This month focuses on consumer awareness topics such as Identity Theft Safety, and Rental and Moving Scams.

We also take time to celebrate our Nation’s 237th Independence Day. Remember the reason we celebrate and thank our troops and veterans.
In this Issue:

- From the Ombudsman / Important Numbers to Know
- Consumer Safety Awareness
- Celebrating 4th of July
- Local Babysitting Resources
- July Calendar of Events
- Fleet and Family Support July Classes
- Military Spouse Owned Businesses
WHO IS THE OMBUDSMAN?

Appointed by the Command, Ombudsmen are volunteers and spouses of service members within the command. As an official command representative, the Ombudsman is a point of contact for all family members connected to the command - including spouses, parents, and extended family members.

As an Ombudsman, I am bound by a strict code of ethics and Confidentiality. ONLY the following topics will be communicated to the Command. ALL other topics will remain CONFIDENTIAL:
- All suspected or known situations of child abuse or neglect;
- Alleged domestic abuse; Suspected or potential homicide, violence or life endangering situations; All suspected or known suicide risks;
- Any activity that is suspected or known to be criminal; Any severe financial issues.

Ombudsmen maintain current resource files with information on military and civilian community agencies that can help families solve a variety of problems, and successfully meet the challenges they face before, during, and after deployments. In addition to providing referral information, Ombudsmen can facilitate communication between the Command and family members. Ombudsmen may publish or contribute to command newsletters. Ombudsmen can also assist families in contacting the Command for a variety of reasons.

FROM THE OMBUDSMAN.....

Dear Families,

First, I want to thank all the service members for keeping us safe. I second want to thank the families for adjusting their everyday lives to support their spouses when called upon to serve.

As always, I am here for you and your families. If you have heard of any military or family programs and would like more information, or you have a question or concern about anything, please feel free to contact me at 831-238-4394 or npsombudsman@gmail.com. Contact me and I will help you find the answers to your questions or concerns.

If it is important to you, it is important to me.

RAISING CONSUMER AWARENESS

Identity Theft Protection

According to the Federal Trade Commission, millions of people are victimized by identify theft in the United States each year. Service members may be especially vulnerable because of their frequent moves and deployments. Though the law does not hold victims responsible for debts incurred by identity thieves, victims are responsible for restoring their credit records, a process that can be time-consuming and expensive.

Many insurance companies offer policies to help cover the expenses victims often incur in the process of recovering from identity theft. In this article, you'll find information about identity theft and identity theft insurance.

Protecting yourself against identity theft

The Federal Trade Commission recommends a three-pronged approach to protect yourself against identity theft:

Deter. Deter identity thieves by safeguarding your information. Never leave your purse or wallet unattended in a public place, protect your Social Security number and other personal information and protect your personal information on the Internet. Be wary of email scams asking for personal information.

Detect. Detect suspicious activity by routinely monitoring your financial accounts and billing statements. Check your credit reports at least once a year to be sure they don't contain erroneous information. You can order a free credit report once a year online at AnnualCreditReport.com or by calling 877-322-8228.

Defend. Defend against identity theft as soon as you suspect it. If you find an error on your credit report, fill out an online dispute form through the credit bureau's website or send a letter with your suggested correction. The process of resolving a dispute or unraveling a case of identity theft can be complex and lengthy. If you get involved in this situation, be sure to keep detailed records of letters and conversations and be assertive about following up with everyone you contact.
RAISING CONSUMER AWARENESS

As a service member, you move more frequently than most people. Fortunately, there are plenty of resources available to help you find a new place to live and a moving company to transport your belongings there. You'll have an even greater chance of a smooth move if you learn to avoid some common scams that target people when they're planning for or are in the middle of relocating.

Warning signs of a rental scam

Scammers who prey on people looking for a home to rent may copy the text and photo of an actual rental ad but change the contact information and post it on another online site. Beware of the following red flags:

- The rent is lower than the rent for similar properties. Often scammers will advertise low rent to lure people in.
- No one is available to show you the property. The owner may give you an address to look at the outside of the place, but claim to be out of the country or traveling, and therefore unable to show you the inside of the home.
- The owner doesn't ask for references. Be suspicious if the landlord doesn't care to do a background check to confirm that you can afford the rent.
- The owner asks for a deposit before you've seen the rental property. Never put down a deposit without inspecting a place to confirm that it's for rent. If you can't visit the place yourself, ask a trusted friend to look at the property and confirm that it's for rent.
- The owner wants you to wire money for the security deposit, first month's rent, or application fee. Wiring money is like sending cash. Wiring provides no special protections.

Work with an established property-management agency or realtor. This will offer you a measure of reassurance, particularly if you're trying to rent a place while you're still on a deployment.

Ask your legal assistance office to review your lease before signing. To find an office near you, use the Armed Forces Legal Assistance Locator.

