

Artmobile III Transfers "Country" to Campus

During the week of October 14 through 18, the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts displayed Artmobile III on the Madison campus. This show concentrated on an original painting by Andrew Wyeth, one of the nation's most distinguished contemporary artists, along with the preliminary sketches on the work.

This painting, entitled "The Country" (1965), reveals one of his primary objectives, that of simplicity. The sketches of preparatory work on separate sections of the painting, one of his fundamental techniques, show how the artist developed the final outcome.

As a "realist" Andrew Wyeth has commented, "I'd like to paint the thing just as it might happen to look as you walk by..." His work reflects his interest and love in the land and its people, particularly the familiar surroundings of Chadds Ford, Pennsylvania and Cushing, Maine.

The artmobile is provided by the nation's first state supported art museum, established in Richmond in 1937. The museum contains an excellent art reference library and art objects of both permanent or loaned collections. National and international dance and Papers are solicited in the areas of art, music, science, history, literature, fashion, folklore, religion or political science. The College reserves the right to hold the award if no paper should merit the prize. Winning essays will be published by the Breeze.

Students Asked to Conserve Water

A severe lack of rainfall in the area has caused a water shortage in the city of Harrisonburg that has lasted since the third week in September, and gradually worsened with the onset of the fall session at Madison. Acting City Manager John Driver asks that all Madison students conserve their use of water so that the current portion of 120 gallons a day per person will continue to be sufficient. The City Council also urges all citizens of the city to cut down on water usage in residential areas. According to public officials, equipment used for sprinkling lawns and washing cars is taking up unnecessary amounts.

Two million gallons of water a day are being supplied by pump from Silver Lake in Dayton, and the gravity flow from Rawley Springs brings about one half million gallons daily into Harrisonburg. With the fall of leaves, these two emergency sources of water should adequately supply the inhabitants until a let-up is in sight.

Until this situation is improved with some much-needed rain, all citizens and students must ration their water usage, being careful not to waste any unnecessarily. The local Harrisonburg paper will notify the city when normal use of water may be resumed.

Carr to Speak on Education Plus

Charles M. Carr, C.S.B., of Verona, New Jersey, will discuss Christian Science and the importance of having spiritual values in order to develop our lives. The lecture, entitled "Education Plus", shows that academics alone are not sufficient for the best overall results in life. Mr. Carr feels that, "The student needs to integrate spiritual values with his learning processes and with his living. As he does this, he can begin to overcome time barriers, develop fresh inspiration in academic or career challenges, cope successfully with personal and interpersonal concerns, and come up with a platform for improving social and community affairs. The lecture points out that applying spiritual values in these areas gives a plus to education and to life." The Christian Science Organization at Madison College is sponsoring the lecture to be given on October 22 at 7:30 in Room M110 in Duke Fine Arts Building.

Mr. Carr attended Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His business experiences were in sales and advertising until 1942, when he withdrew from business to devote full time to the public practice of Christian Science. Mr. Carr served for ten years on the Publication committee for the state of New Jersey. Mr. Carr has been a Christian Science lecturer since 1960 and has lectured throughout the United States, Canada, Europe, England, Australia, New Zealand, the Caribbean, and will go to Africa in February.

Shaw Plays "Unaccompanied"

G. Jean Shaw, Associate Professor of Music at Madison College, will perform the first movement from Zoltan Kodaly's "Unaccompanied Sonata Opus 8 for Solo Cello" at the opening program of the VMTA (Virginia Music Teachers Association) State Convention at Radford College, Virginia. Miss Shaw is Valley District Chairman of VMTA.

Dr. Shaw's student, Wayne Taylor, will play "Andante" from Klengel's Cello Concertino in C in a program for college string players.

Last summer, Miss Shaw served in an administrative position at ASTA (American String Teachers Association) summer string conferences. Miss Shaw served as Chairman of Student Chamber Music at the New Jersey American String Teachers Conference held at Douglass College of Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey, August 6-10. In addition, she was Chairman of the Second Southeast ASTA Conference at Elon College, North Carolina, August 11-16.

