Levin Shocks Political World

JBL Announces China Summit Talks

By ALAN PUEBLO

Student Government President Jay Levin announced today that he and a small group of newsmen and advisors would depart before the end of the summer on a two-week trip to the People's Republic of China.

The surprise announcement came soon after it was learned that presidential advisor Marjorie Bussman had completed top-secret negotiations with Chinese Premier Chou-En lai.

At a brief press conference held yesterday, Miss Bussman stated that the talks had been "cordial", and that the premier had expressed interest in meeting and talking with a "true American revolutionary."

She expressed puzzlement over the fact that despite Chou's excellent English, Levin's first name was repeatedly mispronounced "Che".

"The talks went very well after the Premier got over his surprise at learning that Our Leader was not dead," Miss Bussman said.

She quoted Mao as saying, "We've just barely managed to fool the world into thinking that Mao is still alive. We certainly didn't expect you and your imperialist friends to be able to fool us into actually believing that your Che (meaning Jay, presumably) was dead. But you did."

In a moment of weakness, Chou admitted that the Walt Disney studios have been secretly hired to build an electronic robot in Mao's likeness.

According to Miss Bussman, Chou said, "We are still chuckling at the thought of your Nixon having talked to a machine for a half hour without knowing it."

Levin expressed optimism that the Mao machine would be turned on for him.

Although a definite date for the trip has not been set, Levin plans to leave Connecticut in the Presidential Falcon in late July. "We will drive to the west coast and try to stow away on a China-bound freighter," Levin said.

"The exact date depends on whether or not the longshoremen are on strike at the time, and when my mother will let me go," he said.

"We hope that the China trip will pave the way for further cultural exchange," Levin added. He hinted that other college officals would visit China in the more distant future, saying that "President Shain has expressed interest in visiting the People's Republic immediately after next year's budget presentation."

The Zoology Department made known their hopes of receiving a Giant Panda. Levin volunteered to offer Chou Democratic Town Chairman A.A. Washton in return for one of the large black and white animals.

have been dieting and sunbathing in preparation for this Saturday," said Ted Chapin, director of production.

The play will be presented on April 21 and 22 at 8:30 p.m. Admission will be $3.00, part of which will cover doctor's bills for treatment of severe sunburn.

The lead role will be played by Tommy Hauer; volunteers for costuming and make-up are needed.

Chapin said, "I am pleased with the results so far and I hope that audiences will have as good a time watching as we have had creating."

Levin Ends Viet War; States U.S. is Victor

BY VINNY N. VENUTI

Jay B. Levin, president of the Student Government Association today announced an end to all military involvement in Southeast Asia, stating that the US forces were obviously the victors. "Victory is ours," claimed Levin, "after nearly twelve years of bitter struggle and hardship, our brave soldiers have turned the tide of Communist perversion and infiltration in all of Southeast Asia."

The announcement had come nearly one month after rumor shock waves throughout the nation. According to the Associated Press, 5,000 peaceniks would be put out of the work by the victory. Peace organizations are expected to lose over ten million dollars in contributions during the first year alone.

Ending U.S. involvement sent off a wave of speculation within the House of College Council as to where to allocate the $20 billion that had been spent yearly in Vietnam. Dean Watson, an influential member of the House of Council, speculated that the money would probably be ap-had begun circulating in the House of the College Council that Mr. Levin would declare a total US victory. Mr. Shain, senior member of the House of the College Council, said that Levin had dropped many hints in the past year that the time to announce our victory was becoming ripe.

"We knew Levin would announce victory when we reached 10 million enemy dead."

In his announcement, Mr. Levin said that history would record the Asian conflict as the US's most trying and difficult struggle, in which bravery and brilliant military strategy were earmarks of U.S. involvement. Attempting not to discredit the South Vietnamese participation, Levin stated that the South Vietnamese had fought a bravely as any army he himself had ever seen.

At U.S. Military Control, Right-Rear-Supply-Brigadeer General Myron Cohen felt that the use of the abacus in counting enemy dead played an integral part in Mr. Levin's decision to announce victory. "When we reached the ten million mark in enemy dead, we knew that Levin's victory was near."

The news of the victory sent propriated to the Physical Plant Budget.

Mr. Ingersoll, head of Physical Plant, stated that the monetary increase in his budget would be put to immediate use bolstering the efficiency of the plant workers.

Five billion dollars could be used to purchase a new lawn mowing machine that would signal to the fourteen drivers when fifty pounds of cut grass had been collected. In addition, the new machine would have a siren and bright, flashing lights affixed to the top of it. Previously five workers were employed to direct pedestrian traffic away from the lawn mower.

