Fire Destroys Barn And Live Stock

Five cows, three horses and two hogs perished when fire destroyed the barn on a farm owned by Walton Spahr, Xenia, chief deputy sheriff, located on the Lower Bellbrook pike, six miles from Xenia, yesterday. Lightning during a midwinter storm is thought to have fired the barn. Loss to the contents also included between 150 and 200 bushels of corn, 15 bushels of wheat, five tons of hay and some tools. Except for the hay, the contents, including the stock, belonged to James Marshall, tenant.

The total loss was estimated at several thousand dollars, partly covered by insurance. Neighbors aided in saving two other buildings. They formed bucket brigades to extinguish small fires that started in a tobacco shed and corn crib from sparks. The cattle were in a dairy shed addition to the barn which also burned.

Lehmann says the "Sales Tax" is here to stay and consequently there should be a greater reduction in real estate taxes. It is possible that the state will also provide for an income tax. Some want it a net income while others propose a gross income tax with a low bracket and few exemptions.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dayton, Ohio
Mr. Karth Bull, Editor,
The Cedarville Herald,
Dear Karth:

While rummaging through a collection of old school books and other treasures in search of material for "Boyland Trail," I discovered another packet of very early issues of the Cedarville Herald. Just as Shelton Haggard has said, The Herald was no larger than a hand bill at that period. It consisted of one large sheet, twice folded. Much of the reading matter is of the "koller plate" variety, purchased already set up, and subscribed to by most papers and periodicals of that time.

The local news comprised a few brief items interspersed with personal views of the editor, a style which would be considered poor practice for editors of the present day. I wonder if home folks would enjoy scanning over with me, a few of these early local items and which may call again to mind among older native citizens, forgotten names and incidents hitherto lost in the mist of other years.

The issue of a certain Saturday, April 7, more than half a life time ago reviews a play "The Star of Bethlehem" in which local people took part. It was managed by Professor W. B. Thacker. Special features of the occasion included solos and duets by the Misses Jennie Morton, Vera Andrews, and Fannie Hill.

In the same issue there is a record of the Township election results. Incidentally, the report mentions that the Democrats gave their Republican opponents a "round drubbing." "The outcome," says the editor was "heart-rending," to wit: Dixon lost to Turnbull for trustee; Tom Tarbox had no opposition for Assessor; Findle and Frank Tarbox were elected Constables; Osborn and Homan elected over Township for Justice; Wolford and Smith elected to the School Board. In the Corporation Township went in for Mayor over Marshall; Torrence as clerk; Siegler as Treasurer; Grindle as Marshal; M. Denny as street commissioner, and Silvey, Tarbox, and Barber to the Council.

At this period Charley Weimer starts a butcher shop next to the Winter grocery in the Orin Building. Possibly some old time Cedarville boy can clear up the mystery of who killed the Booby of Bannock from the collar of Jim Milburn's grocery, which degradation is recounted in a miscellany issue of 1890. And what this is, it is possible that Dad Crane entertained some strange premonition of the impending motor age that would spell ruin to his harness business? Then for what other reason should he be announcing to all and sundry that, "I will sell Lap Dusters, Flynets, whips, and driving harness at cost in order to close out my stock."

But to refute the idea that the belief was general is the item in the same issue telling of J. E. Turnbull selling a team of horses for $375.00 to G. W. Crawford who was making a cross country journey to Ironton.

And look at this stirring item concerning a home town traveling party. The report does not explain the nature of the mission but it tells of a long journey by train and boat to Detroit by H. Stormont, John McCorkell, John McLean, John Grindle, Ed Smith, Dan McElroy, Cal Crane and Milo Randall. They set out on the morning of August 26th some 40 years ago, going by way of London, then to Springfield, Urbana, Bellefontaine, Tiffin and Clyde to Sandusky, and thence to Detroit. The report tells a thrilling story of a storm encountered on Lake Erie and how Johnnie McCorkell and Dan McElroy saved the day by helping man the boat. It also tells of excellent fishing, one landed being a 12 pound pike by John Grindle.

Manifesting the sterling character of these early voyagers we note that they put up at the Rice Temperance Hotel in Detroit. Zounds! what a horrible tragedy is given space in the same issue when we note the report of how Al Barber cuts off his big toe with an ax while trimming a hedge.

