

UDC: 005.332:005.44 JEL: F2, F6
COBISS.SR-ID 211781900

CONFERENCE PAPER

The Impact of Globalization on the Business

Ristovska Katerina¹, Ristovska Aneta, University Ss. Cyril and Methodius, Management, Faculty of Economics, Skopje

ABSTRACT – The modern liberal, capitalistic and economic action becomes a conglomerate of factors and reasons, analysis, information, means, mediums, skills and predispositions. In terms of minimized barriers and openness of the world, the inevitable process of the globalization and the business actions represent projects that are facing success potentials, as well as risk and failure potentials. The indisputable accent on these aspects is certainly the success and the reliability of the business ventures for which the ultimate goal is the economic satisfaction, minimizing the risks as well as the establishment of long-term experiences in order to maintain a particular enterprise in a particular environment. The participation on the world's global markets, the internationalization and the transfer of the business activities on all geographic meridians, encountering different and often uncertain environments is a constant business story of the international economic activity for at least three centuries ago. The global economic interaction is as old as it is old the society in its more or less organized form. From the industrial revolution until today, there is ongoing irreversible global economic integration. The reasons are simple, business and profits do not recognize borders, national and cultural unsurpassed characteristics, where more or less a mutual benefit of certain cooperation is recognized, a business connection is immediately established.

KEY WORDS: globalization, internationalization, business, global markets, economic integration

Introduction

The global changes in the world, changes in political, economic and business activities as well as the development of technology, transport and communications, impose the need for enterprises in its struggle for survival, to change their strategies and go out from the borders of their own country. Limited market, competitive pressure, demand for cheaper resources and the dynamics of the postmodern era, forcing business leaders to change their focus from traditional targets to alternative measures for successful business and the entrance on global markets, with the purpose of making competitive advantage.

The impact of globalization on the business

International business is a term used to describe all commercial transactions, in general, (private and governmental, sales, investments, logistics and transport) which occur between two or more regions, countries and nations beyond their political borders (Radebaugh & Sullivan, 2007). International business refers to those business activities which include cross-border transactions of goods, services or resources between two or more nations. Transactions of economic resources include capital, skills, people for international production of physical goods or services, such as finance, banking, insurance, construction (Joshi, 2009). According to Rugman and Collinson, international business analyzes transactions that take place across national borders in order to meet the needs of individuals and organizations. These economic transactions consist of trade (imports and exports) and foreign direct investment (Rugman, Collinson, & Hodgetts, 2006). According to Ball, international business is a business whose activities are carried out beyond the borders of their country and here not only include international trade and international production but growing service trade in areas such as transport, tourism, advertising, construction, retail and mass communication (Ball, McCulloch Jr., Frantz, Geringer, & Minor, 2002).

¹ Master in MBA, St. Franc Preshern 122, 1000 Skopje, email: katerina.ristovska@gmail.com

The companies that are active in international business are called multinational enterprises. Multinational enterprise is an enterprise or corporation that owns substantial resources and performs various business activities through a network of branches located in different countries and each branch form its business strategy, based on the different market characteristics (Cavusgil, Knight, & Riesenberger, 2008). Multinational company is based in one country but has business activities in several countries. There are opinions that the multinational company is one that is so structured that conducts business or property held in many countries or a company is organized into global production parts.

The reasons why a company becomes a multinational, Ansoff separates the two categories (Ansoff, 1984):

- Operational needs: providing materials, equipment, technology and release of surplus production;
- Strategic needs: ensuring the inviolability of future changes in the external environment, steady growth (maintaining historic patterns of growth, avoiding stagnation caused by saturation, increasing the volume of business, increasing the rate of growth) and better profitability.

