THE REBEKAH FAIR

Booths All Did a Rushing Business—Some of the Lucky Ones

The annual fair of Miriam Rebekah Lodge held at I.O.O.F. hall Tuesday proved very successful under the chairmanship of Mrs. Addie Brown.

The hall was very prettily decorated by Mrs. Rana Robinson. The beano table in charge of Mrs. Lina Carroll was the center of attraction. The quilt in the booth of Mrs. Maudé Cables was awarded to Mrs. Frances Morse.

On the miscellaneous table, in charge of Mrs. Florence Havener, was a buffet set which went to Mrs. Ada Brewster. Little Lois Rollins was the lucky one to get the basket of homemade candy at the candy booth in charge of Mrs. Lena Rollins. "Grabs," in charge of Mrs. Blanche Fales, was the place to find the "Kiddies" when they were wanted. Mrs. Edith Richards had a very nice assortment of fancy handkerchiefs on her table.

The supper, in charge of Mrs. Helen Paladino, caused a recess at the booths, as it was another one of those good "Rebekah suppers."

The entertainment in the evening, in charge of Mrs. Ida Huntley, consisted of dances by Ruth Robinson and the Thompson sisters, Cynthia Brown George Sleeper and Verona and Charlotte Murphy. Mrs. Sleeper was at the piano for the dance of George Sleeper and Cynthia Brown and Mrs. Ida Huntley played for the other dancers.

A NEW MILESTONE

Ex-Senator Obadiah Gardner Celebrates His Eighty-Seventh Birthday

Hon. Obadiah Gardner, former United States Senator, observed his 87th birthday Monday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Clarence S. Beverage, 93 Western avenue, Sunday, Mr. Gardner and his family were guests at a birthday dinner party at the home of his son, Albert K. Gardner, in Orono. He received many callers and messages of congratulations throughout the day.

Obadiah Gardner, whose ancestors were Maine people, was born in Birchville, Michigan, near Port Huron, Sept. 13, 1850, the son of John and Mary Stevens Gardner. He received his education in Michigan and at Eastman's Business College in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. He then returned to Maine, when he graduated from Coburn Classical Institute in Waterville, Maine, and from the Eastman Business College in New York. On Dec. 15, 1875, he married Corinna A. Sherer at Rockland, where they resided for 57 years, until Mr. Gardner's death in 1932.

Mr. Gardner was engaged in the lumber and lime business and farming in Rockland.

Always an ardent supporter of the Grange, he served as master of the Maine State Grange for 10 years, from 1897 to 1907. He retains his interest and has spoken at numerous Grange meetings throughout the State during the past year.

Interested in State and National affairs, Obadiah Gardner was Democratic candidate for Governor of Maine in 1908, being defeated by Gov. Bert Fernald. He was appointed chairman of the Maine Board of Assessors, April 1, 1911, and served until Sept. 13, 1911, when he was appointed United States Senator and served at Washington until 1913 to fill the unexpired term of Senator William P. Frye of Lewiston, deceased.

Ex-Senator Gardner was appointed by President Wilson as member of the U. S. Committee of the International Joint Commission for the settlement of questions arising on the boundary waters between the U. S. and Canada, serving as chairman seven and a half years. He was re-appointed by President Harding, serving in all, nine years. He retired from national life in 1923. He is a past noble grand of Knox Lodge, I.O.O.F., in Rockland.

Mr. Gardner, who enjoys good health, although his eyesight has failed, travels much, visiting his son at Orono, his many friends in Rockland and elsewhere in the State. He recalls that his birth date anniversary is the same as the late President Woodrow Wilson and Gen. John J. Pershing. He retains an active interest in National and State affairs going often to the State House where he is always a regular attendant at the Legislative sessions and hearings.

Knox County friends add their congratulations.

THE VACATION OF SALZEDO

Yes, It's Busy, But He Wears No Tie, Smells Salt Spray and Sees Northern Lights

By Gladys St. Clair Heistad

The writer of Realm of Music is often put in a quandary, and such was the case after the recent Camden concert when the question was asked: "Who is, or was, Olaf Bolm?"—referring to Carlos Salzedo's composition "Prelude to Olaf Bolm" played on the program by the composer himself. The "Olaf" sounded suspiciously Scandinavian, but no Scandinavian literature available produced any Olaf Bolm, so I decided the only way to obtain the information was by consulting Salzedo himself. This I did, and back came a charming note saying that the story of Olaf Bolm, who is really and truly a living person, is a delightful one which he would tell me if I would come to his home.

The world's premier harpist and a group of his pupils

So last Sunday afternoon I was privileged to visit Salzedo and know that the account will find many interested readers. I shall tell you about it, including therein, of course, the story of Olaf Bolm.

Mr. Salzedo's summer home is on Marine avenue in Camden, close to the shore, set in a quiet secluded spot ideal for study, teaching and composition. The site commands a wide sweeping view of the harbor, and last Sunday it was especially lovely with a brisk wind tossing the deep blue waves and sending along at a lively pace a score or more of the graceful Finn boats.

I was ushered by a maid into the hall of a modernistic house—a hall done in a deep rather vivid blue combined with black, and then into a small reception room where the color scheme was rose and gray. A lovely room whose utter simplicity conveyed at once a feeling of restfulness, quietude, charm. A long narrow rose rug on a gray floor, rose curtains of a slightly deeper shade than the softly tinted walls, gray casings, wicker chairs of a neutral type, a gray bench-like table bearing two or three important-looking magazines, a small shelf bearing four—or was it five?—small glass globes with sprays of so-called "Wandering Jew" trailing down over.

A door softly opened off the hall and Salzedo came quickly into the room—a cordial greeting, a warm smile and "Won't you come into my study? Another beautiful room—soft yellows—soundproof and scientifically illuminated as is the entire house. The grand piano and large desk bespeaking work and study in their litter of music and papers; the beautiful harp which becomes such an eloquent spokesman under Salzedo's artistic fingers; a gorgeous panel painting marked "Buoy 1932" and in one niche a bookcase bearing a shelf on which are many souvenirs brought back from last winter's Mexican trip—quaint carvings, relics unearthed from the burial of centuries, a piece of Mexico's famous pyramid, an exquisite piece of blue pottery.

Out talk was in the study; but first let's take a peep at the rest of the house. The dining room is fascinating—a warm glowing room in red and brown. A long red table with small end tables of brown; unique wicker bench-chairs of red along either side of the table, the end chairs of brown. The walls are red, the draperies in shades of red and brown. A red dish closet with piano-hinged doors, one shelf with cleverly arranged compartments for flat silver; bits of lovely china and lustre, in the latter an exquisite set of cups and saucers from France—just what shade I cannot describe, but sort of a gray. Salzedo said it intrigued him to know just what to use with these cups and saucers—silver would not do gold would not do, so he hit upon the enchanting idea of carved ebony sticks. Lovingly effect, too. Off the dining room is a large porch for outdoor meals. One large side wall is an attic roomy and light and airy, the walls bearing pictures and autographs collected in many parts of the world.

The entire house conveys such a feeling of rest and relaxation. All unnecessary detail has been eliminated. One could sense at once that Salzedo had thought out the interior step by step with care, long deliberation and great intelligence. It is the perfect setting for him—to see him, to hear his compositions, to see him move and hear him talk, one cannot picture him in any other frame than his own house provides.

But now we are back in the study. Salzedo himself is slender, quickly-moving, graceful, suggesting the combination of French and Spanish in feature and complexion. He has dark hair, quizzical dark eyes. His voice is low pitched and he speaks with quite some accent which is entirely right with his personality.

Olaf Bolm was our first subject. Olaf Bolm is the 17-year-old son of Adolphe Bolm, famous Russian dancer, classmate and friendly rival of Nijinski who was one of the greatest dancers Russia has produced and a close friend of Salzedo's over many years. The Bolms and Salzedo, too, were close friends, and when little Olaf arrived on the scene, Salzedo was not in the mood to send to the fond mother the conventional gift of flowers or what-not, so wrote "Prelude to Olaf" and went and played it for the mother and her new-born babe.