Dr. Shaw lists a number of recent publications: "Problems in Scheduling Elementary Instrumental Music" in the June-July issue of School Musician; "Its a matter of Interpretation" in the September Music Journal; String Clinic: Toward Efficient Learning in September Instrumentalist; String Music Reviews in the June-July issue of American Music Teacher.

We also wish to remind students that there should be no cutting of campus.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Financing Through Bonds A Must

The previous edition of THE BREEZE presented a factual look at the bond issue to be decided in the election November 5. As the official news organ of this campus, we now intend to take a firm stand in favor of the bond issue. Why?

First, Madison College desperately needs its share of the bonds to build new facilities to meet the projected growth. Without these bonds, Madison will see more students crowded into already over-crowded and somewhat dated facilities. We deserve better than that, and with passage of the bond issue we shall have better.

Secondly, and contrary to popular belief, approval of the bonds WILL NOT raise taxes. The bonds are general obligations of the state and will be paid for out of the yearly state revenues. Without bonds, taxes WILL increase, because the money will still be needed to build more adequate facilities to replace or supplement existing ones.

What can the individual student do to help insure approval of the bond issue? The Manpower Committee, headed by Dean Hall, and assisted by Carey Kropp, the campus coordinator for students to the Virginia Association of Student Governments, is currently formulating plans to gain the support of voters. Persons desiring to work on this committee or those who wish to volunteer a portion of their time are urgently needed and may volunteer by writing Carey Kropp, Box 1624.

In addition, we strongly urge you to send home the last edition of THE BREEZE so that your parents, relatives, friends and neighbors may become more aware of the importance of this issue.

To aid voters, the following sample ballot is presented.

Virginia needs to be able to grow vigorously with the rest of the nation, and the best way to accomplish this is by financing our growth programs with bonds. New Service Frat Looks Ahead

by Sue McCrary

Sigma Mu Sigma Fraternity is "dedicated to faith in the dignity of man, confidence in the integrity of youth, and established in hope of a better community in which each is responsible for the good of all."

The Sigma Chapter of this general fraternity from Lynchburg College, which has been nationally recognized, met with interested Madison men Wednesday, October 9 at 7:30 pm in Shorts Hall to consider plans for establishing an Upsilon Chapter of Sigma Mu Sigma on this campus.

Discussed at this meeting were the purpose, aims, objectives, and declaration of principles of the fraternity, along with such specifics as pledge rules, dues, and application for a national charter. Mr. August T. Boley, Executive Secretary of the Grand Council of Sigma Mu Sigma, was the guest speaker. He lives in Lynchburg and acts as advisor to the Sigma Chapter.

Although the main function of Sigma Mu Sigma, a service fraternity, is to serve conscientiously the college community in the public interest with loyalty and devotion, it sponsors varied social activities as well. Eligibility is not restricted to non-fraternity men; those who are already members of a social fraternity may seek membership in the service fraternity.

Sigma Mu Sigma was founded on Good Friday, 1921, at Tri-State College in Angola, Indiana by Master Masons. In 1924 the National Council of Sigma Mu Sigma received its charter from the United States government, and from then until 1929, nine collegiate chapters were established. In 1928, the fraternity was admitted to junior membership in the National Interfraternity Conference, at which time it also received the highest interfraternity scholastic rating. About 1200 members have been initiated, including college and university presidents, deans and heads of departments, high officials of the Freemasons, and prominent public administrators as honorary members. On August 3, 1952, Sigma Mu Sigma merged with Square and Compass Sigma Alpha Chi, which was originally organized as the Square and Compass Club at Washington and Lee University in Lexington in 1897, and then was chartered in 1917. Although Sigma Mu Sigma is Masonic in origin, its chapters open their membership to non-Masons.

It is generally felt by those who attended the meeting October 9, that a chapter of Sigma Mu Sigma on the Madison campus would be a definite asset to the college. Anyone interested in finding out more about the idea should contact H. Bowling; Box 402.

Lack of Offense Costly

Madison's inexperienced soccer team got its first taste of intercollegiate competition October 11 and bowed to powerful W&L, 7-0, in a game played on the winner's field.

