Grim Task Begun To Remove Dead

BY CY RAY

United Press International

MURRAY, Ky. (UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL) — The task of removing drowned bodies from the Kentucky River across the border from Tennessee is about to begin.

Reports indicate that the bodies of 81 people, including 32 children, were swept away from the town of Murray, Ky., when the Kentucky River flooded on Sunday.

The bodies are expected to be found in the river and nearby areas, and the search will be conducted by the Kentucky River Rescue and Recovery team.

The task is expected to be a slow and difficult one, as the river is expected to be in flood stage for several days.

Report Shows Murray Sales Far Ahead

Murray, Ky., March 3 (UPI) — Murray's retail sales for January were reported to be far ahead of last year's figures.

The report indicated that sales increased by 20% compared to the same month last year, with a total of $1.2 million in sales.

The report also noted that the sales were driven by increased consumer spending and a strong economy.
