The protest was in the form of a verbal note, made in conformity with telegraphic instructions from the British government. It does not raise the question of the passage of the Dardanelles by vessels of the volunteer fleet, it being understood that Great Britain is reluctant to reopen the question of the Dardanelles, and that she will not do so unless as a last resort. Russia has reason to believe and contends that the Malacca, in addition to British governtended for Japan.

It is understood that before sending the cruis- France Requests Withdrawal of Leters there the Russian authorities became satisfied through an elaborate system of espionage that an immense amount of contraband was going from England through the Red sea to Japan, and they decided to stop the traffic. It is understood that if this traffic is now diverted to the Cape route the Russian admiralty is prepared to send ships to the Cape of Good Hope. If Great Britain objects to 27 2w the passage of the Dardanelles by more vessels of the volunteer fleet the ships intended for cruising off the cape may be sent from the Baltic. In this connection very important developments are tf 44 believed to be imminent.

PARKER AND DAVIS MEET

THE DEMOCRATIC CANDIDATES GREET EACH OTHER.

Close Conference Is Held-Chairman of National Committee Still in Doubt.

Esopus, N. Y., July 20 .- Former Senator Davis, the democratic vice presidential candidate, arrived at Esopus Wednesday, accompanied by National Committeemen Norman E. Mack, of New York, and D. J. Campau, of Michigan. Judge Parker's private secretary, Arthur E. McCausland, and the judge's son-in-law, Rev. Charles Mercer Hall, met the party at the station. The visitors were driven directly to Rosemount, where Judge and Mrs. Parker were waiting on the broad veranda. Mr. Mack introduced the candidates and they warmly greeted each other. Judge Parker presented his guests to Mrs. Parker.

The party then divided up into little groups and Judge Parker and Senator arate counter. Some suits out of the Red sea and detention of the Penin-Davis withdrew to the south end of the veranda, where they conversed for a time. Senator Davis declined to be interviewed at all, but submitted affably to the phalanx of photographers who ambushed him at the station.

Messrs. Mack and Campau, speaking of the national committee chairmanship, said they still regarded Senator Gorman as a possibility. Luncheon was served at one o'clock, after which the judge and his visitors went into close conference. It is becoming daily more evident that Rosemount is not the place in which to look for information concerning the democratic national committee chairmanship. There can be no doubt that present conditions here favor the selecton of Senator Gorman, if he will accept the chairmanship, but Judge Parker Wednesday apparently knew no more actually about the final selection than did the newspaper men who asked ment stores, had on board munitions in- him about it. The bulk of opinion here is that if Senator Gorman finally refuses the appointment, National Com-

RUSSIANS ARE DEFEATED IN A DESPERATE ENGAGEMENT AT MOTIEN PASS.

Suffer a Loss of 2,000 Men Killed or Wounded - Kuropatkin's Army Menaced on Three Sides-Retreat May Be Cut Off.

Tokio, July 19 .- At three o'clock Sunday morning, a heavy fog veiling their movements, two divisions of Russians, commanded by Lieut Gen. Keller, made an assault on the Japanese positions at Motien pass. Gen. Kuroki adds that the Russians assailed all the Japanese positions at Motien pass and in its vicinity desperately. The Japanese resisted stubbornly, repulsed the Russians and pursued them for a considerable distance westward. Kuroki in his report praises the valor of his men.

Fixes Loss at 2,000. Kuroki's Headquarters in the Field (via Fusan), July 20.-More Russian troops were engaged in Sunday's battle at Motien pass than in previous engagements. There were probably double the number of those which took part in the fight at Yalu river, while opposed to them were only one brigade and one battalion of the Japanese forces. The Russian loss is estimated at 2,000. The burial of the dead continues. The Japanese casualties aggregated 300. The engagement has conspicuously demonstrated the wonderful efficiency of the Japanese infantry. They proved incomparably the better marksmen, more initiative and they outfought and outgeneraled the Russians on every point.

4,000 Japs Reported Killed. Chefoo, July 20 .- A junk with eight Russians and 50 Chinese on board arrived here Tuesday afternoon, five days from Port Arthur. The Russians refused to talk, but the Chinese say that on July 11 and 12 the Japanese captured and occupied with 4.000 men one of the eastern forts near Port Arthur. Before reenforcements arrived the Russians cut off the 4,000 troops in the fort and exploded mines which resulted in the killing of every Japanese soldier there. Land 30,000 Men.

