubert Parry dies; this loss deeply affects ACM.

ACM is offered a Fellowship of the RCM, never before given to any non-student.

- 1919 ACM lectures on Parry's music at the Royal Institution.

ACM reads the list of men killed for their country from the pulpit of Southwark Cathedral on behalf of the Incorporated Society of Musicians.

A service is held at the Temple Church in memory of lost students from the music schools. Music is provided by the joint choirs of the RCM and Temple (under Hugh Allen and Walford Davies). Parry's 'There is an old belief' from the Songs of Farewell is sung, violinists from the RAM play Corder's Elegy and ACM's Postlude: In Memoriam.

- 1922 The RAM celebrates its Centenary, the last public event in which ACM took a conspicuous part. A Thanksgiving Service is held in St Paul's and the celebrations end with a Pageant and Masque written by Louis N. Parker. ACM's

- Overture, Youth, Sport, Loyalty is performed (20 July).
- ACM receives the honour of Knight Commander of the Victorian Order from the King.

- 1925 Lady Mackenzie dies (October).
- 1927 ACM publishes A Musician's Narrative.
- 1928 Maimie officially divorces Mitzakis and returns to her maiden name, Mrs Mary Campbell Mackenzie.
- ACM is involved in motoring accident near his home on 25 June. He is left in state of severe shock and his mobility is impaired.
- 1929 ACM and Maimie move to 20, Taviton Street, Gordon Square (by May).
- 1933 ACM is presented with a silver plate engraved with facsimile signatures of many musicians and colleagues.
- 1935 Sir Alexander Campbell Mackenzie, K.C.V.O. dies at home on 28 April at the age of 87. His funeral is held on 2 May at St Marylebone Parish Church and he is buried in Golders Green cemetery. A well-attended Memorial Service is held at St Paul's Cathedral on 9 May.
- 1955 Death of Mary Campbell Mackenzie.

Appendix 2: The Mackenzie Family Tree

The following family tree is based primarily on a similar document supplied by Mrs Alison Selford, the great niece of Sir Alexander Campbell Mackenzie, and shows Mackenzie's relations on both sides of his family, whilst concentrating on his siblings. Most of the dates have been added by the author following research carried out at the Scottish Registry and City Library in Edinburgh. The family tree is only a working document and is therefore not as complete as it could be.

The endnotes give supplementary information on the people who appear in the family tree.

Notes:

In general, the categories in this catalogue adhere to those given in J. C. Dibble, C. Hubert H. Parry: His Life and Music, (Oxford, 1992), Appendix 2. The information for each entry is taken from three main sources: Catalogue of Printed Music in the British Library; Walter H. Stock, ed., Alexander Campbell Mackenzie: Catalogue of Works (Library of the Royal Academy of Music, London: Unpublished Typewritten Manuscript, 1948); and the on-line catalogue of the RAM Library.

Unless indicated otherwise with a conventional library siglum, manuscript scores are held in the Library of the Royal Academy of Music (GB-Lam), to which they were bequeathed in the year after his death by the composer's daughter, Miss Mary Campbell Mackenzie. Brief descriptions of manuscripts are only given where they are particularly interesting or relevant to the dating of a work, otherwise further details may be found in Music Collection of the Royal Academy of Music, London, Part Three, Microfilm reels 58–64, and 66, and the card catalogues in the RAM Library.

Following the discussion in the main body of the thesis itself, the music described in the catalogue is sub-divided into different sections depending on genre, and, as far as is possible, within each section works are listed in chronological order, based on the date of composition rather than publication. One exception to this rule is Section J: Solo Songs; the first part of this section is a chronological list of song collections and songs allotted opus numbers by the composer, and the second part is a chronological list of songs published individually. Projected, incomplete or unproduced works are listed chronologically wherever possible within the relevant section.

The Title of each work is as it appears on the published score or the main manuscript source, with preference given to the former. Any relevant subheadings are also included, for example, The Rose of Sharon, A dramatic oratorio. The Date refers to the date the composition was completed when this is available from manuscript sources or elsewhere. Any publication dates are given separately under the section headed Publication details, and where it has been impossible to ascertain the date of composition then the publication date is also used under the earlier heading. Opus numbers are taken from published and manuscript sources as well as lists of Mackenzie's output made by contemporary writers (such as those which appear in Grove2 and Grove3). The Instrumentation/Arrangement field gives brief details of performing forces and, where possible, information has been included on the First Performance of a work, including subsequent performances where these are particularly noteworthy. Additional publications taken from Mackenzie's larger scores are listed under the Notes section of each entry, together with any interesting or relevant biographical details and cross-references.

In the interests of economy, not every individual entry contains the same number of information fields and these vary according to the nature of the genre. However, care has been taken to provide as full an entry for each work as is possible at the time of writing.

Title:	The Lord of Life
Date:	c. 1886–90
Opus:
Manuscript:	MS 1193 (sketch of fs entitled ‘Miriam’) MS 1286 (vs sketch entitled ‘Moses’) MS 1287 (fs sketch entitled ‘Moses’)
Librettist:	Joseph Bennett, after the Bible (Books of Moses)
Publication details:	Unpublished
Instrumentation:	Soli, SATB, orch
Dedication:	None
First Performance:	None
Notes:	This oratorio was never completed although Mackenzie seems to have worked on the project for a considerable time with Bennett. The work was intended to be a large oratorio for performance at the Birmingham Festival of 1888 and is mentioned in the MT as being currently in production (1 August 1886, 481). However, Mackenzie was released from his commission when the Birmingham Committee realised that it would be too much for their audience if the work were included on the same programme as Parry’s Judith . The title, Lord of Life , is taken from the name given the work in letters between Mackenzie and Bennett.

Section O: Public Lectures

The lectures listed below were given at the Royal Institution (RI), the Royal Academy of Music (RAM), the Royal College of Organists (RCO) and elsewhere. Mackenzie also gave speeches at the annual prize-givings of the RAM and RCO which were sometimes reported in the musical press. Unfortunately no manuscript notes or records of any of the following are extant and, as a result, the only information it is possible to find out about the lectures is contained within reports in The Musical Times and the RAM Magazine.

The majority of this list is based on Stock's Catalogue and Charles Maclean, 'Sir Alexander Campbell Mackenzie — A Biographical Sketch,' The Music Student, viii, No.10 (1916), 277–82.

List of Manuscript Sources

NOTE:

Listed below are the sources of manuscript letters, documents and scores consulted as part of the research for this thesis. Where possible, the shelfmark of each manuscript collection is given, however many of the collections are uncatalogued or without shelfmarks, and these are merely identified by their location. The extensive collection of manuscript scores from the Mackenzie bequest of 1936 now held in the Library of the RAM is not included, but each individual manuscript score is detailed briefly under the relevant entry in Appendix 3: A Catalogue of Works by Alexander Campbell Mackenzie (see above).

Not all of the literary manuscript collections below are referred to specifically in the text of the thesis and manuscript letters reproduced as facsimiles in published books are not included. The sources are listed alphabetically by library, location or owner.
