

Coastal union reps offers support

By ED YUDIN
Herald Staff Writer

A possible strike by International Woodworkers of America members in Prince George and Williams Lake may have some ramifications for coastal IWA workers, according to a local union official. Northern IWA members, embroiled in a dispute concerning the expiry date of their contract, are taking a strike vote.

"We may have to support them if they go on strike, says Bill Hutchison the business agent in Terrace for local 1-71 of the IWA.

"However, there is no way we would strike, we have a binding contract." Local 1-71 of the IWA, the members in the coastal region, signed a two-year contract just recently. Hutchison says each union member would probably have to be assessed a fee to help boost the strike fund. He also said there are other ways to support the northern workers. "We could refuse to handle the products of the companies affected by the strike," he said.

Such action would only take place if the union executive of the IWA approved. Hutchison added that there is always the possibility northern IWA members could fly down workers to picket companies in Terrace or other parts of the province. He added that the local members would be forced to honor the picket lines.

IWA members in Prince George and Williams Lake are seeking a June 15 contract expiry date the one used by coastal and southern locals. However, some companies are worried about job action taking place during the peak logging season in the summer. Many companies prefer to negotiate separately with their own workers rather than face a united offer, of 90 cents the first year and an additional 90 cents or 9.5 percent the second year.

This is the same offer accepted by other IWA locals in B.C.

CANCEL WORKERS PICKET MILLS

CASTLEGAR, B.C. (CP) — About 1,000 workers were off the job today at the Canadian Cellulose Ltd. mill in this southeastern British Columbia community.

Members of the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada set up picket lines after talks with Canadian Cellulose over the use of relief lead hands broke down Monday.

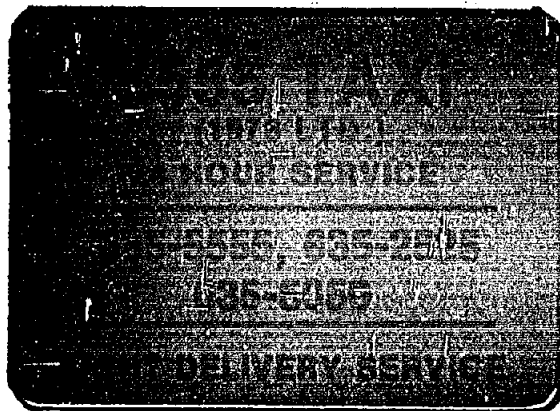

Union workers were voting on an industry-wide pact accepted by the province's two other major forestry unions earlier this summer, but a union spokesman said voting would be delayed pending resolution of the current dispute.

About 37,500 coastal and southern Interior members of the International Woodworkers of America and the 7,500-member Canadian Paperworkers Union have accepted new, two-year contract providing wage increases of 90 cents an hour in the first year and 90 cents or 9.5 per cent in the second year.

Prior to the agreement the base rate was $8.16 an hour for all three unions.

Acceptance by the 5,500-member PPWC has been delayed by settlement of local issues.

It's all just stuck with gluon

BATAVIA, Ill. (AP) — In what is described as a major scientific breakthrough, physicists say they have evidence of a tiny particle that holds together all the matter of the universe — appropriately called a gluon.

Physicist Thomas Nash called the discovery an important step that could lead to a single explanation of what physicists call the four fundamental forces of nature — electromagnetism, gravity and two kinds of forces that operate only inside atoms.

Such a theory has eluded scientists, including Albert Einstein, for years.

Physicists Gunther Wolf, Christopher Berger, S. Orlito and Harvey Newman on Monday gave a preliminary report on the finding to an international meeting at the Fermi National Accelerator Laboratory west of Chicago.

The finding was made by an international team of scientists working at the new PETRA electron-positron storage ring in Hamburg, West Germany.

It was the first evidence that gluons exist, although gluons have been predicted by theory for years.

The finding helps confirm that neutrons, protons and many other elementary particles, once thought to be indivisible, are actually conglomerates of even smaller particles called quarks.

The gluon is a particle that holds the quarks together. Hence, it provides the "glue" to hold together the most fundamental bits of matter in the universe.

Quarks were predicted theoretically in the mid-1960s. They've never been seen directly, since they are so tightly bound together. But scientists have ample indirect evidence that at least five different types of quarks exist and are searching for a sixth.

$5,000 BONDS Vessels released 60 MORE SAID SIGHTED

VICTORIA (CP) — Eight United States fish boat captains, charged with illegally entering and fishing in Canadian waters, took their boats out of harbor here Tuesday after posting $5,000 bonds to have their vessels released from custody.

They had earlier pleaded not guilty to the charges when they appeared in provincial court. They will appear again Feb. 13.

The eight fishing boats, four from Seattle and four from California, were seized by federal fisheries officials Sunday about 90 kilometres off the northwest tip of Vancouver Island.

Meanwhile, two Canadian fisheries department vessels were heading out to the area Tuesday night to check reports that as many as 60 American boats may be fishing illegally in Canadian waters.

The eight skippers were charged with fishing for albacore tuna in violation of the Coastal Fisheries Protection Act. Penalties under the Act include seizure of a boat and its catch, fines up to $25,000 and jail terms of up to two years.

Canada claims that all species of fish within its 200-mile limit are under its jurisdiction, but the U.S. doesn't recognize jurisdiction beyond 12 miles for highly migratory fish such as tuna.

Canadians do not fish for albacore tuna because it usually does not enter Canadian waters on the West Coast. However, this year the tuna have come further north and the U.S. fleet crossed into Canadian jurisdiction in pursuit.

"Nobody can fish in a Canadian zone without a licence from the Canadian government, regardless of whether it's an under-utilized species," McGrath said.

"That's the point that has to be made here. If U.S. fishermen want to apply for a licence, we'll consider that."

The U.S. and Canada have resolved most of their differences over fishing rights in coastal waters, but rights to albacore tuna in the Pacific were left unsettled early this year.

Earlier, Rep. Don Bonker (D-Wash.) said the U.S. would embargo Canadian fish imports if Canada proceeded with formal legal action against the tuna fishermen. "The Fishery Conservation and Management Act gives the secretary of state authority to trigger such an embargo," he said in Olympia, Wash.

"Ambassador John Negroponte assured me today (Tuesday) that an embargo against Canadian tuna exports will be imposed without delay."

Meanwhile, Lew Wright, general manager of the Western Fish Boat Owners Association in San Diego, has retained a Victoria law firm to act for the boat owners.

The owners claim they were not aware of any restrictions on albacore tuna fishing and were given the first official word when the boats were seized. However, Canadian fisheries official John Cairns says the boats were given ample warning before they were ordered into port.

The eight boat captains were identified as Michael Terrance Walsh, skipper of the vessel Columbia based at Morro Bay, Calif.; Kenneth Ledbetter of the Jeannie of San Diego; Robert H. Sanchez of the Four C of Los Angeles; Edward D. Deringer of the Jean Marie of San Pedro, Calif.; and Arne Berner Larsen of the Majestic, John Vernon Livvog of the St. John II, Elmore Arnold Martens of the Lorelei II and Stanley Carrol Johansen of the Alma J, all of Seattle.

Energy the topic at tri-gov't meet

VICTORIA (CP) — Energy will be a major topic here Wednesday at a private meeting involving Governor Jay Hammond of Alaska, Commissioner Ione Christensen of the Yukon and British Columbia Premier Bill Bennett.

The premier's office said other topics will include hydro development, access through the Alaskan panhandle, transportation matters and mineral development.

The discussions on energy will deal largely with natural gas and oil pipeline proposals affecting the three areas.

A spokesman for Hammond said the governor also will dwell on the subject of wilderness conservation and transportation corridors through remote areas.

A bill now before the United States Congress will convey full control to the state of lands along the B.C. border now administered by federal U.S. authorities.

The talks on transportation will concentrate on improvements to the Alaskan highway, plus Alaskan railway and ferry services. Extension of the B.C. Rail line through to Alaska is not expected to be given much time.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett visited Juneau, Alaska in April to address a joint session of the Alaska legislature and Senate, where he received support for the idea of extending the B.C. Rail line through to that state.

While Barrett was in Alaska, Bennett called a provincial general election for May 10.

Hammond's office said that, although the rail matter may be raised by the governor, it will not form a major part of the discussions because of a lack of interest by Bennett's government.

Mein Kampf on stands

BONN (AP) — West Germans can buy Mein Kampf for the first time in 34 years, but they've shown little interest in the book in which Adolf Hitler outlined his Nazi philosophy.

"From a book dealer's point of view, Nazi literature like Mein Kampf (My Struggle) and Rosenberg's writings remain without interest," said Gerhard Keller, manager of Bonn's Bouvier University Book Dealers.

The Supreme Court reversed a lower court decision which fined a secondhand-book dealer $456 for selling two volumes of Mein Kampf.

Fraser supports Foothills plan

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Environment Minister John Fraser is asking his fellow cabinet ministers to accept a proposal by Foothills Oil Pipeline Ltd. to move Alaskan oil to the lower 48 states.

Fraser told reporters covering the inner-cabinet meeting here that he is fighting any proposal to ship Alaskan oil down the British Columbia coast.

He has repeated past statements that a plan to move the oil by ship to Kitimat, B.C., and then by pipeline is out. He said Monday that he received assurances of that again from Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn.

Hnatyshyn, responding to criticism from Liberal energy critic Marc Lalonde that the government was dragging its feet, had said earlier the government is studying various proposals to move Alaskan oil through Canada.

Hnatyshyn said the government will make a decision before Nov. 15, the date by which U.S. President Carter wants a recommendation.

Five die in crash

BELLINGHAM, Wash. (AP) — The bodies of five British Columbia residents were recovered Tuesday from the site of a plane crash in the Silver Lake area about 32 kilometres east of here.

Deputy Ron Peterson, Whatcom county search and rescue co-ordinator, said it may be two days before the victims are identified because of problems contacting next of kin. The single-engine Piper aircraft crashed and burned Monday night, killing all aboard.

Federal Aviation Administration investigators were at the scene Tuesday to identify the aircraft.

"There wasn't much left of it," Peterson said.

About 30 searchers found the wreckage

GOV'T FORCE DOWN

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government work force shrank by 3,609 during the year ending June 30, Statistics Canada said Tuesday.

There were 592,947 employees (including the armed forces) at the end of June. This compared with 600,616 last year.

The federal agency said most of the decrease was from ending the employment department's FLIP (Federal Labor Intensive Projects) program in March.

In spite of the drop in employment, the gross public service payroll for the second quarter of the year was $23.6 billion larger than last year's payroll. The April to June payroll was $2.53 billion.

Terrace can look to island camping spot

BY ED YUDIN
Herald Staff Writer

Ferry Island has been officially leased by the District of Terrace for the nominal annual sum of $25.00. It is expected the site will be utilized as a camping ground and recreational spot. The future development of the island is still up in the air, however.

The decision on how to develop the small island in Skeena river will be referred to the Tourism and Industrial Development Committee. Alderman Al Furschke, the chairman of the committee, is vague on plans for Ferry Island.

He says, however, a viable plan will be drawn up by his committee. "Really the development is on next year's program. It's too late to receive funds from this year's budget," Furschke said Tuesday. "So the best idea is to get a plan ready and then fight for whatever funds we can get this coming year."

Acting Terrace Mayor Alan Soutar has outlined two priorities for development. He says there should be some provision for people wanting to stay overnight with their campers and trailers. Soutar adds the natural beauty of the island should be saved at any cost.

Furschke agreed that locating suitable grounds for campers is a must, and Ferry Island appears to be an ideal spot. He also hopes to seek additional funding for the development of Ferry Island, when Premier Bennett appoints a new tourism minister to replace the defeated Elwood Veitch.

"We hope to have discussions on Ferry Island and other issues with the new minister at the Union of British Columbia Municipalities Convention in September.

We're hoping the new minister is appointed by then." The UBCM convention takes place in Vancouver next week.

Mountbatten funeral a state ceremony

LONDON (CP) — As feelings of revulsion and outrage continued to sweep the country, Britons prepared to mark the assassination of Earl Mountbatten of Burma with a huge ceremonial funeral next Wednesday, perhaps rivaling the homage paid to Winston Churchill 14 years ago.

All the royal houses of Europe plan to send members to the Westminster Abbey service where, as requested by Mountbatten, the Reconciliation hymn by Rudyard Kipling will be recited, including the line "the captains and kings depart ... lest we forget."

Meanwhile, Irish police suggested the bomb that killed the British war hero and three others while he was out fishing in his cabin cruiser may have been planted in a lobster pot. Two skin divers were seen swimming off the County Sligo coast on Sunday.

British security sources in Northern Ireland expressed doubt about the theory, saying it left too much to chance. Some sources suggested the bomb may have been placed in one of the boat's lockers.

