SECTION I: EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

HISTORICAL BACKGROUND
In October 1980, the South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities (SCGSAH) was established by Executive Order. In 1981, the South Carolina General Assembly provided funding through annual provisos to support a Governor’s School for the Arts as a State Honors Program. The initial funding enabled the School to provide an intensive Summer Honors Program of pre-professional arts instruction and experiences for students identified as exceptionally gifted in either creative writing, dance, drama, music or the visual arts. Additionally, the funds supported outreach efforts to provide arts education to rural and small districts, and later expanded to all areas both rural and urban as well as to recruit students into the program. The Program was also used to ensure access into the School. The funding made it possible for the SCGSAH to partner with higher education institutions to provide a graduate studies program for training public school arts educators in the identification of students with arts giftedness and potential.

Enabling Legislation §59-50-10, SC Code of Laws, as amended
“There is established the South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities to provide training for exceptional artistically talented students and serve as a research and resource center for all students and teachers in South Carolina. The school is dedicated to serving talented students in South Carolina who show exceptional talent, promise, aptitude, and interest in creative writing, dance, music, theater, and the visual arts. This residential school shall provide intensive pre-professional and professional instruction in the arts and a strong academic and humanities program which will lead to a high school diploma and college credits.”

In 1994, the South Carolina General Assembly enacted legislation to expand the purpose and scope of the Governor’s School to provide for a year-round residential arts and academics high school and funds to support construction of facilities for housing and operations of the school and its programs. The legislation also officially named the school with a directive to also serve as a statewide research and resource center. The newly constructed $30-million campus, which is supported by both state and matching Foundation dollars, was dedicated on April 1, 2000. The SCGSAH graduated its inaugural class from the high school program in 2000-2001.

MAJOR PROGRAMS AND SERVICES

Residential High School Program

The SCGSAH celebrated the graduation of its third class in 2002-03. The residential high school program served 236 artistically gifted high school students through programs of pre-professional instruction in an environment of artistic and academic excellence. The residential high school accepts students majoring in one of five arts disciplines: creative writing, dance, drama, music and visual arts. A majority of the students are juniors and seniors. The dance program accepts exceptionally gifted dancers also in grades 9 and 10 because the nature of this arts discipline requires early training.

In addition to a two-year curriculum in the arts, SCGSAH students enroll in rigorous and challenging academics courses required by the state for a high school diploma. Students are awarded both a South Carolina High School Diploma and a South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities Scholars Diploma. Students also engage in humanities lectures, journal entries, and service learning programs. The SCGSAH Board of Directors, administration, faculty, and staff are extremely proud of the significant arts and academics accomplishments of its high school students, faculty and staff (See Section I, subheading 2002-2003 Major Achievements).

As a school seeking accreditation from both the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS) and the Accrediting Commission for Community and Pre-collegiate Arts Schools (ACCPAS), the Governor’s School has completed the self-study required by each. Teams from both accrediting bodies visited the SCGSAH campus concurrently during March of 2003.

Summer Programs for Students

The Academy Program, established in 1990 as part of the School’s award winning Outreach Program, serves rising tenth grade students from across the State. This two-week residential intensive summer arts institute offers pre-professional training in creative writing, drama, instrumental and vocal music and visual arts. In addition to providing an outstanding training opportunity for students, it serves as an excellent recruitment tool for the High School Residential Program.

The Honors Program, established in 1980 with its first session beginning in July 1981, is a five-week residential program of intensive, pre-professional training in creative writing, dance, drama, instrumental and vocal music and visual arts. The curriculum includes master classes, studio work, individual and ensemble studies, seminars, and workshops, as well as self-directed studies and projects for rising juniors and seniors from through-out South Carolina.

The Preparatory Dance Program is a five-week residential program with intensive training in both ballet and modern dance for rising seventh, eighth, ninth and tenth grade students.

Summer Program for Arts Educators

The Graduate Studies/Intern Program
This program provides the state’s arts educators and schools’ administrators with the opportunity to study gifted arts education, curriculum development, and innovative and best practices in creative writing, music, drama and visual arts. Teachers from across the State of South Carolina may use the school as a laboratory to observe best practices as master teachers provide exemplary differentiated and pre-professional training in the arts. Teachers may study technology applications in music, graphic arts and theatre design. These teachers earn three to six hours of graduate credit in gifted education and three hours in technology and curriculum development.

