

LETTER FROM THE EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

Going into the next millennium, in the face of a diversity of new beginnings, I am personally faced with an ending. This volume represents my final year as Editor-in-Chief of CMI and the beginning of a transition period, during which the next Editor-in-Chief will become involved in the editorial process of the Journal.

I am pleased to announce that the Society has selected Emilio Bouza to serve as the next Editor-in-Chief. I am confident that his experience and his enthusiasm will be an additional asset to the existing editorial team and that the Journal will continue to prosper under his leadership when his tenure begins. Professor Bouza will assume full responsibility for the content of Volume 7, and submitting authors should thus be expecting details regarding an editorial office in Madrid, where submissions will be received as of June 2000.

In the meantime, I look forward to my continued association with the community of authors and peer reviewers that has made CMI a Journal of which we can be proud. I take this occasion to wish all of you, especially our readership, a fruitful and fulfilling New Year.

With best regards

Jacques Acar