Protecting yourself from rental scams

Take the following measures to protect yourself from rental scams:

- Compare the advertised rent to other rents in the area. A fraudster may try to lure you in with the promise of a bargain. Search other listings to determine the market rate in the area. If a property is advertised at a rent far below those of comparable properties, it may be a sham listing.
- Do an online search of the listing. Type the landlord's name, the property address, and other details from the listing into a search engine. If you find the same or a very similar ad with different contact information, that may be a sign that it's a scam.
- Check the property owner's name with the assessor's office in the municipality where the property is located. If it doesn't match, you may be dealing with a scam.
RAISING CONSUMER AWARENESS

Warning signs of moving scams
A common moving scam involves a mover giving you a low-ball estimate without ever seeing your household goods. After the movers have loaded the truck and transported the goods, they raise the price, citing unexpected costs. By law, it's illegal to charge more than 10 percent above a non-binding estimate.

Here are some signs of a moving scam:
The mover gives you an estimate over the phone or online without visually inspecting the items the company will be transporting.
The mover requires a cash deposit before the move.
The mover doesn't give you a copy of the federal booklet, "Your Rights and Responsibilities When You Move." Long-distance movers are required by law to give you a copy of this booklet.
The mover shows up in a rental truck, rather than a company-owned, marked fleet truck.

Protecting yourself from moving scams
Avoid becoming a victim of a moving scam by taking the following precautions:
Get written estimates from several movers. The movers should base their estimates on an inspection of your household goods.
Check the complaint histories of movers you're considering. Look them up with the Better Business Bureau or the consumer agency in your area. Also, type the mover's name and the word "complaint" in an online search engine to see whether there have been any complaints against the mover.
Choose a mover who is licensed and insured. Movers who transport goods from one state to another will have a Department of Transportation number issued by the Federal Motor Carrier Safety Administration (FMCSA). Go to ProtectYourMove.gov or call 202-366-9805 for licensing and 202-385-2423 for insurance to determine if a mover is registered with FMCSA. Movers who transport goods within state lines are regulated by the state where they operate. Check your state attorney general's office or your local consumer affairs agency to learn about regulations for in-state movers.
Visit the moving company's office. You can get a sense of whether the company is legitimate by visiting its place of business.

America Celebrates its 237th Independence Day

During the American Revolution, the legal separation of the Thirteen Colonies from Great Britain occurred on July 2, 1776, when the Second Continental Congress voted to approve a resolution of independence that had been proposed in June by Richard Henry Lee of Virginia declaring the United States independent from Great Britain. After voting for independence, Congress turned its attention to the Declaration of Independence, a statement explaining this decision, which had been prepared by a Committee of Five, with Thomas Jefferson as its principal author. Congress debated and revised the wording of the Declaration, finally approving it on July 4. A day earlier, John Adams had written to his wife Abigail:

The second day of July, 1776, will be the most memorable epoch in the history of America. I am apt to believe that it will be celebrated by succeeding generations as the great anniversary festival. It ought to be commemo-rated as the day of deliverance, by solemn acts of devotion to God Almighty. It ought to be solemnized with pomp and parade, with shows, games, sports, guns, bells, bonfires, and illuminations, from one end of this con-tinent to the other, from this time forward forever more.

Adams's prediction was off by two days. From the outset, Americans celebrated independence on July 4, the date shown on the much-publicized Declaration of Independence, rather than on July 2, the date the resolution of independence was approved in a closed session of Congress.

Historians have long disputed whether Congress actually signed the Declaration of Independence on July 4, even though Thomas Jefferson, John Adams, and Benjamin Franklin all later wrote that they had signed it on that day. Most historians have concluded that the Declaration was signed nearly a month after its adoption, on August 2, 1776, and not on July 4 as is commonly believed.

In a remarkable coincidence, both John Adams and Thomas Jefferson, the only signers of the Declaration of Independence later to serve as Presidents of the United States, died on the same day: July 4, 1826, which was the 50th anniversary of the Declaration. Although not a signer of the Declaration of Independence, but another Founding Father who became a President, James Monroe, died on July 4, 1831, thus becoming the third President in a row who died on this memorable day. Calvin Coolidge, the 30th President, was born on July 4, 1872, and, so far, is the only President to have been born on Independence Day.
The Fourth of July 2013

On this day in 1776, the Declaration of Independence was approved by the Continental Congress, setting the 13 colonies on the road to freedom as a sovereign nation. As always, this most American of holidays will be marked by parades, fireworks and backyard barbecues across the country.

Fourth of July Cookouts

65.9 million
Number of all hogs and pigs on March 1, 2013. Chances are that the pork hot dogs and sausages consumed on the Fourth of July originated in Iowa. The Hawkeye State was home to 20.3 million hogs and pigs. North Carolina (8.9 million) and Minnesota (7.8 million) were also homes to large numbers of pigs.

6.3 billion pounds
Total estimated production of cattle and calves in Texas in 2012. Chances are good that the beef hot dogs, steaks and burgers on your backyard grill came from the Lone Star State, which accounted for nearly one-sixth of the nation’s total production. And if the beef did not come from Texas, it very well may have come from Nebraska (estimated at 5.1 billion pounds) or Kansas (estimated at 3.8 billion pounds).
Fireworks

$218.2 million
The value of fireworks imported from China in 2012, representing the bulk of all U.S. fireworks imported ($227.3 million). U.S. exports of fireworks, by comparison, came to just $11.7 million in 2012, with Israel purchasing more than any other country ($2.5 million).
