JOHN · FELICE · ROME · CENTER MMVI - MMVII

LOYOLA · UNIVERSITY · CHICAGO

Dear Fall 2006 and Spring 2007 Alumni of the John Felice Rome Center,

As you review the photographs in this yearbook and recall your experiences and adventures, your friends and faculty, your setbacks and your growth, we are confident that you will be reminded of the wisdom of your choice to attend the Rome Center this year. You already were doing what we counseled upon your arrival—pursuing sound long-term goals but, most importantly, seeking to take the right next step. That next step brought you to Rome, where you learned, both individually and collectively, lessons that truly will last for a lifetime. We salute you for that, and we wish you God-speed upon the paths that will continue to open before you.

You were in many ways the best groups of fall and spring students that we had during the four years after we were hired to direct the Rome Center. You came with admirable attitudes, and you willingly accepted both our challenge to excel while you were here and our promise that we and our staff would help you to make the most of this potentially life-transforming opportunity. For that we thank you, as our term of leadership comes to a close. We shall always be grateful for what you brought to the John Felice Rome Center and to our lives this year.

Yours ever,

- This speech was given by John Felice at Founders' Dinner in June of 2006, when he was presented with the Heart of Loyola Award for his years of service to Loyola University Chicago. This award is the highest honor bestowed by Loyola Words can only fall far short of expressing my deep gratitude for the honor Loyola University has chosen to bestow on me tonight. I am even more gratified because I see in this award the total embodiment of who we all are - as Loyola University. And "this Heart symbolizes the Jesuit core - the very soul of the University." Without this core there might well be a fine University, but it would not have our distinctive identity and flavor. After my 48 years of association with Loyola, I know our purpose very well: we are "world affirming, optimistic, and willing to stand where religion and culture come together." We are rooted in Catholic tradition, and our University is imbued with faith. We encourage our students to develop that faith and to understand their sacred destiny. We are committed to intellectual life and fostering critical reflection upon God, self, society and the world.

Those fortunate enough to be educated in our Jesuit institutions share this bond. I know this from my own experience. And in accepting this award, I can sincerely say that over these many years with the Society of Jesus and Loyola University in Chicago and Rome, I have tried to give back to the University and to all those with whom I came in contact. What I have received in the spirit of the Ignatian tradition. My own Jesuit years crystallized the true value of fulfilling one's life on earth in the total giving of oneself to others - "to give and not to count the cost, to fight and not to heed the wounds, to toil and not to look for rest." I believe this award embodies all of these Ignatian values, and I thank the University for naming me a worthy representative of these ideals. Some of you here tonight may have heard these thoughts at other times - most recently in Rome last month. I repeat them because they are so firmly rooted and I feel their importance so strongly that I want to press those values on all of you - to light that fire - so that you will truly know the peace and happiness they add to one's life.

I must also thank my parents who fostered these ideals in me when I was a young and often mischievous little boy growing up in Malta.

Thanks also to the American and British armed forces during World War II for giving me the opportunity to help the wounded recover and the dying to have a peaceful and dignified death. Those experiences reaffirmed my desire to be involved with humanity and not be a bystander.

And I must thank the thousands of students during my years of teaching and later as Founder and Director of Loyola's John Felice Rome Center, for the opportunities they gave me to help them understand our common Jesuit heritage and purpose. Many of you are here tonight - without a doubt you have given me much more than I gave you.

And the many doctors, medical technicians, staff, particularly those at Loyola's Medical Center, who have kept me alive over the years. If it were not for their expertise and compassion I would not be here with you tonight. Even now they are plotting their next assault on my heart - next Monday. It is truly ironic that I am receiving this Heart of Loyola award, and in 30 hours I will be having another heart surgery.

No other person tonight deserves our gratitude more than Father Garanzini - not only for what he is doing for the whole University, but especially for his dedication to our Rome campus and increasing opportunities for international education at Loyola.

And of course, last but not least, I thank the one person who has been my constant companion, friend and support for the last 31 years - my beloved Kate.

I ask forgiveness for all my failings and express deep appreciation and gratitude to each one of you, friends, faculty, students, past and present administrators at Loyola University who have helped me so much to realize goals in life at every stage.

As most of you know, I don't like to think of my career as over. I still have many projects in mind that I hope the good Lord will allow me to bring to fruition. These might require me to continue to "bother" a few administrators at Loyola... So much depends on my health which is also in the Lord's hands, but I can still offer you all the one thing I have always wanted to give you in abundance - my abiding faith and hope in the Lord. These enduring values are at the center of our Jesuit training, and I hope they will continue to hold a place in your hearts as they do in mine.

May God bless every one of you. If I can ever be of service to you, I hope you will let me know. Thank you again for this great honor and this wonderful evening in your presence. Now do please all say a prayer that my surgeon's hands will be guided and they will keep me around for a few more years.

In Bocca Al Lupo

to the JFRC

and I'll be happy here and happy there full of tea and tears. I don't suppose I'll ever get to Italy, but I have the terrible tundra at least.