The mother listened to the powerful crashing tones, the dissonances, the warring harmonies, and exclaimed: "How can you know Olaf's life will be like that?" Evidently it alarmed her somewhat, but Salzedo stressed the point that it signified power at least, and on that point the Prelude was proudly accepted and dedicated to the newcomer. Only once since that time has Salzedo seen Olaf—then he was eight years old—but a winter or so ago the composer played the Prelude over the radio giving the story in connection with it. Father and son heard the broadcast in California and wired their felicitations to Salzedo. Olaf is now 17 and Salzedo wonders if the power signified in the Prelude dedicated to him at his birth is beginning to be present.

I might say here that Olaf is a common name in Russia, Salzedo told me, but I am wondering if it is a hang-over from the Viking settlements made in that vast country so many centuries ago. There were many Olafs in those Viking days. Salzedo talked so interestingly of Nijinski who has been a mental case in a sanatorium in Switzerland for several years. He spoke feelingly of the great friendship that had existed between them, touched upon the wonderful talent the dancer possessed, and also of the friendship and admiration held for Nijinski's wife Romola who remains devoted and loving during this long period of trouble. It seems back in 1932 there was a debt of $4,000 for the care of Nijinski at this sanatorium. It had to be met; there was no money. Romola Nijinski

ALL ABOARD FOR ELKS CIRCUS

Leon White Heads Splendid Cast For Rockland Club's Great Show Of Sept. 20-21

The cast for the Elks' Show "The Circus" under the personal direction of Miss Miranda of the Amateur Theatre Guild of Boston has now been completed. All these people have been working industriously to make this show an outstanding success.

As previously stated Leon White will play the role of Bob Strong, who has been left a circus by his father. Hermatius Cloverly called Squeak, and played by Eddie Kendrick, takes the part of Bob's life-long chum. John Mazzeo is playing the part of the bearded lady, who is desperately in love with Squeak. Margie the peanut vendor, also in love with Squeak, is played by Dorothy Harvie.

More amusing difficulties are presented by Bobo (Arthur Jordan) the clown in love with Togo (Edith Keller).

To further build the comedy to a frenzied pitch George Sleeper plays the highly excitable Italian balloon man, Tony whose balloons are continually going pop. Virginia Cloverly, played by Betty Vafades, is the lovely sister of Squeak, who visits the circus, with Sir Peter Van Mil-dew played by Ray Ludwick, and his mother Lady Van (Lillian Thurston). These two form the comedy high spots of the evening. Lee Morse plays the role of Zacharius Peabody, Bob's eccentric uncle and Cliff Conary is the country constable who looks for lost jooks.

Important parts are carried by Lou Cook as Pete the ticket taker, Jack Hapworth as the Ring-master and Victoria Anastasio as Bettina, the donkey's mistress and trainer.

The Midgets are Jennie and Betty Staples, Betty O'Brien, Beverly Cogan, Vina Delmonico and Ralph Stone.

The chorus girls are: Barbara Derry, leader, Barbara Murray, Felice Perry, Winifred Dimick, Beverly Bowden, Ruth Thomas, Catherine Delano, Virginia Haskell, Harriet Wooster, Josephine and Anna Pellicane, Dorothy Sherman, Jean Clukey, Maxine Perry and Norma Havener.

Rehearsals are coming along in grand style and the cast report the show to be a laugh riot from start to finish.

It will be presented at Community Building Monday and Tuesday, Sept. 20 and 21.

FOOTBALL OR NO FOOTBALL

The High School is faced with a serious problem this year in its efforts to finance the football team. This sport is very expensive to maintain. It costs nearly $50 per boy for suitable equipment. A boy must be well clothed in order to prevent injuries and make him feel that he is as well fitted out as the boys from other schools.

There is an unusual lack of interest in football in Rockland. This indifference exists both in the general public and the student body of the school. The school authorities feel that the time has come when this activity must exist or cease to function on its own merits. Unless there is a noticeable increase in the support of the team the boys will turn in their equipment after Saturday's game with Skowhegan.

Season tickets are on sale at a very reasonable price. If you want 50 boys to enjoy clean, healthful competition, buy a season ticket for this fall's schedule.

Rockland High plays Skowhegan High at Community Park Saturday afternoon. See that our boys get a good send-off.

UPS AND DOWNS

Literally Described By Guest Speaker Simmonds At the Lions Meeting

Variety is not only the spice of life but of service club lectures. Very much out of the usual was the talk given to the Rockland club yesterday by Charles R. Simmonds, under the title of "Vertical Transportation."

Mr. Simmonds is a native of Pennsylvania, and was a resident of Philadelphia for more than 40 years. Seven years ago he came to Jefferson for a week's vacation and stayed a month. The next year he returned for three months, and liked Maine and Maine people so well that he has been here ever since. For 43 years he has been in the employ of the Otis Elevator Co., and for a long time has been installing engineer.

A talk about elevators is naturally associated with skyscrapers and he took his listeners to New York for locale. The Woolworth Building was New York's tallest structure for a long time, then the Chrysler Building and finally the Empire State Building with its 102 floors, two of which are beneath the surface. The building is 1252 feet tall, and a weight of 10,500,000 pounds is carried by its columns. Into the construction entered 10,000,000 bricks and 730 tons of steel. There are 17,000,000 feet of telephone and telegraph wire.

The regular population of the Empire State Building is 25,000, and into it go 60,000 transients. Engineers of vertical transportation make such a structure possible, and its rental value depends upon the elevator service. Many problems are presented. Signal control governs the elevator system, which is automatic in every respect. The elevators work on split seconds, traveling 1200 feet a minute. From the first to the 80th floor is done in 50 seconds.

The speaker classed the old hydraulic elevators as too expensive and gave an interesting description of the modern type, which has never had a single accident. His description of the air cushion test in the Woolworth Building was actually fascinating.

MISS JONES GOES

Miss Nathalie A. Jones, who has been a member of the Knox County Trust Company staff the past year and a half, has been informed of her appointment as junior stenographer in the Internal Revenue Department, Washington, D. C., and will report for duty Sept. 27. Miss Jones took the Civil Service Examination about a year ago, and it was found that her rank was exceptionally high.

She is a member of the Rubinstein Club and assistant-superintendent of the Congregational Sunday School. Miss Jones is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert C. Jones of Tabot avenue, and a granddaughter of the late Arnold H. Jones who was intensely devoted to her as a child.

Carl H. Duff of the Rotary Club was a guest.

It was voted to donate $10 to the 4-H Clubs for prizes.

In the attendance contest there were 18 Indians and 11 Scouts. Lion Cleveland Sleeper Jr., made the interesting and welcome announcement that the Community Chest campaign had gone over the top by $200.

CHANT OF THE BOX CARS

Consigned for lading, marked for repairs, We bustle about the world's affairs, Like the roadbeds, having our ups and downs, We rock through meadows, we clank through towns, In a thousand, thousand obscure parades We glide down valleys, we climb long grades, Through fields that smell of the fresh-turned sod, The cattle lift their heads as we pass; The sheep gaze up from their close-cropped grass, Shunted, side-tracked, laden again, Fulfilling the service required of men, Under cloudy or blue-spread skies We go with our loads of merchandise; While the roadbed groans and the whistles call And the signaling lanterns rise and fall —Harry Kemp.

See them, that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise.—Eph. 5:15.

Rockland has no insane hospital but there were six mad men at the junction of Union and Willow streets early this morning. And you would have been mad, too. The six men in question were employees of the Central Maine Power Company and had been summoned from their blissful dreams by a "midnight emergency call. The necessary repairs were made, and the six men trooped back to the service building, happy in the thought that they would soon resume their snoozing. But not one of the six parked cars would start. Some fiend in human form had siphoned off all the gas. The neighborhood was suddenly startled by a chorus none too harmonious. It was the Sextet from Lucia, only this time the song was—"We Won't Get Home Until Morning."