Mountbatten, 79, a cousin of the Queen, was killed Monday when the bomb tore his boat apart shortly after it left Mullaghmore Harbor in County Sligo for a family outing on Donegal Bay.

"We are working on the theory that the bomb was in one of the lobster pots," said Inspector Joe Noonan of the County Sligo police, who is investigating the assassination. "It could have been set off by remote control."

SESSION SMOOTH
In March, 1966, the Alberta legislature held its first session at an ice-skating rink.

lifted through the debris of the 29-foot boat, Shadow V, to try to determine if the device was similar to those used in the slaying of 18 British soldiers at Warrenpoint in Northern Ireland on the same day.

The Warrenpoint massacre, in County Down near the border with the Irish Republic, came just hours after the Mountbatten boat exploded. A civilian was also killed in the cross-fire between the soldiers and the Irish guerrillas, bringing to 23 the number of people killed in both incidents.

The Irish Republican Army, demanding an end to British rule and Protestant domination of Northern Ireland, was quick to claim responsibility for both bombings.

Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher held urgent security talks Tuesday. Scotland Yard sources said security chiefs are trying to persuade leading British personalities to accept bodyguards as a precaution against new IRA attacks.

The IRA apparently mounted a new attack Tuesday in Brussels. A bomb tore apart a stage on which a British army band was about to perform and Belgian police said 11 spectators and four bandmen were hurt.

Brussels Mayor Pierre van Halteren said the IRA claimed responsibility for that bombing in a telephone call to city hall. In the past, the IRA has been blamed for bombings of British army bases in West Germany, and for attacks aimed at British officials in Belgium and the Netherlands.

Pope John Paul, spiritual leader of the Roman Catholics who predominate in the IRA, condemned Monday's bombings of the Mountbatten boat and the truckload of soldiers in Northern Ireland.

"This act of shocking violence is an insult to human dignity and I firmly condemn it together with the other acts of violence yesterday that caused deaths and brought suffering to many families," the Pope

Question of rights

CALGARY (CP) — The proliferation of municipal bylaws governing body-rub parlors and sex shops raises some fundamental questions about civil liberties, a gathering of lawyers was told Tuesday.

Sheldon Chumir told the Canadian Bar Association that civil liberties are threatened by the increasing involvement of municipalities and provinces in public morality.

Recent rulings by the Supreme Court of Canada had broadened municipal and provincial control in this area and reflected a "fundamental shift in the division of powers between the federal and provincial governments."

Chumir said Canadians can expect to see more regulations on moral issues at the local and provincial level — a move that would have serious implications.

Civil liberties are more susceptible to abuse at the local level than the national level because of pressure from various small, but influential groups, said Brian Inlow, solicitor for the City of Calgary.

Chumir, a Calgary lawyer and secretary of the association's civil liberties section, told a seminar that many municipalities have passed bylaws aimed at controlling body-rub parlors "and perhaps, one might suspect, with the intent of making it so difficult to carry on business that the activities will cease."

"... curtailment of these activities reduces the scope of freedom which individuals enjoy to indulge in and be exposed to a variety of experiences, even though the majority of society may find such to be objectionable on moral grounds."

Chumir cited two recent rulings by the Supreme Court of Canada that reflect the shift in power.

A 1978 ruling allowing the Nova Scotia board of censors to prohibit the showing of the film Last Tango in Paris challenged the federal government's traditional exclusive right under criminal law to enact legislation dealing with public morality.

He suggested this might pave the way for further moves by provinces (and subsequently municipalities) into censorship of books and magazines and control over other moral issues such as prostitution.

"This is bad news from a civil-liberties point of view." But he added there is reason for optimism since the court's decision was narrow, 6-5, and a slight change in the thinking of the court might produce a new decision.

Municipalities could conceivably silence unpopular views by closing off the avenue of demonstrations as a means of political expression.

Terrance Bland, assistant director of legal services for the City of Vancouver, said municipalities will face increasing pressure as they deal with moral issues.

"We're just beginning to feel our muscles in this area."

Peace offer meets vow to crush rebels

TEHRAN (CP) — Kurdish peace delegates met with government representatives Tuesday, seeking a negotiated ceasefire and a recall of Ayatollah Sadeq Khalkali, who the Kurds say has ordered dozens of rebels executed.

said in a note of condolence to Queen Elizabeth.

The Pope is to visit the Irish Republic for three days beginning Sept. 29.

Protestant extremists in Northern Ireland threatened an angry backlash against the IRA.

The Mountbatten boat explosion also killed his 14-year-old grandson Nicholas and a young local boatman, Paul Maxwell. A fourth person aboard the boat died Tuesday from wounds. She was the Dowager Lady Doreen Brisbane, 82, mother-in-law of Mountbatten's daughter Lady Patricia Brabourne, who is in critical condition in hospital.

Two other injured survivors, however, showed some improvement. They are Patricia's husband, Lord Brabourne, 54, and Nicholas's twin brother, Timothy.

The violent attacks mark the 10th anniversary of the arrival of British troops in Northern Ireland to keep the peace between the Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Irish Prime Minister Jack Lynch, who is on vacation, said the IRA guerrillas "bring shame to all Irish people at home and abroad."

The Roman Catholic Primate of all-Ireland, Cardinal Tomas O'Fiaich, said in a statement from Rome: "These deeds bring disgrace to our country and give scandal to Christians everywhere."

The Irish Republic began what was described as its biggest-ever anti-terrorist operation, with troops joining police in the search for Mountbatten's assassins.

The border area was also searched for guerrillas who killed the 18 soldiers in the most devastating single blow against British troops in Northern Ireland.

A mine hidden in a load of hay exploded in the faces of a patrol at Warrenpoint. It was detonated by remote control, apparently from high ground across the border.

As reinforcements arrived by helicopter, there was a second explosion, killing Lt. Col. David Blair, commander of the Queen's Own Highlanders, a Scottish infantry regiment. He was the most senior British army officer to be killed by guerrilla violence in Northern Ireland during the last 10 years. The known death toll in the decade has reached 1,955.

In the attack on the soldiers, the IRA said it set off three-quarters of a ton of explosives by remote control. A vacationing Londoner named William Hudson, son of a coachman to the Queen, was accidentally shot to death when surviving soldiers opened fire.

Mountbatten will be buried privately at Ramsey Abbey, Hampshire, near his country estate of Broadlands, in southern England. He had already made his own funeral arrangements, asking all the 40 countries whose soldiers served under him during the Second World War to send representatives.

Earlier Tuesday, a senior member of Iran's Revolutionary Council said Khomeini has turned down a Kurdish peace offer and refused to endorse a negotiated ceasefire.

"The Imam (Khomeini) has made no concessions," Abolhassan Bani-Sadr told an interviewer.

Bani-Sadr said: "There is no justification whatsoever for the systematic subversion of minorities which want to impose violence on our people. As soon as they stop acting in this manner, brotherly Islamic co-operation can begin."

NEWS BRIEFS

BRUSSELS (AP) — A bomb blast for which the Irish Republican Army claimed responsibility tore through an open-air stage in the Belgian capital's historic Grand Place on Tuesday as a British army band was preparing to give a concert for tourists.

Eleven spectators and four bandmen were injured, none seriously. Mayor Pierre van Halteren said the IRA claimed responsibility for the bombing in a telephone call to Brussels city hall.

IRA terrorists have attacked other British targets in Belgium and the Netherlands in recent months.

The bombing here came a day after IRA bombs killed Earl Mountbatten and three others in the Irish republic and 18 British soldiers in Northern Ireland.

The militant provisional wing of the IRA, in the name of Northern Ireland's Roman Catholic minority, has been waging a terror campaign aimed at ending British rule in Northern Ireland and uniting the territory with the predominantly Roman Catholic Irish republic.

Search to begin again

SASKATOON (CP) — A search will resume Nov. 1 for a plane with four Canadian rodeo cowboys aboard missing since May 22 in the western United States.

A spokesman for the search fund established for the missing cowboys said today the decision to resume the search was made Monday by fund trustees in Calgary.

Missing are pilot Brian Clappold, 26, of Saskatoon, Lee Coleman, 20, of Pierceland, Sask., Gary Logan, 23, of Sundre, Alta., and Calvin Bunney, 19, of Duchess, Alta.

They were last seen May 22 refueling in Salem, Ore., on a flight to San Francisco, Las Vegas and other centres to compete in rodeo events. Extensive searches had failed to find them.

The spokesman said the fund has about $70,000 remaining. The fall search will probably be the last one, he said.

Parents can give okay

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — Washington parents may give their children permission to drink liquor, but the approval must be given afresh on every succeeding occasion, the attorney-general's office said Tuesday.

In an opinion requested by Sen. James McDermott, D-Seattle, deputy attorney-general Philip Austin said parental permission can be a defence if a third party — such as neighbor — is sued for allowing the under-age drinking to take place.

But Austin stressed that a state law permitting the parents to let their children drink does not allow minors to buy or drink alcohol in bars or taverns or to consume alcohol in public places.

He said parental permission is good for only one time and must be renewed, orally or in writing, each time the youth wants to drink.

Oil slick still threat

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) — A slick of runaway Mexican oil, 24 kilometres wide and at least 48 kilometres long, threatened further devastation Tuesday to the already-crippled Texas coastal tourist industry.

The edge of the oil was in the surf Tuesday, along the Mexican coast immediately south of Brownsville, Tex. It was being driven northward onto the Texas shoreline by the remains of a tropical depression in northern Mexico.

Scientists said they do not know the exact size of the oil slick. Because of the bad weather, reconnaissance pilots could see only 48 kilometres of it.

Dr. Nancy Maynard, a scientist with the U.S. government's task force battling history's worst oil spill, said the crude should blacken the already-damaged tourist beaches along the entire southern Texas coast for the next few days.

The tourist industry at both ends of Padre Island has been hit hard by the huge spill from a still-spewing offshore Mexican well.

Stanfield won't meet

OTTAWA (CP) — Robert Stanfield has no plans to meet the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO) during his factfinding mission to the Middle East, a spokesman for the former Progressive Conservative leader said Tuesday.

The spokesman would not say whether a meeting with the PLO has been ruled out or whether a meeting has just not yet been considered.

Canadian Arab Federation representatives told Stanfield last week that he must speak to the PLO if he wants to hear all points of view on the government's proposal to move the Canadian embassy in Israel from Tel Aviv to Jerusalem.

Federation president Khaled Mouammar said Stanfield indicated then he had not yet decided who he would be meeting.

Stanfield, to leave in mid-September, has said his itinerary is incomplete, and has released no details of the trip.

The spokesman said Stanfield has "entered into contacts with governments" to arrange for the tour. "But he has made no plans to visit the PLO."

Mouammar said Stanfield's tour would not be complete without a meeting with the PLO because the Palestinian people are at the root of the Arab-Israeli conflict and the PLO is their only representative.

Lawyers to use TV ads

WINNIPEG (CP) — A Winnipeg law firm is embarking on an advertising campaign in what is believed to be the first use of television to promote a law firm in Canada.

The ads for McRoberts and Henderson begin today and will be shown regionally 45 times over the next month. They were prepared by the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. and approved Aug. 14 by the Manitoba Law Society.

In most provinces advertising by law firms is banned, Bob McRoberts, a partner in the firm, said in an interview. He said that of all the provinces Manitoba has the most liberal attitude towards advertising.

"Basically we're marketing a service like anyone else," he said. "We tried a couple of ads in local papers. As far as new clients were concerned, we don't think newspapers do much to help."

McRoberts said that because of the conservative nature of the law profession the ad "is pretty low key."

Nordair offers to pay

WINNIPEG (CP) — Nordair has offered to pay additional costs incurred by several Northwest Territories residents who had to change travel plans when their original return flight was cancelled.

The passengers had return tickets aboard a Transair flight from Winnipeg to Hall Beach and Igloolik, but Transair's licence for the flight was cancelled Monday. They had to travel to Montreal to return home on a Nordair flight.

The licence was revoked by the Canadian transport commission after Nordair said it had not been properly issued and that there was not enough business to support two carriers on the run.

Residents happy with plan

By ED YUDIN
Herald Staff Writer

Birch Avenue residents appear satisfied with the Terrace district council's recommendation to rezone lot A-1 into residential land-providing council's plans to improve the water supply system and pave the Birch Avenue hill are carried out.

"I'm satisfied if they do everything they promised to do," says Hugh Power, a Birch Avenue resident who attended the rezoning hearing on Monday.

"They pretty well covered everything we had asked for." Power is especially happy he won't have to pay for most of the improvements undertaken, such as the conversion of the one-inch water pipes to regulation size.

"The only thing we'll have to pay for is the paving of the road in front of our houses, which everybody pays for anyways," he adds.