Berlin, July 19 .- A German correspondent telegraphing from Mukden says that 30,000 Japanese landed on July 11 and 13 at Pigeon bay. The operations were covered by the entire Japanese fleet." The Russians made only a faint resistance, firing a few shots from the shore batteries.

Kuropatkin Surrounded.

London, July 18.—Official Russian dispatches admit that Gen. Kuropatkin's army at Tatchekiao is menaced on both right and left flanks, and that Kuroki is advancing on Liaotung. FATE OF LONG MISSING MAN IS SOLVED BY THE DISCOVERY OF HIS REMAINS.

Found on the Shore of Bigbury Bay Near Flymouth, Eng.—A Suspicion of Foul Play-Verdict of the Coroner's Jury.

London, July 18.-A body, supposed to be that of F. Kent Loomis, was washed ashore Saturday morning at Bigbury Bay, Devonshire. The body was that of a well dressed man, five feet six inches in height, attired in a gray overcoat and dark blue suit. In the pockets were found a card with the name "F. Kent Loomis," American and English coins, American notes, a gold watch, etc. The body, which was discovered by a laborer, was in a state of considerable decomposition. It was removed to a neighboring farm building to await the inquest. The police said that there is no doubt that the body is that of Loomis. Joseph G. Stephens, the American consul at Plymouth, was notified and after viewing the body said he had no doubt it was that of F. Kent Loomis. Reports to both the Press association and the Central News assert that a further exhas given rise to grave suspicions on the part of the local officers that Mr. Loomis met with foul play. The wound behind the right ear is described as being cir- State Convention Nominates a Full cular, large and clean, and it is thought that it was inflicted before death.

Bigbury Bay is ten miles southeast of Plymouth, where the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II. arrived June 20 from New York, having on board F. Kent Loomis, brother of Assistant Secretary of State Loomis. Mr. Loomis was missed at one o'clock that morning and has not been heard from since. He was charged by the authorities at Washington to convey to Abyssinia the treaty of commerce concluded between the United States and Emperor Menelik. Mr. Loomis traveled with William H. Ellis, of New York, who in view of the disappearance of the former, took the treaty, which was found in Mr. Loomis' baggage, to Adis Abeba, the Abyssinian capital. The Inquest.

Kingsbridge, Devonshire, July 19 .-"Found dead, washed up by the sea in Bigbury bay, Devonshire," was the verdict Monday of the coroner's jury in the inquest on the remains of F. Kent Loomis. The evidence was very inconclusive and wholly conjectural, as pointed out by the coroner when he advised this open verdict, adding that although death was caused by a blow, there was nothing to justify the suspicion that it was foully administered. Consul Stephens, of Plymouth, has charge of the body, which is in a fair state of preservation. It will be embalmed and sent home for burial as early as practicable.

The American consul at Plymouth, Joseph G. Stephens, attended the proceedings and testified that he had seen the body and from information supplied to him officially he unhesitatingly identified it as that of Loomis, who was acting as a special messenger for the American government carrying important dispatches from the government at Washington to the embassy at Paris.

The jury found that the deceased was Frederick Kent Loomis, and that he was found dead in Bigbury bay, there being no evidence to show how he met his death.

No Indictment.

PETITION IS PRESENTED.

Committee of Miners Asks President to Investigate Colorado Labor Trouble.

Oyster Bay, July 20.-President Roosevelt on Tuesday received the committee appointed last Sunday by the convention of the coal miners and allied crafts at Wilkesbarre, Pa. The mission of the committee was to present personally to the president a petition reciting the conditions in which organized labor has been placed by the action of the authorilies of Colorado, and requesting him to institute an investigation of the labor troubles in that state with a view if possible of remedying the conditions now existing. The petition, which was the expression of 225,000 men of the union labor organizations of northeastern Pennsylvania, was laid before the president. He read it carefully, and then informed the committee that he would be glad to do anything he properly and legally could do to ameliorate the conditions existing in the state of Colorado. He indicated that an investigation of the labor troubles in that state is now being made by agents of the department of commerce and labor. Thus far the situation had not been such as would warrant interference by the federal government

IOWA DEMOCRATS.

Ticket-Indorses Parker and Davis.