Despite the final margin, the Dukes displayed great defensive ability throughout the first half which ended with W&L leading, 1-0. Great defensive work by Goalie Jim Fleming who drew praise from both Coach John Rader and the W&L pilot helped keep the game close. The Generals tallied again shortly after the opening of the second half and again just before the close of the third period to take a 3-0 edge. At this point, Coach Rader decided to play his second unit in order to give its members some much-needed experience. The Generals took advantage of this unit to score four times and put the game on ice.

Rader started a team composed of seven freshmen, three sophomores, and one junior and said he felt that "the team learned quite a bit from the loss". "We'll have to work more on offense for future games. We need more work on fundamentals and we need to be better conditioned," he continued. "The team played extremely well in the first two periods but seemed to suffer a letdown in the third quarter—possibly just from fatigue."

Rader commended Fleming, Mike Mott, Scott Mackey, Durwood Michael, Jim Robinson, and Charles Wymer for their performances on defense and Mike Frye, who though unable to score, handled the ball well on offense.

The Dukes play their third consecutive out-of-town game Wednesday at Roanoke and then meet Eastern Mennonite College in the first of three home games October 29. Game time for the EMC contest is 3:00 p.m. The game will be played at Purcell park.

Intramurals

Phi Kappa Beta has taken the early lead in the intramural flag football race by posting wins in its first three starts while refusing to give up a point to its opponents. The league leaders opened with a 12-0 win over Sigma Delta Rho, topped Shorts 3rd Floor, 11-0, and defeated Phi Alpha Pi, 12-0.

Four other teams are also undefeated at this stage of the season. The Studs stand at 2-0 after edging Phi Alpha Pi, 6-0, and downing Shorts 3rd Floor, 13-0, while Shorts 4th Floor got by Shorts 5th Floor, 7-2. Lincoln-Shenandoah and the Faculty are also undefeated after two games. L-S posted a 6-0 triumph over Shorts 2nd Floor and played to a scoreless tie with the Faculty (which also tied Sigma Delta Rho, 0-0).

Tryouts for an intramural all-star team will be held soon according to Intramural Director Ed Lipton. The Madison all-stars are scheduled to meet Bridgewater's all-stars next month and there is a possibility that the local team will also meet Eastern Mennonite College. Dates for the tryouts will be announced.

Two Madison students recently competed in the Va. State AAU Weightlifting and Physique Championships held October 12 in Hampton, Va. Stuart Hall won the 132 lb. class weightlifting championship with three separate lifts totaling 450 lbs. Carl Cole took a third place in the light heavyweight teenage lifting with a three lift total of 545 lbs., while also placing fourth in the physique contest. These two students, competing as independents but listing themselves from Madison College, gathered enough points to place 4th in the State Meet, defeating other area colleges with five-man teams.

Intramural football place kicking competition will be held Friday beginning at 4:00 p.m., Director Ed Lipton said today. Anyone wishing to vie for the individual championship must be signed up with Mr. Lipton (Box 556) no later than 4:00 p.m. tomorrow.

Chuck Ashcraft, supervisor of the place kicking activities for the Intramural Council, released the revised rules and regulations today. They are as follows:

1. Each participant is awarded 10 kicks. Five of these kicks will come from the five-yard line (15 yards from the uprights) and the other five will be attempted from the 15-yard line (25 yards from the uprights).
2. The kicker has the option of placing the ball on a kicking tee or having someone hold it for him. If the ball is held, the holder must place it on the ground or on his toe. If he places the ball on his toe, the foot must stay flat on the ground.
3. In the event of a tie for first place, each participant is given five additional kicks from the 15-yard line. The series of additional kicks will be continued until there is a single winner.
4. There is no team championship in football place kicking, only an individual championship.

Girl's Hockey Off To Winning Start

Madison's girls' field hockey teams will attempt to add another victory to their respective records when they travel to Longwood for a contest tomorrow.

Undefeated in three starts, both units have been impressive in early season competition. Captained by Barbie Beacham, the first team has beaten Lynchburg, 5-0, Bridgewater, 3-1, and Westhampton, 5-0. The second team, led by Linda Deavers, defeated the same foes by decisive margins. Lynchburg fell to the second team, 4-0, Bridgewater bowed by a 6-1 margin, and Westhampton fell 13-1.

Members of the first team include Bev Burnett, Elaine Choby, Jody Dalrymple, Emily Harper, Lynn Harvel, Nubbie Liebno, Lynn Masterson, Sharon Orling, Laura Pomeroy, Susie Richards, Chris Shelton, and Sharon Skinner.