After concluding the two session special hearing, council deliberated for 20 minutes and came up with the following plan.

That the 18 lots designated as rural land be rezoned into residential lots.

The water system for Birch Avenue residents be brought up to National Firefighter Standards.

Included was a recommendation that a looping of the water system be planned in the future. Council will also ask B.C. Hydro to provide a separate independent circuit to allow pumping of additional water should a local fire occur.

The one inch piping, which has resulted in low water pressure in some homes on Birch Avenue, be upgraded.

The paving of the Birch Avenue Hill from Park to Apsley be undertaken by the district, as well access to the mountain trail be provided through some of the property.

Another resident, Audrey Cox, is pleased though still a little apprehensive.

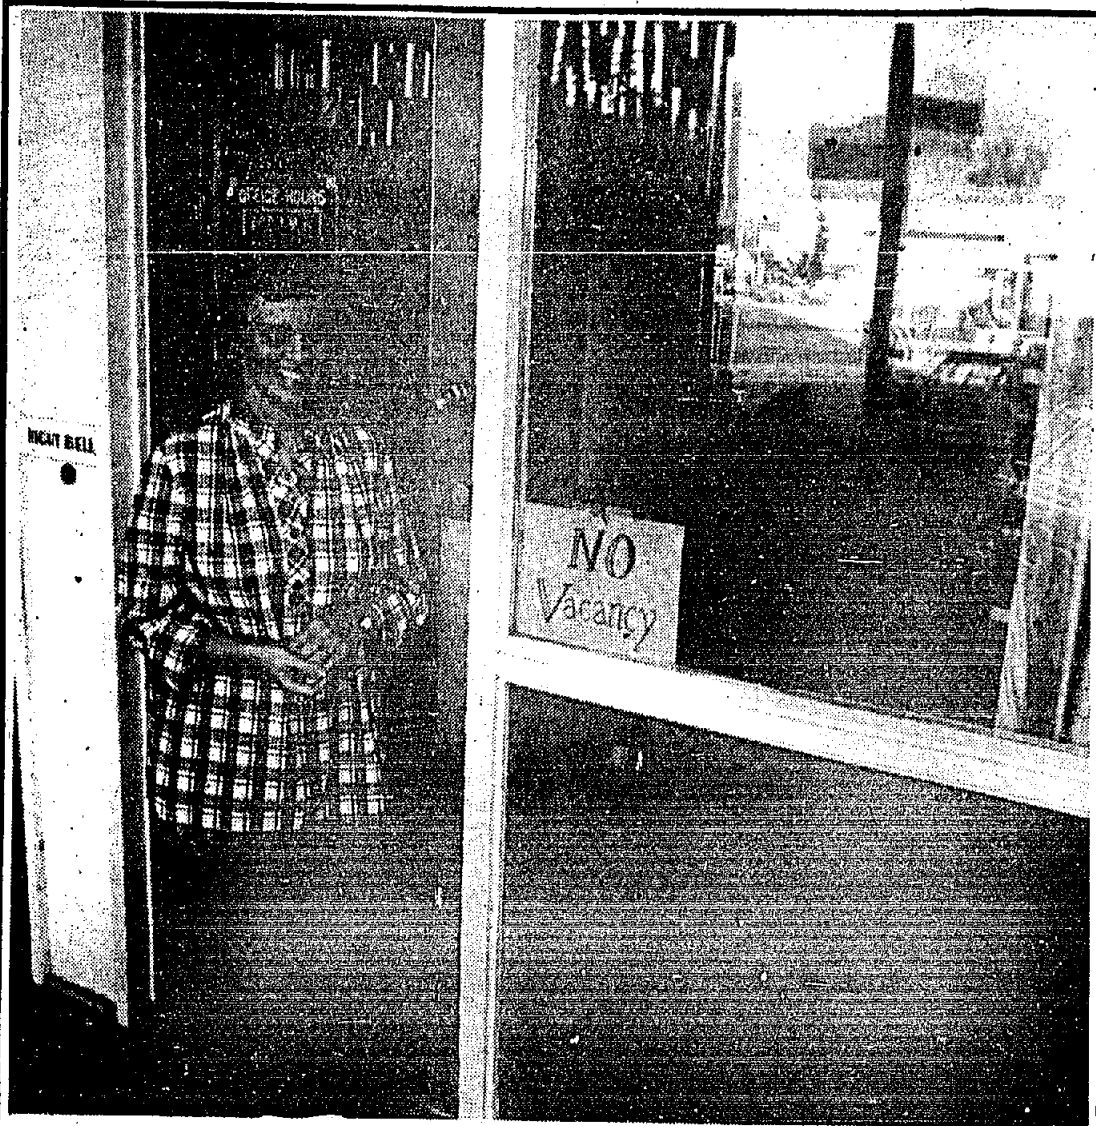

"I'm not dissatisfied, provided they carried it (the recommendations) out as planned. I just wonder how many years it will take," she commented.

Cox is pleased the roads will be paved, and expressed a concern that the water pressure be increased. She notes there was insufficient water available when there was a fire at B.C. Tel some time ago.

Not all the Terrace aldermen were pleased with the manner in which council deliberated for 20 minutes in closed session. Alderman Helmut Giesbrecht walked out of the closed door session. He said that since it was a public hearing, everything should be upfront and in the open. Giesbrecht wants it noted on the record that he didn't attend the closed meeting.

The recommendations issued at Monday's meeting will be voted on at the next session of council. However, the voting is a simple matter of formal endorsement. Mayor Dave Maroney, absent from Monday's session, is expected to be on hand.

Slumber Lodge expanding

By ED YUDIN
Herald Staff Writer

The Slumber Lodge Development Corporation will spend close to $1 million to renovate its Terrace facility.

Construction of an indoor pool, additional rooms, and a new wing to expand restaurant facilities is tentatively scheduled to begin Oct. 16, according to Ollie Dzioba, a head office administrator for the Slumber Lodge chain in Vancouver.

"We thought now was the time to expand," said Dzioba in a telephone interview. "We found that a lot of our regular commercial travellers here (Terrace) have to book far ahead for accommodation. We've enjoyed relatively good occupancy in our Terrace facility."

To finance the $950,000 project, Slumber Lodge applied to the Travel Industry Development Subsidary Agreement (TIDSA) a jointly administered federal and provincial government program.

"We have applied to them (TIDSA) and though nothing has been signed yet, I understand $250,000 is the figure they have offered. It certainly makes it easier to decide to expand, with interest rates being what they are these days," commented Dzioba.

The provincial government has announced it would be offering Slumber Lodge $200,000 in the form of a low interest loan and an additional $50,000 forgivable loan, under the TIDSA program. The application for government assistance had been made before a change in ownership in the Slumber Lodge chain. Western Dominion Investment Ltd., a subsidiary of Argus Corporation acquired the motel chain at the beginning of August.

Dzioba would not say if the expansion of the Terrace facility would be part of a general expansion throughout the motel chain. However, David Radler, the new President of Slumber Lodge Development Corporation Ltd. has been quoted in the Province as saying the idea is being considered, according to Dzioba. There are 16 Slumber Lodges in British Columbia.

The plans are for adding 29 units to the Terrace Slumber Lodge. The restaurant will be located in a new wing and will include seating for 45 as well as a coffee shop to accommodate 25 others. In addition there will be a holding bar for 15 others. The indoor swimming pool will be built in the new wing to be located adjacent to the existing structure on Lakelse Avenue.

The architect for the project, Greg Lutz of Architects North in Terrace is in Vancouver finalizing the plans. Bids for the construction should be put out by mid-September.

"So far we are aware of three contractors interested in bidding for the project," said Dzioba. "Two are from the Terrace area, a third from Vancouver. We are leaning towards giving it to a Terrace contractor, so we won't necessarily accept the lowest bid."

The renovations should be finished by mid-April. He says the project is a viable one, and with the facility expanding, hopes to run bus tours from the Slumber Lodge next summer.

COUNCIL BRIEFS

Terrace district council has proclaimed the first week of September as Labour Week. The request for such an announcement came from Paul Johnston, the general secretary of the Kitimat-Terrace and District Labour Council. Numerous communities throughout Canada designate the first week in September as Labour Week to coincide with the Labour Day holiday.

In other business a letter from Gordon Harris, a resident of Agar Avenue, expressing his concern over safety hazards at the Agar and Kiddies Park was received by council. Harris says speeding motorists driving by the playground near his home have killed at least five dogs and injured one child. He asks council to erect proper warning signs and advise the RCMP to patrol the area.

With Terrace Mayor Dave Maroney on vacation, acting mayor Alan Soutar asked council to refer Harris' requests to committee for study.

The East Indian community in Terrace will receive a tax break. Terrace council granted the Sikh Temple at 4914 McDeek a property tax exemption.

While plans for a transit system for Terrace are still in the embryo stage, council members have been invited to an informal discussion on the matter by members of the Urban Transit Authority of British Columbia. Trail mayor Charles Lakes and Kelowna alderman Fred Macklin have asked council to send representatives to a luncheon in Vancouver September 6. The informal session will be one of orientation and discussion both of Terrace's plans and the activities of the Urban Transit Authority. The Fun Fest held in Terrace in June was by all accounts a huge success. Mary-Margaret Smith of the Terrace Parks and Recreation Department presented council with a commemorative album of the event. Terrace council received the book for its archives.

Water shortage fear

ARMSTRONG, B.C. (CP) — The long, hot, dry summer is putting the heat on local authorities to find an alternative source of water.

There's a serious water shortage in this small interior community which could cause unpleasant problems later this year, Mayor Marvin Kirton said Tuesday.

Kirton said the situation is the worst he's ever seen and, if there isn't rain soon, the community will be in "real trouble this fall and winter."

Council has ordered an immediate ban on all lawn and garden sprinkling in the community of 2,700 about 25 kilometres north of the city of Vernon.

Authorities said a 66 per cent reduction in the snow pack last spring has caused many of the problems.

POLICE NEWS

Terrace RCMP report that Terrace resident Keith Oma Stewart is facing a charge of refusing to provide a breath sample after an incident in which a car flipped over into a ditch on Queensway.

A police spokesman said he had no details concerning the amount of damage to the vehicle involved in the incident which occurred at about 4:40 am Tuesday. He said an investigation is still underway.

The Herald has, however, learned police were seeking Stewart after a prowler was reported and were looking for the vehicle they found in the ditch as a stolen car.

Theft of auto charges are being contemplated the police department spokesman confirmed.

Police also say they have no details on damage yet after a vehicle went into the ditch at the corner of Clark Street and Highway 16 East.

Brian Daniel Elliot, however, is facing charges of impaired driving and driving while under suspension as a result of the incident.

Terrace Herbert Kerr is reported facing impaired driving charges as is Flora Irene Barnett. Two other Terrace drivers were handed 24-hour suspensions.

Kitimat RCMP say a car driven by Diane Coyer of Kitimat on Haisla collided with a 72 Ford driven by Randall Smith also of Kitimat. RCMP report no injuries to either party. There was about 1,200 damage total. The mishap occurred Monday morning at 9:30 A.M.

RCMP also report that a set of hubcaps was stolen from a new ford at Snow Valley Ford in Kitimat. Apparently the theft occurred sometime Monday Night, but was not discovered until midafternoon Tuesday.

This country has a substantial prison population. In the last few years hostage takings, prison violence and the controversy over the need for prison reform has been making news in Canada's newspapers.

Canadian Press, the national news gathering co-operative to which Canada's daily newspapers subscribe and contribute, has taken a look at the prison system in this country.

In the Investigations Canadian Press reporters conducted they found that while the riots which dominated the front pages of newspapers three years ago are not common now, the undercurrent of tension which resulted in the violence which threatened Canada's prison system is still there.

As a special feature to Terrace readers we will be running the Canadian Press feature on prisons over the next two weeks.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Dear Sir:
Reader Martyn (August 20) misses the point of my letter, and also shows that he does not understand writer-philosopher Ayn Rand's Objectivism.

In my letter, I pointed out the hypocrisy of the average professor. For example: he protests Tordon 23 K, but smokes cancer causing cigarettes and eats cancer causing broiled steaks. He protests the American Amchika atomic blast, but pretends not to notice a 'dirty' Chinese atomic test. He is, knowingly or unknowingly, a tool of the Communist conspiracy.

Mr. Martyn refers to '... writer, Ayn Rand...' Miss Rand is primarily a philosopher, one of the best this world has produced. If anyone takes the time and effort (as I have) to read and understand Miss Rand's philosophy, and the reasoning behind it, he would find it very difficult to be a socialist, ever again; or to go through life with a persistent guilt feeling, indignation and nurtured, as Miss Rand writes, by the moochers, tyrants and socialists of the world. He would, instead, become a free, optimistic and positive person. Selfishness, one of life's basic forces, was not, as Mr. Martyn suggests, invented by Ayn Rand, but has been with us since the beginning of Man's existence.