Iowa City, Ia., July 20.-The Parker forces were in absolute control of the Iowa democratic convention, held here Tuesday. Harmony was the keynote, and Hearst and anti-Hearst men vied with each other in nominating and seconding the candidates. The ticket is as follows: For electors-at-large, W. O. Schmidt and J. B. Romans; secretary of state, Charles A. Dickson; auditor of state, Edgar F. Medary; treasurer of state, Henry Riegelman; attorney general, Maurice O'Connor; railway commissioner, J. B. Monatrey; supreme judge, J. W. Sullivan.

The platform adopted by the convention is exceedingly brief. It declares: "The democrats of Iowa, in convention assembled, hereby ratify the declaration of the principles of the democratic national convention adopted at the recent convention at St. Louis, and indorse the candidacy of A. B. Parker and Henry G. Davis, our nominees for president and vice president, and pledge them our hearty and loyal support."

Circle G. and Circle J.

By J. C. PLUMMER

(Copyright, 1904, by Daily Story Pub, Co.)

DETH HOPKINS, master of the bay schooner Alert, stooped, meditatively, over two boxes on either side of him. "The one on the left to Parson George and the one on the right to Deacon Jobe," said he. He dipped the brush into the pot and was about to make some cabalistic figures on the box lid when a rasping shout came down the companionway.

"Dar's a big t'ree master comin' up de dock, capting, an' she'll scrouge us foh

Capt. Hopkins placed the pot on the floor, and, leaping on deck, by the prompt use of fenders and profanity managed to keep the sides of the Alert free from injury; then he returned to his task and carefully marked circle G on the box to the left and circle J on the one to the right, entirely oblivious of the fact that when he arranged the boxes he faced aft and that now he was facing forward.

"I ought to have been a sign painter," exclaimed the skipper, gazing admiringly at his handiwork.

When the Alert reached the landing on the Manunky river, the skipper called Pete, the deck hand, aft.

"How are these two boxes marked, Pete?" he asked.

"Carcle G an' carcle J," replied Pete, who could read.

"Good; now borrow a wheelbarrow from the store and take the box marked circle J to Deacon Jobe's. Tell him I wrinkle in his face, and there were many of them.

"Seth," said he, sourly, "I guess you've made a mistake in my box." "I hope not," said the skipper, anx-

"Thar warn't no bottle of hoss med'cine I told you to get," snarled the deacon," but this hyar thing was thar," and he held up to view a somewhat warmlytinted pair of pajamas.

If the deacon had not been so sorely put out over his hoss med'cine he would have probably rebuked the captain for his remarks when he beheld the sleeping garment waving before his eyes. "It's that blasted nigger." roared the skipper. "By Gum, deacon, the parson has got your box." The wrinkles in the deacon's face now expressed alarm.

"I wouldn't have 'im smell that thar bottle for all the county," he groaned. "It'll ruin me."

"And I wouldn't have him know I was smuggling whisky to his deacon for the Alert and her cargo," snapped the skipper. "It's an awful mess."

The county was local option, and no liquors were allowed brought into it. The chief advocate of this temperance measure was Rev. Mr. George, ably seconded by Deacon Jobe, and as Capt! Hopkins had hopes of the parson consenting to his union with his daughter Annie, he felt that the discovery of his treachery in smuggling whisky to his trusted coadjutor must inevitably blast his hopes for ever and aye.

"What's to be done?" asked the deacon, swallowing with difficulty.

"Why," said the skipper, "there's only patiamy and nail 'erup. Then we'll drive as fast as we can to the parson's and try tion. exchange boxes before he's opened his. The nigger is just about there now." was rightly marked.

"It's my mistake," said he, with forcible adjectives. "I marked 'em wrong."

The gig flew over the road, the two occupants too absorbed to talk, and when the parson's house was reached, finding the porch deserted, Capt. Hopkins hid the box under a chair, preparatory to dike. slipping it into the house and making a quick exchange if the parson had not inspected his package.

Miss Annie opened the door and informed them that her father had been other women who had devoted their had not returned.

"A box just came for him from you, captain, she said. "You are very kind." "I suppose you haven't opened it yet?"

"No; it's in the dining-room," replied the young lady.

"You attract her attention," said the skipper, in a fierce whisper to the deacon, "and I'll try to slip in with the box and get the other one."