The Northend boatbuilding contagion is said to have been communicated to Chester Stewart, who is planning to build a 24-foot power boat this winter. There are many callers at the shop back of Commodore "Pinky" Burkett's where Ivan Rackliffe is building twin knockabouts. Each craft has a 6-foot beam, and the rubbernecks are wondering how Rackliffe is going to get them through a door which is only three feet wide. So many questions have been asked that the desperate builder has finally hung up a sign which asks callers not to talk to the motorman—or something like that.

Sidney Cullen's automobile was destroyed by fire on the Atlantic Highway in Waldoboro Tuesday afternoon. Sheriff C. Earle Ludwick who was passing the locality summoned the Waldoboro Fire Department after a vain attempt had been made to check the blaze with extinguishers. The work of the Waldoboro firemen enabled Mr. Cullen to save the tires and the motor was not badly damaged. Mr. Cullen had experienced incipient fires in the car on several occasions, only to be informed at garages there was "nothing the matter."

If a praying mantis ever crawled down the back of your neck you would get the shock of your life. That is, if all praying mantises are like the critter Lawrence Perry brought back from his trip to Connecticut. The insect measures about four inches over all, has a brown back, with green edges, a sort of a pinkish belly, and skinnier legs than you ever saw with plus-fours draped over them. The praying mantis carefully imprisoned in a bottle, may be seen at this office unless the gun-shy proofreader threatens to go on a strike.

From the year 1899 to date measures nearly half a century—the length of time which this paper has been favored with the name of H. W. Davis on its subscription list. Mr. Davis is now a resident of Wintthrop, Mass., but is well posted on his home town doings by means of the three-weekly reports in these columns. Loyalty personified is the most fitting characterization of this former Rockland citizen.

Grant Demmons of San Francisco is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Riehan, Elm street. Mr. Demmons was a delegate to the American Legion State Convention in Stockton, Calif., but business called him East, and he was obliged to forego the pleasure of attending. Grant is remaining East for a number of days, meantime looking up as many of his old friends as possible.

Steamers North Haven and W. S. White are now on their fall schedule with the North Haven arriving daily except Sunday from Swan's Island, Stonington and North Haven at 9 o'clock, standard and leaving on the return at 2.15. Steamer W. S. White arrives from Vinalhaven at 9.20, leaving at 2.15.

Postmaster E. C. Moran was much interested yesterday when he read that Phillips H. Lord of radio fame had bought the De Coppetti summer cottage at Newbury Neck in the town of Surry. Mr. Moran's interest lay in the fact that the house was his birthplace.

William F. Rogers, representing "Editor and Publisher, The Fourth Estate" was a caller at The Courier-Gazette office Tuesday. Mr. Rogers is a native of Greenville the beautiful town at foot of Moosehead Lake and is ever a booster for the Pine Tree State.

From the far away Province of Saskatchewan in Canada Rev. Corwin H. Olds writes: "Saskatchewan, long known as 'The Breadbasket of the Empire,' is burned out with drought, worse than South Dakota was last year. Maine is still the best place in North America." Amen.

SPECIAL SESSION

E. E. Light Rises Indignantly To Declare That It's Not Needed

Union, Sept. 1 Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— The recent announcement that Gov. Barrows will call a special session of the Legislature "soon" to provide funds, in some way, to finance the old-age assistance law, and proposed school improved re-organized project sponsored by the Department of Education, causes one to submit some reflections, on the course of past events, and the probable results likely to follow the assembling of the Legislature in special session.

The membership of such a session, will be the same, both individually and collectively, as that of the regular session of last winter, announced supporters, during the campaign for their election in the fall of 1936, for the law, already on the statutes, to provide old age assistance. And at the close of session funds were earmarked, to support the educational project, of the Department of Education at the capitol at Augusta.

That would require an added expense of hundreds of thousands of dollars, regardless of the economic conditions of thousands of farmers and real estate owners, who were just emerging from a five-year depression of unexampled severity, among whom were long lists of delinquent taxpayers, in every town, striving to meet current expenses and annual tax levies, with conditions such that there is no prospect in sight of "catching-up," or escaping of "dragging a lengthening chain behind."

Voters could see that no child was deprived, anywhere in the State of an opportunity to obtain the rudiments of an elementary education. And no boy or girl within the State but could advance to a higher education without limit if endowed with the spirit and ambition to attain it.

The referendum submitted two questions: First, to approve old-age assistance. Second, to endorse school re-organization.

But the real issue was to authorize a sales tax of 1% on nearly all commercial transactions, that would practically fasten an additional tax of millions of dollars on the common people.

This was the work of the 88th Legislature.

This same body is to be assembled "soon." Its work was emphatically rejected after a full and free discussion, by the common people. They saw the joker, and by their votes rebuked the lawmakers and propagandists.

The present Legislature body has been publicly heralded as the finest ever assembled in the State. It may be so, individually, but as a statesmanlike assembly it failed, signally, in the two issues submitted above.

Now with such a verdict from the people with a 15-week session, wrestling over scores of bills on the above issues, ranging from the sublime to the "fantastic," can we expect anything good to come out of Nazareth? Jesus said: "The poor will always be with you."

If we give all our goods to feed the indigent still will there be "poor among us?"

If we send every pupil to college still will there be dunces and laggards aplenty?

A great orator once said in eulogizing Abraham Lincoln, and in reply to illiteracy of him that "colleges often polished brickbats and dulled diamonds."

The people want economy, not expansion. They want frugality not more taxes, and unless those in authority heed the lesson taught by the late referendum they may be swept from their present seats by an indignant electorate that will be discomfiting, and may result in a complete political overthrow.

"The mills of God grind slow, but grand exceeding fine," and "He rules in the affairs of men."

Despite the prophecies of the wise and mighty in our State affairs, in recent years we have seen the people instinctively reject proposals urged by the rulers, who can now doubt that the result has been to our good.

The people of Maine will let no man or woman knowingly fash for food or raiment, and no child be deprived of the opportunities of acquiring an elementary education, but they will call a halt in political gestures and Utopian schemes to develop artists and athletic stars of sports and idle vampires rising in clouds from our secondary schools.

Quoting from the Radio Address of W. H. Deering, Aug. 13, ult. he said: "The enactment of laws without the necessary cash to carry out their mandates would be cowardice in its lowest form."

Was not that just what was done by the 88th Legislature during the first term of Gov. Brann? And was not the same re-enacted or continued by the last or 88th session? and now to be recalled in special session. Because they sanctioned the old-age assistance law and passed the "goat" on to the people to provide the cash; they could probably escape "cowardice in its lowest form," if sanctioned by a referendum.

Mr. Deering further says: "Every dollar of cash in the State Treasury is now allocated by a definite appropriation for departments and institutions—that is, it is all earmarked, and that the State has a debt due for overdrafts and expenditures, during the last two years of $2,644,000, to be liquidated (paid) in the next two years by emergency taxation."

He states that "education represents one-fourth of all direct appropriations" and that they are over $10,000,000 a year, and yet in the face of all these sums, drawn from a sorely-pressed citizenry the Department of Education asks for an additional sum of more than half a million of dollars annually to equalize opportunities already in reach of every student, if they be worthy to succeed.

We submit that another session of our present Legislature is uncalled for, and will result in no necessary action, that no additional taxes should be authorized, and our indigent citizens will survive, and our school privileges will suffice until the people demand changes they can afford.

ANOTHER "HUMAN HOG"

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— Reading Frank Beverages' story of the "Human Hog" in last Thursday's paper, reminded me of one I heard my aunt tell of a boy who went to school with her many years ago.

He always had apples, and was always eating them, and one day another boy asked him for one and he replied, "I ain't got but 14 and want them myself."

Mrs. Z. C. Burgess, North Haven, Sept. 12.

Oct. 30—Maine vs. Colby at Waterville; Bowdoin vs. Bates at Brunswick. Nov. 6—Bowdoin vs. Maine, at Orono. Nov. 11—Colby vs. Bates, at Waterville.