The 'capitalist takeover' which Mr. Martyn mentions, certainly escaped me. I have been observing for many years a takeover by government with its attendant bungling and foot-dragging and costly bureaucracy. I have noticed a steady increase in taxes and government interference. That I call socialism. Where is the capitalist takeover?

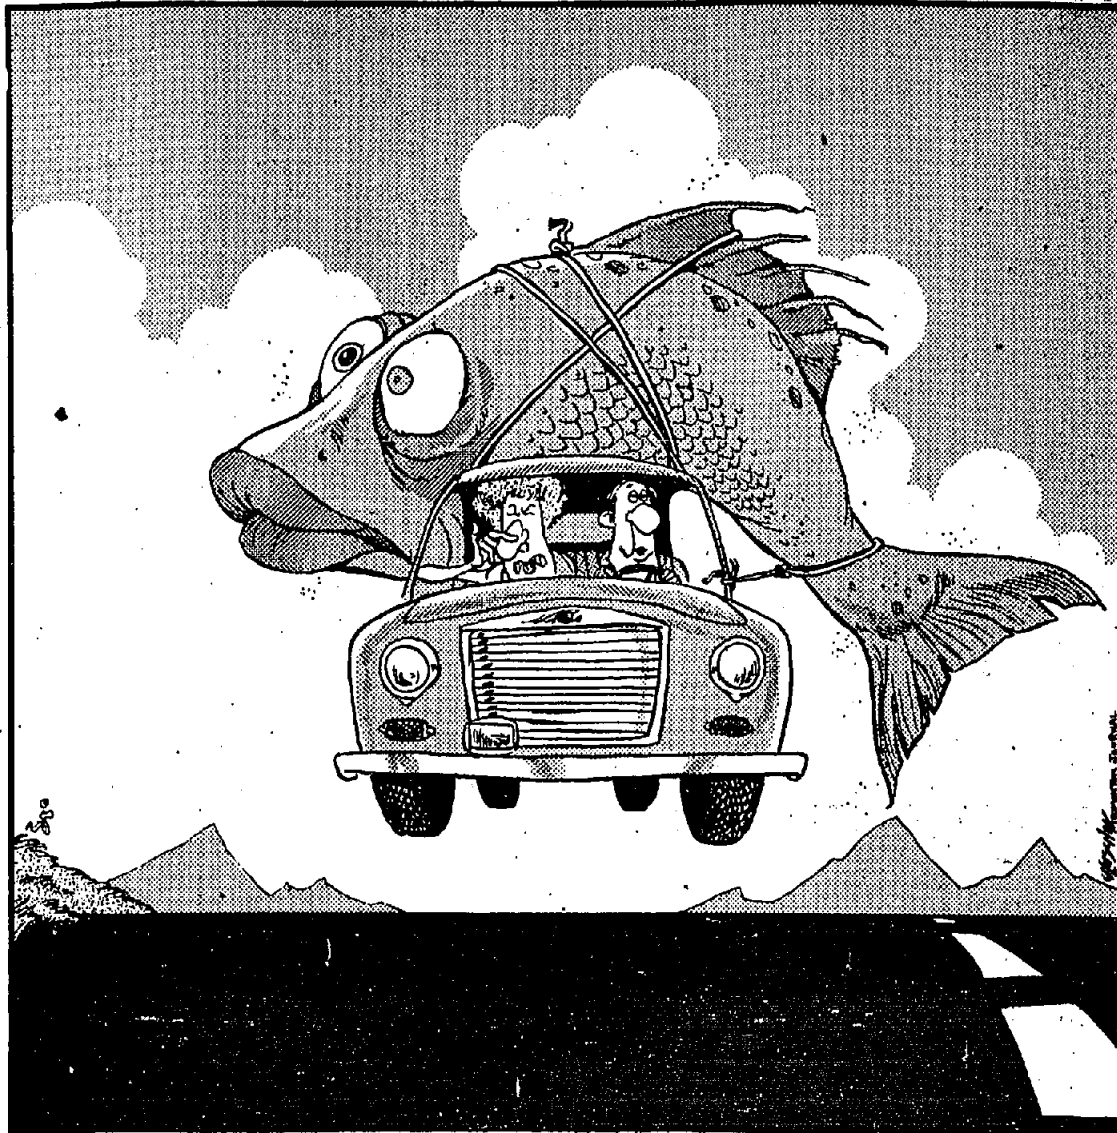

Please spare us your Bible quotations, Mr. Martyn. Shakespeare correctly stated that 'the Devil quotes Scripture.' Most socialists do, also. It is my opinion that socialism is about as far from Christianity as one can get.

Yours truly,
Thomas Atrill

BRITAIN MOURNS

Killing shocks, baffles

LONDON (CP) — Shock and grief came first, then declarations of despair, rage and revenge.

And now that these emotions have quietened, Britons are asking, "What happens now?"

The news rolled across the country like an earthquake.

It was just after lunch when radio and television programs were interrupted on a sunny August bank holiday to report the death of Earl Mountbatten of Burma in a boat explosion.

A couple of hours later came an after-shock as Irish terrorists claimed that what had appeared as a tragic accident had really been an assassination.

And the shocks kept coming.

First, there was the news that one of Mountbatten's young grandsons had died with him. The boy's twin brother was critically injured and possibly blinded. Then there was further numbing news that 18 British soldiers had died in an ambush in another terrorist sack on the border in Northern Ireland.

A weeping John Barratt, Mountbatten's personal secretary, exclaimed: "May the IRA rot in hell, the bastards!"

The blunt headline in The Daily Express condemned the IRA: "These evil bastards."

The Star's headline read: "Murdering bastards."

The inside pages were more subdued.

"From this tragedy, we may perhaps allow ourselves one hope," said The Evening News. "Horror on this scale may at least be a wedge driven between the Irish people and the IRA."

"If the public abhorrence, reinforced by these latest outrages, can at last be mobilized, then there will be no safe houses for the terrorists, no sanctuary on either side of the border, no more arms funds from America."

David Buchan, political editor of The Star, concluded that "Ireland now is closer than ever to all-out civil war. Assassination of a member of the British Royal Family could spark off a Protestant backlash of unprecedented scale ..."

"One thing can be certain. There is no question of the Pope venturing north of the border during his Irish visit next month. There could even be a question mark over the Pope's trip as a whole."

The staid Financial Times said the assassination could "strain the already sensitive relations between London and Dublin over security."

"It is to be hoped, rather than expected, that this brutal killing of a man in his 80th year will 'give some pause to the IRA sympathizers, particularly in the United States." The Financial Times said.

In the meantime, the lunatic fringe was in full cry. A veteran living in Mountbatten's home village of Romsey, Kent, was quoted in a news broadcast as advocating a vigilante army of old sweats "to go over there and clean them out."

A caller to a phone-in radio show suggested sending every Irish-born person in Britain back to Ulster and turning Northern Ireland into one vast concentration camp under military rule.

The Daily Telegraph warned: "No doubt the IRA would be gratified if Britain were to respond, uncharacteristically, by launching some sort of wild vendetta against the Roman Catholic population."

"It would still be more gratified, however, if Britain were to respond by doing nothing at all."

IN SPORTS

Apartheid takes punch

(AP) — Less than two months from now, millions of television viewers abroad will be able to see whites and blacks sitting together for a major sporting event in South Africa.

John Tate, a black American, will meet Gerrie Coetzee, a white South African, for the World Boxing Association heavyweight title recently vacated by Muhammad Ali.

For a country where the 19-million black majority has no political rights and must use segregated toilets, transportation, housing, movie theatres, hotels and restaurants, the sight of whites and blacks watching the fight together will presumably do much to improve South Africa's tarnished image abroad.

But despite the rosy predictions by promoters that this fight means the beginning of the end of apartheid in sport here, the truth appears to be somewhat different.

The Oct. 20 fight is being held in the normally segregated 70,000-seat Loftus Versfeld rugby stadium in Pretoria, the national capital. For the bout, the city council and the local rugby union have declared that the stadium will have "international" status — a South African term for integrated.

The granting of "international" status to certain public facilities often makes it difficult for visitors to see segregation first-hand.

national departure and arrivals section of Jan Smuts Airport here has integrated dining and toilet facilities. The domestic section is segregated.

While the white newspapers here have made much of integration of seating for the Tate-Coetzee fight, other sports stories in the same papers indicate that apartheid is far from dead in South African sport.

This week one of the country's best soccer teams was kicked out of a Johannesburg hotel which lacks "international" status, because most of the team is black. The team was also refused permission to play a match against another predominantly black team at a segregated sports stadium in Witbank — the home of Punt Janson, the South African minister of sport.

Also this week, two top black runners were reported to have been kicked off a bus carrying white athletes to a cross-country meet.

Prominent blacks here have already said they will boycott the Tate-Coetzee fight because integration at the stadium will be temporary, cosmetic and designed to impress television viewers and the several hundred foreign journalists expected to cover the bout.

When U.S. boxing promoter Bob Arum was here recently, Janson announced that the white minority government favored "equal opportunity" in sport — but he was quick to add that the government didn't plan to force integration through legislation.

A newspaper quoted him as saying, in a separate statement: "If they (whites) don't want to sit next to a black man, I'm not going to force them to."

OTTAWA OFFBEAT

BY RICHARD JACKSON

Ottawa — The first battle Prime Minister Joe Clark's Conservatives must win in the war to turn around — or at least defend from further loss — the retreating economy, is with the public service.

And the public knows it. Initial tactics being employed in the opening skirmish by both sides are threats.

The prime minister's field commander, Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens, so far has resorted only to the fright weapon of the "freeze."

The staff freeze, that is, holding the unit-line on the ever-bulging public service swollen to a gross 450,000-plus.

That's a huge force for a country of 23 million taxpayers to support in the indexed-pensioned, job-secured comfort to which the public service has become accustomed.

It imposes a staggering payroll and personnel expense approaching if not already exceeding an annual $11 billion.

Union officials have a very personal stake in its growth.

Their power and personal income depend on an ever-increasing number of union members and dues.

They don't have to care about inflation — as long as it doesn't run so wild the economy goes over disaster's edge — because cost-of-living clauses in many collective agreements and indexed pensions insulate them against the peril jeopardizing the future of unprotected taxpayers.

So the union is into a campaign of double intimidation against Sinclair Stevens and against the taxpayers.

Andrew Stewart, president of the Public Service Alliance, the nation's biggest union, is threatening the government through the taxpayers.

The threats are fiendishly selective. The union hints of Sinclair Stevens' "freeze" so paralyzing the public service that certain of its services — essential to those who depend, in part or whole, upon them — will have to be dropped.

Like the preparation and mailing of pension cheques.

The processing of family allowances. Distribution of veterans' allowances.

No good any more of the unions threatening to stop the mail. They've done that so often nobody can be sure that it really has started up again. In anything like dependable, will ever be on time, or just possibly disintegrate so in non-service that private couriers will have to pick up and reassemble the pieces.

So the threats are directed against those who are vulnerable, the elderly, the children, the veterans, the handicapped.

Such a propaganda campaign of intimidation clearly is calculated to frighten the government into abandoning another of its election promises.

So the question later may be asked as has been asked through the years in Britain until Margaret Thatcher, "The Iron Maiden," took over: who runs the country, the government and the people or the unions?

The maddening thing is that the size of the public service is not controlled by the actual need of people to fill positions.

Government jobs are ephemeral things created as seen to be required by an ambitious cabinet minister determined to widen his sphere of power, aided by a deputy and departmental directors equally dedicated to expanding their influence and control.

None of them — deputy or department messenger — are real people. They are numbers on a chart called "person-years" fitted into a budget that artificially inflated when first drawn so that it can be reduced if the pressure is enough.

ATRILL THINKS

By THOMAS ATRILL

What do you know about 'Women's Lib'?

You probably know that it is a movement which aims to remove any inequalities between men and women; equal pay for equal work and, generally, a place in the sun for all women.

I, too, believed that the movement meant well, although I could not see how some of the goals could be achieved. Neither could I get used to the term "liberation," when it is common knowledge that women in general are not subjugated in any way. It struck me as a Communist term.

Then I discovered and read 'Assault On The Sexes,' by Jim and Andrea Fordham, an extremely interesting book; an expose of the Feminist Movement.

Well documented, this book shows how the news has been managed, censored and distorted in order to promote the aims of Women's Lib. It shows how statistics are doctored and parts left out; it tells about certain facts that are deliberately omitted because they are damaging to the new idea of Invincible Women. It tells about how Marx and Lenin believed in and advocated the unisex idea, for obvious reasons.