"The rest of the funds could be used to furnish a staff of workers to wipe clean all seats before classes. A clean seat is conducive to education, you know," stated Mr. Ingersoll. Other plans that have been in the planning stages for the past ten years that might reach fruition by the expected increased budget include beefing up the force of light bulb changers and leaf-picker-uppers.

Theater One To Present Production of "Oh! Calcutta!"

By CHASE PETERS III

As Ted Chapin has openly admitted, Theater One has inevitably reflected the major trends in modern theater—namely, pretention. "Once Upon A Mattress" was an attempt to alleviate this situation, and to bring some entertainment back to the stage of Palmer Auditorium.

Chapin and the entire cast of "Mattress" were pleased with the results of their attempt, but by no means satisfied. They have thus decided to further their efforts to improve the image of Theater One at Connecticut College by presenting two performances of the famous Off-Broadway hit "Oh! Calcutta!"

"What better way to break down the barriers between performers and audience? What more effective means of increasing campus interest in Theater One?" bubbled an enthusiastic Fred Grimsey, producer of the play.

The cast has been rehearsing for about two weeks. "Our first undress rehearsal is this weekend. Several cast members

Mall's Call

An increasing number of students and faculty on this campus have been discussing the possibility of banning automobile traffic from the central portion of the campus, and building a "pedestrian mall" from the complex to Cummings Arts Center.

We view these discussions with a great deal of dismay, and feel that the pedestrian mall's proponents have failed to consider many of the advantages of the present system. For instance, teachers are now given the opportunity to drive to Crozier-Williams for lunch. What would they do if traffic were banned from the center of campus? Walk?

What would students living in the complex do when they needed to get to the Arts Center on a rainy day? Now they can drive. With a pedestrian mall, this would be considerably more difficult. Class attendance would probably plummet on cold and rainy days.

Life without cars would be lazier and less interesting: People would be sitting around on benches instead of gingerly dodging speeding cars. Students living on the west sides of K.B., Smith, Branford and Plant would sleep all day without the noise of automobile traffic to keep them awake.

The pedestrian mall concept has invaded many of America's largest downtown areas and shopping centers. Let's help keep the nation's colleges free of this rapidly and dangerously spreading cancer. Let's drive the pedestrian mall idea out of our school.

Shinault's Fault

The staff of Pundit is indebted to Mike Shinault of the Duplicating Office for renaming our newspaper for this, our Lampon issue. Dubiously enough, Shinault called this paper the Punjab even before the editors graduated from the Courier-Life School of Journalism.

In recognizing Shinault for his contribution to this year's lampon issue, the editors express deep hope that the bird of paradise makes roost upon his Xerox machine.

Shain Offers College $43 Million Budget

At a tempestuous all-College meeting on Monday afternoon, President Charles Shain and Treasurer and Business Manager Leroy Knight presented a summary of the main points of the portions of general interest of the preliminary budget for the 1971-72 school year.

The $43,685,264.49 budget represents an increase of 134 per cent over the revised budget for 1972. Knight stated that in the past five years, the budget has increased by $35.2 million, or 480 per cent. "The budget has definitely kept pace with the increase in the cost of living; in fact, we are proud to point out that it has far surpassed it," he said.

A large portion of the increase in expenditures of several million dollars from this year to next year is in the physical plant budget. "Mr. Ingersoll convinced us that the purchase of three jumbo-sized leaf vacuumers was an absolute necessity for the future of the College," Shain said.