C. W. Crouse states in an ad that "the weather is now cool enough to keep meat from one day to another, and we desire to keep our store closed on Sunday, and therefore would appreciate customers procuring their meat on Saturday night." Imagine, everybody too stingy to invest in an electric refrigerator.

Two city slickers passed off a pair of "phony" gold spectacles in a trade for a pair of gold cuff buttons with S. L. Walker. The Herald relates that the villains, immediately following the transaction, "speeded out of town in a horse and wagon at break-neck speed" but were overhauled by Constable Tarbox at Jamestown.

REED PRINGLE TRAIN VICTIM TUESDAY EVE.

Hit At Miller St. Crossing and Dies On Way to Springfield Hospital; Former Stock Buyer.

Reed M. Pringle, 46, former stock buyer, was fatally injured Tuesday evening at 8:15 when hit by a west-bound Pennsylvania train at the Miller St. crossing.

Discovery of the body was made by Clarence Deck and Otis Shaw, the body being hurled about fifty feet west of the crossing and was on the north side of the track. Deck hurried to his home nearby and secured a flash-light to aid in identifying the body. Marshal H. A. McClain was notified and Drs. M. I. Marsh and D. C. Kyle gave first aid treatment. Pringle was still breathing but was in an unconscious condition.

Pringle was taken at once to the Springfield City Hospital, accompanied by his wife, Mrs. Maree Pringle, in the McMillan ambulance. Death is said to have taken place after the ambulance reached the Clark county line. At the hospital, Coroner Austin Richards, Clark county, conducted an examination and reported Pringle had suffered a possible skull fracture, internal injuries, amputation of the left limb below the knee, external hemorrhage and fracture of the left shoulder with a number of broken bones.

In as much as there was some question as to just where actual death took place the Clark county official turned the case over to Dr. H. C. Schick, Greene county coroner, who reported accidental death. Dr. Schick and Dr. Marshall Best, physician for the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, viewed the body with Deputy Sheriff Walton Spahr at the Sprague Funeral Home in South Charleston. It is said the train crew was unaware of the accident until it received word in Xenia.

Pringle was born near South Charleston but had lived here the past fifteen years, at one time being in the meat and grocery business. For some years he was active as a stock buyer. He was the son of Isaac and Molly Pringle and beside his wife is survived by his mother in South Charleston. A step-daughter, Frances Payne, also survives.

Pringle and his father-in-law, Charles Weimer, figured in an auto accident on the Columbus pike last summer when the auto hit a farm wagon. Pringle was driving and was unhurt but Weimer sustained a crushed arm, which was later amputated.

MORE THAN FIFTY MILES NEW TELEPHONE LINES

For more than a year the Ohio Bell Telephone Company has had a force of employees here under the direction of George Evans, West Milton, O., foreman, rebuilding the company lines that serve patrons through the local exchange. It was a year ago last November when Mr. Evans started this work and the rural lines were completed this week. The improvement covered more than fifty miles of new wire and new pole service.

In addition much of the distribution system in the village has been rebuilt with new cable and service lines. In some places the Bell Company, Postal Telegraph and Dayton Power & Light Co., joined in ownership of the pole lines. Mr. Evans reports that he yet has considerable work to do in rebuilding the lines on the north side of town. Wherever possible new cable is installed to replace the old fashioned wire lines. Within the next year it is possible the line to Jamestown will be rebuilt. A line east of town on the Columbus pike will be a joint line with the Dayton Power & Light Co., which proposes to build a high-tension line to South Charleston following the pike and not the railroad as at present.

With these improvements Mr. Evans says the local plant will be one of the best in this section and represent practically a new institution. All lines have been erected to withstand damage from ice or sleet storms as far as possible.

W. is hoping that everyone will attend and enjoy the evening with them.

THE GOLD DECISION WAS—YES AND NO

After weeks of anxious waiting the decision of the Supreme Court on the gold cases created no great furor either with the Roosevelt administration that took some comfort from it, or for opponents that expected a repudiation of broken contracts.

Roosevelt supporters expected big things the moment the decision was announced. Opponents thought the end of the world would be announced within the next twenty-four hours.

Five judges backed the majority opinion, some of them with reservations. The opening wedge for future action is that the holder of Liberty bonds can sue the government if loss can be proven with the low purchasing power of the Roosevelt cheap dollar that is as hard to pocket as any other back in the gold standard days.

