Dear Miss Whitney

The notice in last night's paper told me of your great loss;-
I had not known that Addie was ill. She looked very well when I saw her last, and I have been constantly hoping to be able to go to see you both,

but I have been laid up for nearly two months with illness, and a bad sprain.

Ever since I heard
that Addie had gone,
her lovely eyes and
smile have been present to me. They remained as sincere as in her girlhood, and years
only added to their sweetness.

I can well imagine what your longings must be without me, and my heart is full of regrets that you are gone. If you remain in town I hope to be able to come & see you in June. If I had been able I should have come this morning.
My sister sends you her warm affection and love &
most sincerely yours
Bethelina J. Brett.