Recruitment and Outreach

From inception, the South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities has strived to ensure that the student body be representative of the entire State and reflect its cultural and ethnic diversity. To achieve this goal, the School employs a full-time recruiter, who with the support of faculty and other administrative staff members, works with public and private school teachers, parents and principals to identify gifted students in all areas of the State. School visits, outreach programs, student shadowing opportunities, and campus tours are just a few of the activities available to potential students. Special efforts are made to identify students with artistic potential who reside in rural areas that may not offer arts instruction.

The primary purpose of the Outreach Program is to insure that all eligible students are aware of and have equal access to the Governor’s School and its programs. Outreach activities are held throughout the State, as well as on the SCGSAH campus, to help identify potentially gifted students and further develop their potential by providing training, encouragement and support. These activities include Saturday workshops in centralized locations across South Carolina that provide master classes in creative writing, drama, dance, music, and visual arts. These sessions also include information to assist students with application and audition preparation.
The Governor’s School hosted the first Annual Open Doors Event in the fall of 2002. This event offered prospective students, along with interested parents and teachers, the opportunity to experience the School first-hand through tours, clinics and class observations. Students and parents attended from across the State of South Carolina.

In addition, the Outreach Program provides master classes for teachers as requested in both private and public schools statewide.

MISSION AND VALUES

THE MISSION

_The South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities is to serve the artistically talented high school students of South Carolina through programs of pre-professional instruction in an environment of artistic and academic excellence. The School is a resource for all teachers and students in South Carolina._

[Adopted by the Board of Directors on May 9, 1998]

The vision is one of shared values, with the commitment of the Board being central to the task. With a leadership style that embraces innovation, the other core values are integrity, which demands accountability, and initiatives which reflect excellence.
KEY STRATEGIC GOALS

Current and Future Years

- Expanding the applicant pool for all SCGSAH Programs.
- SCGSAH High School Accreditation from both SACS and ACCPAS.
- Establishment of the Absolute Performance grade on the School Report Card to be “EXCELLENT”.
- Updating the plan for maintenance of adequate facilities.
- Participation of faculty and staff in professional development activities.

As stated in the FY 2001-02 Accountability Report, the School’s leadership elected to delay updating the strategic plan until the new President had arrived on July 1, 2003. The update of the School’s strategic plan is in progress.

OPPORTUNITIES AND BARRIERS

Through its strategic management plan, the South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities has developed ambitious action steps designed for achieving and creating the highest quality arts education and for raising the bar for education in the arts and academics throughout the State of South Carolina. The SCGSAH has developed strong relationships and/or partnerships with private and public schools, students and alumni, parents, patrons, vendors, and state government in order to reach the School’s goals and objectives.

Operating as both a public high school and a State Agency continues to challenge the School’s leadership, faculty and administrative staff in order to comply with, coordinate, and communicate the requirements for both.

Increased awareness of the new Governor’s School campus has increased the demand for statewide services. Existing resources have allowed the School to accomplish measurable and observable results; however, as a result of severe budget reductions and the continuing decline in state revenues, the leadership of the School found it necessary to realign and reprioritize available resources. Reductions were taken in auditions, Summer Programs, administrative services, and temporary personnel in order to comply with the mandated state budget cuts. Extreme caution was exercised not to jeopardize the safety of the School’s students, faculty, and administrative staff, but other funding sources will have to be identified to provide for renovations and/or repairs to ensure that the SCGSAH Residential High School continues to be a physically and environmentally safe and sound facility. For the first time since establishment, the School’s leadership considered charging for food services for students enrolled in the Residential High School, rather than relinquishing the quality of the arts and academic programs. Strategies to bring about even greater statewide accomplishments for the relatively new Residential High School will require additional funding.

The State’s economic downturn has and will continue to affect the SCGSAH Foundation’s ability to develop significant funding sources for the School and its programs.
2002-03 MAJOR ACHIEVEMENTS

In a ceremony held during commencement weekend in May 2003, the SCGSAH celebrated student achievement. The school honors both the intangible accomplishments of the year such as sense of community, personal growth, learning to respond to a wide range of change and challenges, and the concrete accomplishments signified by awards, certificates, and recognitions. The SCGSAH major achievements are reported here under subheadings as follows: Student Accomplishments (by arts discipline areas), Scholastic Achievement, Service Learning and Community Service Achievements, Staff and Faculty Achievements, and School-wide Achievements.