The development of international business activities coincided with widespread phenomenon of globalization of markets (Cavusgil, Knight, & Riesenberger, 2008). The globalization of markets refers to the growing economic integration and the growing interdependence of countries worldwide. Internationalization of the companies refers to the tendency of the companies to systematically increase the international scope of their business activities, while globalization refers to a makrotrend intensive economic relations between the countries in the world. Globalization encourages companies to internationalize and to substantially increase the volume and types of cross-border transactions in goods, services and capital. Also, the globalization leads to rapid dissemination and diffusion of products, technology and knowledge in the world, regardless of the origin.

The process of globalization is a natural process that is a result of the growing and accelerated process of generalizing of the character and process of production. The development of science, engineering and technology and the expansion of markets for goods, worldwide, lead to internationalization of economic and financial developments and their global deployment. If globalization is understood as a process that leads to greater economic integration of national economies, as a process of fragmentation of the world economy and the international economy, than the globalization is a process of opening of national economies through the removal of economic and financial boundaries of national economies and thus their transformation into an international economic and financial market (Jovanovski, 2007).

Globalization is a worldwide trend, through which economies in the world lose their borders and connect to each other. The companies are no longer imprisoned in their borders and can implement a wide range of business activities around the world. Many companies are present in markets around the world, procured their raw produce or conduct research and development worldwide. Trade barriers fall and global trade between countries in goods and services is growing faster than domestic production. As a result of this, companies can not afford the luxury to assume that the success of the domestic market will lead to long-term profitability (Cullen & Parboteeah, 2010). The flow of money across national borders is freer, and companies seek better financing rates in the world and investors everywhere are looking for a more favorable return on investment.

Globalization, developed from economic aspect, has two main components: the globalization of markets and globalization of production. The globalization of markets refers to the merging of historically different and separate national markets into one big global market. In recent years, constantly is discussed that the tastes and preferences of consumers in different countries and nations begin to resemble on a global level and the way that they help in the creating of a global market. The companies that offer standardized products worldwide, help in the creation of a global market. The most common global markets are not the markets for mass consumer products, because there are still differences between countries in terms of tastes and preferences, which still have great meaning and a sort of brake on globalization, but these are the markets for industrial goods and materials that have universal need the world. The globalization of production refers to the tendency of the companies to find suppliers of goods and services from locations around the world, in order to realize the advantage of national differences in price and quality of the factors of production. Companies do this in order to reduce overall costs and thereby to improve the quality or to improve the functionality of their product offering to compete more effectively (Hill, 2008).

In economics, internationalization is seen as a process of increased involvement of enterprises in international markets (Susman, 2007). The process of globalization, the fight for survival, constant pressure and the need to preserve and strengthen the market position, force the companies to be willing to constantly innovate and explore opportunities for achieving competitive advantage and expanding business activities outside the domestic market.

Entrance of the companies in the global market becomes inevitable not only because of limitation of the domestic market but also because of the globalization; the domestic market share is under threat from foreign competition (Bartels, Buckley, & Mariano, 2009). There are several specific factors that promote globalization and guide enterprises to strive for business development and growth through the international and global operations and include: political changes, development of technology, international business climate, market development, expenses and competition (Ball, McCulloch, Geringer, Minor, & McNett, 2001).

- Political changes. The globalization trend of unifying and socializing the global community, as well as, forming preferential trade agreements and groupings such as NAFTA and the European Union, which united more nations in a single market, allow the companies significant market opportunities. Two aspects of this trend, which contribute to the globalization of business operations are: progressive reduction of barriers for trade and foreign investment by most governments, which leads to intense opening new markets by international companies, which also exported them and build production facilities in them, and the privatization of most of the industry in the former communist countries, as well as opening up their economies to global competition.

- Development of technology. The development of computing and communication technologies has enabled increased flow of ideas and information across the borders of the countries, providing introduction of the consumers with the goods worldwide. Internet and networking have enabled smaller companies to compete globally, as a result of the rapid flow of information, regardless of the physical location of the seller or buyer. Also, allows international companies to hold corporate meetings among managers from headquarters and branches, without wasting unnecessary time for travel.