In reviewing the minority opinion one cannot help but be impressed with the decision read by Justice McReynolds, Democrat, former attorney general under Wilson and appointed to the bench during his administration.

From another angle it made no difference what the Supreme Court decision might be for a large percent of the population had little faith in Roosevelt and his Communistic supporters even giving it recognition had it been adverse to present policies.

The Supreme Court decision might be for a large percent of the population had little faith in Roosevelt and his Communistic supporters even giving it recognition had it been adverse to present policies.

The Supreme Court decision might be for a large percent of the population had little faith in Roosevelt and his Communistic supporters even giving it recognition had it been adverse to present policies.

But not only party pledges have been discarded. It was Franklin Roosevelt as a candidate that stated: "The platform is a promise binding on the party and its candidates. I have accepted the platform without equivocation and without reserve."

It would be natural that Roosevelt would be elated when a court decision can be twisted to give approval to removal of "I promise" from contracts, governmental or private, and thus escape payment of moral obligations.

Governments can no longer play fast and loose with national honor than can individuals with personal honor and credit. The effect of the decision based on temporary conditions will not be fully recognized even during the Roosevelt administration.

RESTORING THE DEAD

The old saying that "as long as there is life there is hope," never can be made, by any sort of magic, to be twisted around to mean that things that are very positively and permanently dead can be revived.

The skill of modern physicians is wonderful in bringing back to life those who are near death, and even some of those who are believed to be dead, but who, of course, are not. But when actual decease is known beyond peradventure to have occurred, everybody with any sense gives up to the inevitable, that is, so far as human, animal and vegetable life is concerned.

But in politics and government, somehow or other it's different. There are those who persist in attempts to revive the patient after the heart has stopped, the rale has sounded in the throat and the death pallor has spread over the countenance.

The effort to revive the dead NRA would be comical if it were not so pathetic. Great doctors of politics, experimentation and theory are engaged in resuscitative efforts, in the Washington clinic. It even seems sometimes as if there might be a breath left in the corpse, but all the skill of the political medicine men will not avail. It is time to bury the dead.

Vendors Under the New Sales Tax

Who frequently or only occasionally sell merchandise that is exempt from sales tax need blanks for his purchaser to sign.

The Herald has prepared these blanks and they can be bought in small pads at a very nominal cost. They are approved by the State Tax Commission.

Purchasers who know that certain merchandise they buy is tax free will want to have some of these blanks to insure his right to purchase without paying the tax.

THE CEDARVILLE HERALD Cedarville, Ohio

'HERALD WANT AND SALE ADS PAY'

All kind of charges are being made in Congress as to the operation of HOLC while debate rages over the bill to extend the life of this government loaning institution. One Congressman states that while loans were to be made only on homes a big loan was made on a Boston hotel owned by a prominent Democrat.

It will not be long until the Roosevelt "forgotten man" slogan will be in the has been list with the Hoover "two cars in every garage and two chickens in every pot." Next will be the Kingfish "Everyman a King."

We clip the following from Bud Nelson's column in the South Charleston Sentinel as the Townsend version of "Silver Threads Among the Gold".

Darling, we are growing old, Though not left out in the cold; With 400 bucks to spend, Every month, we need no friend. Yes, my darling, you and me Always full of pep will be And while we are going some, We'll spend little time at home. When your hair is silver white, Still your heart beat will be light, To the night clubs we will go, Keeping young and gay, what ho! So, my darling, you will be Always hotsy-tots to me, Life my darling, will be great, While the youngsters pay the freight.

Farmers will be interested in what is being done by the AAA that acts as "pegging" the price on wheat. For the administration to do what Hoover did in the Wilson administration by fixing a top price on wheat would almost starve the populace. Few people have any means of knowing how much wheat is imported into the country.

The Ohio State Tax Commission has gone into the ballyhoo business. Three female politicians have been employed to travel the state on a salary of $200 a month and expenses to "sell" the sales tax to the people. If the plan works out well additional men and women will get a chance at the ballyhoo game.