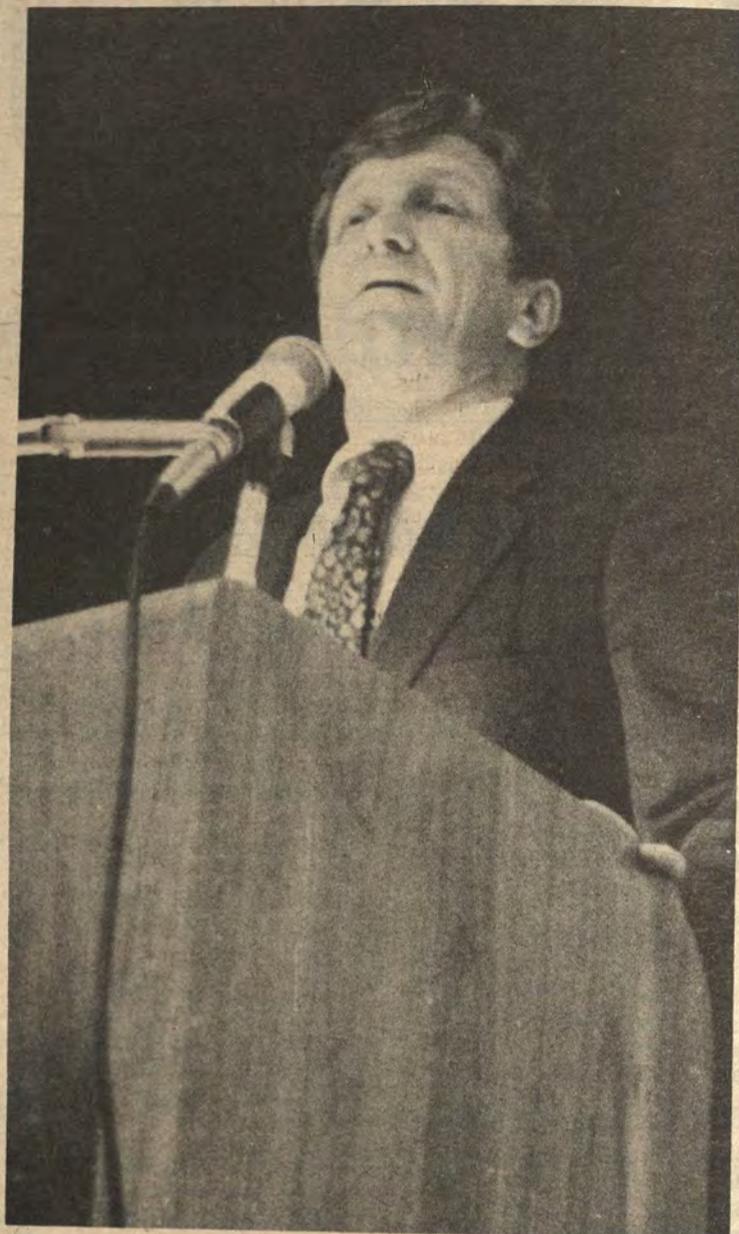

Part of the increase in the physical plant budget was due to the anticipated need for several hundred thousand gallons of off-white paint.

"It is a very lean, hard budget, and shows very little increase in expenditures, other than for leaves and paint," Knight stated.

It is estimated that approximately 16 cents has been allocated for every leaf on campus. This does not include portions of the budget that are designated for "people". The amount allotted for services and wages of students and employees of the College has increased by $26.35.

Knight compared the preliminary budget with this year's revised budget and the actual budgets as far back as 1968-69. "The program for next year reflects when we have been wanting to do for the past five years pretty systematically," Knight said.

Several students at the meeting expressed concern over the possibility that the College could not afford the large increases in expenditures. Shain pointed out, however, that new sources of income were being considered that would "considerably increase the financial reserves of the College."

Among the new sources of revenue under consideration are commercial development of some unused swampland and "overmature forest" in the Arboretum, and the installment of parking meters on campus.

The projected total student aid for 1972-73 is about $750,000, representing an increase of approximately $12 over this year's allocation.

The scholarship allocation was the source of considerable controversy. A minority report was submitted by the students on the committee, calling for an increase of $18 over this year's total student aid.

John Schwartz of the Development Committee defended the minority report by comparing the operating budgets of Connecticut College and Southern Arkansas State Junior College. Schwartz pointed out that SASJC's physical plant operating budget was only five per cent as large as that of Connecticut College.

Shain defended the College's position, arguing that the Southern Arkansas campus has no trees. "Therefore three jumbo-size leaf vacuumers are not needed," he said. He also disclosed that "Housing costs at SASJC are considerably below ours, since their students live in teepees."

Schwartz then accused Shain and Knight of "cheating," and threatened to hold his breath until he turned purple.

Shain, obviously angry, vowed to tell Schwartz's mother on him.

"For a price, we will allow responsible and mature students to have a peek at the budget," Shain said. The only copy of the preliminary budget was reportedly locked in a Swiss bank vault.

News Notes

BY J. WILBUR NERN

New Camera

The Connecticut College News Office announced today that money has been appropriated to purchase a Delux Kodak Instamatic Camera Kit for college photographer, Phillip Biscuti. The kit includes two rolls of film, flash unit and camera. In a recent faculty meeting, debate was raised over whether the college could do with just a normal Instamatic Kit as opposed to the Delux Instamatic Kit. The difference between the two kits is the flash unit. The motion passed the faculty unanimously when one faculty member pointed out that the flash unit would allow Mr. Biscuti to take indoor pictures.

Following the announcement, Jay Levin called the acquisition a progressive step forward, stating that the purchase "was long overdue." John Schwartz pointed out that Fairfield University uses a Polaroid.