ROCKLAND'S FOES

Here's a Line on the Old Town and Gardiner Football Elevens

Rockland High plays Old Town at Community Park, Oct. 16. From up-river comes word that the Canoe City has a squad of 35 and is showing much enthusiasm. On its schedule are such teams as Brewer, Bangor, Dexter and Orono.

Gardiner High which plays here Oct. 29, lacks reserve strength, particularly at the ends and in the guard positions. Ernie Dionne, veteran of two campaigns, will be at one of the guard positions this fall, and Bailey, promoted from the other side of center, but there aren't many to replace these two if they leave the game. Lauriston Rice, a regular guard last year, has quit football.

There are three good tackles at Gardiner High—Louis Bryant, veteran of the last season; Will Eastman, a big lad who was injured last year; and Red Lewis, 215 pounder of Jayvee experience. Eastman, Pete Lozier and Jimmy Brown are other tackle post aspirants.

In the backfield two lettermen are left from the 1936 squad, Bob Newhouse and Normie Rogers. They and Creamer lead the large group of candidates. Altogether, there are 45 men on the squad.

AN AGRICULTURAL FAIR

Distinctly agricultural is the annual fair of the North Knox Society which will be held in Union the last three days of this month. Many other so-called agricultural fairs in Maine have simmered down to "boss" racing, but at Union you have plenty of the former. The agricultural and horticultural exhibit there has few if any superiors in the State, and the exhibitors have plenty of incentive through the cash premiums amounting to approximately $4000. These who fail to visit the hall while the fair is in progress are missing one of the most gratifying features. There are premiums, not only for fancy work, 4-H Clubs, Granges, and farm exhibits, but for drawing by horses and oxen, and for dairy cattle.

BRYANT-KIMBALL FAMILIES

The Bryant and Kimball reunion will be held at Victor Grange hall Sunday, Sept. 26. Baked beans will be served by members here. All bring pastry.

'AUNT AB' WOOSTER

A Camden Correspondent Corrects Recent Article About Her

Camden, Sept. 13.

Editor of The Courier-Gazette:— Having read your article in Saturday's paper about Mrs. Abbie D. Wooster I would like to say that a mistake has been made. My grandfather owned and lived over 50 years in a house at North Haven. He never worked in a factory of any kind. His name was Levi Wooster and Abbie Grant was his second wife and my step-grandmother. I think it would be safe to say that nearly all the shoes worn on the island in my grandmother's day were made right there on the island by hand. The house my grandfather owned—the one he lived in, for he owned others—is now owned by the artist Frank W. Benson. All of Aunt Ab's married life was spent there. Incidentally one of my forebears was the first settler on North Haven, namely, David Wooster. It is spoken of in Sailing Days on the Penobscot. Mrs. C. Kendall Hopkins.

MAYTAG IRONER

Parker E. Worrey, Dealer, Is Demonstrating Famous New Machine

There is a very definite increase in the demand among housewives for electric ironers. Last year ironer sales were the largest in history and this year promises a further substantial increase.

Complete home modernization is one factor for this interest in the ironer. The housewife recognizes that one of her most tedious tasks is standing up and doing the ironing by hand. If she has it done, it means a sizable weekly expense. Another reason for the new interest in ironers is the perfection which they have now reached.

The Maytag Company now has a complete new line of electric ironers. There are six models ranging from a low priced ironer, with open top, to a complete cabinet model that forms a handy table when closed. Simplicity of operation is one of the outstanding features of these ironers. The operator remains seated, simply guiding the clothes over the rolls. The operation is controlled either by knee lever or finger-tip lever, so that both hands are free. Learning to operate the ironer is no more of a problem than learning to operate a washer the first time. There are two speeds—slow for damp, heavy clothes and fast for light, drier clothes. The heat element is divided, and thermostatically controlled, so the most intense heat can be applied to that part of the roll where the most ironing is done, at the outer end where the smaller pieces, ruffles and shirt collars are ironed. A double open-end roll makes it easy to iron full size sheets or table cloths, and tubular pieces. The pressure of the ironing shoe is also automatically regulated. There are in all about twenty features of convenience embodied in these new Maytag ironers, which provide such

AT LAKEWOOD

"Ah, Wilderness" Pleases Theatre Patrons — "Tonight At Twelve" Coming

Another comedy has been selected by the Lakewood Players for their next production beginning with a Monday night performance, Sept. 20. The play is "Tonight at Twelve," a story of tangled relations by Owen Davis. Melville Burke, director of Lakewood plays, staged the original New York production of "Tonight at Twelve" which enjoyed an extended run. William David of the Players was in the original cast. Owen Davis Jr. was originally scheduled to play his original role in the piece but a contract to go on tour with another play may prevent this.

The action of "Tonight at Twelve" revolves around a note indicating that two persons are to meet at that hour. Who sent it and who received it, those are the questions. Obviously an affair is being carried on but by which two members of the several couples in the story is not ascertained until the very end. Prior to the denouement there are plenty of laughs as husbands suspect wives, and wives suspect husbands.

While rehearsals for "Tonight at Twelve" are occupying the players during the forenoon, performances of "Ah, Wilderness" occupies many of them at night. "Ah, Wilderness" is the famous comedy by Eugene O'Neill, famous first because he had always been identified with serious plays before, and famous secondly because of its immediate success with George M. Cohan in the principal role.

It is not often summer theatre audiences have such splendid plays offered them late in the season but Lakewood audiences get the best at all times. A. H. Van Buren has the role made famous by Cohan and Jessamine Newcomb, Dorothy Bernard, Marian Shockley, Grant Mills and John Drew Devereaux have the other major parts. There are, however, nine more Lakewood Players in the cast.

The Lakewood season, longest of any summer theatre company is drawing toward a close and those who enjoy the legitimate theatre should not miss either "Ah, Wilderness" this week or "Tonight at Twelve" next.

WILLIAM CLARK DWYER

William Clark Dwyer died after a short illness at his home at Martinsville, Sept. 7 in his 89th year. Only a few days before he and his wife, Elmira Stone Dwyer, who survives, had celebrated their 63d wedding anniversary. They came from Cushing to Martinsville some 52 years ago, living continuously in the same house which they first occupied, on the northeast side of the harbor.

Here all their eight children were reared, all of whom are living, and the death of their father is the first break in the family—something of a record. The sons are Charles, Wilbert, George and Clarence, and the daughters Annie, Etta, Hattie and Alice, all of whom are married, and there are many grandchildren. The family life has been full of kindness and devotion, and an outstanding example of a life lived at home, with the home and the family relationships the most important feature.

Mr. Dwyer's active life was spent chiefly on the water, his business being that of fisherman. He was keenly interested in all that was taking place in the world, and was a great reader. He was a choice companion for all who were fortunate enough to enjoy his confidence. He was a man of the highest integrity, of sound judgment and few words, soft spoken, always a gentleman, and incapable of doing an injustice. He will be greatly missed by all who knew him.

The funeral services were conducted at South Parish Church Sunday, Sept. 12, by the pastor, J. Wesley Stuart, and the burial was in Ridge Cemetery.

Among the writers: There are those in the game who both detest and love it. . . . Edna Ferber shies away from her machine just as long as she finds it possible to do so, but when, finally, she sits before it turns out a fine performance. . . . Somerset Maugham is forever telling people with whom he converses that his latest story will be his last. . . . Arthur Somers Roche, the late mystery writer, used to put off the actual writing of his yarns so long that hunger got the better of his desire for further procrastination. . . . And so the editors coax and plead and pet these geniuses into action.

Josephine Lawrence, author of the best sellers, "Years Are So Long," "I Have Four Apples," and her latest, "The Sound of Running Feet," advises those who wish to make their living from their pen not to have many friends. She says, "Without meaning to, they discourage you and often-times take away from you the confidence so needed in yourself in such a profession." She thinks anyone can write a novel, that all it takes is courage, and that stubbornness is as good as a substitute. "Tell a woman she can't write a novel," Miss Lawrence exclaims, "and she'll write one in spite of hell and high water."