But, perhaps most important of all, it shows how the family is to be abolished and in its place we will have daycare provided by the state, to allow both men and women to work full time. Why this double paycheque should be necessary is not indicated, except that it becomes obvious that under the new (socialist) regime, with the inevitable inflation, higher prices, and state inefficiency, it would take two people working to maintain the standard of living that was previously possible with the husband only holding a job.

According to the authors, the vast majority of American women do not back the feminist movement. Nonetheless, they are being used in many subtle ways to promote feminist ideas. Women activists are now in high places in almost all U.S. institutions, rewriting laws, textbooks and anything else that they consider to be 'sexist'. The authors report that a movement that is believed by many to represent goals and aims that no one should condemn, is in fact working for the destruction of our way of life, and the substitution in its place of a communal system, perhaps Communism itself.

I urge you to read it, whether you are a man or a woman. (It is published by Arlington House Publishing, New Rochelle, N.Y. U.S.A.)

Esks take Argos

EDMONTON (CP) — The born-again defence of Toronto Argonauts kept Edmonton Eskimos back for slightly more than two quarters, but the defending Grey Cup champions overcame offensive problems, including six interceptions, to defeat the Argos 26-13 in a Canadian Football League game Tuesday night.

Starting quarterback Tom Wilkinson threw touchdown passes to Waddell Smith, John Konihowski and Tommy Scott, and Dave Cutler kicked field goals from 51 and 32 yards out, added a 46-yard single on a missed field goal attempt and converted the touchdown.

Toronto's Peter Muller scored the only Argonaut touchdown after a second-quarter turnover. Ian Sunter kicked field goals of 43 and 13 yards and converted the lone touchdown.

The Argos trailed 13-10 at the half, but the capacity crowd of 42,778 began breathing a little easier when the hometown club started running-up the score in the second half.

Edmonton maintained its unbeaten record at five wins and two ties in seven starts and Toronto dropped to a 4-3 record.

The Eskimos threw away the ball a total of six times during the game, with Wilkinson giving up four interceptions and Warren Moon, who saw action for about 20 minutes, throwing two.

The usually composed Wilkinson seemed to have trouble in the opening half as the Eskimos usually crisp offence was blunted by Toronto's alert defence.

Except for an occasional long game, the Argos corralled Edmonton's premier running back Jim Germany, and receivers Smith, Scott and Konihowski came up with most of Edmonton's airborne yardage.

But almost from the second-half gun, they began to look like the old Eskimos as Germany broke through the so-far solid Toronto front line and Wilkinson, who relieved Moon again in the third quarter, began finding receivers like Smith and rookie Brian Kelly.

The Argos offence on the other hand sputtered throughout the game and the top-rated men like Terry Metcalf, Dwight Edwards and Mike Harris proved only intermittently effective.

Toronto's only touchdown was set up by a defensive turnover.

Toronto's offence was hurt early in the game when the Argos' rookie running back Mike McArthur, who hurt his shoulder on the opening kickoff and aggravated it on his first carry of the game. He left the game in the first quarter and didn't return.

Edmonton punt returner Gregg Butler fumbled an Ian Sunter kick on the Eskimo five in the second quarter and defensive back Billy Hardee came up with the ball.

terback Tony Adams caught Muller in the end zone for a fieldgoal with no time remaining in the first quarter. Cutler missed on his first try from 51 yards out, but an offside penalty against Toronto gave him another, this time successful, crack at the three points.

The Eskimos' first major score came on a six-play march from their 48, ending with a 19-yard pass-and-run play to Smith in the opening quarter.

to be its first-half edge on a fieldgoal with no time remaining in the first quarter. Cutler missed on his first try from 51 yards out, but an offside penalty against Toronto gave him another, this time successful, crack at the three points.

Three gang up on Phillies pitcher

Joe Morgan, Ray Knight and Dan Driessen hit home runs off Steve Carlton to carry Cincinnati Reds to a 5-2 victory over Philadelphia Phillies on Tuesday night.

The victory moved the Reds into first place in the National League West over Houston Astros, who had held that spot since May 30. The Astros dropped a half-game behind after a 7-6 loss to Montreal Expos.

Rookie Frank Pastore, 3-6, was the winner with relief help from Tom Hume, who gained his 11th save as the Reds won their seventh straight game. Carlton's record dropped to 13-11.

Garry Maddox put the Phillies in front with his 12th homer of the season in the second inning. Cincinnati tied the game on Morgan's homer in the fourth, then went ahead when Knight homered leading off the fifth.

The Reds scored three more times in the sixth on Driessen's three-run blast, his 15th homer of the season.

Pastore gave up only five hits in 7 2-3 innings while striking out three and walking one.

Warren Cromartie drove in four runs, including one with a bases-loaded walk in the ninth to lead Montreal over Houston. Cromartie earlier had a three-run double.

Elsewhere in the NL, righthander Phil Niekro drove in two runs and gained his 17th victory as Atlanta Braves defeated New York Mets 6-4.

Rick Reuschel gained his 16th victory with ninth-inning help from relief ace Bruce Sutter as Chicago Cubs whipped San Diego Padres 3-1.

In American League action, Jerry Morales drove in three runs with a double and single while Champ Summers, Alan Trammell and Jason Thompson homered as Detroit Tigers bombed California Angels 12-2. Ross Baumgarten pitched seven strong innings and Chicago White Sox profited from four Boston errors in defeating the Red Sox 7-3.

Al Oliver hit a homer, double and two singles and Willie Montanez rapped a tie-breaking single and a three-run homer as Texas Rangers exploded for a 10-2 triumph over New York Yankees. Gorman Thomas, Sixto Lezcano and Don Money drove in two runs apiece as Milwaukee Brewers crushed Kansas City 11-6 and snapped the Royals' five-game winning streak. Jim Essian cracked a three-run homer and Rob Piccolo drove in two runs and scored twice as Oakland A's defeated Toronto Blue Jays 6-3.

Two AL games were washed out by rain — Seattle at Cleveland and Baltimore at Minnesota.

JR GOLF

First holes count

WINNIPEG (CP) — The 190 golfers competing today at the start of the Canadian junior championship must make their moves on the first five holes if they hope to conquer the Breezy Bend Country Club layout, says club professional Sandy Paterson.

"The first five holes comprise two short par fours, two reachable par fives and a relatively short par three," Paterson said.

"With the calibre of golf expected in this year's tournament, I think we will see many of the boys under par after these holes."

Players who fail to meet that challenge after five holes might struggle to remain in contention through the next nine, but they'll need to be in form when they step up to the tee at No. 15.

"The 15th, 16th, 17th and 18th have ruined many a fine round," says Paterson. "To get over the last four in par or one over would be very satisfactory."

Paterson predicts the champion of the tournament, which ends Sunday, will finish with a four-round total of 291 or 292 on the par-72 course.

If the players are plagued by windy conditions, says local amateur Bill Parker, 300 could be a winning score.

As well as playing for individual honors, a four-man provincial junior team also will be decided. The team title will be determined by total scores at the end of the first two rounds.

Top juvenile honors also will be up for grabs.

Quebec, attempting to defend its 1978 team victory, will be led by Eric Kaufmanis, who was third in the junior competition last year and won the juvenile crown in 1977. Kaufmanis is among the favorites for the individual junior title.

Ontario is led by its junior champion Rick Sepp, who won the national juvenile competition last year. Rick Gibson, who made both the junior and senior teams in British Columbia this year, carries that project with hopes.

Marc Chamberland, Manitoba's sensational 15-year-old, is also a strong contender for the junior title, left open by the graduation of last year's champion, Dan Maue of Ontario, to the senior ranks.

Chamberland isn't participating in the team competition because he was at a world junior tournament in the United States when the Manitoba four were chosen. He qualified to play for the individual juvenile and junior awards through his play in the recent Manitoba Amateur.

Players with the lowest 70 scores, including ties, will make the cut after two rounds. The fairways of the 6,506-yard course have been narrowed and the rough will be long for the tournament.

Paterson says he expects the greens will be fast.

Whitecaps goal cautious

VANCOUVER (CP) — Goalkeeper Phil Parkes of Vancouver Whitecaps has adopted a cautious attitude about tonight's North American Soccer League playoff game here against New York Cosmos.

Parkes, the leading keeper this season with a regular-season average of just under a goal a game, is considered the key to Vancouver's chances in the National Conference final.

"When it comes to the playoffs, it's a whole new thing," Parkes said Tuesday. "The previous records can go out the window."

"The Cosmos are the best team in the league — everyone knows that."

Vancouver defeated New York twice during the regular season, 4-1 here and 4-2 in New York. The second match was marred by a wild, 15-minute brawl which saw four players kicked out of the game.

"We've probably got a better record against the Cosmos than any other club in the league," Parkes said. "We've won five out of six games against them since Vancouver came into the league in 1974."

"And, the one time they beat us (3-2 at New York), was on that diabolical penalty kick (awarded to Georgia Chinaglia for a tripping infraction against Parkes) last year."

"We know all about them and they know all about us. I think they respect what we've got here and will be ready for us. You saw what they did to Tulsa on the weekend."

New York and Vancouver both lost the first game of their semi-final series on the road. The Cosmos then beat Tulsa Roughnecks 3-0 and 3-1 at home, while the Whitecaps twice blanked Los Angeles Aztecs here by 1-0 scores.

The Cosmos, NASL champions the last two years, had a 24-4 record this season while Vancouver was 20-10, both winning their divisions. The winner of this series — the second game will be Saturday in New York in the best-of-three set — meets the winner of the Tampa Bay Rowdies-San Diego Sockers series.

New York arrived Tuesday by private executive jet without midfielder Johann Neeskens and defender Wim Rijsbergen, both injured against Tulsa.

Vancouver also has injury problems, with winger Carl Valentine, striker Trevor Whymark and midfielder Jon Samuels on the limp.

A sellout crowd of more than 32,000 is assured at Empire Stadium.

Wind leaves sailors sit

KINGSTON, Ont. (CP) — Sailors without wind are like hockey players without ice, so when the breezes died away Tuesday afternoon, so did the Canadian Olympic Regatta, Kingston.

Organizers, who have been trying, unsuccessfully for the most part, to run two races a day, cancelled the afternoon racing as the boats drifted on Lake Ontario without a breath to stir their sails.

"We sort of figured it was going to fill in," shrugged Hank Connell, co-ordinator of sailing for the regatta. "In the afternoon, the wind dropped and then backed around. When it does that, you might as well count on nothing."

Connell noted that the regatta rules say there must be a minimum of four races to make the regatta.

"We should have had six races off by now."

Three of the nine classes have run four times. The others have three races in. Some of the lighter boats are able to get around in winds that leave heavier craft wallowing in the swell.

Bill Ewing of Monmouth Beach, N.J., steered to his third straight win in the Albacore class to take a commanding hold on the standings.

Karen McCrae of Orillia is second in the class, with Mike Glew of Sarnia third.

In the Flying Dutchman class, Jamie Kidd of Toronto steered to his second win of the regatta to take the lead in the class standings.

He moved ahead of Mike Loeb of New Haven, Conn., who dropped to second spot. Terry McLaughlin of Toronto moved up to third place.

In the Finn class, the Americans at the top of the standings juggled their placings. Paul Vanclave of Annapolis, Md., moved into first place over-all ahead of Kirt Miller of Hermosa Beach, Calif. Ted Houck, also of Annapolis, dropped to third place.

In the 470 class, Tam Matthews of Toronto maintained his hold on first place. Allan Lindsey of Miami is second, but Jerry Roufs of Montreal, moved into third place by winning his first race of the week.

William Allen of Highland Park, Ill., remained in first place in the Soling standings. Peter Ialer of Rowayton, Conn., had his first win of the regatta to move to second spot and Glen Darden of Fort Worth, Tex., was third.

American sailors also dominated the Tornado standings.