This was self-sacrifice on the captain's part, for he was gritting his teeth at the wasted chance of a half hour alone with his sweetheart, but the emergency was great.

The deacon, racking his mind for a subject, gazed stonily at Miss George while the skipper glowered at him.

Spurred by these baleful glances the deacon began a rambling discourse about church matters, crops, cattle and oysters, in a melange, while Miss Annie looked in evident wonder at her sweetheart, standing silent and perturbed.

Finally Miss Annie sugested the deacon's examination of a favorite rose, and they walked down the porch. Instantly the skipper snatched up the fateful box and rushed into the diningroom. The room was dark, but he could discern the other box on the floor, and was just about to seize it when he heard the two returning to the front door.

He rushed out on the porch, appearing not unlike a burglar interrupted at his calling, and scowled horribly at the miserable deacon.

Miss Annie, turning her back on her recreant lover, invited the deacon to have a glassful of milk.

At that moment the deacon's palate did not crave milk, but the fiery shaft from the skipper's eye made him asent at once.

Miss Annie walked through the diningroom to the pantry, followed by the deacon, and he, stealthmy, by the skipper. No sooner had the young lady disappeared in the pantry than the skipper snatched up the box and flew through the hall to the gig, barely escaping Miss Annie, who was returning with the milk. The deacon swallowed a pint of milk, hastened after him, and v.th a hurried farewell the two consurators drove away, leaving a very indignant lady be-

"Now," said the deacon, when they had reached his house, "I'll give my hoss a dose of med'cine."

"You old hypocrite," snarled the skiper, "I really believe you try to bamboozle y Jurself."

"Seth," wailed the deacon, "you've brought back the same box. Hyar's that thar pesky garment."

"By Gum," groaned the skipper, "it was so dark and I was in such a hurry

I picked up the same box I brought." "Ef he smells it I'm ruined," moaned the deacon.

"Oh, he'll smell it and he'll smell a hypocrite, too," assented the skipper; "but it kills my chances." "Best Maryland rye," lamented the deacon, "emptied on the cold, unfeeling clay."

"Best girl on the eastern shore lost by your blessed love o' whisky," growled the skipper.

Morosely the deacon drove the captain back to his schooner, and sleepless was the mariner's night. gasped the mystified skipper. "Lettah, sah," said Pete, bringing another epistle into the cabin.

'Where's Lucile?" The young man shook his head dis-

"Search me." he said, forgetting what was due his coveted mother-inlaw. "I supposed she was in this cab." "And where were you going?" the girl's mother quietly asked, "if you ad found her here? The young man never for a moment denied her right to question him. In the simple hurt fashion of a small boy who has been rudely thwarted in his plans to go west and fight Indians, he told of the hastily conceived and strangely frustrated plot. Something of the boyish simplicity of the story, the honest ring in the boy's voice, and something in the clean-cut, determined young face appealed to the woman. After all, what had anybody against him but his youth and the youth of the girl he had made up his mind to marry. To stop the marriage now was only to postpone it.

Somewhere about Jackson boulevard was an irate middle-aged man who, a good many years ago, had been as young as this boy and as good to look upon. Suppose that some one then had tried to prevent her marrying him. Youthful marriages were the fashion in those days, and no one had tried.

'My boy," she said, laying a small, daintily gloved hand on his arm, "let us talk this over and/see if we can't come to a rational understanding."

The girl had watched the cigar sign until she saw spots of electricity wherever she looked, when she was startled by the opening of the cab door. "Five dollars if you overtake that cab ahead of us," shouted a gruff voice to the driver, and instead of the slim youth she was expecting, the girl's father plumped down on the seat beside her.

"Why, papa!" she exclaimed and her father turned and looked at her with an expression of astonished rage on his face that would have frightened anyone who had not known him intimately for 18 years.

"Well!" he said finally, with someblack picture hat. She watched the thing of an explosion, "this is a pretty lights come and go in an electric cigar kettle of fish you've got us all into. Where's your mother? What have you got to say for yourself, anyway, young lady?

The girl was reduced to tears. Not The young man walked rapidly even the clamor of State street at its across the lobby of the hotel, where noisest hour could drown the roar of her father's wrath. They were both surprised when the cab drew up to the sidewalk and stopped. The father stuck his head out and called to know what was the matter.