- International business climate. The development of communication and information technologies have contributed to the process of globalization, but also provided instruments that facilitated the processes of globalization. Newly emerging markets also recognize the economic benefits, technological development and growth opportunities that globalization provides them.

- Development of markets. Information and communication technologies, the rapid development of international tourism, widespread cultural exchange and improved the living standards, in many developing countries have contributed to the emergence of a group of consumers in different countries and regions of the world with similar educational profiles, lifestyle, purchasing power and for good products, as well as, aspirations for high quality. This scenario, in combination with the liberalization of international trade and the availability of global distribution channels, opens great opportunities for companies that want to offer their products to global markets. Large market potential exist outside of the domestic market, that is why the companies go out on the foreign markets, generate sales and have opportunities for profit that cannot be achieved at home.

- Expenses. The liberalization of trade and investment flows, which emerged in the 80s of the last century, which inexorably moved forward, is a stimulus for globalization of the businesses. Trade liberalization, global consumer habits, rising development costs and the need for economies of scale, pressure from foreign competitors in the domestic market as well as the development of information and communication technologies, are considered drivers of the globalization. Because of the need to introduce new products and investment in research, development and innovation, achieving economies of scale, reduce costs and access to cheaper raw materials; companies are forced to plan activities, taking into consideration the global market. Economies of scale and cost reduction are the main goal of management. That is why companies decide to locate production in countries where the cost of developing and producing are smaller.

- Competition. One of the reasons that the companies join global strategies is the need of maintaining or gaining a competitive advantage in foreign markets and avoiding competition in the domestic market. Competition in international markets is huge and growing, with more multinational competitors who win markets worldwide. The companies improve their competitive position by opposing competitors in international markets or premature intrusion into the domestic market of the competitor in order to destabilize or to suppress its development.

As the globalization increases the speed and prevalence, and for the companies more opportunities are opening easily, to perform on the international markets. The managers develop and adapt strategies for internationalization in order to transform their organizations into globally competitive enterprises. Managers seek to coordinate the supply, production, marketing and other activities based on international activities. The organization of the company globally is a challenge and requires strategic positioning, organizational skills, a high degree of coordination and integration, attention to the needs of individual markets and the implementation of common processes.

The strategy, in an international context, is an organization plan for positive positioning, compared to the competitors. This plan lead the company to selected customers, markets, products and services in global markets, not just a particular international market. The strategy in an international context should help managers to formulate a strong international vision, allocation of scarce resources on the World, the participation of the major markets, implementation of global partnerships, and involvement in competitive activities in response to global rivals and establish activities that add additional value on a global level (Cavusgil, Yeniyurt, & Townsend, 2004).

When the companies compete outside of their country, they face a number of challenges and pressures. These pressures and challenges to maintain competitiveness, require from the companies cut costs, in order the consumers do not evaluate their products or services as too expensive. This leads to the need to locate production facilities in places where production costs are lower, and the development of high standardized products in most countries. In the context of the pressure to reduce costs, managers must strive to be ready to respond to local pressures to adapt products to local market requirements, where the company is active.

This requires differentiation of their offer and strategies in different countries, in order to preserve the tastes and preferences of consumers, but also the differentiation of distribution channels, management of human resources, and government regulations. Because the strategies and tactics for differentiation of products and services in local markets create additional costs, they can also lead to increased costs for the company. These two pressures that enterprises face, resulting in four basic strategies that the companies use to compete in the global market. These strategies are: international, global, multi-domestic and transnational strategy (Dess, Lumpkin, & Taylor, 2004). The strategy that will be chosen by the company depends on the pressure faced by cost-cutting and the importance of adapting to local markets.