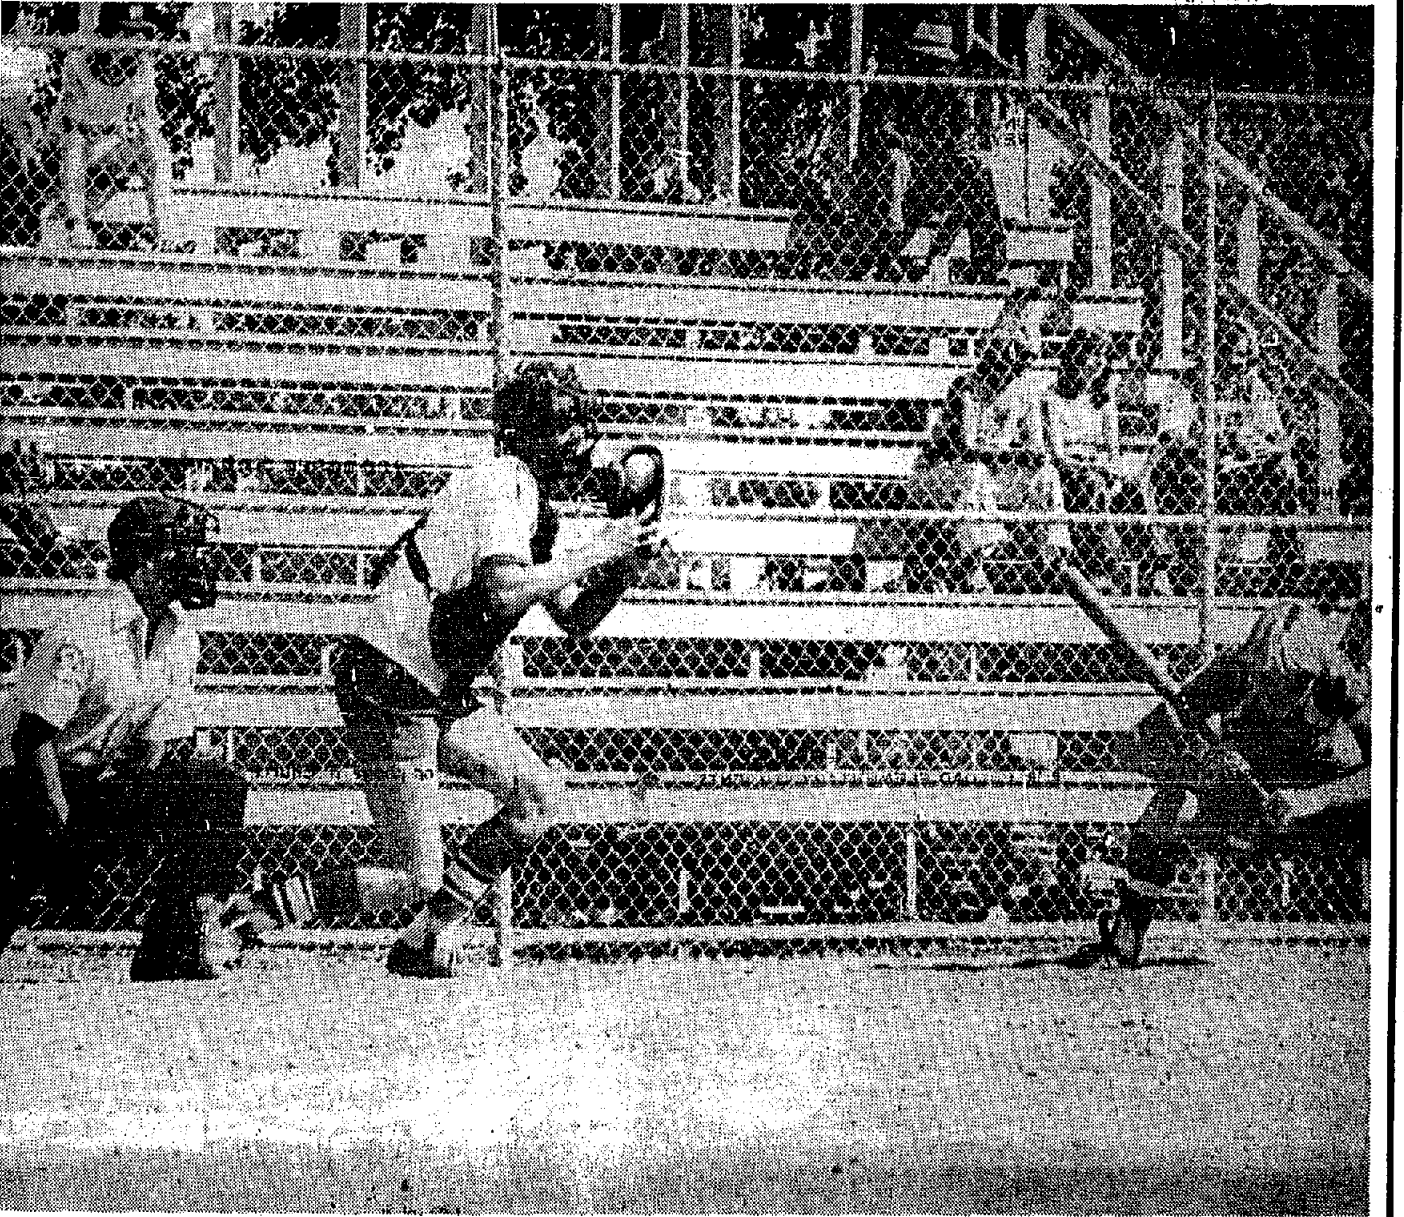

Ranny Smythe of Huntington Beach, Calif., was in first place, with Henry Bossett of Point Pleasant Beach, N.J. second and Joan Ellis of Westport, Conn., third.

Anne Preston of Watertown, Mass., remained in the lead in the 420 class, ahead of secondplace Gerald Braun of Marblehead, Mass., and Neil Taylor of New Haven, Mass.

In the Fireball standings, Brett Willetts of North Vancouver maintained his first-place spot. Albert Pleus of Plandome, N.Y. had his first win of the regatta to move into second place and drop Jeff Boyd of Kingston to third.

In the Tanzer 22 class, Allan Gray of Como, Que., continued to lead a fleet of Quebecers in the standings. Lou Gloutney of Vaudreuil was second and Mike Nichol-Griffith of Pointe Claire, Que., was third. The racing ends Friday.

RUGBY:

THE SPORTS EVENT IN TERRACE THIS WEEKEND

Teams from Terrace, Kitimat and Prince Rupert will take part in a rugby tournament at the Skeena field in Terrace this weekend. The three entries will be vying for the Skeena Hotel Cup, which the Terrace team has captured the last two years.

As a prelude to the series, the Terrace Northmen demolished Prince Rupert 26-3 in a rugby match in Prince Rupert last Sunday. Ken Lipinski led the Northmen with 8 points and Bill Warcup converted Lipinski's two tries plus another for a total of 6 points.

East-West power tie sought

EDMONTON (CP) — Alberta Power Ltd. is seeking approval to establish the first Canadian tie between the western and eastern power grids in North America.

The company applied to the Alberta energy resources conservation board Tuesday to build transmission facilities to link up with power facilities in Saskatchewan.

Alberta's power grid is already linked to British Columbia and the northwestern United States with a 100-megawatt tie between B.C. Hydro and Calgary Power. Saskatchewan's system has three ties with Manitoba with a combined capacity of 300 megawatts and recently received National Energy Board approval to build a link to North Dakota.

The only permanent connection between the eastern and western power grids of the U.S. and Canada is a 100-megawatt link installed two years ago at Stegall, Neb.

Alberta Power said the proposed link will allow Alberta and Saskatchewan to share reserve electric-generation capacity to benefit both provinces.

The Edmonton-based utility said the Alberta portion of the link to the Saskatchewan Power Corp. system is expected to cost $20 million.

The application seeks approval for Alberta Power to build a 240-kilovolt transmission line from the utility's Battle River power plant, near Forestburg, to a conversion facility near the Alberta-Saskatchewan border. The proposed line would run 38 kilometres from an existing substation, near Metlakow, to a location near the provincial boundary, about 240 kilometres southeast of Edmonton.

Alberta Power wants approval to begin building the high-voltage transmission line and the direct-current converter station next summer, with completion scheduled for 1982.

The converter station is estimated to cost $17 million and will be built near the provincial boundary, about 100 kilometres south of Lloydminster.

Alberta Power said the converter is required because the Alberta and Saskatchewan systems are large and independent. A disturbance in one system could cause instability in the other if the two were connected by alternating-current lines.

Alberta Power said the transmission line, estimated to cost $3 million, initially will be capable of transferring 100 megawatts of power and later will reach a capacity of 200 megawatts.

Saskatchewan now has an installed capacity of 1,840 megawatts, scheduled to increase to 2,450 megawatts by 1982. Alberta's generation capacity totals 4,870 megawatts and is scheduled to rise to 5,540 over the next three years.

HEALTH

DR. BOB YOUNG

Doctors are still interested in spit, or more correctly and politely, sputum. Collection and examination of sputum is frequently of great help in diagnosing disease of the respiratory tract. The tests are not expensive, and when properly done can be highly diagnostic.

Properly done implies that the specimen is produced from away down in the lungs — the product of a deep cough. Saliva and material from the mouth is useless. In addition a series of three to five specimens are required for confident diagnosis as the organism or cell that signals disease may not be present in all samples.

The sputum may be cultured in the bacteriology lab — a time-honored technique that identifies germs causing pneumonia and other lung infections.

A newer and more exciting development is the use of sputum cytology (the study of cells) to identify cells and other material that may be present in the sputum. Special stains have allowed the microscopist to identify cell changes that are diagnostic of diseases such as cancer of the lung (in its several forms), spread of cancer to the lung from elsewhere, and other tumors that may occur in lung disease.

In addition benign growths may be diagnosed — a gratifying result if the doctor and patient suspect that a cancer is present.

The sputum may reveal the presence of fungal diseases, lung parasites, asbestos-related diseases

Dollar takes drop

MONTREAL (CP) — The Canadian dollar suffered its biggest drop in more than a month on North American money markets Tuesday, losing almost one-third of a cent against its U.S. counterpart.

The dollar closed at 85.38 cents U.S., after slipping steadily from an opening quote of 85.65. Monday's close was 85.70.

Bank traders attributed the drop to the latest increase in U.S. prime interest rates.

Books now need computers

REGINA (CP) — Although it will cost millions, Canadian book publishers must adopt modern computer-ordering systems to keep pace with foreign competitors, says the past president of the Canadian Library Association.

Ron Yeo, also this city's head librarian, said in an interview that foreign wholesalers in the U.S. and England can make attractive offers to Canadian bookstores and libraries with computerized ordering systems.

A store's cash register can be linked to the wholesaler's computer and the store owner can get daily sales data, place orders instantly and get printed confirmation from the wholesaler.

The system can adjust inventories automatically and produce lists of on-hand and order books.

"These wholesalers take millions of dollars out of Canada to the detriment of local publishers and agents who depend on the profits they make to subsidize the production of high-risk Canadian authors," he said.

As agents fold, so do small bookstores, being replaced by chains which can get volume discounts on orders and reduce prices.

He proposes a system that would develop a data base of OSES SYSTEMS

He proposes a system that would develop a data base of all books published in Canada, England and the United States to be used on a shared-cost basis by publishers, libraries and bookstores.

"No company in Canada is large enough to do this on their own."

"We're hoping for government assistance, mainly through the Canada Council and secretary of state. The federal government has been interested in the last 15 years in promoting a sound Canadian publishing industry."

"We're hoping the present government recognizes the crisis and grants it high enough priority to justify government assistance."

It will cost $150,000 alone to study how such a system might be created.

"It's now at the point where we can't wait any longer. It will take a couple of years even if we start right now to get a Canadian program up and running. Within four or five years our publishing industry could be in serious trouble if nothing is done."

Yeo said publishers support him in his concern.

"However, they have two basic concerns. One is money, the other is a general resistance to change, which I guess applies to us all in one way or another.

"Many publishers haven't changed their business practices for the last 50 years. I sometimes think they have a death wish — just throw up their hands and carry on as long as they can."

Consumers to get access

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal communications department and Bell Canada announced a $10-million trial project Tuesday which will allow consumers to call up computer information on their television screens.

The federal government will contribute $2.5 million towards an extensive field trial of technology developed by the communications department. The system, Telidon, is an adaptation of a system known internationally as videotex.

"It provides a tremendous boost to our efforts to show the world that Canadian videotex technology is the best available anywhere," Communications Minister David MacDonald said.

By early 1981, 1,000 Telidon terminals attached to television sets will be in homes and businesses mainly in Toronto. Bell begins installing the terminals in September of next year and the field trial will run throughout most of 1981.

"We have been genuinely impressed by the government's Telidon technology since its introduction," James Thackray, president of Bell Canada, said.

With a keypad the size of a pocket calculator, users will be able to call up 100,000 pages of visual information including news, weather and sports headlines, updated travel schedules, stock market quotations, consumer bulletins, entertainment guides and classified ads.

Users may also be able to reserve airline tickets, order merchandise and leave messages for others.

The government will purchase and loan to Bell 675 Telidon terminals to be placed at homes and businesses. Bell will supply another 325. Plans also call for 28 special terminals to be used by persons supplying information to the computer data bank.

The terminals will be built by Norpak Ltd. of Pakenham, Ont., and other Canadian companies, possibly including Northern Telecom Ltd.

Thackray said several potential information providers have expressed interest in the project. Users and suppliers will be monitored during the experiment to assess human factors, technological aspects and the relative popularity of different information offerings.