A 16-year-old High School sophomore in Waukegan, Illinois, Dan Roderrick ate 25 giant hamburgers in 59 minutes, 58 seconds on the offer of the man who ran the hamburger stand who agreed to rip up the check of any customer who could eat 25 of the sandwiches in an hour. . . . They don't tell us how he slept that night. . . .

Six percent of China's 400,000 high school students suffer from the white plague. Welfare organizations have embarked on a spectacular campaign

Those who accomplish a real day's work are usually too tired to tell about it. . . .

The most inspiring daily column written for the newspaper world comes from the pen of a woman writer. . . . Elsie Robinson who writes her panel, "Listen, World!" has doubtless through her writings made more than one reader wake up to himself.

In the Paramount the other evening I think I've discovered the reason for its popularity. There is a rather confidential atmosphere about the place and I think I've hit the reason. It is the soft glow of the lights which is not other restaurant in town can boast of. The only fault I find with the place (a minor one at that) is that when you pay for your musical recordings you can't make your own selection, you have to listen to what the machine thinks it best for you to hear. Or perhaps I'm too particular, anyhow.

YOU GET UP EARLY

But If You're a Farmer You'll Be Interested In These Radio Broadcasts

The ninth annual series of broadcasts by the New England commissioners of agriculture from the Eastern State Exposition will be heard this year the week of Sept. 20 over station WBZ. An usual feature of this year's series will be the time of the broadcasts—6:30 a. m.

"The early morning program of market news which has been presented at 6:15 a. m. the past two years reaches one of the largest farm audiences contacted by any stations of that size."

The first program to be heard Monday, Sept. 20, will feature Commissioner William Casey, Massachusetts Department of Agriculture. Commissioner Casey will discuss his department's connection with the Eastern States Exposition telling "How Massachusetts Plays Host."

The potato situation will be the subject considered next day, with Maine's Commissioner Frank P. Washburn saying, "It's A No. 1 This Year." On Wednesday, Sept. 22, Commissioner Andrew L. Felker of New Hampshire Department of Agriculture will be the speaker,—"The Milk Bottle—and the Torch" will be compared by Commissioner F. H. Jones of Vermont on Thursday. This is a real opportunity for dairymen to get a true picture of modern trends in the milk situation—and a glimpse into the future. On Friday Director Burton K. Harris, Rhode Island Department of Agriculture and Conservation, will end the series with some "Poultry Previews."

The New England Radio News Service, sponsor of these programs, is a co-operative project supported by the departments of agriculture of the six New England States, and the U. S. Bureau of Agricultural Economics. Other programs presented by the Service are heard over stations of the Colonial Network at 12 noon, and station WAAB at 1:15 p. m.

Tourists Came To Maine In 52,756 Out of State Cars During August

The Maine Publicity Bureau is a non-profit organization supported by private funds subscribed by towns, hotels, camps business organizations and individuals for service to the tourist.

Maine has played host to people from every state in the Union, every Canadian Province, the island of Newfoundland as well as several foreign countries as shown by the record kept by the Maine Publicity Bureau during the month of August of out-of-state cars going east by the Bureau headquarters building at the junction of St. John and Danforth Streets, Portland on U. S. Route No. 1.

The record was kept from 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. weekdays in August and shows a total for the month of 52,756 out-of-state U. S. cars, 4,078 from Canadian Provinces and 20 from foreign countries.

That the trailer situation is not such a bugaboo as some of the hotels felt might be, is shown by the recording of only 168 for the four weeks. There were eight out-of-state bicycles, and five special tour buses from Missouri, distinct from those operated on regular schedule.

Massachusetts naturally leads the car record with 24,210, New York next with 8,168, Connecticut, 3,500, New Jersey 3,350 Pennsylvania 2,866, New Hampshire 2,634 which seems low because many came through Fryeburg, Cornish and other gateways from the White Mountains. Ohio is the first under the thousand class with 875, Vermont 585, Florida 572, Washington D. C. 566, Michigan 528, Illinois 527, Maryland 434, Virginia 285, California 211, and so on down to Oregon 4, Idaho 3, Wyoming 2, Nevada and Montana one each.

For the Provinces, Quebec leads with 3,058, Ontario next with 681, down to Alberta 1 and Newfoundland 1. Foreign countries represented are Switzerland, Cuba, Hawaii, Ireland, Panama, Mexico, Manila, P. I. and Canal Zone with 12, quite a cosmopolitan group of people who have come to Maine to enjoy our coastal, mountain, lake and river attractions and our Maine hospitality.

At the Bureau headquarters building service has been given to 1,687 people in the month of June, 7,792 in July, 8,418 in August, answering all sorts of questions such as road information, where to go, where to stay and what to see, where to get the services of a veterinarian for a sick cat, where to have an aching tooth treated, eyes examined and glasses made, who to talk with about gold mining in Swift River and along Sandy River, where to see Maine tourmalines and other semi-precious stones and minerals, where to get married, where to find a lawyer to draw up a deed for property to be purchased and one who specialized in handling a divorce, and where to find a wife, all of which we hope was satisfactorily settled without going off the deep end. Many troubles have been digested and satisfactorily adjusted.

HOLLYWOOD STAR-LITES

(By Chuck Cochard)

Hollywood—A new era in motion pictures is no longer just around the corner, but a reality.

Symphony music has at last been brought to the screen in all its glory in "100 Men and a Girl" starring Deanna Durbin with Leopold Stokowski, the greatest living symphony orchestra director, and Adolphe Menjou.

This marks the first attempt by the motion picture business to help the moving-going public develop an appreciation of the music that has lived for centuries. Here is a picture that the whole industry must look up to for it lights the path into an entirely new field.

All praise must go to Charles Rogers, executive-head of Universal, for his far-sightedness and for the credit of filming this new type of entertainment in such a grand way. For the first time, one can listen to an entire symphony number played by Stokowski and his musicians from beginning to end without any interruptions of any sort.

Five great symphonic renditions are presented and your Hollywood correspondent can truthfully say that if you've never liked symphony music that you will after you've seen this picture.

There just aren't words to describe the goodness of this film. You must see it. It's a hit.

Two elopements in one day is a record. Both by plane and both to the same place. Tony Martin and Alice Faye took the vow after flying to Yuma, Arizona. Later the same day, Miriam Hopkins and Director Anatol Litvak took a plane to the same place to say, "I do."

The rumors about Stokowski's marital troubles are all over the city because of a certain Swedish star. "No kissing" signs hang on several Hollywood stages this week as studios combat a current prevalence of late summer colds. The Gary Cooper-Sandra Shaw heir is due Sept. 20.

Joan Crawford is serious about leaving pictures for the stage we hear, on the expiration of her contract next year and all ready she has her play picked out. Clara Bow, cinema's former "IT" girl, and her husband, Rex Bell have taken over the operation of the Cinnabar and have re-named it "The IT Restaurant." As we said sometime ago, the Martha Raye-Buddy Westmore combination will be separated by divorce proceedings.

Errol Flynn and Olivia de Havilland have started work on their co-starring vehicle, "The Adventures of Robin Hood," which to be filmed entirely in Technicolor. Another football yarn is being readied. It is "Navy Blue and Gold" with Robert Young, James Stewart, and Tom Brown. Re-united again, Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy will co-star in "The Girl of the Golden West," celebrated stage hit of early California, written and produced nearly thirty years ago.

"Big City" starring Luise Rainer and Spencer Tracy is one of the most exciting pictures of the year. It concerns the lives of these two in a "Big City" where Tracy is a taxi driver and there is a taxi war. Miss Rainer is a Rumanian girl.

Jack Benny was Waukegan's comic Valentine to the whole wide world. Born in that thriving Illinois community on February 14, he's been making people laugh ever since. On Jan. 12, 1927, he was married to a non-professional, Sadye Marks, who is his radio partner—Mary Livingstone. His first break in pictures came in 1928. His latest in "Artists and Models." That's all for today. See you next week Cut.