Now that the Roosevelt administration is preparing to float a nine billion bond issue, part of which will be "baby" bonds, we may expect to see a grand rush of all Roosevelt supporters to get in on the "buy." All you have to do is to put down about $18.75 and at the end of ten years Uncle Sam promises to pay you $25. There will also be gold clauses but there will also be about that guarantee that you will be paid when the bonds are due ten years hence. Should congress decide in the meantime that paper sack and baking powder labels are currency, of course that is what you will get for baby bonds. But this uncertainty should not disturb Roosevelt supporters. As a patriotic duty all Rooseveltians are to announce from the house tops the number of baby bonds subscribed and paid for and thus lead the way that others will follow. It was reported in financial circles in Columbus Tuesday that all persons who have been receiving government rental payments are to be listed and solicited to take their share of the "baby" bonds. The bond issue will be greater than any issued during the World War.

There is being shown on the silver screen today what many think nothing more than a burlesque on the Roosevelt administration. A suave individual named Elmer Green is a candidate for president and during his campaign many promises are made. Campaign parades show all kinds of signs; "No more work"; "No more scrubbing"; "A pension for everyone"; "Stop overproduction"; "Every man a king"; "Kill more pigs"; etc. Election returns show Elmer Green wins the presidency by billions of votes. The first meeting of his cabinet it is decreed that proper names are out of date and the cabinet is announced that each man and woman must go by a number. For a time life is one sweet dream and Elmer's administration is the culmination of the fruits of the brain trust. Then comes the crash. Reports reach a cabinet meeting of discontent among the people and threats are made of a general strike being called by the American Federation of Laborers.

The blow to the British caused by the failure of their attack on Port Stephenson, ended their invasion of Ohio territory and Perry's victory September 10, 1813 on Lake Erie, brought to a close British supremacy long held on the Great Lakes. But it was six months after the time predicted by Secretary of War Armstrong, in a letter to the commanding general. General Harrison received the news from Perry, at Fort Seneca on the Sandusky River, above Lower Sandusky. He immediately began plans for his expedition across the lake to Malden and the pursuit of the British under Proctor, and the Indians commanded by Tecumseh. After the American success at the battle of the Canadian Thames, the eyes of Ohio were turned to Jackson's campaign in the south, his victory over the British before New Orleans making him the seventh president of the United States.

The O. S. & S. O. Home Board has set July 2, 3, and 4 as the dates for the 55th annual three-day reunion of the Ex-Juventus Association of the Home Freeport, Ill.

It is very unusual to see one of the large tank trucks used in hauling milk go through here. We understand there is a great shortage of milk in the cities and a Cincinnati firm transports several thousand gallons from Northern Ohio. We also learn that other nearby cities face a shortage and that some companies are purchasing milk in this section wherever it can be secured. All regulations have been waived it is said, the company even providing cans.

Senator William Handley, Cincinnati, has introduced a bill in the legislature which if passed would do away with present county boundary lines. The 88 counties would be consolidated into 22. Greene county would be thrown with Montgomery, Preble, and Clark counties. The county seat would be the largest city in the district, in this new plan Dayton would have that honor. Various plans are proposed to simplify county government in the state but all of them have the earmark of city control. More power centralized in Columbus with more state boards. It is proposed to do away with many of the elective county offices but the bosses would get to name the appointees. The bait is to reduce taxes for it is now popular to talk economy. Most all of the plans that are being urged have back of them the idea of reducing the power of the rural vote in the state. There is yet much fear that rural counties will in a few years demand prohibition.

Historical Mileposts Of Ohio

For Major Croghan's gallant defense of Fort Stephenson, he received the plaudets of the whole nation. Just past his twenty-first birthday, he was "a hero worthy of his gallant uncle, George Rogers Clark." He was promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel and awarded a gold medal by Congress.

The patriotic ladies of Chillicothe, on August 13, 1913, presented him with an elegant sword with a signed address. As many of the descendants of those ladies are no doubt living, their names are here appended: Mary Finley, Ann Creighton, Eleanor Lamb, Margaret McLamburg, Catharine Fullerton, Esther Doolittle, Mary Curtis, Richamah Irwin, Martha Scott, Nancy McArthur, Ann M. Dunn, Deborah Ferec.

Mary Sterrett, Eliza Carlisle, Elizabeth Martin, Susan Wake, Margaret McFarland, Jane Heylan, Nancy Waddle, Judith Delano, Lavina Fulton, Charlotte James, Frances Brush, Eleanor Worthington, Nancy Kerr. Susan D. Wheaton, Jane McCoy, Margaret Keys, Jane M. Evans, Catherine Hough, Mary A. Southward, Margaret Miller, Rebecca M. Orr, Eleanor Buchanan, Mary P. Brown, Sally McLean, Eliza Creighton.