On the second team are Jan Atkinson, Mel Bornhoff, Bev Brewster, Janet Chavis, Cindy Corso, Lydia Estes, Ellen France, Sue Gerhard, Nancy Jose, Barbara McKnight, Barbara Moore, Pat Morris, Joyce Morrison, Kathy Patton, Judy Reed, Marie Shipman, Diane Sisk, Ruth Sponaugle, Jane Stall, Nancy Taylor, Cindy Westmoreland, and Nancy Zaiser.

The first team will represent Madison at the Blue Ridge Field Hockey tournament at Randolph-Macon on November 8 and 9. Students selected at this tournament will go on to the Southeast tournament in Richmond, November 23 and 24. Those selected at Southeast will go on to the national tournament in Glassboro, N. J., over the Thanksgiving holidays.

The result of the William and Mary contest will appear in the next issue of The Breeze. The next home game will find Madison entertaining the Petersburg club on November 2.

GOP Says 'Nixon is the One'

by Diane Sotiridy
President, Young Republicans

Of all the possible Republican candidates, only RICHARD NIXON has proved he can win Republican, Democratic and Independent votes on a nationwide basis.

But winning is just the beginning.

The President must represent ALL the people.

And for that RICHARD NIXON is uniquely qualified. For 14 years he served his country in Washington. As a Congressman and senator, then as Vice President and public statesman, he has had the kind of "on-the-job" training unmatched by any other candidate.

During the past eight years RICHARD NIXON has been a highly successful lawyer and businessman. He has traveled widely and is freshened by an experience seldom granted men in public service: a chance to reflect, re-study and measure the needs of America.

A vigorous and constructive critic of Johnson foreign policy, an architect of government who has never faltered in his search for the keys to world peace, RICHARD NIXON IS THE ONE to unite and to serve his country.

THE NIXON STAND

Vietnam: Every American wants peace. We must end this war in a way that discourages aggression and prevents future wars.

Foreign Affairs: The judgments of history can bestow no greater honor than the title of peace-maker. It is this honor, this destiny that beckons America, the chance to lead the world at last out of turmoil and onto that plateau of peace man has dreamed about since the dawn of time.

The Draft: After Vietnam, eliminate Selective Service completely. Change to an all-volunteer armed force, with better pay so that it becomes an attractive career.

The Pueblo: When respect for America falls so low that a fourth-rate military power like North Korea dares to seize an American naval vessel on the high seas, then it is time for new leadership in Washington.

The Presidency: He must reach out and draw on the strength of the people.

The People: America became great because for 190 years we have recognized that progress is achieved not through government doing more for people, but through people doing more for themselves.

Rising Crime: In recent years crime in this country has grown nine times as fast as the population. We must take the offensive against criminal forces and rebuild respect for law across this country.

Order and Progress: Let us have order in America, not the order that suppresses dissent and discourages change but the order which guarantees the right to dissent and provides the basis for peaceful change and progress.

False Promises: We've had enough of big promises and little action. The time has come for honest government in the United States.

Inflation: The cost of living is rising at its fastest rate since 1951. More government spending now would only add to inflation, hurting the people it tried to help.

Farm Crisis: Enlarge the farmer's opportunity to manage his own affairs and give him a greater voice in shaping his own future.

Black Capitalism: Black Americans do not want more government programs which perpetuate dependency — they want a piece of the action. Let government use its tax and credit policies to enlist the greatest engine of progress — American private enterprise.

NIXON GIVES VIEWS ON URBAN CRISIS

New York Times
December 20, 1967

In the next month or so, Mr. NIXON will propose a plan to use computer technology to help match the unemployed with available jobs. Although the plan has yet to be put in final form, it will call for the following:

A "national job census" to find out precisely who the unemployed are, where they are, and what skills they need.

A "national skills bank" — probably a network of regional institutions that would gather and store all available information on job openings. "Interestingly enough," Mr. NIXON says, "we don't have either of these or anything like them. I am convinced that unless we use our computer devices to a much greater degree than we are now, technology will soon overwhelm us, and we are never going to be able to bring the unemployed to the jobs or vice versa."