SECTION III: MALCOLM BALDRIGE AWARD CRITERIA

LEADERSHIP

The Board of Directors led the transition of the South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities from its history of nationally renowned Summer Programs to an organization providing year-round arts education. The Board mandates that the School provide the highest quality pre-professional and professional training within an excellent high school academic setting. The SCGSAH leadership continues to diligently work to develop the School as a premier model for arts education.

The chief leadership of the School is the President which serves as the Chief Executive Officer. The leadership team consists of the Special Assistant to the President, the Dean and Vice President of Arts and Academics, the Vice President for Facilities Management and Administration, the Vice President of Institutional Advancement, the Principal, and the Directors of Student Services, Outreach and Admissions, and the Library and Media Center. Additional leadership is provided by Department Chairs and nationally renowned consultants who serve to advise the President and Board of Directors.

The overall direction of the Governor’s School is designed and communicated via the strategic management plan. “Charting the Future” is a collaboration of administration, faculty, staff, students, state officials, parents, teachers, and friends working with the Board of Directors in a quest for excellence in arts education.

The Founding President announced her retirement to be effective June 30, 2003. A national search was conducted to identify a new President to be in place on July 1, 2003.

STRATEGIC PLANNING

The SCGSAH strategic plan “Charting the Future” was drafted by the School’s Board of Directors and the administrative leadership and staff on June 23, 1998. The School’s chief leadership is charged with the responsibility for developing operational plans for implementation of the strategic plan.
The strategic planning process involved establishment of the School’s mission, vision statement, goals and objectives, and identification of specific strengths and challenges that would determine the success of the South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities.

Once “Charting the Future” was complete, a summary document was shared with staff, customers, and stakeholders through numerous meetings, forums, and committees. “Charting the Future” was used as a continuous tool for communicating the School’s mission, vision, values and goals and objectives. Periodic updates are drafted as needed changes are identified.

The update of the SCGSAH strategic plan is in progress.

CUSTOMER FOCUS

Key customers and stakeholders of the South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities include the School’s Board of Directors and the chief leadership, the Superintendent of Education, members of the General Assembly, the education communities, business and community leaders, and the students across South Carolina. These students, their parents and teachers are the School’s customers.

The School’s internal stakeholders are all of the permanent and temporary personnel employed by the School. The SCGSAH residential students are both stakeholders and customers. The requirements of the School’s customers and stakeholders are specified in the enabling legislation.

The Access Plan addresses the issue of access to the South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities. The Plan provides a guide to promoting fair and equal access in accordance with admission criteria and standards of excellence. The plan assures that as far as possible and without jeopardizing admission standards that an equal number of students shall be admitted from each of the state’s congressional districts. Several strategies are outlined such as targeted recruiting within each county, special outreach efforts in rural counties, and concerted efforts to identify students with potential and limited training.

Students are selected on the basis of their talent, achievement and potential through required applications, auditions, portfolio reviews, master-classes and personal interviews. Parents of students are required to be legal residents of South Carolina.

The Board of Directors and the School’s leadership are committed to articulating the role and value of the Arts in society. A continuous and concerted effort is made to build positive relationships with the citizens of South Carolina by being responsive to requests, complaints, inquiries, and by meeting with numerous groups on a regular basis and providing speakers and performing students and faculty as appropriate.
INFORMATION AND ANALYSIS

SCGSAH ACCESS
The South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities is committed to promoting fair and equal access to the residential school and summer programs for students from all geographical locations within the State as well as those with limited economic and educational opportunities. No qualified student is denied the opportunity to participate in any program sponsored by the school as the result of an inability to pay associated fees. Tuition scholarships, both full and partial, are made available through the School’s Foundation to students with validated financial need. Traditional financial aide is also available to qualified applicants.

STRATEGIES AND TIMELINES
The access plan outlines very specific timelines for recruitment, auditions and selections of students. These timelines, which are designed to conform to an annual cycle, include strategic summer and fall activities. The activities include public awareness through various media news releases and related events, direct communication in person and in writing with the education community, fine arts centers, private studio teachers in dance, voice, piano, drama, etc., and the public, civic, community and faith organizations. Presentations, workshops, meetings and outreach activities are held to inform about the SCGSAH mission and goals, arts and academics programs, eligibility requirements, residential life, the faculty, and information on the application, audition and acceptance policies, processes and procedures. All of these types of activities are carried out from July through November each year. An internal management plan details the specific activities, timelines and staff persons responsible for implementation. Periodic progress reports and points of interest and findings are issued to the President and Dean for information and further analysis to shape decision-making.