A ST. GEORGE RAID

(For The Courier-Gazette) In Revolutionary days When we got rid of King George's ways. An early St. George settler dwelt Where British emity was felt. A captain of a ship was he, A farmer also brave and free. With children small and happy spouse The captain lived in his new house. The first frame building in the town And standing still its slope to crown Between the cove and riverside Where he employed the flowing tide To saw his lumber in a mill. He built with his uncommon skill. A little Passamaquoddy scheme For antedating New Deal dream.

One evening of a Sabbath day A British "shaving mill" they say. Sailed up the river, anchored near The captain's farmhouse in the rear. And sent a raiding crew ashore With swift and silent stealthy oar. In hope of finding goods and gold The captain was supposed to hold. The profits of West Indies' trade In recent voyages he had made.

They took him by complete surprise. His cattle killed before his eyes. Demanded money all in vain. Then searched the place with might and main. They handled rough the children small. Awaked them from their slumber all. The captain thereupon in rage In fight proceeded to engage. He hit a Tory on the face. And knocked him in the fireplace.

They seized the captain leg and arm And dragged him out to do him harm. They threatened there to kill him too Where they his cows and oxen slew. But then the leader of the band Said "Do not harm head or hand. For he is worth too much to kill. His blood with that of cattle spill. We'll take him not nor turn him loose But keep him prisoner and then Swap him for one of our men."

Allison M. Watts. Tenant's Harbor. [The above verse describes an incident in the life of the first St. George ancestor of many Knox County residents, Capt. Samuel Watts. This rhyme is based on the account found in E. K. Gould's book printed by The Courier-Gazette press, "British and Tory Marauders on the Fenobscot" also on the family tradition of the affair. Much of the stone work of the old dam may still be seen stretching most of the way across the mouth of Watts Cove. A. M. W.]

FROM PALESTINE

Returning Pastor Tells of Ghost Towns of the Old Testament

Rev. J. Charles MacDonald, home from Palestine, brought a wealth of interesting information which will be first imparted to the First Baptist Church of which he is pastor; and a little later to the Baptist Men's League, which he recently served as president. Both organizations look forward to a rare treat. "One of the best words to describe Palestine is the word, diversity," says Mr. MacDonald. "You can travel the length of it in a day by motor. You can go from its eastern boundary to its western boundary in half a day, yet you have contrasts in its climate, civilization, creed not to be found anywhere else in the world. It has been called a 'miniature cosmos.' "In a few hours you can go from the perennial snows of Hermon to the tropical vegetation of Jericho. Around Hebron you will find the Bedouins living the same kind of life in the days of Abraham. In Bethlehem you will see the costumes and customs of the days of the Crusades. In the newer Jewish towns, such as Tel Aviv, you will see all about you the activities of the 20th century, and sometimes the ideas of the 21st. Here, too, in this little land we have the cradle of the two oldest monotheistic religions, Judaism and Christianity. This land is also the second most holy place for the religion of Islam. What an unique distinction that is for so little a country.

"And the center of Palestine is Jerusalem, the city of tradition and history. Over 3000 years' history is covered by the links which bind the present day city with the one captured from the Jebusites. Parts of the Jerusalem that existed in the days of David, of Herod, of the Crusaders, of Solomon the Magnificent can be seen today. Within its walls, too, are many shrines sacred to the three religions already mentioned.

"What delightful excursions we made from this ancient center! South to Bethlehem, birthplace of David and of Jesus. On to Hebron with its cave of the Patriarchs. East down through the Judean Wilderness to the palm-bordered Jericho and the rapid-flowing Jordan where it empties itself into the Dead Sea. West, through the wild hill-country of Judea to the blossoming orange groves of the coastal plain, dotted with Jewish agricultural colonies—remarkable examples of rural life built up within the brief space of fifty years, to Jaffa, where the ships of King Solomon unloaded timber for the Temple in Jerusalem, and to Tel-Aviv, the young city of the Jewish renaissance.

"And what memories crowd in upon you as you take the north road stretching from Jerusalem to Nazareth and Galilee! You pass through the ghost towns of the Old Testament with here and there a village or a ruin to mark their place. This way you pass over the roads and traverse the plains where the great armies of the world have passed and fought. Here, too, you travel in the footsteps of the One who came to bring us Light and Peace.

"The time spent in crossing oceans, and the money consumed in paying fares and hotel bills is many times repaid by one glimpse of 'Galilee, sweet Galilee.' The blue of its waters, and the delicately tinted mountains that surround it form a picture never to be forgotten. We ate and slept by its shore, we swam and sailed on its bosom, and we left it with the wish deeply formed in our hearts to come back to this entrancing spot some day when we could give more time to the study of its beauty and charm."

Harold Kaler and Fred E. Brown Punished Enough, They Believe

For the third time, Harold B. Kaler, of Washington, and Fred E. Brown, of Rockland, sentenced to State Prison, have filed pardon petitions with the Secretary of State's department.

Kaler, sentenced in February of this year to 18 months to three years on a larceny charge, said in his petition that the "eight months" of his sentence served "have punished him sufficiently." He also said he had a father and wife who needed his support.

Brown, sentenced in November, 1933, to 8 to 18 years on a robbery charge contended in his petition that the sentence imposed upon him "was exceptionally heavy for the crime committed," and expressed his belief he had been sufficiently punished. He added his mother and child "needed his aid to support them."

Maine is president of the N. E. Association; Dr. Gervase C. Flick of Boston, vice president; Dr. Floyd Moore of Brookline, treasurer; Dr. Mildred E. Greene, of Waltham, secretary; and Dr. Ralph G. Beverly of Keene, N. H., sergeant-at-arms. Dr. Harry J. Pettapiece of Camden is the president of the Maine Association. Dr. Milton F. Hall of Kennebunk, vice president; Dr. Louise M. Jones of Portland, secretary, and Dr. Genoa A. Sanborn of Lewiston, treasurer.

WITH EXTENSION AGENTS AND THE KNOX-LINCOLN FARM BUREAU

Agriculture
Fred Bryant of North Edgcomb has his barn completed and partly filled with birds. He has three stories. H. C. Hope of Bremen has also completed the remodeling of his barn and has most of his pullets housed.

Several farmers are considering setting out apple trees next year if trees are obtained through the Farm Bureau with State inspection. Trees bought in the past have proved very satisfactory.

The following have applied for testing their hens for pullorum disease: Maynard M. Kinney, St. George road, Thomaston; Theodore Caddy, Thomaston; Foster D. Jameson, Waldoboro; A. F. Currie, Waldoboro; Mrs. Charles Hendrickson, Wiscasset; Lester R. Holbrook, Woolwich; Mrs. Allan Weeks and G. E. Colman, Jr., Wiscasset; Austin V. Sproul, South Bristol; William W. Cochran, North Edgcomb; and Francis G. Reed, Waldoboro.

County Agent Wentworth has taken several samples of soil from blueberry fields in the county. These samples will be sent to the Experiment Station, Orono, to determine what elements are lacking. Tests have been made on the farms of F. M. Payson and Earl Norwood of Hope and George Payson of East Union.

A. D. Nutting, forestry specialist of the Extension Service, has been in the district this week measuring woodlots which were thinned and pruned five years ago. Work was done in the lots of Frank Harding, Head Tide; Charles Weeks, Bunker Hill; Norris Waltz, Damariscotta; and Thurl Flagg, North Nobleboro. Thinned and unthinned plots of pine were used in the demonstrations to determine the value of thinning in increased growth.

The annual drive for members in the Knox-Lincoln Farm Bureau will start this week with meetings Saturday in Washington, Burkettsville, Appieton and East Union; Sept. 20, Union and Montsweag; Sept. 21, Damariscotta, Nobleboro and Whitefield; Sept. 22, Bunker Hill, Bristol, Alna and Boothbay; Sept. 23, North Edgcomb, West Alna, Sheepscot and Edgcomb; Sept. 24, Hope, Rockport and Camden; Sept. 25, Simonton, West Rockport and Friendship.