"Here's your party, sir." He leaned over and looked out of the girl's side. Both sat for a moment dazed with wonder. In the glare of light from the florist's window, the figure of the mother and the young man were silhouetted against a background of roses and orchids.

The father got out quickly, followed by the girl.

We decided that it must be you following us," said the mother, coming forward, "so we got out to wait for you. In his hurry, Mr. Blake got into our cab by mistake and apparently you "There were only two cabs there.

and Lucile are to be married at home in the spring.' "Oh they are, are they? Nobody's consulted me about it."

"Oh yes," interposed the young man, quickly. "We're consulting you now. Mrs. Marvin thought you would be willing for a compromise. We want your consent. Don't we, Lucile?"

The girl nodded. She was too hysterical to trust herself to speak. "Yes, dear," said the mother, "give them your consent and leave everything to me. It'll be all right."

He looked at her doubtfully and shook his head.

"I suppose you'll have your way." he said. "You generally do, and your way's usually right; but I'd like to know how he won you over. You were rearing and charging when we left home this morning." The woman laughed, and the young man and the girl, seeing a rift in the clouds laughed too. The father looked at the young man and smiled grimly. "I don't know," he said, "that I ever had anything against you except your youth and that's something you'll be getting over every day you live."

UT on the street he goes, bag and baggage." said Mrs. Raggett, "unless he pays me what he owes me. And to-morrow morning, too."

"I think Musseer Grande means all right," remonstrated Capt. Gaggett, somewhat feebly.

"You are a nice judge of people, you are," retorted his wife, scornfully, "there's not a rum-sucking old sailor about the wharves who hasn't borrowed money from you, and they all mean well. You'd think the Old Boy meant well, I Suppose, if he stuck you on his fork."

Capt. Raggett, guiltily conscious of having loaned Capt. Simon Bond a dollar, that very morning, held his peace.

"For a whole month that old Frenchman has been promising me my money," continued Mrs. Raggett, "says he's a letter coming from France with a lot of money in it. Where's the letter, I'd like to know? I won't be made a fool of "Wait until to-morrow night," pleaded Capt.. Raggett, "the letter may come to-

"Letter from the moon," sniffed his wife, "there's no letter, you ninny; he's only playing off on me for time."

"If you please," said a gentle voice from the staircase, "is it that the post has come not yet?" "Yes, he's come, gone and forgot it," replied Mrs. Raggett, roughly.

"And no letter." cried Monsieur Grande, with a gesture of despair. "I am desolated, Madame Raggett. Again I Madame, it must come, it must come."

"There may have been gales at sea." put in Capt. Raggett. 'Yes, yes," exclaimed the Monsieur

"and held the ships ahead, no aback; patience, Madame, patience."

The old man ascended the stairs to his room, supperless, for Mrs. Raggett had made no hospitable sign.

Monsieur Grande was the sole boarder at the Raggett mansion. The tall, thin, old Frenchman, with the oval of his face accentuated by the grey imperial at his chin, with his gentle manners and perpetual struggle with the idioms of the English language, had made many friends in the neighborhood, but he had never made a favorable impression on Mrs. Raggett. That strenuous lady denounced his gentleness as weakness, and his mistakes in language, stupidity. At first the Monsieur made a meagre living, writing for some Franch newspaper, but, latterly, his contributions seemed unwelcome, and he became back in his board. Then a letter came from France, and the Monsieur came to Mrs. Raggett, his face as radiant as a sunny day in June. In his excited manner he read that a legal matter had been settled in France, and that a remittance of 3,000 frans would be made the monsieur by the next mail. Monsieur trod on the air. He invited both the captain and his wife to a dinner at a French restaurant, and to the theatre afterwards. He promised treats, galore, to the neighbors, and presents to the dirty children, who loved to play tricks on the old Frenchman.

But day succeeded day, and the letter came not. Day by day the irony of Mrs. Raggett changed to insulting mockery, and the gentle old man was overwhelmed with shame. Wistfully he watched for the postman each day, and sadly he bowed his head, as he passed the house, without leaving the expected

"Ahoy, musseer," said the captain, softly, "here's a bit of bread and 'am I hooked from the safe. Eatit."

