

A microscopic image of brain tissue, likely stained with hematoxylin and eosin (H&E). The image shows a complex network of white matter tracts, including myelinated axons and oligodendrocytes. The overall appearance is a dense, interconnected mesh of light-colored fibers against a darker background.

Towards a better understanding of Vanishing White Matter disease

Barbara van Kollenburg

2008