A demonstration on Mouse Control in Orchards will be held Monday in the forenoon at the orchard of Wallace Robbins, Hope; and on Tuesday morning, Sept. 21, at the orchard of Hodgkins Bros., Jefferson. Mr. Ham, let, a government representative, will be present to conduct the demonstrations. He will have a supply of bait with him for orchardists to purchase at cost if they wish to protect their trees from mice.

Miss Estelle Nason, State home demonstration agent leader, will be in the county to visit kitchens in the contest Sept. 17.

Camden will hold a meeting on Tomatoes Many Ways, Sept. 17, with Mrs. Emelyn Bridges conducting. Mrs. Edna Start and Mrs. Charles Lord will be in charge of the square meal for health.

Meetings with solicitors for the membership campaign will be held in the following communities next week with the home demonstration agents: Sept. 18, Burkettsville, at Mrs. Gladys Linscott's at 10.30 a. m., D.S.T.; East Union, 1.30 p. m., D.S.T., at the Grange hall.

Sept. 20, Union, at R. Bliss Fuller's, at 1.30 p. m.; Montsweag, at Mrs. Mary Hunnewell's, at 7.30 p. m.
Sept. 21, Damariscotta, at community house, at 10.30 a. m., D.S.T.; Nobleboro, 1.30 p. m., at Mrs. Bertram Ricker's; Whitefield, 7.30 p. m. at Mrs. Elizabeth Dunton's.

Sept. 22, Bristol, at Mrs. Florence Prentice's, at 1.30 p. m.; Boothbay, at the Grange hall, at 7.30 p. m.
Sept. 23, North Edgcomb, at Mrs. Leon Dodge's, at 10.30 a. m., D.S.T.; Sheepscot, at church vestry, at 1.30 p. m.; Edgcomb, at Mrs. Marion Smith's, at 7.30 p. m.

Sept. 24, Rockport, at Mrs. Christie Whitney's, at 10.30 a. m., D.S.T.; Hope, at Grange hall at 1.30 p. m.; Camden, at Grange hall, at 7.30 p. m.

"Tomatoes Many Ways" is the subject of the leader meeting in charge of Mrs. Gertrude Hupper and Mrs. Claribel Andrews at Tenant's Harbor, Sept. 23, at Mrs. Gertrude Hupper's house. Dinner will be served by Mrs.

Myrtle Taylor and Mrs. Harry Paterson.

Don't forget your local canning contest! Be sure to exhibit one non-acid vegetable and one fruit.

4-H Club Notes
The first club to finish 100% this year is the Sheepscot 4-H Club with Mrs. Doris Reed, leader, and it has 90% re-enrollment, too.

The cooking and housekeeping girls, for the most part, have enjoyed making their food scrap books this year. Some of them are excellent and show lots of work. We hope you will visit local contests and see what the club folks are doing. Here is the schedule for the following week: Burkettsville, Sept. 16, at 7 p. m.; Camden, Sept. 18, at 2 p. m.; Rockport, Sept. 20, at 7 p. m.; North Haven, Sept. 21, at 7 p. m.; Vinahaven, Sept. 22, at 7 p. m.; Pemaquid Beach, Sept. 23, at 3.30 p. m.; Owl's Head, Sept. 23, at 7.30 p. m.

The Gold Star Workers of South Thomaston, with Mrs. Flora Baum, leader, gave a clever little minstrel show skit at their local contest.

CAREER ON STAGE

Frank A. Magune, Boothbay Playhouse Star, To Continue It In Boston

The following clipping from a recent issue of the Worcester (Mass.) Evening Gazette will be read with special interest in this section, as the young man referred to is a nephew of Robert B. Magune of 186 North Main street, and Dr. H. L. Richards of 76 Broad street.

"Frank A. Magune, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank L. Magune of 22 Franconia street, a member of the cast at the Boothbay Playhouse, Boothbay Harbor, this summer, expects to take part in theatrical productions in Boston this fall. Playing under the stage name of Dick Burgess, Mr. Magune has scored in such well-known plays as 'Ah, Wilderness,' 'Death Takes A Holiday,' 'Fly Away Home' and 'Blind Alley.'"

"The Boothbay Playhouse opened for the first time this summer, having been remodelled from a barn and already the company has made a reputation for excellent presentations. It is made up of young actors and technicians interested in the better type of professional drama.

"Plans are being made for next year under the leadership of Sherwood Keith, the promoter of the enterprise, who secured the services of Mr. Magune after witnessing him in amateur productions in Boston.

"Besides his successful portrayals, including the part of 'The Portygee' in 'Fly Away Home,' which is considered his best, Mr. Magune has worked with Jerome Giddings on construction of sets for all 10 plays produced. The technical work on the boat used in 'The Ship,' and the cleverly designed modernistic furniture in 'Candle-light,' won praise from audiences and actors alike.

"Mr. Magune attended Classical High School. His only dramatic experience in Worcester was gained in the Actors' Guild, an organization which functioned briefly in rooms on Front street."

Dr. and Mrs. Magune attended the play at Boothbay and spent the following day here with relatives.

TO HIS FORMER RANK

Capt. William P. Hancock, Demoted in May Gets His Old Title

After being a patrolman since May, when he was demoted from the rank of captain, William P. Hancock of the Maine State Police Tuesday was restored to his former rank by order of Chief Wilbur H. Towle.

In the absence of Chief Towle, his office said it "understood" that Hancock, commanding officer of the First District in Wells at the time Towle demoted him, had been placed in command of the new Fifth District in Aroostook County, with headquarters in Presque Isle, where Lieutenant J. Edward Marks had been in charge for several weeks.

Gov. Barrows and the executive council recently passed an order changing the police regulations to permit the chief to restore to former ranks any commissioned or non-commissioned officers who may have been reduced in rank.

No reason for demoting Hancock was given by Chief Towle last May when he ordered the officer reduced in rank. Likewise, Hancock made no comment. Hancock, whose home is in York, joined the State Police force several years ago.

"A SMOKE SCREEN"

So Declares N. W. Lermond Discussing Action of Governor and Council

Knox Arboretum, Sept. 11. Editor of The Courier-Gazette:—

Your heading to the letter to the Governor from our Academy Council, Regents and Trustees, and his reply to same; and my second reply to the Governor, is somewhat misleading, in that you emphasize the $25 salary, as if that were the all-important thing. It is not. The all-important matter is the action of the present Governor and Council, whereby they refuse to give any further financial aid to the Knox Academy's science and art and arboretum project, after the State (past Governor and Council) had expended some $20,000 on same. The State officials (one set) place Knox Academy in a position to begin to properly function. Along comes another set of officials and knocks the whole project in the head! What kind of business or statesmanship is this?

Why did the Academy's Council, Regents and trustees ask the Governor and Council to restore me to the State pay-roll? Simply and solely that I, as Director and Curator, would be provided with a small income to carry on with and to keep "the camp-fire burning." If they will give us $5000 out of the contingent fund, for upkeep and development, as they should, for balance of this year and for 1938 the salary of $25 per week can be, and will gladly be, dispensed with. I am sure, absolutely sure, from letters and by talking with visitors to the Arboretum and museum from all over the State, that a very large majority of the people of Maine wish to see this Knox Academy project established on a solid financial foundation as a State Institution of Science and Art.

We will give a few quotations from the many similar letters received. "It is, I am sure, gratifying to all your friends that this wonderful enterprise to which you have given so many years of labor is to be made a permanent institution of the State." (Signed) Louise H. Coburn of Skowhegan.

"I am as anxious as can be that the job you have begun be completed on a large scale. . . . You have done a wonderful work in bringing into being this institution. . . . I am a bit surprised at the failure to provide for Knox Arboretum. This has reached a stage where it should be preserved for future generations." I had supposed that the Governor and Council had legally transferred this institution to the State of Maine. I am quite sure that it was the intention of us all. . . . want to congratulate you on your ability to start what seems to me to be a successful campaign to retain Knox Arboretum." (Signed) Clyde H. Smith, U. S. Congressman.