"I am desolated," groaned the mon-sleur, "will the letter nevaire come?" "Musseer," said the captain, suffering from a throat obstruction, "you'd better get ready to weigh anchor to-morrow." "Comment?" asked the monsieur.

morrow," explained the captain, still suffering with impeded utterance. "I want to give you the word."

"I must leave; is it that I must leave?" "That's what she says," said the captain, "and you come straight down to the schooner Nautilus. I'll give you a berth."

"But, my letter, captain. It will come here, and I must be here to get it." Capt. Raggett shook his head, sadly.

He did not believe in the letter, but not for the world would he have had the monsieur suspect his doubts.

Mrs. Raggett arose the next morning, in a first rate humor for an eviction. She had slept poorly, and had discovered that her husband had loaned a dol- one of Holland's well known lar to Capt. Bond. She ate breakfast with a ferocious gleam in her eyes, which chilled the blood of the captain, and directly the meal was finished she prepared for action.

"Mister Grande," she said, sharply, entering the room of the old Frenchman, "I've come for the money due me." "Mais the letter, it has not come," exclaimed the old man. "When it comes I will pay you."

"Mister Grande," said Mrs. Raggett, "you will do me the favor of leaving this house and board."

Monsieur Grande made no move to leave. He sat, as if stunned, in his room. action. She summoned a ragged, slat- at "Shore Acres" the first of the tern of a man, called Pete, who did odd jobs for enough to buy a drink, and ordered him to carry the monsieur's scanty furniture out on the sidewalk.

The neighbors gathered, as the small pile of effects were placed alongside the gutter, and commented in undertones. When the last piece of furniture was out of the room, Pete grasped the arm of the old man, as he leaned against the wall, and began to drag him out. Then something happened. Pete lay down, suddenly, on the floor, his head striking the boards with a thump, and Capt. Raggett, his face as red as a lobster, escorted the old man carefully down stairs.

Pathetically, the old man perched himself on the pile of his household goods, and concealed his face with his hands. The neighbors looked on, silently. Many of them had undergone the same misfortune in their time, and their sympathy was not the less, because they were silent. They were not wont to Fred Metz. be expressive of their emotions.

The captain solemnly picked up the clock and replaced it. Then he gathered up the papers. There was one bulky envelope from some installment house which had come unsealed and contained advertising matter. As the captain picked this up another letter dropped from out of the advertisements.

"What's this?" exclaimed he, "a letter for M. M. Francois Grande. Where did this come from?"

Mrs. Raggett colored. "I suppose it and nobody noticed it," she said. "Let northern Wisconsin.

"It belongs to Musseer Grande," said the captain, and he bore it to him.

With eyes gleaming, with gaelic utterances pouring from his lips, the old man opened the letter. There was the draft for 3,000 francs, and, more, a promise of a like sum in two months.

The old Frenchman waved the draft, triumphantly.

"I was sure, captain," he exclaimed. "It is that I am riche. It is that we have a dinner at the restaurant, that the friends have presents and the children far as Chicago by her mother, Mrs. H. real estate, my fine farm of 154 have bon-bons."

Garret Kopenga, living five miles southeast of Holland, farmer, says: "I have been subject more or less all my life to attacks of kidney pains and backache. If I caught cold or strained myself from doing any unusually heavy work I was sure to be laid up for a time. The attacks came on at intervals and were very severe. so that it was almost impossible for me to bend over and if in a stooped position I could scarcely straighten again. I tried a great many different remedies and wore plasters but could get nothing to remove the trouble until I saw Doan's Kidney Pills highly recommended and went to J. O. PACKERS AND UNION LEADERS AGAIN MEET IN CONFER-ENCE IN CHICAGO.

SYMPATHETIC STRIKE MAY BE ORDERED

Report of Promised Aid to Union from Independent Packers - President Watching Developments - Blockade at St. Paul Raised.

Chicago, July 20 .- Packers' representatives, officials of the strikers' unions and of the allied stockyards trades met Wednesday afternoon in a last effort to effect a settlement of the strike. In case no agreement is reached it is believed that the officers of the unions not yet affected by the strike will order their men out and thus extend the trouble to all parts of the working machinery of the stockyards plants. The labor leaders met for a conference preliminary to the meeting with the packers.

Officials of the packing plants denied absolutely a story to the effect that they intended closing their works, thus at one blow to punish the strikers by cutting them off from work, the independent companies by shutting off cattle ting off the market for stock.