ID Cards

Miss Voorhees, head of the resident Department, announced today that a new style of ID cards would be adopted for the coming academic year. The new ID cards are to be reinforced with pins that will allow students to pin the cards to their shirts and blouses. Students will be required to wear the ID cards at all meals.

"The new ID cards will have an immediate effect," explains Miss Voorhees. "Outside agitators and other hungry people will be forced to remain outside the dining room." "We all know that once an outsider infiltrates the dining rooms, he is an insider, and no longer distinguishable as a outsider. As such he is very difficult to detect." In announcing the new move, Miss Voorhees claimed that "Food will no longer be taken from the mouths of hungry Connecticut College students."

Miss Voorhees discounted as rumor that fingerprints would also be included on the new ID. She pointed out that money would be saved on not feeding the inside outsider. Food that is currently being eaten up by the inside outsider would be used to feed Connecticut students for subsequent meals, thereby allowing the Residence Dep't to serve all students better.

Jay Levin, chairman of the Ad Hoc New ID Card Planning Committee In All Seriousness, was despondent at the announcement. He had pressed for free feedings of outside insiders who could prove Biafran or Bangladesh citizenship. John Schwartz was not sure if similar procedures were followed at Fairfield University.

Modern Art

A spokesman for the Art Department announced recently that all students taking Art 101 courses would be furnished with John Gnagee Learn to Draw Kits.

The spokesman stated that there were several advantages in utilizing the Gnagee approach to progressive art. He stated that the primary reason for the new procedure was that it included all reasons for students taking art courses: finding inner bliss and serenity, getting your head together, expressing true inner feelings, and an easy B. "The Gnagee approach utilizes all these and provides a sound background for advanced art courses," the spokesman said.

Jay Levin hailed the new innovation while John Schwartz was not available for comment.

Good Friends

Pres. Charles Shain and John Schwartz 'kissed and made-up' today, after nearly five months of bitter debate. The historic meeting took place at a previously agreed-upon site, midway between Connecticut College and Fairfield University.

Miss Eastburn, assistant to the president, said that Mr. Shain had agreed to the truce in order to maintain peace and harmony on campus, long a Connecticut trademark.

Upon hearing the news, Jay Levin stated that if all Connecticut students were registered Democrats, and had voted the Democratic ticket, then New London would be under Democratic control. He also expressed satisfaction at the new Shain-Schwartz truce.

SGA Announces New Elections Procedures

By KAREEN ABDUL

S.G.A. President Jay Levin announced today that College Council has approved a new procedure for the election of Student Government Officers.

"The new rules go into effect as soon as they are ratified by a two-thirds majority of Student Assembly, the Student Body, faculty, Board of Trustees, Alumni, Parents' Committee, and the Parking Appeals Committee," Levin said. He failed to mention that President Shain and the Windham custodian must also approve the measure.

"The new election procedure is designed to acquaint students with our national democratic process by approximating present presidential nomination and election methods," Jay stated.

The main points of the plan are summarized below:

Campaigning will no longer be prohibited.

Campaigning will, in fact, be required.

A Minimum campaign expenditure of $5,000 per candidate will assure equal or near-equal press and radio coverage. No restrictions will be placed on fund-raising procedures.

A two-party system will be established. Each party may run one candidate for each office. If two or more individuals within one party wish to run for President, the following procedure will be followed:

Primaries will be held in at least fifteen dormitories, wherein each candidate will stomp, shake hands, kiss babies, and sling mud.

Delegate votes may or may not be won in primary elections, and may or may not be committed to the candidate they originally supported. Favorite sons and write-ins will be encouraged. Candidates who cry during primaries will automatically lose ten votes.

Nominating conventions will be held for each party, one in Crozier-Williams, and one in Cummings Arts Center. Chain-link fences, barbed wire barricades, tank traps, and two ranks of riot police armed with billy clubs and mace will guard the conventional sites.

Tear gas will be available at the Crozier-Williams snack bar and the Cummings box office.

Anyone who bats an eyelash within 500 feet of either convention site will be jailed immediately.

Three smoke-filled rooms will be made available to each party.

After an appropriate amount of bribing, head-smashing, and politicking, a final slate will be chosen by each party.

The above procedure will have been completed at least three months before the final election. This will be followed by extensive stumping, hand-shaking, baby kissing, and mudslinging on a campus-wide level.

A college Electoral College will be set up the validity of which will be discussed at length following each election.

Polls will be conducted every two days, with widely differing and highly questionable results.

Three bodyguards with German shepherds will remain with each candidate 24 hours a day.

