Academic Costume

The academic costume worn today at American college graduation exercises derives from the Middle Ages. The oldest universities of northern Europe, such as Paris and Oxford, grew out of church schools, and both faculty and students were regarded in the Middle Ages as a part of the clergy. They wore clerical costumes, largely borrowed from the monastic dress of that day, not just on special occasions but as their regular costume.

The head covering of the academic costume developed from the skull cap worn by the clergy in cold weather to protect their tonsured heads. In the universities, the skull cap acquired a point on top, which evolved into a tassel. The bonnet with tassel is still worn by degree holders of European universities. In America, it has been replaced by the familiar mortar board, which still retains the medieval tassel.

The hood (the medieval caputium) was originally a covering worn over the head in bad weather, otherwise dropped on the shoulders as the monk's cowl. At first it was worn by faculty and students alike, but in the early sixteenth century it was restricted to graduates, thus becoming the mark of a degree holder. Today, each college has its distinctive hood lining by which its graduates may be recognized in academic processions. Anyone with a degree from Virginia Commonwealth University may wear a hood showing a black chevron on gold background.

The gown worn today is the medieval robe and seems to have been borrowed from the habit of the Benedictine monks. In the Middle Ages, undergraduates, bachelors, and masters could be distinguished by the simplicity or intricacy of their gowns. The doctor's gown was often furred, which survives today in the ornamentation found on the doctoral gown. Usually the gown is black, but some colleges have colored gowns.

The wide velvet borders extending down the front of the doctoral gown, the velvet bars on the sleeves, and the borders of most hoods are colored according to the scholarly field of the wearer.

University Medallion

Serving as a perpetual symbol of Virginia Commonwealth University, the University Medallion is worn by the President at ceremonial occasions. The Egyptian Building, a historic and architectural landmark on the Medical College of Virginia Campus and the oldest medical education building in the South, is the centerpiece of the medallion. Egyptian hieroglyphics and images surrounding the building stand for medicine, the arts, the home, the community, writing and wisdom, measures and numbers, time, knowledge, and the sciences. These images represent VCU's mission of teaching, research, public service, and patient care.

THE HONOR SOCIETY OF PHI KAPPA PHI

Phi Kappa Phi is a national honor society founded in 1897. The Virginia Commonwealth University Chapter was established in 1976. The primary objectives of this society are to promote the pursuit of excellence in all fields of higher education and to recognize outstanding achievement by students, faculty and others through election to membership and various awards for distinguished achievement.

Phi Kappa Phi typifies the honor society ideal, characteristic of American higher education, as it exists for the dual purpose of recognizing and honoring those students who attain high scholastic achievements, and encouraging those students who are capable of doing so.

Phi Kappa Phi is unique because it recognizes scholarship in all academic disciplines, and does not restrict its membership to a specific field. Its interest and eligibility are extended across all subjects offered at the modern university and, by so doing, highlights the importance of appreciating and understanding more than a single limited specialty.

VCU

Virginia Commonwealth University

is supported by Virginia to serve the Richmond area, the state, and the nation through teaching, research, service, and patient care.

VCU combines comprehensive undergraduate, graduate, and professional programs with one of the largest academic health centers in the nation. With more than $113 million in annual research funding, VCU is a Carnegie Research-I University, one of only three in Virginia to be ranked in the top category for higher education in the United States.

More than 23,400 students pursue 153 degree and post-graduate certificate programs through the University's ten schools and one college. VCU has a full-time instructional faculty of more than 1,600 who are nationally and internationally recognized for excellence in the humanities, the arts, the sciences, engineering, education, social work, business, and all the health-care professions.

With an annual budget of more than $1 billion and with more than 14,500 employees, VCU is a significant economic enterprise in the Richmond area. Two-thirds of VCU's more than 107,000 alumni also live and work in Virginia.

VCU is in progress with A Strategic Plan for the Future of Virginia Commonwealth University, a long-range planning initiative begun in 1993 and now in its second phase. The goal of the strategic plan is to enhance VCU's national stature as well as its contribution to the community, particularly through collaborative initiatives and partnerships.

One of the University's most important strategic collaborations is the School of Engineering, established with the academic, business, and governmental sectors of Virginia. VCU's engineering school was included in state incentives that attracted the microelectronics industry to Virginia and is becoming a center for bioengineering education and research.

VCU also is collaborating with academic, state and local government, and business leaders to develop the Virginia Biotechnology Research Park, which is serving as a catalyst for the biotechnology industry in Virginia. Located next to the Medical College of Virginia Campus, the Research Park will represent more than $500 million in capital investment over 34 acres in downtown Richmond and provide employment for more than 3,000 researchers, scientists, engineers, and technicians.

More recently, the University has launched the life-sciences initiative for undergraduate and graduate education and research. Its centerpiece is the interdisciplinary Life Sciences Building, which will house the Departments of Biology, Biomedical Engineering, Chemistry, Mathematical Sciences, and Physics and the Center for Environmental Studies.

VCU's health-care mission includes MCV Hospitals, one of the most comprehensive teaching hospitals in the nation. MCV Hospitals and its satellite health-care facilities have been ranked for excellence by U.S. News & World Report and in 100 Hospitals-Benchmarks for Success. MCV Hospitals is part of the VCU Health System, which includes MCV Physicians. ♦

Congratulations

To

All!
