NOTE—Frelinghuysen is financed strictly on its earnings from the very moderate tuition charged its students. Its instructors who are without exception of standard qualifications have, besides, the outstanding merit of giving cheerfully their best to this part time community service without salaries. The great need of the school and the sustaining contribution it asks from philonthropy is the necessary number of scholarships to enable worthy but indigent students to keep their place in school. $45.00 pays a year's tuition in the School of Religion; $65 in the Academy; $85 in the School of Law. Four scholarships in Religion, three in Law, three in the Academy—ten in all are pathetically needed. More could be worthily used of course, but this modest figure of $630 would give educational life, wholesome growth and spiritual content to ten of the most hungry minds of this community.

WE DO OUR PART

WE WANT only the American Chance

WE ASK only an impartial appraisal of the worth of our service.

A Petition for Recognition carrying signature of more than 500 American Citizens

"A petition asking recognition of the Frelinghuysen Group of Schools known as Frelinghuysen University of Washington, D. C., founded in 1906 and named by Jesse Lawson, comprising in its charter the John M. Langston School of Law, the Sam'l Miller School of Religion, an academic department for high, normal and collegiate training together with an ungraded "Opportunity School" for retarded adults, added more recently under a separate charter.

An extract from a letter of Mr. Lawson to Hon. Walker E. Edge than Governor of New Jersey, dated March 10, 1917, will throw light on Mr. Lawson's aims and give also the historic setting for the name and present purpose of the School

"I am a citizen of New Jersey, a voter at Plainfield and during the past 30 years have been a U. S. examiner of pensions at Washington. I attended Howard University in the early 70's and had opportunity to observe the great struggle then going on in Congress for the preservation of human liberty. I made note of the attitude of the late Senator Frederick Frelinghuysen and other Jersey statesmen relative to the rights of colored Americans and in loyalty to my home state. I made the motion to have our institution of learning at the nation's capital dedicated to the memory of the deceased Jersey statesman, Senator Frelinghuysen in our earnest campaign for the education and social salvation of the unreached, for special instruction in Social Service and broader all around education for adults who had scant opportunities for intellectual development in earlier life and who were then and are now compelled to work for a living."

Convinced of the useful, unselfish and efficient work carried on for the education of our unprivileged adults under the able direction and leadership of Anna J. Cooper at 201 T St. a beautiful site in Northwest Washington, dedicated by her to adult education and deeded to the Trustees as the permanent home of the Frelinghuysen Group of Schools for colored working people, the undersigned wish to give it our hearty endorsement and moral support as educationally sound, morally beneficial, a credit to the Negro Race, a genuinely helpful, a vitally needed service to the community at large.