Two physical plant men will accompany each candidate to clean up after the dogs.

The election will be held on the second Tuesday before the third Thursday of the fifth month after the first snow.

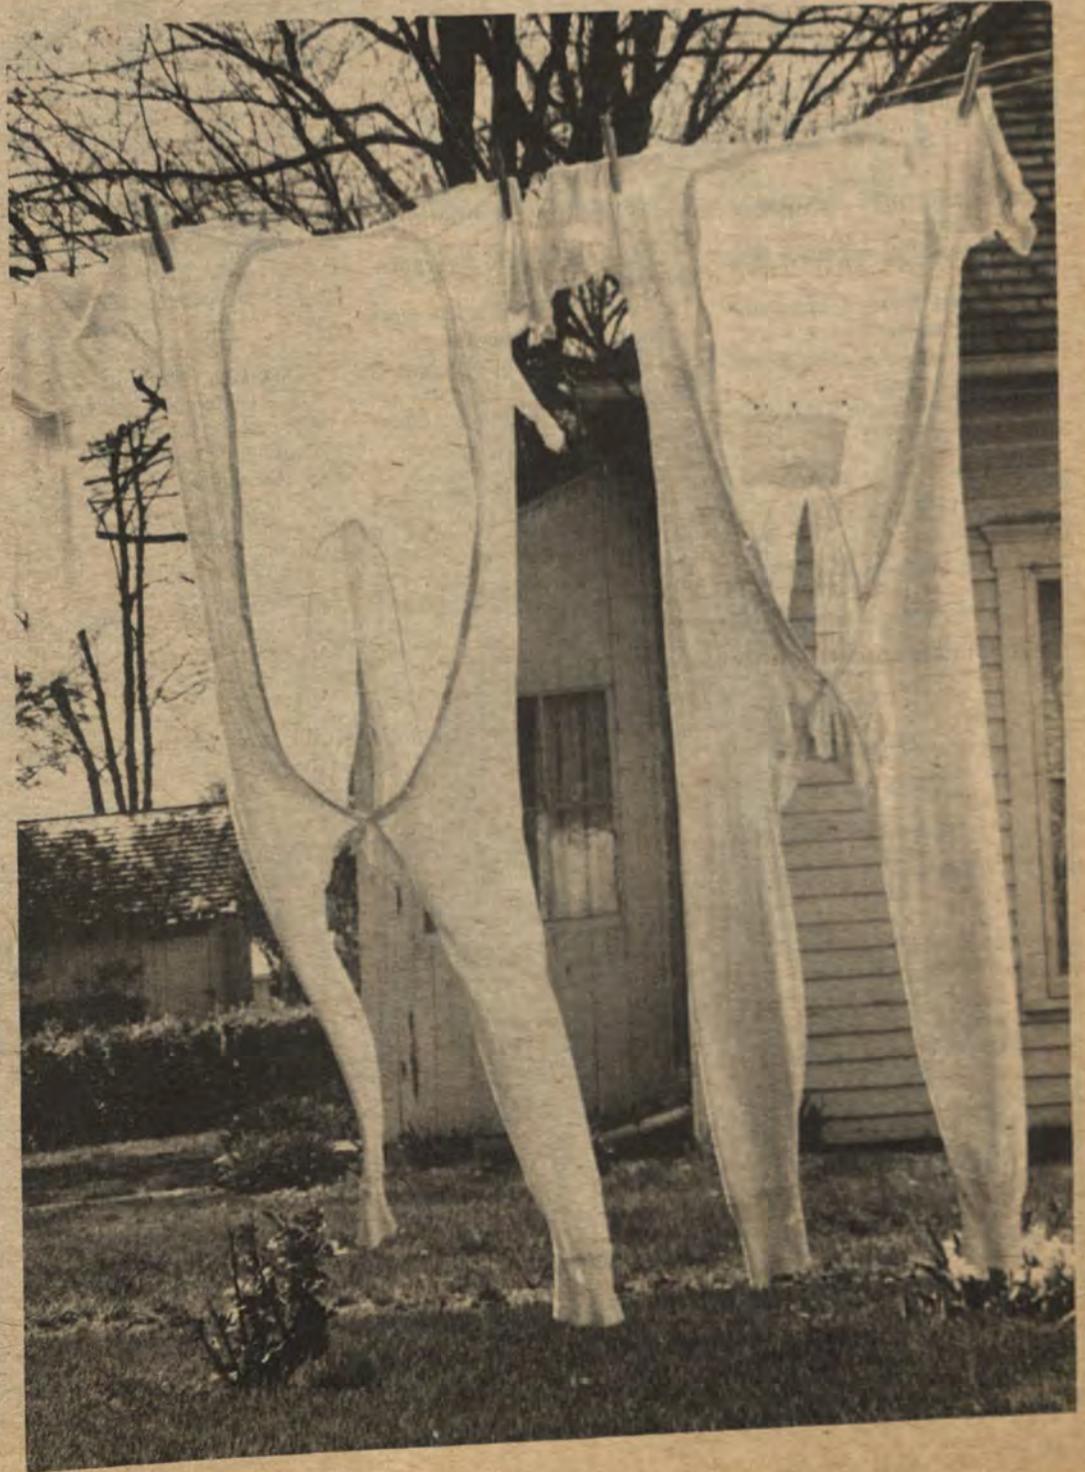

Announcing

Complete Plans For Cro Renovations

By JABBAR — X

Bart Gullong announced last Friday that plans for the renovation of Crozier-Williams had been completed and approved.

"We are most enthusiastic about the future of Cro, and hope that a large number of students will participate in the remodeling process," Gullong said.

Included in the plans for the snack bar are deep-pile red carpeting, a revolving bar, continuous light shows, and nightly entertainment by Skrimshaw and Laroue's Blues.

"We hope to expand the menu to include the finest gourmet delights offered by the campus food service," he stated. This includes cheese souffle, rubber duckies, and possibly mystery mocha.

"The main lounge will be a tastefully exquisite combination of patent leather and velvet, done in muted tones of off-white and Clearasil pink," he added. Muzak will be piped in 24 hours a day. The walls will be adorned with full-color photograph of Mount Rushmore, Niagra Falls, and the Leaning Tower of Piza.

Athletic facilities will be considerably modified. "A jai lai court will be built in the dance studio, and an automatic wavemaking machine will make surfing an everyday event in the College swimming pool," Gullong said.

Miss Merson's office will be converted to a coed sauna, and five full-time masseurs will occupy the student lounge.

When asked about financing the project, Gullong hedged. "We have ways of getting money," he said.

Disloyal members of the crew team did reveal the actual and planned sources of funds for the renovations, however. A disgruntled coxswain stated that large quantities of Acapulco Gold had been smuggled across state lines concealed in the hulls of 8-man shells. "Everybody got a large enough share of the shipment to keep his mouth shut except me," she said. The payoffs had been distributed in proportion to each crew team member's weight, it was learned.

The cox admitted that there were other sources of income: "Remember that guy who jumped out of a plane over Utah with a few hundred grand and got away?"

Big Double Header Proves Worthwhile to Gay Dance Fans

