WHO IS THE OMBUDSMAN?

Appointed by the Command, Ombudsmen are volunteers and spouses of service members within the command. As an official command representative, the Ombudsman is a point of contact for all family members connected to the command - including spouses, parents, and extended family members.

As an Ombudsman, I am bound by a strict code of ethics and Confidentiality. ONLY the following topics will be communicated to the Command. ALL other topics will remain CONFIDENTIAL:

All suspected or known situations of child abuse or neglect;
Alleged domestic abuse;
Suspected or potential homicide, violence or life endangering situations;
All suspected or known suicide risks;
Any activity that is suspected or known to be criminal;
Any severe financial issues.

Ombudsmen maintain current resource files with information on military and civilian community agencies that can help families solve a variety of problems, and successfully meet the challenges they face before, during, and after deployments. In addition to providing referral information, Ombudsmen can facilitate communication between the Command and family members. Ombudsmen may publish or contribute to command newsletters. Ombudsmen can also assist families in contacting the Command for a variety of reasons.

FROM THE OMBUDSMAN.....

Dear Families,

First, I want to thank all the service members for keeping us safe. I second want to thank the families for adjusting their everyday lives to support their spouses when called upon to serve.

As always, I am here for you and your families. If you have heard of any military or family programs and would like more information, or you have a question or concern about anything, please feel free to contact me at 831-238-4394 or npsombudsman@gmail.com. Contact me and I will help you find the answers to your questions or concerns.

If it is important to you, it is important to me.

Revised 6/8/2013
The PCS: Become a Master of Change

Each summer roughly one third of military service members and their families make a PCS move. Even seasoned movers can struggle with the stress of adjusting to another duty station. Coping well with change is a process rather than an event that requires patience, acceptance and awareness of how you think about change. The key to becoming a master of change is a willingness to alter your perception of change.

Three outlooks on change

One way to think about change is to compare it to the waves at the ocean. Waves, like change can be powerful and overwhelming. There are 3 ways to handle a wave: get knocked down by it, dig in your heels and endure it, or ride it.

Knocked down

It is normal to feel overwhelmed by big changes or changes that appear to come out of nowhere. If you are knocked down by the waves of change you may feel out of control and think:

- I’m stressed out!
- I can’t take this!
- This isn’t fair!

Enduring it

Gradually you may become a little more comfortable with the change. Your thoughts may move from feeling overwhelmed to finding a way to survive or endure the change. You may think and say:

- How can I get through this?
- What can I do to get by?

Riding the wave

Masters of change learn to alter their view of change. They are not content with merely surviving change. Their goal is to thrive in a constantly changing environment. When the wave of change comes they catch it and ride it. To thrive in the face of change ask yourself the following:

- How can I make this work for me?
- What is good about this?
- What does this change allow me to do that I could not do before?
- What positive things does this change force me to do that I would not have done before and may enjoy?

Additionally, masters of change:

- anticipate and are prepared for change
- view change as an opportunity to grow and try something new
- know that change does not happen all at once and are patient with the process
- understand that they will move through the process of change and become a more confident, successful and flexible person
Need something to read while your kids are doing homework? Here are some books you may find interesting and helpful:

Help! I'm a Military Spouse: I Get a Life Too! by Kathie Hightower and Holly Scherer (Potomac Books, 2007).
A book about finding your own identity apart from your spouse, fulfilling your goals, and finding happiness while married to a service member.

Home Fires Burning: Married to the Military for Better or Worse, by Karen Houppert (Random House, 2006).
A close look at the lives of several military wives.

Information to help you build the skills that help you deal with the realities of being a "married-but-single" parent, moving, handling deployment, and much more. The author, who was raised in an Air Force family, is a columnist for the Virginian-Pilot and the wife of a Navy officer.

Advice about handling relocation, deployment, career, protocol, and family from a military wife and founder of CinCHouse.com.

Today's Military Wife: Meeting the Challenges of Service Life, by Lydia Sloan Cline (Stackpole, 2009).
A resource guide for spouses of all military personnel.
Quick Tips for Managing your Move

Whether you’re moving across town or around the world, these tips will help you make sure your move comes off without a hitch.

Visit the Defense Personal Property System website, Move.mil. Many service members can use this site to set up and manage their move. The site also has helpful information on many different moving topics.

- Set up your move online or contact your installation’s transportation office as soon as possible after you receive orders. This way, you’ll have a better chance of getting your preferred move dates.

- Find the weight allowance for your household goods using the table on the Before You Move page.

- Try to arrange your move outside the peak moving months of June, July and August. If you must move during this time, you may need to be flexible with your move dates.

- Use the online tools at Move.mil and Plan My Move to estimate the weight of your household goods.

- Purge your belongings of items you haven’t used within the last 12 months. Getting rid of these items will lessen the chance you will exceed your weight allowance.

- Never schedule a pick up on the day you need to be out of your house or apartment.

- Schedule a pre-move survey with your transportation service provider at least five days prior to your pack up. In most cases, you can expect one pack day for every 4,000 pounds of estimated shipment.

- Know the rules for filing a claim. You will need to file a report of loss or damage within 75 days of your delivery. More information for reporting damage and filing a claim is available on Move.mil.

Take the Customer Satisfaction Survey on Move.mil. This survey allows you to rate the service and performance provided by your transportation service provider and ensure that only the best companies are selected to move your personal property.