DATA COLLECTIONS AND ANALYSES
With the first residential high school enrollment occurring in 1999 leading to graduation of the inaugural class in 2000-01 and the class of 2001-02, the Governor’s School has fairly sufficient geographic and demographic data to analyze information regarding student enrollment and representation. An analysis of this data leads to identification of over- and under-served geographic areas and student populations. Recruiters use this information to guide and construct their recruitment plans to ensure that more vigorous recruitment takes place in areas and student populations identified as undeserved. An analysis of low numbers from one section of the state typically relates to awareness issues, lack of emphasis, or insufficient promotion. Analyses of course taking patterns and arts disciplines interests are tracked, as well as gender data. This data is equally important because of capacity space in terms of residential life and separation of males and females, and capacity of arts and academics classrooms. The SCGSAH must constantly be mindful of balance in these terms, which often poses a definite challenge; however, the SCGSAH Administration is confident that balance can be achieved without limiting admissions at least at this time since the school is still fairly new. The Administration is monitoring this carefully. Data on the national origin of our students is also monitored as another indicator of balance for racial composition purposes.
Student Achievement Data and Analysis. The SCGSAH tracks student performance on state and national achievement tests and utilizes that data to identify areas where more rigor is warranted in courses and in the overall curriculum or where motivation of the student needs particular attention. The Principal and Director of Guidance follow closely the SAT, Advanced Placement, and other testing results data for comparisons to the state and national student performance data and analyses for individual student progress and class placements.

Data and Analysis for Decision-Making
Essential data components used by the SCGSAH to guide improvements, advancements and adjustments in programs, policies and practices include the following:

- SCGSAH academic and arts performance trends, findings, performance ratings;
- SCGSAH experiences with staff, students and faculty;
- Student achievement of the School Standards, performance indicators, internal and external evaluation and results;
- On-going review of arts and academic standards to identify need for greater rigor;
- School satisfaction results;
- Analysis and review of noted research and literature in the arts and academics;
- Current standard designed for the School.

HUMAN RESOURCES FOCUS

The quality and performance of the South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities’ faculty and staff are fundamental to institutional excellence. Current faculty and staff are experienced, knowledgeable, enthusiastic, innovative, and dedicated. It is imperative that all human resources communicate clearly and collaborate fully.

The SCGSAH employs a total of 79.50 FTE. Permanent classroom teachers occupy either 10 or 12 month full-time positions. The Residential High School requires employment of approximately 50 adjunct teachers to provide private vocal and instrumental studio lessons, tutoring and mentoring, and substitute teaching as needed.

The School is committed to recruiting a diverse faculty and staff as to ethnicity, gender, educational background, age, and professional experience. Human resource searches are open to all qualified applicants. SCGSAH vacancies are advertised and posted through its fiscal agent, the State Department of Education.
The leadership of the Governor’s School motivates employees by assisting faculty and staff in developing their full potential by providing positive feedback, a safe and comfortable work environment, training opportunities, mentoring opportunities, recognition programs, and appropriate resources. Professional activities and community service are encouraged. School employees participate in a broad range of community and professional activities that contribute to the organization’s mission. All staff members are encouraged to participate in professional organizations, attend conferences and work with other colleagues and educational institutions to enhance their knowledge and skills relative to both K – 12 and higher education.

Teacher-Performance Evaluation Program (T-PEP)
The T-PEP policies and procedures adopted in the preceding year were implemented on schedule beginning in 2002-03. All SCGSAH teaching faculty participated in the required planning stage for establishment of their goal which had to address either Instruction, Content or Professional Development, with emphasis on the core teaching values defined by the faculty during development of the program.

The initial T-PEP policies adopted by the Administration and endorsed by the Policy Board of Directors remain effective, while the procedures have undergone review for amendments to appropriately correspond to school re-organization.

Employee Performance Management System
Non-teaching faculty and other staff employed by the SCGSAH are evaluated and reviewed annually using the Employee Performance Management System (EPMS) mandated by state policies and procedures communicated through the State Department of Education and the Budget and Control Board, Office of Human Resources.

Salary Adjustments (Teaching Faculty, Non-instructional Faculty and Staff)
The 2002-03 State Appropriations Act did not provide additional funding for salary increases.

PROCESS MANAGEMENT
The South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities is a school for change. The Board of Directors and the leadership of the School embrace innovation and new initiatives designed to reflect excellence and raise the bar for arts education in this state and the nation. The Governor’s School continuously seeks customer and stakeholder input and information in order to improve program delivery.