The former Vice President also took these stands: "The people in the ghetto have got to have more than an equal chance," and therefore be given an extra "dividend" in order to equip them for full and meaningful participation in society. "On this score," he said, "I would be considered almost radical."

He declared that the lot of the Negro poor would be better served by massive infusions of aid to the slums than by continued protests for open housing. "It is important to bring down the barriers," he said, "but these demonstrations have reached a point of diminishing returns."

He suggested that changes should be made in the minimum wage law to make it a

Wallace - Choice, Not Chance

by Frank Humphreys

Can a former truck driver who was married to a former dime-store clerk, and whose father was a plain dirt-farmer be elected President of the United States? This question is on the minds of millions of Americans in view of the candidacy of former Alabama Governor George C. Wallace for the presidency this year.

"We shall continue this movement until our constitution is restored... We shall continue until the debris is swept from our streets and our civilization is secure and promising for our children..." In these words, former Alabama Governor George Wallace has pledged to continue the grass roots political movement the people of Alabama started when they elected him Governor in 1963, a movement that at this moment has the leaders of both national parties shaking in their boots. In these words, George C. Wallace has pledged to Stand Up For America and the principles upon which this great nation was founded. He has pledged to give the American people a choice in candidates and platforms in 1968.

What does George Wallace represent in the way of a choice? He is the only presidential candidate who is openly opposed to the rising tide of communism in our society. He is pledging himself to rid the country of the communist influence that has "involved itself in many facets of our lives, including the demonstrations and riots."

STATES RIGHTS ADVOCATE

George Wallace is one of the leading exponents of states rights. "...I recommend that the states of the Union continue to determine the policies of their domestic institutions themselves and that the bureaucrats and theoreticians in Washington let people in Ohio and New York and California decide themselves... what type of school system they are going to have. I recommend states rights, local government, and territorial democracy..." What was distorted by the national press to be the segregationist policies of Wallace in the confrontation on the steps of the Univ. of Alabama a few years ago was actually Wallace's strong views on states rights and his vehement opposition to the interference of the national government in local policies.

George Wallace IS NOT a segregationist. When he was elected for the second term as Governor of Alabama, he carried counties that were predominantly Negro, some as much as 85%. He does not advocate give-away programs to minority groups, however, that constitute reverse prejudice, namely, offering poverty funds to one ethnic group and not to all.

ANTI-CRIME

Wallace is the prime advocate of a stronger position against the rising tide of crime in this country. "The first thing I would do as President is to make an announcement that I'd give my moral support... to the policemen and firemen of the country. I'd say, 'We stand behind you because you are the thin line between complete anarchy in the streets and the physical safety of our person.'"

George Wallace is in favor of increasing the benefits of social security to elderly persons. He advocates an immediate increase in social security payments, an income tax deduction of the total amount spent for drugs and medical expenses and unlimited outside earnings for retired persons drawing social security. He also recommends relief for persons who can't afford the unpaid portion of government-insured medical expenses, plus uninterrupted nursing home care for the chronically ill.

"PATIENCE" IN VIETNAM

Wallace's stand on Vietnam promises to "be patient to an extreme" in seeking an end to the war through negotiations, but if diplomatic efforts fail, he pledges a military solution "through the use of conventional weapons." "...I think the first thing we ought to do in this country is to impress upon Hanoi and Peking and Moscow the resolve of the American people. These few people today who are out advocating sedition and raising

President, Young Democrats (Editor's Note: Quoted material in this article was taken from an interview by Godfrey Spenlengs, Jr., Staff Correspondent for the Christian Science Monitor).

In a year of political turmoil, riots, demonstrations, and disorder, Hubert Horatio Humphrey emerged from the National Democratic Convention in Chicago as a "no easy answer candidate." He is a man who talks not of promises or of what people want to hear but of what can be done. In this year of promises and pledges, Humphrey seeks reality; he seeks to root out and wipe out conditions causing unrest and disturbance in America; he seeks to stand up against extremism.

Mr. Humphrey views the President of the U.S. as "the nation's foremost educator; as a man who must not only respond to public opinion but create it. He is a healer and a leader and as such, must possess tolerance, forgiveness, compassion."