A double-header on the C.C. social calendar was played last Saturday with the sophomore reception for the C.G. reserve cadets in Knowlton salon, and the barn dance in the gym. The two events began at eight o'clock with a spectacular no outs and all runs to the two dances. The breeze "high on the windy hill" made walking almost impossible.

The reserve cadets arrived en masse at the sophomore houses, and after they met their respective dates, the couples headed for Knowlton. The records on the vic began to spin, the room became populated, and the dancing proceeded with numerous cuts and double-cuts, interrupted occasionally by trips to the punch bowl in the dining room.

Russian Solo Amuses

Corn stalks gaily decorated the gym for the other event of the evening. Fifty C.G. cadets and their dates danced the Virginia reel and many other hill-billy dances to the music of a peppy three-piece band and to the instructive words of the caller.

Ellis Kitchell '46 and Charles Nixon, a second classman at the Academy, provided entertainment by dancing a Russian dance, the name of which neither your reporter nor Ellis can spell. And then there was added excitement when the table with cider and doughnuts fell down. All was under control in no time. The curfew rang at eleven and the weary dancers made their way homeward.

From all reports, this weekend's double-header was a whopping success from all sides.

Caught On Campus

Before starting out on the list of engagements and marriages which would make a full eight-page issue if expanded with complete details, we have a pearl to drop your way. At the performance of the Wig and Candle farce (way back before vaction), Teeto Lincoln '44 and an ensign friend were perusing the program (in New York they call it the Playbill) to find out who the characters were and where they came from. A large number of the male members of the cast had Electric Boat Company printed after their names, and the ensign's cryptic remark was, "They should call this organization Wig and Blow Torch." Quite good, ensign.

And now for the notes from the matrimonial bureau! The former Ellie Abrahams '44 is now Mrs. Neil Josephson, wife of Midshipman Josephson, U.S.N.R., a third-year med. student at Yale University....

From the faculty comes the announcement of the engagement of Miss Eleanor Southworth of the music department to Mr. F. Edward Cranz, a member of the history department.