Conclusion

Today, the word international company is quite a common phenomenon, which reflects actual business transactions and large expanses between a number of people from different cultures and with different approaches. What unites them in the complex network of relationships is the need of development, rapid exchange of resources and tools and integrated cooperation, which should contribute to ensuring cooperation and ensure the transfer of capital. Can be concluded that today's decisions for crossing domestic borders and internationalize the business is a prerequisite for serious growth and development of a business entity. As such, he is always searching and analysis of potential areas where the company from small or medium business entity would become a corporate organization striving to constantly expanding and increasing its own portfolio.

To make a decision to invest outside of the own borders is a complex and comprehensive process. This process is achieved through several stages and approaches that contain a long-term comprehensive analysis and scanning newly elected investment location.

References

- Ansoff, H. I. 1984. Implementing Strategic Management. Prentice-Hall International, Englewood Cliffs, NJ.
- Ball, A. D., Wendell, H., McCulloch, Jr., Frantz, L. P., Geringer, J. M., Minor, S. M. 2001. International Business – The Challenge of Global Competition. International Edition, McGraw-Hill.
- Bartels, L. F., Buckley P., Mariano G. 2009. Multinational Enterprises' Foreign Direct Investment Location Decisions within The Global Factory. UNIDO, Vienna.
- Cavusgil, T. S., Yenyurt, S., Townsend, J. 2004. "The Framework of a Global Company: A Conceptualization and Preliminary Validation". Industrial Marketing Management, 33.
- Cavusgil, T., Knight, G., Riesenberger, J. 2008. International Business: Strategy, Management and the New Realities. Prentice Hall.
- Cullen, B. J., Parboteeah, K. P. 2010. International Business, Strategy And The Multinational Company. Taylor & Francis.
- Daniels, D.J., Radebaugh, H.L., Sullivan, P.D. 2007. International Business: environment and operations. Prentice Hall.
- Dess, G., Lumpkin, G.T., Taylor, M. 2004. Strategic Management: Creating Competitive Advantages.
- Hill, W. L. C. 2008. Global business today. McGraw-Hill Irwin.
- Joshi, M. R. 2009. International Business. Oxford University Press.
- Jovanovski, T. 2007. Megjunarodni Finansii. Skopje: Euro-Mak Kompanii.
- Susman, I. G. 2007. Small and Medium-sized Enterprises and the Global Economy. Edward Elgar Publishing.

Uticaj globalizacije na poslovanje

REZIME – Savremene liberalne, kapitalističke i ekonomske aktivnosti postaju konglomerat brojnih faktora i uzroka, analiza i tumačenja, podataka, medija, sposobnosti i predispozicija. Kroz minimiziranje barijera i širenje otvorenosti ka svetu, neizbežni proces globalizacije omogućava poslovnim projektima potencijale za uspeh, ali istovremeno sa sobom nosi rizik od neuspeha. Neosporni akcenat na polju globalizacije jeste uspeh i pouzdanost poslovnih poduhvata koji za krajni cilj imaju ekonomsko zadovoljstvo, minimiziranje poslovnog rizika kao i uspostavljanje dugoročnih iskustava kako bi se poslovanje određenog preduzeća održalo u dužem vremenskom periodu u određenom okruženju. Internacionalizacija, učešće na globalnim tržištima i obavljanje poslovnih aktivnosti na svim geografskim meridijanima, uz različita i često neizvesna okruženja, najmanje tri veka predstavljaju suštinu međunarodnih poslovnih aktivnosti preduzeća. Globalna ekonomska aktivnost, u više ili manje organizovanom obliku, je stara koliko je staro društvo. Tekuća globalna ekonomska interakcija se odvija neprekidno, od industrijske revolucije do danas. Razlozi za globalizaciju su jednostavni, poslovna dobit ne poznaje granice, nacionalne i kulturološke karakteristike se zadržavaju a poslovna veza se odmah uspostavlja, osobito ako se radi o saradnji koja donosi obostranu korist.

KLJUČNE REČI: globalizacija, internacionalizacija, poslovne aktivnosti, globalno tržište, ekonomska integracija

Article history: Received: 8 April 2014
Accepted: 16 August 2014