Mr. Humphrey believes that one of the greatest challenges facing Americans is that of "giving real meaning to American citizenship for every American. There cannot be two classes of citizens. We do not have any choice. We simply must do what we say — build one nation."

Humphreys further believes that "America stands for 'hope'. This is our message for the whole world. We must make sure that the message of hope is not destroyed by the message of hate. It must be strengthened by the message of love."

As far as fighting crime is concerned, he intends to have better training programs for policemen and better pay. He is in favor of federal gun licensing and registration if the states do not pass such legislation. He feels "rioting in American cities must stop. If there be looting and burning, it must — and it will — be punished according to the laws against theft and arson."

more flexible instrument of social progress. "In its present form," he said, "it is a deterrent to teen-age employment, particularly among Negro youths. They aren't prepared to fill the jobs above the minimum wage, and there can't be many below it."

He would like to initiate a program of Federal tax incentives and guarantees to enlist the support of private enterprise in the fight against poor housing and joblessness in the slums.

NIXON went on to comment about upgrading the schools. "It is a mistake to think that the problem in education is going to be met by busing. I am convinced that the damage there would far outweigh the benefits, and besides, most of the problems would still remain.

"We've got to go where the people are, we've got to go into these schools and upgrade them and give those kids more than an equal chance." The main task, Mr. NIXON said, is to enlist a far broader spectrum of society, particularly the business community, in the antipoverty drive. He said he would use tax credits and guarantees "to bring this about."

All have insisted that there is little point in pouring billions of dollars into old Federal programs and all have suggested different plans to attract private enterprise into the drive against poverty.

The business community, Mr. NIXON suggested, could play its greatest role in creating jobs for the unemployed — either by locating plants in the slums or by helping to arrange transportation systems to get people to the newer factories outside the central cities.

"Jobs," he said, "is the gut issue. If you don't have jobs, you don't have housing and you don't get off welfare."

Music Instructor Presents Recital

Miss Salley Lance, a soprano and a music instructor at Madison, presented a recital in Duke Auditorium on October 20. She was accompanied by pianist Mary Ohlsson.

A graduate of Madison College, Miss Lance received her Masters Degree in Voice at Indiana University. In 1962 she was awarded second place in voice competition at the Chicago Landmusic Festival. Among her selected numbers were "Se Tu Di Me Fai Dono" from Mozart's Se Re Pastori, Schumann's Frauenliebe und Leben, and three animal songs by Chabrier.

Mr. Lowell Watkins, Assistant Professor of Music at Madison, will present a piano recital in Wilson Auditorium on October 27 at 3:00 PM. Mr. Watkins received his B.S. at West Chester State College and his M.A. at Columbia University. His program will include selections by Edward McDowell: Sonata #4 (Keltic), Concert Etude, and Concerto #2.

Alumnae Statue Presented in 1917

by Ann Norton

The lady sits so quietly and serenely that often one passes without noticing her presence. It is easy indeed, as one hurries through Alumnae, concentrating on past, present or future business, to walk past the statue sitting there on the stairs, without giving her a second glance. Only when one has the time to pause and really look at the statue does one ask, "Who is she?"

The statue first made her appearance on Madison's campus in 1917 when she was presented as a gift to the college by President and Mrs. Julian A. Burruss. The work is a copy of a statue of the maid Joan of Arc, the original of which is in the Louve, Paris, France.

When the statue arrived, she was placed in the lobby of Harrison Hall. There she remained for many years until the congested atmosphere of the much used Hall created concern for the safety of the statue. So, Joan was sentenced to the farthest dark corner of the basement in Converse Dormitory. She remained there until Mrs. Pendleton discovered her in the Spring of 1961. Mrs. Pendleton brought the statue to the attention of Dean Dorothy Garber, who was responsible for the maid's being placed in her current position on the stairs of Alumnae Hall.

Just as the maid was called to serve her country, young women of today in colleges and universities are, in a sense, called to serve their country in the field of education and the arts.

money and clothes and supplies for the Viet Cong — these college professors who are making speeches advocating victory for the Viet Cong Communists — I would deal with these people as they ought to be dealt with, as traitors." He advocates fighting to win or diligent efforts to achieve an honorable peace unlike that in Korea.