Budget to wait

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Canadians may have to wait until November to find out how the government elected last May plans to deal with the economy and spend their tax dollars.

Finance Minister John Crosbie told reporters Tuesday that his budget could be as late as November. Parliament is due to sit Oct. 9.

Crosbie said it would be "very much to our advantage" if the question of the domestic price of oil was settled before he draws up his budget.

The settlement was necessary so the government could have accurate economy forecasts.

Crosbie chatted with reporters briefly after the inner cabinet, meeting in this Rocky Mountain resort, discussed how the government would propose to allow the price of Canadian oil to progress toward the much higher world price of between $21 and $25 a barrel.

Prime Minister Clark told reporters progress was made in developing an energy policy which must eventually be put to the provinces, industry and the consumers.

He said the cabinet must decide on a policy in which the federal government and the other three parties are willing participants.

At present the price of Canadian oil is due to rise $1 a barrel Jan. 1. That will not bring the price anywhere near the prices charged by members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

Clark said while a decision on a policy may be made at the four-day inner-cabinet meeting here, no immediate announcement will be made.

Crosbie spoke cautiously when asked about the federal attitude toward the $5-billion Alberta heritage savings trust fund, built up with 30 per cent of the province's resource revenue.

Clark, whose Yellowhead riding contains major oil and natural gas fields, repeated his earlier remarks that the heritage fund belongs to Alberta and he should not comment on how the money should be spent.

Lambert report approved

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Clark announced Tuesday the government will implement the Lambert Commission's recommendations for improving financial management and accountability in the public service.

Perrin Beatty, minister of state for the treasury board, has been given special responsibility for developing a timetable for implementing the recommendations, Clark said in a news release.

The commission reported last April that there has been "an almost total breakdown in the chain of accountability" within the public service and that Parliament has almost lost control of bureaucratic spending.

Clark's statement said he and Treasury Board President Sinclair Stevens are working on a new system for managing government spending.

Comptroller General Harry Rogers is developing accounting and reporting procedures as recommended by the Lambert Commission, Clark said.

Walter Baker, government House leader, has been given responsibility for the D'Avignon report examining legislative rules for hiring public servants on the basis of merit rather than political patronage or other criteria.

Ballet dancer calls delay 'madness' and arbitrary

MOSCOW (AP) — Bolshoi ballerina Ludmila Vlasova stepped from a long-overdue Soviet jetliner into the arms of her weeping mother Tuesday, then told interviewers her 73½-hour forced delay at Kennedy International Airport in New York was "madness."

Her government accused the United States of "anti-Soviet" plotting.

The Soviet news media did not report that her husband, Bolshoi star dancer Alexander Godunov, had defected in the U.S. last Wednesday, setting off the chain of events that ended with her arrival here.

Crowded by reporters and security men, the 36-year-old brunette walked from the plane at Moscow's Sheremetyevo Airport and embraced her mother.

Later, Miss Vlasova said in an interview broadcast on Moscow radio: "I consider (the Americans') actions to be arbitrary because they occupied our plane by force. They got inside with guns and handcuffs to guard me. It was just madness.

"I am very happy that I set foot back on native soil," said the dancer, who convinced U.S. authorities at a meeting Monday night she was returning to the Soviet Union of her own free will. Convinced of that, U.S. authorities allowed the aircraft to leave Kennedy.

A statement published by the Soviet news agency Tass quoted Miss Vlasova as saying her ordeal was an act of brutality organized by people wanting "to worsen Soviet-American relations."

Tass's only reference to Godunov was a statement that Miss Vlasova "did not want to find herself in a situation similar to that of her husband ... who had disappeared shortly before that under circumstances which are not yet clear."

At the airport, the 52 other passengers aboard the Aeroflot Ilyushin-62 jetliner said the atmosphere inside the craft at Kennedy was warm but tense while negotiations dragged on outside.

Passengers said they held a chess tournament and put on amateur entertainments while Miss Vlasova roamed the aisles freely, joining in their songs and even signing autographs.

The passengers said they all were aware of Godunov's defection because they read about it in New York newspapers.

The jet landed here shortly after 10 a.m. Moscow time (3 a.m. EDT) — three days after its scheduled departure. U.S. authorities said they grounded the craft because they wanted to meet with Miss Vlasova, fearing she had been spirited aboard against her will.

In New York, Godunov told authorities his wife wanted to stay in the U.S. and pleaded for a chance to meet her.

But when the compromise meeting was finally arranged Monday night, chief U.S. negotiator Donald McHenry said the ballerina did not ask to see her husband, though she had every opportunity.

KITIMAT COUNCIL

'More money but...'

By ANN DUNSMUIR
Herald Staff Writer

Kitimat District Council has agreed to provide additional funds needed to build the theatre at Mount Elizabeth Senior Secondary School.

Bids for the theatre received in July were all higher than the estimated $1.7 million approved by the school board and ministry of education.

Council agreed Monday to underwrite $643,425 of which $400,000 will be obtained from the Recreation Facilities Grant Program.

The Kitimat Arts Council will raise $122,000 of the needed funds in the community.

The school board has agreed to give the municipality a written undertaking that no further funds will be requested for completion or future upgrading of the theatre.

In other business, council agreed to a meeting between Bill Vander Zalm, minister of municipal affairs, and Kitimat delegates to the Union of British Columbia Municipalities Convention in Vancouver in September.

Delegates to the convention are Mayor George Thom and Aldermen Ron Burnett, Laurie LeBlanc, Joe Banyay and Fran Buschert.

Inquiry called into fire

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — An inquiry will be held soon to investigate the handling of forest fires this year in some northern areas, Jake Epp, Indian affairs and northern development minister, has promised.

"It was a pretty good meeting considering the fact he didn't give us any money to provide input into the inquiry," Schaefer said in a telephone interview from Fort Smith.

"We wanted money to conduct a long-range study of the effects of the fire on the people in the area. We'll not see trees growing here in our life-time, and the caribou won't return for at least 30 years

The Fort Smith region was the hardest hit by fires this year. The department's Yellowknife office said Tuesday some 381 forest fires have consumed 3.1 million acres of trees and brush in the Northwest Territories so far this year. Almost half of the fires, 163, burned in the Fort Smith area.

Epp, however, rejected an association demand to fire Peter Ferguson, his forest-fire liaison officer. Schaefer said the appointment of Ferguson was a waste of money.

Epp resumed his first official tour of the N.W.T. Tuesday with visits to Hay River, Fort Simpson and Norman Wells. Today, he was to visit Inuvik and Tuktoyaktuk where he was to inspect Dome Petroleum's offshore drilling activity in the Beaufort Sea.

Epp was to return to this territorial capital Thursday for two days of meetings before returning to Ottawa.

Epp delayed his northern tour after the opening of the Dempster Highway to attend John Diefenbaker's funeral.

Meanwhile, it appears the worst of the forest-fire season is over.

"The fire weather indices in all districts were low," said Ray Desroches, northern affairs fire coordinator. "Last week the weather was cooler and there was rain in varying amounts throughout the region."

Dief's bill said no use

Lawyers were told Tuesday it is foolish to expect that the Canadian Bill of Rights will be any more effective if it is entrenched in the constitution.

said the Soviet Union has a first-class bill of rights. However, even that bill isn't satisfactory, he said. The rights have to be known and accepted by the people.

Former local killed

W.R. (Bill) Quanstrom, 33, of Smithers died recently in the Calgary Foothills Hospital from injuries sustained in an aircraft crash August 9 while fighting a forest fire.

Eldon Woolliams, Progressive Conservative member of Parliament for Calgary North, told the Canadian Bar Association's annual convention that the Supreme Court of Canada has used "excessive caution" since the Bill of Rights was passed by Parliament in 1960.

"They are only fundamental as long as we accept them," Paisley said. "They are not laws of nature."

Until Canadian judges believe it's more important to uphold rights than to get convictions, nothing will change in Canada, he said.

Quanstrom, a bird-dog officer with the Ministry of Forests, was directing a fire bombing mission when the accident occurred. The fire action was taking place in the Canal Flats area of the Nelson forest region.

The bill has been effectively used in only one case in 19 years, Woolliams said. That case involved the dismissing of a liquor-related charge in the mid-1960s.

J. P. O'Callaghan, Edmonton Journal publisher, said recent lawsuits have infringed upon the ability of newspapers to print editorials, editorial cartoons and letters to the editor.

He attended school in Williams Lake, and worked the summers as a logger before joining the ministry in 1966 as a compassman in Smithers.

He recounted numerous efforts to invoke the Bill of Rights in court cases, virtually all of which were rejected by judges.

"The climate in the courts these days is not favorable to newspapers," O'Callaghan said. "Free speech has fallen upon hard times."

His career was centred in that region where he eventually became an assistant ranger in Terrace from 1972 to 1977. In May of 1977 he became a zone management technician stationed in Smithers and received his bird-dog officer training in early 1978.

Earlier Tuesday, the association had resolved that schools in Canada should educate children about their rights.

He criticized the former Liberal government's prosecution of the Toronto Sun for allegedly violating the Official Secrets Act by publishing an RCMP document that already had wide distribution. The charge was dismissed.

DANCE CLASS SUCCESS HERE

Terrace Dance Association reports that their summer school held here recently at Northwest Community College was a success with 21 dancers attending.

A resolution by Eric Teed, a Saint John, N.B., lawyer, said Canadians don't know what the rights are.

O'Callaghan and Stanley Cohen, a McGill University law professor, said the Official Secrets Act must be reviewed.

The dancers, ranging in age from six up, came from Kitimat and Smithers as well as from Terrace.

Classes were held in classical ballet, modern jazz and acrobatic dance. Clinics were held two evenings a week for coaches and persons interested in the acrobatic dance, which is used by teachers in conjunction with gymnastic classes.

A spokesperson for the school said guest teacher Sheila Marshall, who came here from Sydney on Vancouver Island, was well received and her classes were well prepared and the students enjoyed them.

And a Quebec delegate said efforts are under way in his province to put posters in jails to advise arrested persons of their rights.

Cohen said the effect of charges under the act against Montreal engineer Peter Treu has been devastating.

Maggs is seeking a contract which would pay him by the acre to dig up millfoll

But the tenor of the panel discussion that followed was that rights in Canada are illusory.

The Quebec Court of Appeal has dismissed the conviction and two-year sentence against Treu, who has asked the federal government for $150,000 compensation for the losses he suffered in the court battle.

Plow needs work still

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP) — A massive under-water weed plow, which an inventor claims could eradicate milfoil infestations plaguing Okanagan lakes, still is years away from total acceptance, says an expert on the problem.

The plow cleared 500 square metres of dense milfoil growth, including root nodules, in a test run at a beach on Lake Okanagan.

"It was an uncontrolled test and did clear an irregular area of weeds and roots," said Maxmuk. "Some areas were cleared well, others were not."

Mel Maxmuk, chemical operations co-ordinator for the provincial government's water investigation branch in Vernon, said Monday the plow invented by engineer Wes Maggs of Richmond, B.C., still has a long way to go.

"The inventor had divers behind the plow picking up weeds ... I don't really know exactly what it (the plow) did."

Maggs said recently that

Clark calls meeting for coal mine town

JASPER, Alta. (CP) — Sussex Drive West may be moved next to a coal mine.

Prime Minister Clark said Tuesday he is considering holding the next out-of-Ottawa meeting of his inner cabinet in Grande Cache, Alta., a small coal-mining community in the Rocky Mountain wilds on the edge of his Yellowhead constituency.

The prime minister added that he is considering having a meeting of his full cabinet outside Ottawa before Parliament sits in October.

Clark laughed when reporters called the Jasper Park Lodge where he is staying Sussex Drive West — or the Western White House — and said meeting outside the hurly-burly of Ottawa is Chitose Sensei of Japan, son of the Karate Master Chitose O-Sensei, demonstrates a front, snap-kick during a training session at Kitimat's Riverlodge Recreation Centre. Shown receiving the kick is Inomoto Sensei, also of Japan. Observing the technique is Akutagawa Sensei, chief instructor of the Kitimat Karate Club. Chitose Sensei and Inomoto Sensei are on a 40-day good-will visit to Canada to confer with instructors and standardize training techniques.

Clark's 11 top ministers, four deputy ministers and other government officials are staying in a resort lodge that rents for more than $70 a night even at the reduced rates available to the government.

Clark calls meeting for coal mine town

Clark is so pleased with the result he said he is considering holding a full cabinet meeting somewhere outside the capital, presumably in Eastern Canada.

Walter Baker, president of the Privy Council, has said the inner cabinet could meet elsewhere, not necessarily in Clark's constituency.

But Clark is talking only of Yellowhead meetings.

He said he is considering a request he heard in Grande Cache during the weekend that he bring the inner cabinet to that economically-depressed coal-mining town.