Frank O'Hara, Poem

Let's open up the dorm room windows
and let the health come in.
It's the perfect season for breathing.
Let the Romans ride their bikes into our hearts
and pick our pockets to pieces.

The cats are out sunning in the courtyard.
We must take their subtle advice.
The trees are sneezing oranges. Love and Naples
still exist since the last time we checked.
It's all va bene and it sounds real good.

And we have peeled these oranges,
surprised but not disappointed
to find good catholic blood inside.
We have heard the way our shoes sound
on ancient cobblestones at midnight,
a Ferrari galloping past, a ghost whispering
our secrets from empty bottles of Chianti.

Here's to having not a single Euro for a drink or cigarettes
but staying out all night anyway.
Here's to all the dive bars we love to hate,
the foxy ragazze all dressed to kill.

Here's to old man barbers wagging their palms
and newspapers in Trastevere.
Here's to warm ciambellone and a zoo of churches.
Here's to Jesus and his many faces,

and searching for conspiracies
on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel
as if one of the figures might suddenly descend
and hand us the key to all life's little beauties,

and watching a friend hop into a fountain
in Navona for no other reason than a story to tell the kids back home,

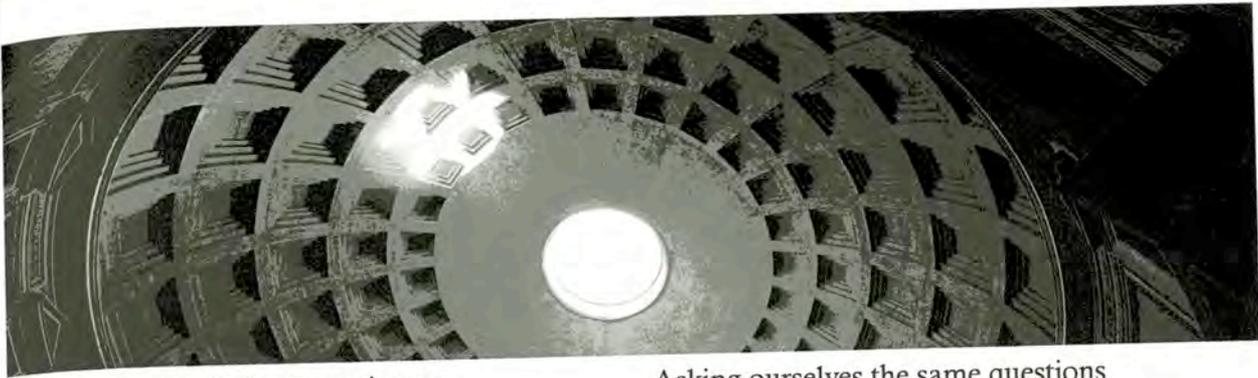

the way we tossed our shadows
upon the sleeping monuments
as if we could give away our American baby fat,
exchange it all for a place in history.

This is obscene graffiti, the famous Giolitti,
Not that we need gelato, we just like it.
This is falling in love with waitresses in trattorie solely for the sake of an authentic Italian heartbreak.
This is all actually happening.

Take off your sunglasses before stepping into the basilica. You won't regret it.
Our Italian is lousy.
It waits for us by the door, smoking nervously.
How does one conjugate, "to search for?"
This is not something our pocket dictionaries
can relate.

But if you wait for the 99N long enough
it will always come blazing like a tiger
no matter how much the weather hates us,
and we will ride it to whatever God
we find most fitting.

We have been told the Renaissance
was just a drunk dial to antiquity,
so we wander into the forum and dance
with the skeletons of an empire.
We don't need to read about it.
Their hips do the talking.
Words that shake harder
than the somber mausoleum of description.

And what's the deal with that Pyramid?
And the fascists may be loud outside
but they can't shake our confidence or slow our drunken dances.

And maybe in Siena, in Florence,
under the Tuscan gun,
we'll find out what a people
and their wine are really made of, Venice to the North, looking like the perfect lover in the distance.

Isn't there something oddly comforting
about two orange towels and a red sundress completely motionless on a clothesline,
a whole generation standing in alleyways,
planning their lives in piazzas
while we sit in a basement café, smiling at the two sweet old baristas, a man and his wife,
the Italian grandparents we never had but always wanted.

Asking ourselves the same questions
everywhere,
How do you flush this toilet?
Do I dare? Do I dare eat a blood orange right from the Tree of Possibility or leave my heart and hair in a city
so completely convinced of its eternity?

And we agree: Vittorio DeSica
was handsome for his era,
but are we too far outside of this history
to be remembered?

We've been told Sicilian birds got the sugar.
Roman birds got the nose, the rhythm.
But American birds got the soul
and these birds have flown.

We have been thrown, hip and helpless,
into the mouth of the wolf.
We cannot let it die.

Look to the cats for salvation.
They have taken over the orchard.
They have only just arrived.

And secretly, no matter
which flag we choose
to wrap around our bones,
we shall sleep with them at our bedside.