(JANUARY 12, 1944)

Security Log

Security Chief Francis P. O'Grady revealed that on April fifth, Cummings Arts Center was stolen, "probably during the lunch hour."

Campus security is cooperating with the New London Police and Skidmore, Owings, and Merrill in an intensive search for the building.

A suspect has been arrested in connection with the theft on charges of grand larceny and kidnapping. No name was given, but O'Grady stated that the suspect has been locked up in the guardhouse, and described the individual as a "frustrated studio art major."

The kidnapping charge was added when it was learned that William McCloy and Charles Shackford were in the building when it disappeared.

A male sophomore was fined $200 after kicking in a television screen during a recent televised address by Richard Nixon. The student, a life-long resident of New London and a recognized authority on Southeastern Connecticut, suffered a compound fracture of the left foot.

Kane In Political Shorts

Yesterday Richard Nixon happened to pass by as John Lindsay and George McGovern were flipping a quarter to determine which would control the political left. With a cry of "Phase II!" the quarter turned into a penny in mid-air and rolled into a nearby gutter.

ITT lobbyist Dita Beard recently phoned John Mitchell to thank him for his get well flowers. "Thanks so much, John. Were they geraniums?" No Dita, Mums the word."

Last week while George Wallace was repeating his ubiquitous slogan "I am unalterably opposed to busing," his pretty wife interrupted with: "After your performance last night George, I'm against busing too."

An independent minded Madison student asked Mayor Lindsay why he had become a Democrat. "That's easy," he replied, "I say what five years of Republican rule had done to New York City."

Prompted by the candidacy of the head of Duke University, a Shain For President movement was begun over Spring break. It quickly fell apart, however, when the New London Day pointed out that Alan Ladd has been dead for several years.

Confronted with the distinct possibility of the Republican Party getting almost no black votes in November, a desperate campaign to dump racist Agnew has begun with the slogan "Go For Brooke."

With the collapse of Sen. Muskie's campaign, it appears that even America the Land of Opportunity, will not make itself the only country in the world to have a Polack President.

Bette Freidan has declared herself a 1974 Senatorial candidate and is opposing Jacob Javits. Lawmakers in Albany, already heady from gerrymandering Bella Abzug's district, have requested the State of Pennsylvania to annex Ms. Freidan's entire block.

With a garbage strike pending against the black ghettos in Los Angeles, community leaders have contacted Gracie Manor for expert advice. "Simple," the Mayor wrote back, "just have them paint all the garbage white. Goodness knows, they'll do anything to get rid of the white trash in their neighborhood."

Even though contraceptives have been made more available in Massachusetts, there remains a stiff anti-abortion law. A new billboard in Government Center reads: "Unwanted Pregnancies - Still Banned in Boston."

There was a lot of talk that outgoing Mayor Carl Stokes of Cleveland was going to challenge his brother for his seat in the House of Representatives. A local ward leader was heard to comment, "It looks like there'll be different Stokes for different folks."

CAMELS TAKE ON CHAMPS; TOSS, DEVASTATE, MAUL UCLA

BY PAUL LANTZ

Behind the quick high scoring offense and stringent defense of the Connecticut College Camels, the UCLA Bruins were unseated as National Champions for the first time in seven years.

Previously number 1 ranked UCLA was a 25 point favorite over number 19 ranked Connecticut College and rightly so when the teams records and players are compared. UCLA went through the season 29-0 behind the height of 6' 11" All American Bill Walton, 6' 10" Wilkes, 6'5" Farmer and the quickness of 6'3" Lee and 6'1" Captain Bibby, Connecticut College came off a mediocre 10-6 season and was only invited to the tournament to give Eastern favorite Penn an easy contest in the first round.

Connecticut, however, was lead by the great defensive work employed by Jim Cawley and Guzzie Guzman the amazing ball handling of Skip Lynch and Roy Taylor, the unusual quickness of Paul Lantz and Peter Johnson, the ever-deadly shooting of Mark Warren and Randy Russ, the strong rebounding of Bobby Williams, the commendable team passwork of Dino Michaels and of equal importance our steady influence on the floor as far as controlling the pace of the game Greg "Nerves" Yahia. This "Cinderella" team would not have made it as far as it did without the expertise of Coach Mike "John Wooden Jr." Shinault.

Now that the matchups have been discussed, how did these teams get there. UCLA moved to the finals as expected defeating number 3 ranked Long Beach State, number 5 ranked Louisville and number 10 ranked Florida State; the closest margin of victory 28.pts.