Tell of $1,000,000 Promise.

The most sensational assertion made by the strike leaders since the contest began was made by President Donnelly Wednesday. This was that the independent packers had given assurance to the unions that they would go so far in rendering aid as to make a donation the donation on a per capita basis to be paid in small allotments. Mr. Donnelly declared he had letters from the independent packers of St. Louis, East St. Louis and many other points extending financial encouragement.

Lynching Narrowly Averted.

The police on strike duty at the stockyards Wednesday made every effort to apprehend the leaders of a crowd that attempted to lynch a colored strikebreaker. The attempted lynching occurred during the night. A colored strike-breaker, George Johnson, was cornered by a crowd at Wood and Butler streets. The man fought desperately, cured me. " Just as good for Liver but the crowd overpowered him. A rope was obtained and thrown over the negro's neck and he was dragged several feet. Then cooler heads checked the riot. Blocking the way of the crowd's leaders a dozen men commanded the mob to stop. Peace argument finally prevailed and the negro, severely bruised, was finally let go, being made to run the gantlet to the protection afforded by the stockyards' walls. President Watching Developments.

Oyster Bay, L. I., N. Y., July 20 .the developments of the beef strike in Chicago, New York and other cities. By his express direction Secretary Metcalf, of the department of commerce and labor, through special agents of the department, is collecting all obtainable information regarding the strike for probable future use. The president manifests concern over the strike, affecting so appreciably one of the great food traffics of the country, not on account of its possible political bearing, but because of the serious financial Women love a clear, healthy com- strain it is putting on the beef consumplexion. He deeply regrets, too, that such a conflict between the interests of capital and labor should have been precipitated—a conflict that A wheelman's tool bag isn't com- certainly will entail serious loss to both sides. It is known that the president regards the situation as grave. He hopes that an agreement between the packers and their men may be reached through negotiations now pending, but he is without definite information on come an active factor in the problem.

Blockade Is Raised. St. Paul, Minn., July 20.-Conforming with instructions received by President Willis, of the South St. Paul Butchers' dysentery, diarrhoea, seasickness, union from President Donnelly, of Chinausea. Pleasant to take. Perfectly cago, the officers of the South St. Paul union raised the strike blockade at the Swift packing plant in South St. Paul Wednesday, pending further instructions from Chicago. All persons who desired to enter the Swift plant were allowed to do so without hindrance, and there is a peaceful air about that locality. A half dozen special police, sworn Bucklen's Arnica Salve quickly ar in during the night by Mayor Lyttle, of rested further inflammation and cured him. If you inherited or contracted any Blood Disease you are never safe unless the virus or poison has been eradicated from the system. At times you see alarming symptoms, but live in hopes no serious results will follow. Have you any of the following symptoms? Sore throat, ulcers on the tongue or in the mouth, hair failing out, aching pains, itchiness of the skin, sores or blotches on the body, eyes red and smart, dyspeptic stomach, sexual weakness—enlarged glands. Don't trust to luck. Don't ruin your system with the old fogy treatment—mercury, potash and patent, medicines, which suppress the symptoms for a time only to break out again when happy in domestic life. Don't let quacks experiment on you. Our NEW METHOD TREATMENT is guaranteed to cure you. OUR GUARANTEES ARE BACKED BY BANK BONDS that the Blood or Skin disease will never return. Thousands of patients have been already cured by our NEW METHOD TREATMENT for over 20 years, and no return of the disease. No experiment, no risk—not a "patch up," but a positive cure. Before Leaument dysperite stomach, foul breach, itchy, skin, etc. It is needless for me to say I tried doctors. I grew to hate the looks of one. I visited Hot Springs twice four months each time. It helped me temporarily, but in six months after returning home I was as had as ever. Finally a Doctor friend of mine advised me to see Drs. Kennedy & Kergan. He said he had known of them for over 20 years, and as they made a specially of these diseases and treated the worst cases by the hundred they ought to be expert in curing thm. I was afraid of advertising doctors, but I took his advice. They agreed to treat me under a guarantee or no pay investigated their financial standing and found they were perfectly responsible, so I commenced the new method Treatment. The eruntions disappeared in two weeks, the bone pains in four weeks and in four months I was entirely cured. Yes, sir, I can recommend the New Mchod Treatment for Blood and Skin Diseases."