"You stand with me, and we, together, can give courageous leadership to millions of people throughout this great nation... in the fight to win and preserve our freedom and liberties... If the politicians get in the way in 1968, a lot of them are going to get run over by this average man on the street, this man in the textile mill, this man in the steel mill, this barber, the beautician, the policeman on the beat. They are the ones — and the little businessman — I think those are the mass of people that are going to support a change on the domestic scene in this country." George Corley Wallace, former Governor of Alabama and the leading figure in the minds of the common man, does offer ALL Americans a change in 1968!

Senior, Earl Moyers, gazes at the little-known but often seen statue of Joan of Arc. The statue was moved to Alumnae Hall after its re-discovery in 1961.

Grants-Assistantships Available

Madison College awards annually a number of Graduate Assistantships of $1,800-$2,280 with up to an additional $600 for tuition and fee costs. These are available to qualified applicants in the fields of biology, education, English, history and social science, and math. Graduate Assistants undertake various departmental assignments requiring up to fifteen hours a week, and generally carry a course load of approximately nine semester hours. It is recommended that Graduate Assistants plan to begin their graduate studies in the summer session.

A limited number of Graduate Grants are also awarded by the College. These are given to students with outstanding credentials.

Applicants for the Graduate Assistantships should have over-all undergraduate averages of "B" or better. They should have their scores on the aptitude test of the Graduate Record Examination forwarded to the Dean's Office at the earliest opportunity. Applicants for the Master of Arts or Master of Science degree programs should also submit scores on their advanced test in their major field.

Develop Your Advertising Skill

Have you ever wondered how businesses decide on the type of advertisement they use in newspapers to tell the public about their particular product or service? Have you ever wondered how a newspaper decides on the type of advertising they will use or how they will arrange it? If you have ever casually thought about these two points, then THE BREEZE can provide you with an answer.

Advertising plays an important part in all newspapers, especially college newspapers like THE BREEZE. The many businesses in a particular community realize the massive buying power possessed by a student body and want to bring their speciality to the attention of as many of these students as possible.

There are many businesses like this in the Harrisonburg area, so many in fact, that THE BREEZE has had to expand its advertising staff. What special qualifications would someone need to work on the advertising staff of THE BREEZE? None are required, although any experience with advertising would be helpful. If you have the desire to learn about advertising, particularly newspaper advertising, we have competent staff members that have experience in this field who would be willing to train you to be part of our staff. How much of your time would be required? The amount of time spent by any one staff member on advertising is directly proportional to the number of people on the advertising staff, but even now it only takes a couple of hours per week to secure all the ads we have been running. How do you get to all these businesses to get their ads? Transportation is readily available to all points downtown, and if you have access to an automobile you will be that much more help to us.

Need we say more? We must have more people working on the advertising staff; so if you want to join us, write to Frank Humphreys, head of the advertising department, Box 1434. Please give your name, where you live, your post office box number, and a telephone number where you can be reached. THE BREEZE needs you — won't you lend a hand?

FAMOUS IN ORBIT!!!! OR WHY SHIRRA REFUSED TO TURN THE TV CAMERA ON!!

Harrisonburg — Scoring a first in outer-space travel, THE FAMOUS RESTAURANT delivered a Greek Pizza to Wally Shirra, one of the men on board the Apollo space ship moments before blastoff.

Mr. Tom Pappas, proprietor of THE FAMOUS, 131 N. Main in Harrisonburg, received a delivery order a few hours before take-off for a large pizza with all the extras to be taken up in the Apollo. When word was sent from ground control in Houston to turn on the on-board TV camera, Astronaut Shirra refused, stating it would throw his schedule off. What he failed to tell the people was that he and the other astronauts were too busy enjoying their FAMOUS GREEK PIZZA while circling the earth at a fantastic speed.

Scheduled for some time in December is THE FAMOUS' orbit of the moon in the U.S.'s first manned trip around that heavenly body.

You too can put yourself in orbit with a FAMOUS GREEK PIZZA or any of the other FAMOUS Specialties. Stop in anytime to THE FAMOUS RESTAURANT, 131 N. Main, or call 434-7253 and save 10% on all delivery orders. It makes sense!! "You Can't Beat The GREEKS!!"