The blow to the British caused by the failure of their attack on Port Stephenson, ended their invasion of Ohio territory and Perry's victory September 10, 1813 on Lake Erie, brought to a close British supremacy long held on the Great Lakes. But it was six months after the time predicted by Secretary of War Armstrong, in a letter to the commanding general.

General Harrison received the news from Perry, at Fort Seneca on the Sandusky River, above Lower Sandusky. He immediately began plans for his expedition across the lake to Malden and the pursuit of the British under Proctor, and the Indians commanded by Tecumseh. After the American success at the battle of the Canadian Thames, the eyes of Ohio were turned to Jackson's campaign in the south, his victory over the British before New Orleans making him the seventh president of the United States.

Relief Money Being Spent for Liquor That drunks and vagrants are being given employment while worthy men go jobless in the charge recently made by Municipal Judge Frank Deasy of San Francisco.

"Every day during the last week," said Judge Deasy, as quoted by the press, "some 25 or 30 common bums appeared before me for drunkenness or vagrancy, and every one of them immediately flashes a certificate as proof that he is not a 'vag.'"

"These men get in a couple of days a week, then immediately proceed to spend their money for liquor and lie around the rest of the week in the gutter."

Bishop Edwin H. Hughes says: "Even at its worst we can surely claim that the Eighteenth Amendment has done as well as business! If some may loudly affirm that prohibition needs a Moses, we may say: So does banking need a Moses; so does agriculture. Indeed, just now we need so many 'Moses' that the Nile may be liberally sprinkled with ark of bulrushes and tar, and Pharaoh must considerably increase his family of daughters in order to make the full supply of saviours!"

President Bans Use of His Picture in Advertisements

President Roosevelt has officially directed the proper authorities to take steps to insure that his picture shall not be used at any time in connection with advertising. This action was taken because of the appearance in the New York Times, on the anniversary of the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment, of a full-page advertisement by Schenley Distillers Corporation, featuring the President's picture and publicly acknowledging the President's help in reinstating the liquor industry in this country.

Haven't Seen Anything Yet

A lad of Albert Lea was put in jail for drunkenness. The next morning he was in Justice Dudley's court and fined $10.50. Up to the time of going to press the boy was still in jail. A woman implored that the Tribune editor leave the lad's name out of the paper. We have complied with the request. However, we would like to publish the name of the rascal who sold him the booze. We don't know whether the parents of this boy were advocates of the overthrow of the Prohibition amendment or not—but we do know that there are thousands of mothers and fathers who did vote for its repeal. Some of them fell for the propaganda that the repeal would eliminate bootlegging. Statistics show that the bootlegging now is nearly double that of a year ago—and still increasing. And, as we have said before, "You haven't seen anything yet!"

—Albert Lea (Minn.) Tribune.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Following an election in September 1890...

And now we will go back further to 1887 and find that the music for the Greene County Fair is to be furnished by the Cooper Cornet band of Cedarville.

It was a cold summer that year according to a note by Sammy Green, well, stating that the mercury in the thermometer was not filling the glass column over half way. In the same issue the Crans Hotel property is offered cheap, and blackberries are to be had at 40 cents per bushel.

And here in an old time citizen suffering with the "flux," and ailment which seemed to have passed on as completely as these early sufferers of the malady.

"Several persons," says editor George B. Graham, "have read the Herald in the last two and one-half years since we took it over but have failed to furnish an equivalent." We take it that Editor Graham was taking a dig at delinquent subscribers in this subtle comment.

Now I wonder who has been breaking up things in J. H. Milburn & Son's grocery. It is noted he is advertising glass ware and dishes by the "piece," in the August 23, 1882 issue.

"Phew!" what a stench created by a dead dog removed from under the "sucker jug" domicile by Constable Crane on a certain "yesterday morning," sixty years ago. The "sucker jug" according to the report was located on the southwest corner of E. R. and Main Street.

And who recalls this thriving industry of yester year—a gun was factory in the rear of the building now occupied by Richards drug store.