Policy Board of Directors - Bylaws.
The Policy Board of Directors conducted a comprehensive review of its bylaws and adopted technical and substantive amendments that it deemed appropriate for efficient operations. Substantive amendments include: extend voting privileges to ex officio members, and enable a chairperson to be re-elected and serve up to three consecutive terms.
Administrative School Policies and Procedures
The Administration completed the development of its SCGSAH Policy and Procedures Manual, which also includes related statutory references as appropriate. The Manual, which now serves as the school’s official reference to administrative and school policies, is based on a national model taxonomy endorsed by the National School Boards Association. Several copies of the Manual are accessible in the school for review and reference by the SCGSAH staff, faculty, students, and parents. A Manual is also available for public inspection. The SCGSAH continues to publish student and faculty handbooks each year for reference to school rules and regulations pertaining to residential life, and employment expectations of staff and faculty.

School Accreditation
The SCGSAH has completed initial steps of the school accreditation process with two accrediting entities and has achieved initial approval from both bodies. These are: the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools (SACS), an academic accrediting entity; and the Accrediting Commission for Community and Pre-collegiate Arts Schools (ACCPAS). This past year, visiting teams from both accrediting bodies conducted the required on-site campus visits. The SCGSAH has responded to the SACS Visiting Team analysis and is awaiting a response regarding accreditation of the academic program. The SCGSAH is currently finalizing its response to the ACCPAS visiting team’s on-site analysis.

No Child Left Behind (NCLB) Federal Legislation
The SCGSAH has studied the NCLB legislation in terms of implications and timelines for the SCGSAH, and for South Carolina schools, in general. This past year, the SCGSAH consulted with State Department of Education staff and other officials in the state seeking clarification and guidance on particular provisions of that legislation which present particular challenges for the non-traditional SCGSAH. In 2004, the SCGSAH Administration will continue its study of the legislative provisions and recommend to the Policy Board of Directors strategies for addressing and implementing the provisions of the legislation.

BUSINESS RESULTS

Administrative Operations:
As a result of recent budget reductions and the continuing decline in state revenues, the leadership of the School found it necessary to realign and reprioritize available personnel and financial resources. Reductions were taken in auditions, summer programs, administrative activities, and temporary personnel in order to comply with the mandated state budget cuts. The reductions in administrative activities such as security and facility maintenance and upkeep were implemented without jeopardizing the health and safety of students, faculty, and/or staff. Legislatively mandated, each fiscal year the Governor’s School is audited by the Budget and Control Board, State Auditor’s Office and the Materials Management Office. The audits for FY 2002-2003 have not been conducted at this date, but prior audits contain no major findings in these audits performed through the School’s fiscal agent, the State Department of Education.

Annual School Report Card
Pursuant to the SC Accountability Act of 1998, public school report cards were issued for the first time statewide in 2001. The State established and defined for use by all schools the report card performance rating terms to be used to grade school performance. These ratings include Excellent, Good, Average, Below Average and Unsatisfactory. The State extended flexibility to special schools in developing standards and ratings criteria on which to measure student performance, but required the use of the rating terms. The School’s report card proposals for measuring student performance, which include academic and arts standards, were endorsed by the Board of Directors and approved by the SC Education Oversight Committee.
The SCGSAH 2002-03 (third year) report card for the residential high school program will be disseminated to parents, students and the community in November 2003. The report card provides two performance ratings: a rating for overall performance of students for the given school year (absolute performance rating), as measured by their achievement of specific performance standards established for the school by the Policy Board of Directors, and a rating for improved performance of the standards over the prior year (improvement rating). The rating for improved performance is based on an index adopted by the State for all public high schools statewide.

As seen in the tables that follow, the SCGSAH achieved a rating of Excellent in absolute performance in 2003 and in the two previous years of its existence 2002 and 2001. For the past two years, the SCGSAH has earned an overall improvement rating of Good, as based on the State provision which enables a rating Good if the school achieved a rating of Excellent for absolute performance in two subsequent years.

Of the seven standards adopted by the SCGSAH Policy Board to measure student achievement, two are tied directly to student participation and achievement of recognition in national, state and regional performing arts events (competitions, portfolio reviews and/or auditions, etc.) in the disciplines of creative writing, drama, dance, music, or visual arts. These two standards are weighted at 20%. The other five standards, which are each weighted at 12%, are directly linked to academic achievement in the Advanced Placement Program, using courses taken and passing exam scores as two of the standards; SAT points scored above the national SAT mean; State LIFE scholarship eligibility; and scholarship awards earned by students to attend prestigious higher education institutions, conservatories, professional schools and/or companies in the state and across the country.