Connecticut travelled the harder road. They began by unseating Penn 101-99, then Maryland 99-98 and knocked off the number 2 ranked North Carolina 90-66. Thus the matchups in the finals were perfect. All American sophomore Walton would be covered by Williams in a psych move dreamed up by Coach Shinault: Captain Bibby, one of the quickest guards in College, would be covered by Taylor while Lantz covered Wilkes; Lynch took care of Farmer and Cawley would handle Lee.

The game started much as expected with UCLA jumping to a quick 20 point advantage, but thanks to the wondrous strategy of Coach Shinault. the Camels called a time out to slow down the Bruins momentum. It proved a very wise move as at the end of the first half UCLA's lead was reduced to 19.

Although the Camels were trailing throughout the first half, there were some bright spots for the Camels. Jim Cawley did manage to hit the rim on all of his 42 shots - Bobby Williams held All American Walton to only 38 points - Roy Taylor managed to slow down UCLA by having the game delayed due to one of his delicate soft bank shots breaking the backboard - Paul Lantz and Skip Lynch managed to remain in the entire half, having committed only four fouls each.

Coach Shinault, refusing to believe 15,000 people came to see him coach in his colorful shirt, was not too upset with the score and praised the substitutes for their good job. He was overjoyed that Dino Michaels had only three offensive fouls - that Guzzie did not get hurt - Randy Ross got not one but two rebounds - Mark Warren scored (due to be sent to Ripley's "Believe it or Not") -

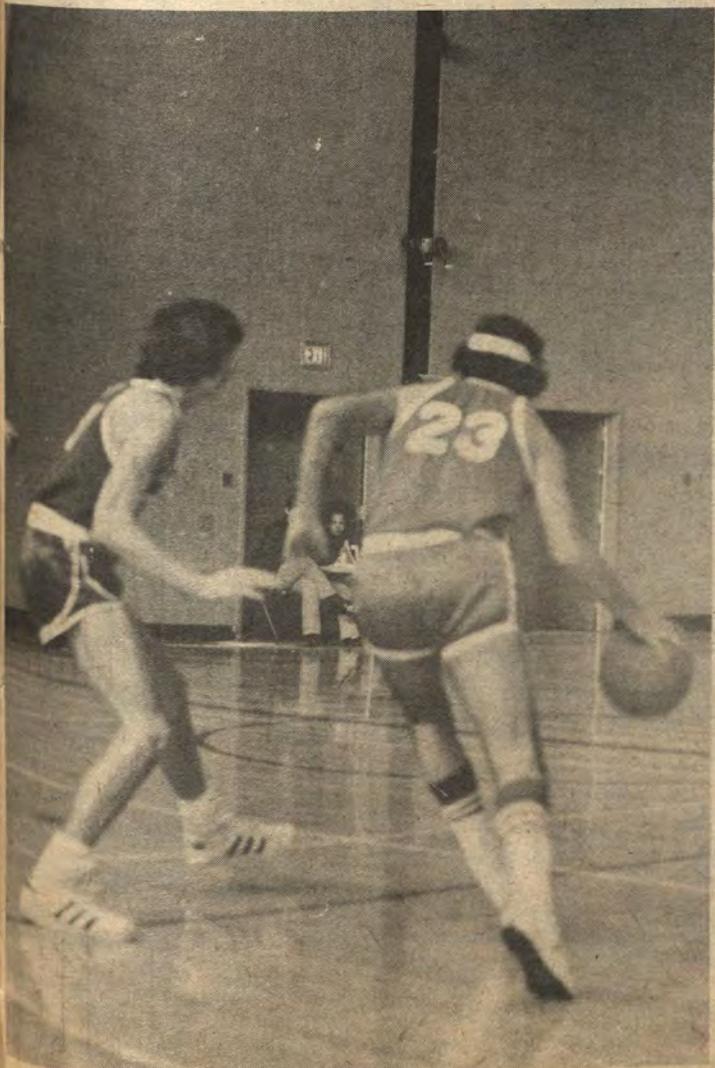

Peter Johnson and Greg Yahia did play for eight minutes, but not before they finished their bridge game with the spectators.

We were disappointed with our display but were enthused suddenly when our Coach shouted out "well boys, you'll just have to score 20 more points than they do this half." Positively brilliant... why didn't we think of that!

The Camels immediately raced on to the floor to warm up. The second half started with the Camels chipping away at the lead 19-21-23, Ooops! 19-18-16-14 until the Bruins lead was down to one. With eight seconds left Walton threw it away and the Camels win it - 100-99! The crowd goes berserk, especially both of the Camels' rooters. Like everybody said...amazing! Better luck next year Bruins.