Will Hart states in 1882 that he will pay 10 cents per pound for young chickens and 6 cents per pound for old ones. J. W. Pollock takes prizes at the fair on Draught Horses, Devon Cattle, and sheep. The Cooper Cornet band invited out to a birthday party given by Mrs. Captain Stewart on the Selma road. On the way back the band stopped in Clifton and gave that village a free concert.

Robert Murray, an "old and respected citizen" died at the age of 85 years just forty one years ago. Strange indeed, to find in this story of my great grandfather's life that he came from high Scotch birth, a descendent from the House of Bothwell, as was my great grand mother who was known in the old country as Lady Martha Gordon. Losing his parents, at the age of 6 years, grandfather Robert Murray was virtually cast adrift by his relatives and from that time his life reads like a repetition of David Copperfield. In the same issue Coxey's Army is said to be converging on Washington. "Present in the body," says the editor, "are many professional loafers and tramps."

And hear is a grim tragedy of March 26, 1895, which will always remain vividly in my mind without having it refreshed by old news reports. Little wonder when as a toddling youngster I came so near to being listed as one of the casualties. "Supposed Murder and Arson," say the conservative headlines above the story of the disastrous fire which destroyed the homestead of W. H. Walker (now the site of the Old Mill Camp on the road to Xenia). I was in that house with my grandparents that stormy March night and would have been burned to death most certainly, save for the timely rescue of forgotten home town hero in the person of "Dude" Deck who ran all the way from the paper mill to burst open the front door with the cry, "Run for your lives!" It was "Dude" who lifted me from my bed and carried me in his arms to safety. But there was one other in the house that night who did not get out, Sanford Wilson, a devoted favorite of my early childhood. Sanford Wilson was burned to death that night and the memory of that horrible tragedy leaves a depressing horror with me to this day. The murder and arson theory was, incidentally, discounted later when silver money was found near the victim's charred body.

And look at this priceless relic—a Cedarville Herald of Saturday, Jan. 1, 1881, Vol. 11, No. 1, and which carries the report of marriage of Andrew Jones and Mattie Cannon, on December 26, 1880. Also a report of Cedarville Public Schools in the same issue—Enrollment 281. Roll of honor in Room No. 1 includes the names of Elmer Arment, Elton Arment, Carl Beemer, Mabel Black, Wm. Ford, Mary Gaylor, Sarah Gaylor, Rebecca Gaylor, Callie Huffman, Walter Hill, Hesse McLean, Rance McLellan, Lulu Owens, Clifton Randall, Kittle Smith, Eddie Townsley, May White, Lizzie Phillips.

This report includes the same honor listings of each room but these must wait as it would require too much space to list them all at this writing. The teachers of that day were: Ada Lanins, Nettie Dallas, Lizzie Andrew, Tillie McCollum, Miss Dawson, and H. H. James, colored. Incidentally, it is noted by way of contrast to the honor roll a summary of "corporal punishments" totals 11, for room No. 1.

Will Mitchell watching his wood pile with a shod gun.

And here I find among some school day helms, a brave attempt at verse writing in dedication to a well known local character. The writing is all but obliterated but we note the poem is entitled "The Lamp-lighter Man." The first verse proceeds as follows:

The Lamp-lighter Man used to come long ago,
In the evening when day was dying,
With ladder and cart and torch light aglow,
And the night moths gleefully flying.
A glimmer of gold up the dark village street
Like a will-of-the-wisp came blinking,
To the thump thump thump of his heavy shod feet,
As he set the street lamps to blinking.

(Note—The next three verses undecipherable.)

We follow his star down the dark alley way,
By the quarry so lonely and dreary,
And a lone robin warbles a liltin' lay
To all who are worn and weary.
Oh! 'twas pleasant indeed in that fond shadow's past,
To gather like we happy seven
Around the dear spot where those dim lanterns cast
A halo of peace straight from heaven.

(3)
But time has no goal to pause in its flight;
Youth's wick gives out in its turning—
Life's spring fades out like a faltering light
And ceases its brief earthly burning.
So that Lamp-lighter Man who came long ago
In the evening when shadows were falling
Has gone to a land where fairer light glow—
From whence there can be no recalling.

(4)
But now I oft wonder as twinkling stars glow
Far across the heaven's blue lining,
If the Lamp-lighter Man we knew long ago
Is setting God's street lamps to shining.
A Former Cedarville Boy.