Review and Analysis of Report Card Standards. Consistent with advice and recommendations from the State, the performance standards initially adopted for school report card purposes have been maintained for three consecutive years. With three years of performance trend data experience, the SCGSAH Administration will conduct a comprehensive review and analysis of the standards and performance data next year and will recommend to the Policy Board on appropriateness and rigor for continued use or modifications to the standards.

School Satisfaction Evaluation

The SCGSAH students, faculty and parents are provided an opportunity to participate in a school satisfaction evaluation, which is conducted annually for all schools statewide by the State Department of Education (SDE). Survey responses are submitted direct to the SDE and the results are published on the school report card. Initial surveys included faculty and students. Parents were included in the survey in later years. The evaluation focuses on three major areas specific to each school: satisfaction with learning environment; satisfaction with social and physical environment; and satisfaction with home-school relations. The following table indicates the results of the SCGSAH survey from the past two years.

Institutional Advancement:

The purpose of Institutional Advancement is to build relationships with key constituents of the SCGSAH. Institutional Advancement seeks to increase the visibility of the SCGSAH and enhance awareness and appreciation for the School and its mission. The South Carolina Governor’s School for the Arts and Humanities hosts meetings, open houses, tours and conferences on campus to allow people from varied organizations the opportunity to visit the School and learn more about its offerings. These events provide the public with a greater awareness, understanding and appreciation of the SCGSAH.

Institutional Advancement develops relationships by utilizing volunteers in several special programs of the School. These include host families, student ambassadors, the Alumni Association, community advisory boards and parent guilds.

The development component of Institutional Advancement seeks to establish endowment gifts to ensure that the School remains on the cutting edge of excellence by supplementing greatest needs not met by other supporting entities. Institutional Advancement works with the Foundation in all fund-raising efforts.

Public relations efforts include building and maintaining relationships with parents, students, alumni, government entities, public and private schools and educational institutions. Institutional
Advancement communicates information to media statewide and is actively involved with creating partnerships with community organizations as well as with business, arts and education communities and other organizations across South Carolina.

Parents, Students and Alumni:

- The School maintains contact with parents, students and alumni through the newsletter, Fanfare, with a circulation of 15,000. This newsletter was added to the School web page www.scgsah.state.sc.us in February to enhance accessibility throughout the state.

- Fourteen parent guilds have been created to support the School. Organized by geographic region, each guild coordinates specific activities to recruit, fund raise and publicize the School. The School created a phone tree to enhance communication among the parent guilds and set up parent email lists to communicate with them.

- The Host Family Program links residential students from all areas of the state with local families for weekend outings, church services, and family activities. In the 2002-2003 school year, sixty-three families participated in hosting 75 students.

- Seventeen seniors in the Residential High School served as Student Ambassadors. These students were selected at the end of their junior year, based on their positive attitudes, academic success and ability to articulate the programs of the School. They lead tours; assist with Open Doors and Open House and host donors, elected officials, parents and prospective students.

- SCGSAH hosted Open Doors/Parents Weekend in September. The SCGSAH opened its doors to prospective students, their families and teachers to introduce them to the opportunities at the School. This event was held in conjunction with the Residential High School student parents’ attending classes and having an opportunity for an open forum with faculty and staff. The parents received additional information to give them a greater understanding of the programs, facilities, schedules, regulations and needs of the School.

- A Cultural Calendar was created to highlight the performances and exhibitions of the students and faculty. It was mailed to schools, donors, parents and other interested parties.

- A detailed insert was included in The Greenville News on the opening weekend of the Summer Honors program in June. This included a description of the curriculum, schedules, information about the faculty and a calendar of events.

- A survey was mailed to 3,600 alumni to gather information to update the alumni database and included a letter announcing the creation of an Alumni Association. The Alumni Association elected officers in November and adopted a set of by-laws. A branch of the Association has been created in New York and another is being developed in Atlanta.
• The School website is being redesigned with the assistance of Erwin-Penland Advertising Agency.

Government Entities:

• Relationships continue to develop with the Governor’s Office, the General Assembly, the Budget and Control Board and the State Department of Education.

• An appreciation breakfast to thank and honor the members of the General Assembly was held in March.

• Elected officials from city and county organizations visit and schedule meetings on the School campus.

• Representatives from state and local government entities are invited to attend the monthly Lunch with the President to receive updates on the School.