(Yes, the campaign is on! and we

HOW OFTEN CAN YOU KISS AND MAKE UP?

FEW husbands can understand why a wife should turn from a pleasant companion into a shrew for one whole week in every month. You can say "I'm sorry" and kiss and make up easier before marriage than after. If you're wise and if you want to hold your husband, you won't be a three-quarter wife.

For three generations one woman has told another how to go "smiling through" with Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It helps Nature tone up the system, thus lessening the discomforts from the functional disorders which women must endure in the three ordeals of life: 1. Turning from girlhood to womanhood. 2. Preparing for motherhood. 3. Approaching "middle age."

Don't be a three-quarter wife, take LYDIA E. PINKHAM'S VEGETABLE COMPOUND and go "Smiling Through."

are glad to enroll you. Congressman Smith, in our political army. There is no way out except through and by State aid.

"I would consider it a good business investment on the part of the State of Maine to make suitable appropriations for the support of the Knox Academy of Arts and Sciences, establishing this worthy institution as a State work." (Signed) G. B. Wood, President Rockland & Rockport Lime Corp.

"The State of Maine should appropriate money to carry on the work of the Knox Academy of Arts and Sciences." (Signed) General W. Shaw, ex-Attorney General.

"The State should encourage an effort such as that of the Knox Academy of Arts and Sciences to cause knowledge to supplant ignorance, to encourage our citizens to seek wisdom, rather than mere wealth and to make Maine itself better known and better appreciated." (Signed) George C. Wing, Jr., ex-Mayor of Auburn.

"Residence in the neighborhood and some personal association with the work carried on by its founders has afforded me pretty close knowledge of the Knox Arboretum throughout the various stages of its development. If every newspaper writer of Maine could have had equal opportunity for observation, I am confident that the press would be unanimous in recommending the placing of the institution upon a sound basis through a judicious granting of State aid. . . . How shall be valued the 25 years of self-sacrificing labor that he (Mr. Lermond) has expended in the consistent development of this Arboretum? Truly its aims and purposes deserve to be supported and fostered to the end that the labor thus devoted to a public end shall not be lost, but its results preserved for the benefit of the entire State." (signed) W. O. Fuller, editor Rockland Courier-Gazette.

And, thus we could go on, quoting from letter after letter, from article after article, all breathing the same sentiment and conviction that we are entitled to receive State aid. How, then, in the face of this state-wide and practically unanimous voice of the people of Maine, how can a few State House officials ignore this just request for State aid? To shift the responsibility on to the Legislature, when the question of State aid never came up for consideration either in the House or Senate, is, to say the least, hiding behind a smoke-screen.

The present Governor and Council can give us State aid, taking the money from the contingent fund, as did the past Governor and Council. Yours for justice, a fair and square deal.

THE UNEMPLOYMENT LAW

Further Advice From Augusta Headquarters Regarding It

Liability under the Maine unemployment compensation law is for a two-year period even though an employer's total personnel occasionally falls below the minimum of eight, the Maine Commission pointed out yesterday when it became evident that some employers do not understand that fact.

To be subject to contributions to the unemployment compensation fund in Maine an employer must hire eight or more persons. Should he cut his staff to seven, or even two the second year he must continue to pay a contribution on the basis of his reduced payroll, according to the Maine law.

Such an employer, if his number of employes continues under the minimum of eight, should, on or before Jan. 5 of the year following reduction, notify the Commission that he is no longer a subject employer. Such notice, after examination, and approval, will relieve the employer of further contribution payments.

Even the non-subject employer who elects to extend the benefits of the unemployment compensation act to his workers does so under the two-year period agreement.

ski came to Salzedo in despair: "What shall I do? There is no money. The debt must be paid to continue the care of my loved one."

Salzedo went back to America, shaping plans for raising the money. He thought of a benefit affair, and consulted Koussevitzky and other Russian artist friends of Nijinski's. Koussevitzky dampened the idea of a benefit, from which very little is actually realized after endless effort. Do you know it takes around $2,000 to stage a benefit—hall rental, posters, programs, tickets, advertising, and what-not? Then the suggestion was made: "Why not approach this one and that one and ask for contributions? Surely no one who had seen Nijinski dance, no one interested in art itself, can refuse."

And so Salzedo set forth, the reins firmly in his hands, and in six weeks' time he had the $4,000 in subscriptions ranging from $10 to $500. The list bore many significant names—Kreiser, Damrosch, Koussevitzky, and many others—not all musicians, but sympathetic friends and admirers. Salzedo said it was not an easy task, for money back in 1932 was "few and far between", but the result was gratifying and impressed him deeply. Of course the $4,000 only took care of the debt that had been incurred; there had to be more money, so Salzedo suggested to Romola that she write Nijinski's story—that she alone knew it from the very depth. This she did—and we all know what a powerful success this book has been. Quite recently she has produced another book about Nijinski—perhaps not the success the first was but sufficient to keep the income coming in.

Asked if Nijinski shows any signs of recovery, Salzedo gravely replied, "No. He is very quiet and contained. He shows no interest in music or dancing. Of course, I suppose in some ways his condition is improved. He is physically well, and just recently he wrote his name for the first time in 17 years." Salzedo brought a postcard from a foreign friend which bore Nijinski's first name as he had written it. Then continuing: "Nijinski shows a strange turn of mind. There are two children, but he remembers only one. The first one came when his mind was clear; the second after the cloud had begun to descend. He is a joyful man who sees his first child, but scowls and wonders at the second."

We spoke of today's dancers, and he lamented the fact that the Russian ballet has fallen so far from the fame it enjoyed in Nijinski's time. "In my mind," said Salzedo, "America is gradually taking her place in the front ranks of dancers, and in time will lead the word in the art. It will take time—it may not be before a hundred years has passed, but it will come. Today America has one of the greatest dancers of all times—Martha Graham. She does not always depict the beautiful—there are many who shudder as they watch her dances—but it is because they fear to face life in its reality and as Martha Graham interprets it."

We touched upon the recent Camden concert given by him and his artist-brothers, Horace Britt and Georges Barrere, and Salzedo made this amazing statement: "It was one of the most wonderful audiences we have ever played before. Only one other has been on the same par, and that was in Mexico last winter. In Camden we had not played three bars before we knew the audience as a whole was with us heart and soul. It was an inspiration, and when you said in your review that we gave our best, you were right—we did. And were completely happy in doing so." He said the requests were coming in thick and fast for a repeat performance next summer and he hinted that it might be done.

We talked of the concert in Bangor in 1930 when I first heard him play as soloist. He remembered the concert well, and paid a warm tribute to Gertrude Erhart, young Boston soprano, whose fresh clear soprano still remains in his memory. I told him I should never forget the feast for eyes and ears he and Miss Erhart gave in Sinding's "Sylvain." We talked of Salzedo's many activities—his teaching, his concert work, his composition, his connection with many organizations.

He spoke admiringly of his harp students who come to him during the summer months—earnest devoted men and women, talented and intelligent, practically all of them holding important positions in symphony orchestras, music departments of schools and colleges, etc. He asked questions about local music conditions, deplored the absence of choral units, paid a graceful compliment to Frank Bibb who introduced summer concerts to this section of Maine, and expressed his pleasure in Camden.

Toward the end of my visit, I said: "You are so intensely busy all the time during the summer—teaching, composing, organizing, etc., how can you call it a vacation? He laughed—"Oh, but you see, here I wear no tie, I have the ocean at my feet, I can wake up in the night and smell the salt spray, and can even dash out at midnight with a friend to view the Northern Lights!"

And then it was time to depart. And when again I am privileged to hear Carlos Salzedo, the artist, I shall recall the pleasant chat we had, and feel that we met in common interests, on that one bright sunny September afternoon in 1937.