LEAVES AT ONCE ON JOURNEY TO FRANCE

History of the Famous Case-Was Charged with Poisoning Her Husband and Served Fourteen Years for the Alleged Crime.

Truro, Cornwall, England, July 20 .-Mrs. Florence Maybrick is free. She left here at 11:43 a. m. Wednesday on her way to France. Mrs. Maybrick's imprisonment was not terminated with the clang of doors, the last sound which remains in the ears of so many of her fellow prisoners who had preceded her to liberty from Yalesbury prison, where she spent more than 14 years of her life. It closed before the arched doorway of the white convent of the Sisterhood of the Epiphany, of this little town, with the black-robed sisters softly uttering their blessings and good wishes for her future. With two companions, Mrs. Maybrick entered the carriage of Miss Dalrimple, secretary of the sisterhood, and was driven rapidly to Staustell, a Friends of Anti-Machine Candidate small station 14 miles away, where, after exchanging good-byes with her companions, she boarded a train and started on her journey to France. She will not go to America until her presence there is considered imperatively necessary.

The greatest secrecy was thrown about Mrs. Maybrick's departure. Mother Superior Julian, of the convent, said that under instructions she must refer all inquiries to the home office. Others at the convent were equally uncommun-

Her husband was over 40 years of age. In the spring of 1889 Mr. Maybrick became ill and in a few days he died. His brothers investigated his death and charged Mrs. Maybrick with the murder of her husband. A long trial followed. and a number of doctors swore that the deceased died of arsenical poisoning. The defense proved that for 20 years Mr. Maybrick had been a confirmed user of arsenic and that he daily took doses large enough to have killed a dozen ordinary men. Mrs. Maybrick patents, $4.6064.70. was eventually sentenced to death by the judge, Sir Fitzjames Stephen, who spoke for two days in charging the jury. He said it was impossible for them to find her not guilty in the face of the July, 3914@39%c; September, 32%@33%c. medical evidence. The judge died some time later in a mad house. From the tember, 59c. time of Mrs. Maybrick's conviction her mother, Baroness de Roques, was unremitting in her efforts in behalf of the prisoner. She succeeded in having the death sentence commuted to penal servitude for life and finally has obtained the freedom of her daughter, to whose release from prison she had devoted her life. The baroness was aided by influential friends on both sides of the Atlantic.

Mob Tries to Storm Jail.

Danville, Va., July 20.-A mob of about 75 men, composed principally of railroad men, wearing handkerchiefs over their faces, made a demonstration before the city jail shortly after two o'clock Wednesday morning for the purpose of taking the negro Roy Shields, accused of the murder last Friday of Flagman James Larmes, of the Southern railway. The police had had notification of the forming of the mob and were prepared. Several shots were fired, but the mob finally dispersed.

FOLK FORCES IN CONTROL.

Organize Missouri Democratic Convention.

Jefferson City, Mo., July 20,-The first day's session of the state democratic convention closed Tuesday night amid a wild demonstration, after the temporary organization had been completed with the selection of Congressman W. D. Vandiver as temporary chairman and J. P. Nolen, of La Grange, as temporary secretary. The first show of strength of the Folk forces was made when the question of the temporary secretary was brought before the convention early in the day. The name of J. P. Brynes, who is generally credited with being closely identified with the machine interests, was proposed by the state central committee in its report. The mention of Byrne's name was the signal for Delegate J. C. Jones, of St. Louis, to leap to his feet and move that Nolen be substituted for Byrnes. The result of the vote, taken by roll call, showed that the Folk forces have a clear working majority.

West Seeks Southern Wheat.

Baltimore, Md., July 20.-For the first time since 1877, Baltimore has been called upon to ship wheat to the west Approximately 100,000 bushels of No. 2 southern red wheat have been forwarded to millers as far west as Cincinnati. It is said that a large part of the early western wheat is in bad condition, owing to unfavorable weather, and certain millers, in order to meet their orders Mrs. Maybrick, who was Miss Florence for flour, have been compelled to use grades of the western cereal rive from their own section.

Fatal Flames.

Reno, Nev., July 20 .- The Humphrey hotel at Susanville, Lassen county, Cal. caught fire and was entirely destroyed. Two children, a daughter of Mrs. L. A. Parry and a son of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Miller were burned to death.