August food prices drop

The food price picture brightened considerably in August as consumers faced lower prices for beef, potatoes and tomatoes.

In a cross-Canada survey by The Canadian Press, 11 of 12 cities showed a substantial decrease in the total cost of the monthly food basket.

In a recent news release from the Retail Council of Canada, Tim Carter, vice-president and general manager of the food division, said some moderation in the rate of inflation first noticed in May will continue for a longer period than was originally anticipated.

"Where meat is concerned, further easing of prices for beef, chicken and pork is expected, with ample supplies of the latter two commodities suggesting further downward trends to the year end."

However, Carter said that autumn will see a stepped-up pace in food price increases, continuing into 1980.

"This prediction is based on climbing energy costs, growing world demand for beef and prospecting by major powers in Eastern Europe and the Orient for substantial grain purchases to offset poor harvests."

The council predicted that the Canadian dollar is likely to stabilize at 85 to 87 cents U.S., relieving any further pressure on imported food stuffs.

The survey showed that the price of fresh produce such as potatoes and tomatoes was considerably lower than in July, as domestic supplies became available.

In fact, it would appear that shoppers would be wise to take advantage of fresh produce rather than tinned as the survey indicated that came pears jumped in price in seven cities.

Eggs continued to rise in price because of higher feed costs.

The survey of the monthly food basket is conducted in the same supermarkets in each of the 12 cities on the last Monday of each month.

The survey includes one pound each of round steak roast, wieners (not all-beef), centre-cut pork chops, Grade A chicken, medium ground beef, frozen cod fillets, margarine in a tub, tomatoes, drip coffee and apples.

Also included are one dozen large eggs, one quart or one litre of two-per-cent milk, a 24-ounce loaf of sliced white bread, a 12-ounce bag of frozen peas, 10 pounds of first-grade potatoes, two kilograms of granulated white sugar and a 28-ounce tin of halved pears.

The survey is not intended to provide a city-by-city comparison because the product sampling is small. It shows price increases for a limited number of items many families might purchase.

The latest price checks show:

St. John's, Nfld.: Potatoes dropped 54 cents to $1.75, wieners 57 cents to $1.63, tomatoes 31 cents to 68 cents, peas five cents to 57 cents, coffee 13 cents to $3.99 and sugar 46 cents to 79 cents. ## LAWYERS TOLD

Law must cross borders now too

CALGARY (CP) — A United States government spokesman told Canadian lawyers Tuesday there is nothing wrong with having U.S. courts decide lawsuits against Canadian companies for acts committed in Canada.

In some circumstances, "extraterritoriality" today is necessary and appropriate," said Doug Rosenthal, chief of the foreign commerce section of the U.S. justice department's anti-trust division.

Speaking to a discussion group at the convention of the Canadian Bar Association, Rosenthal said there is no U.S. policy that would block Canadian authorities from trying to prosecute U.S. firms for violating Canadian laws.

A Canadian federal official partly supported Rosenthal's arguments. Maurice Copithorne, head of the legal bureau of the external affairs department, said that with the vast financial and economic ties between Canada and the United States, "we in Canada have come to accept a certain amount of extraterritorial application of U.S. law."

But that, he added, does not mean Canadian officials like having Canadian firms sued for actions that are legal in Canada but are thought to violate U.S. anti-trust law and to injure U.S. interests.

Copithorne said the potential for conflict is offset by the fact that U.S. and Canadian laws and policies are similar in the vast majority of cases.

But the panel chairman, Mr. Justice Gordon Blair of the Ontario Court of Appeal, criticized U.S. lawsuits against Canadian companies that had Canadian government approval to join an international uranium cartel.

Westinghouse Electric Corp. is suing cartel members in U.S. courts, alleging that the cartel drove up uranium prices in violation of U.S. anti-trust law. Blair, however, said Westinghouse got into trouble after it contracted to sell uranium at low prices and neglected to get firm contracts to acquire that uranium at comparable prices.

"They might rather have had shareholders' actions rather than dragging Canadian uranium companies through the courts," Blair said.

However, that might be "a terribly injudicious thing to say" and perhaps inaccurate, he added.

His criticism of the uranium case was reinforced by lawyer Paul Lamek of Toronto, whose firm has helped defend Canadian companies involved in those proceedings.

Lamek said Westinghouse is seeking $9 billion under U.S. laws allowing for triple damages.

Canadian companies named in U.S. lawsuits, he said, had an unfair choice: If they do not defend in U.S. courts, they risk a default judgment against them and loss of U.S. and other assets; if they defend, they risk weakening their arguments against jurisdiction of U.S. courts.

Another problem facing firms involved in a Chicago case where the Westinghouse case is being heard is that Westinghouse is asking penalties for the firms' refusal to produce certain documents, he said, even though Canadian law forbids sending such documents out of Canada.

This is "an Alice-in-Wonderland situation," Lamek said, because the U.S. government has no formal part in decisions on starting or continuing such court cases. All it takes is an outraged, injured or greedy U.S. company to start court proceedings, he said.

Rosenthal said the problem is not as serious as is sometimes believed. Of 200 foreign commerce anti-trust cases this century, there were 24 in which foreign nationals were held liable for acts committed outside the U.S.

U.S. anti-trust law is not used as an instrument of U.S. economic policy for political purposes, he said. Part of the problem in its application is the independence of the courts from political control. That independence also applies to lawsuits against companies owned by foreign governments, he said.

But the power to look at decisions made abroad, he said, is necessary to protect U.S. companies from the effects of those decisions.

"The application of U.S. law extraterritorially is to the general advantage both of the U.S. and in other countries, because its fundamental justification... is to bring multinational corporations and government-controlled corporations under the same rules that domestic and private corporations are otherwise operating under."

Copithorne and Lamek agreed that talks between governments would be a better method for resolving disputes than leaving it up to a U.S. trial judge to weigh conflicting national interests.

Lamek said foreign governments may be unwilling to argue their case before a U.S. judge, and even if they did so would face problems with public disclosure of policy matters.

Lamek noted that "what is acceptable commercial conduct in one state may be illegal in another" and Canadian law includes the principle that persons will not be tried in Canada for acts committed outside Canada.

British authorities, he said, oppose the principle that court cases should be heard in the jurisdiction where the effects of foreign acts are felt.

Foster Grandma helps

CALGARY (CP) — "Grandma, grandma," the toddler shouts delightedly, running to a grey-haired woman who scoops him into her arms.

The elderly woman really isn't his grandmother, but for the toddler and other youngsters at the Providence Child Development Centre, she's the next best thing — a foster grandparent.

Since 1973, the foster grandparents program has offered "a little bit of love and tenderness" to youngsters who need it and who often may be thousands of miles away from their own grandparents.

Doris Tinknell, one of the program's two co-ordinators, says the children, many of them handicapped and raised by single parents, love the individual attention.

The youngsters, from infants to six-year-olds, are not the only ones to benefit from the program.

"The grandparents benefit as much, if not more, than the children," Ms. Tinknell says.

Volunteer Florence Anderson says that for many retired persons, lonely and idle in their apartments, "it's wonderful to have something to look forward to."

Laura James, the other program co-ordinator, says that although all children need attention, "we try to work with a list of top priority children," because there are only 17 volunteers in the program.

While there is no rule, the children have to be handicapped. "We feel those children benefit most from it," says Ms. Tinknell.

A child with Down's syndrome, for example, learned to sit up and walk with the help of Ivy Hamilton, who has been a volunteer since the program began. A babysitter for 35 years and with 14 grandchildren of her own, she says "It's nice to keep in touch" with children. "As long as I can keep going, I will do it."

added Mrs. Hamilton, who will be 79 in October. All the foster grandparents now are women, although some men do get involved when their wives bring the youngsters home.

Unsafe bottles banned now

OTTAWA (CP) — Effective immediately, the federal government has banned the use and advertising of all 1.5-litre soft drink bottles.

Consumer Affairs Minister Allan Lawrence announced Tuesday in a statement he is forbidding the use of both narrow-necked, torpedo-shaped bottles and wide-necked 1.5-litre bottles, including those equipped with plastic impact rings.

This absolute ban is a considerable tightening of the consumer protection measures announced by the minister three weeks ago.

Dear Abby

Abstinence Makes Heart Grow Fonder?

By Abigail Van Buren
© 1979 by Chicago Tribune-N.Y. News Synd. Inc.

DEAR ABBY: I don't have a problem, but my friend suggested I write for a consultation on what she thinks is a most unusual situation. She couldn't believe it when I told her that my husband and I have been happily married for nine years and have never consummated our marriage.

I am a physician who prefers to practice in the United States, and my husband is a career officer in a foreign military service, based abroad, 3,000 miles away. We are both in our 30s. We see each other only three times a year for a week at a time. We knew how little time we would have together, but married anyway because we truly love each other.

We express our love by hugging and kissing, but always stop short of completing the act of love because we agree it's easier to live in total abstinence than open ourselves up to sufferable frustrations during our long separations.

We are a well-adjusted, heterosexual couple without organic dysfunctions or psychological hang-ups. We are living proof that a sexless marriage can be fulfilling. Some may think we're weird. Perhaps you do.

My friend insisted that I get a prescription from Dear Abby. However, I don't think there's anything wrong that needs fixing. What is your opinion?

DOING FINE WITHOUT

DEAR DOING FINE: Yours is a most unusual case, doctor. But if you and your husband are totally fulfilled in a sexless marriage, I agree—there's nothing that needs fixing. I can only wish you continued abstinence, because if you ever find out what you've been missing, you may kill yourself.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I are fit to be tied! Our son is also angry. My sister says we are making something out of nothing. Here is the situation:

My sister's daughter will be married soon. It will be a semi-large affair. Our older son (30) and his wife received an invitation to attend the wedding.

Our youngest son (26) is unmarried and presently living with us. He did not receive a separate invitation. Instead, my husband and I received an invitation addressed to MR. AND MRS. JOHN SMITH AND SON.

My son also feels that he should be allowed to bring a date. Who is right and who is wrong?

J.S.

DEAR J.S.: As an adult, your son should have been sent a separate invitation. However, unless he has a steady girlfriend, he should not dig up a "date" for the occasion.

DEAR ABBY: Here's a suggestion for CAN'T SLEEP, whose conscience is bothering her over the neglect of her elderly motherly, recently deceased.

Go to the nearest nursing home and "adopt" a "mother." Do for her what you wish you had done for your own mother. What enormous pleasure a drive in the country, a small gift, or even a few fresh flowers would mean to an elderly "forgotten-by-family" resident in a nursing home. If you can't take her out, you can go and visit with her and let her reminisce awhile. You will gain a lot. I know. I've tried it and it works. Sign me...

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR WEDNESDAY,
AUGUST 29, 1979

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) ♈
Not a time for careless judgment re joint expenditures. What's more, a family member may have two cents to put in about costs.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) ♉
Pay attention to what others have to say or you could be accused of indifference. The careless innuendo could lead to dissension.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) ♊
Don't be careless on the job. Avoid misunderstandings with co-workers. Stick to facts and avoid rationalizations or wishful thinking.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) ♋
No sense throwing good money after bad. Check costs re entertainments. The trend is to bad judgment and extravagance.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) ♌
Self-preoccupation could cause you to ignore a family member's feelings. Show your concern or an argument could suddenly surface.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) ♍
Misunderstandings are possible. Don't jump to conclusions or leave things to chance. Careful planning needed to avoid mistakes.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) ♎
A social function could cause you to overspend. Extravagant friends want you to join in the merriment. Be protective of finances.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) ♏
Misunderstandings possible with superiors. Listen carefully and don't assume anything. Some agitation in connection with travel.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) ♐
You're likely not to pay attention to others' advice now. Someone at a distance exaggerates the picture. More thought needed re travel.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) ♑
Just because the person is a friend of yours, it doesn't mean things will be handled properly. Others may promise more than they deliver.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) ♒
Don't entrust others with important responsibilities. If you want the job done correctly, you're better off doing it yourself.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) ♓
Wanderlust possible. Don't let future hopes cause you to miss out on present opportunities. First things must come first now.

YOU BORN TODAY are both idealistic and practical. You'd make a fine public servant and are attracted to causes and reform movements.

CRYPTOQUIP 7-13

XGVRRVWSC GDHL XRDDYH WBM
YL$CLT GBGWR MWGTL$

Yesterday's Cryptiquip—SIMPLE SIPHON DRAINED OFF HARMFUL FLUIDS.

Today's Cryptiquip clue: M equals G

The Cryptiquip is a simple substitution cipher in which each letter used stands for another. If you think that X equals O, it will equal O throughout the puzzle. Single letters, short words, and words using an apostrophe can give you clues to locating vowels. Solution is accomplished by trial and error.
